BIG REMOVALS

In These Days of Progress Many Large Buildings are Moved Bodily to Other Cities for Different Reasons.

A remarkable moving feat was successfully carried through just over a year ago at Bocbott, a little town in Belgium. It was found necessary to enlarge the church, and to do this it meant moving the church tower. New foundations were prepared about 30 ft. away, and along the machinery constructed for its transport the tower, which dates from the fourteenth century, was slowly moved. It wasn't a "moonlight flit" either, for it took the best part of a week to move it the necessary 30 ft. Not only had the engineers to face the possibility of the tower toppling in the move, but they had the task of lifting 3700 tons.

Moving a Glasgow Church

Whole towns have been moved bodily. Some years ago the town of Plasto, in South Dakota, was declared to be insanitary. It was decided to move to a more convenient spot, some miles away. The first building moved was the Platte Hotel. One great obstacle that had to be overcome was a broad creek. This was successfully managed, however, with the help of 120 horses. The town church followed, and then the rest of the buildings, shops, houses, everything, lock, brick, and barrel.

This is certainly one of the most extraordinary moves that have ever taken place. Shifting houses in America is not thought half so much of as in England, where it is rarely done.

In 1899, however, Glasgow people witnessed the removal of St. Bride's Episcopal Church from its old site in the Beaconsfield Road to a new one about half a mile away. It was found to be considerably cheaper to shift the church as it stood than to pull it to pieces and re-erect it. The church was moved on a Saturday, and on the Sunday services were held in it as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

BIG FISH HATCHES

The World's Largest Salmon Nursery Is In Canada. — Fish-Hatching Is An Extraordinary Business.

From the Fisheries Department of the Canadian Government, whose duty it is to replenish the Canadian rivers with the commercial varieties of fish, come some interesting facts concerning fish-hatching. The work is carried out by a series of hatcheries established throughout the country at points both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the Great Lakes.

The largest of these — indeed, it is said to be the largest of its kind in the world — is the hatchery at Harrison Lake, drained by the Fraser River in British Columbia, which deals exclusively with the hatching of salmon. There are always 10,000,000 fish in the building — 7,000,000 sockeye salmon eggs and fry (the fish principally used for canning purposes), and 3,000,000 spring salmon.

The building contains 160 hatching troughs, each averaging 90,000 fish. During September and October the eggs of the female are expressed into a pan and the fertilizing "milt" of the male thoroughly mixed with them. The eggs are then carried to the hatchery and placed in troughs set in flowing water.

When ready to be liberated the fish are placed in a specially-constructed semi-submerged boat. This is towed to a chosen spot, and when in proper position is allowed to sink below the water.

BOILED SNAKE-ONE

Reptiles Though Repugnant to European Tastes are Considered in Many Climes as Dainty Dishes.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "cut" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled Snake—One."

A peculiarly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk, and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat markets of Senusar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcases hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in Siam, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

Milly: "You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married."

Tilly: "Oh, I don't know, dear. If you really love him you'll let him be loving for a little longer yet."

ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Members of the Board of Education Were Re-Elected.

At the Municipal nominations yesterday, no new candidates were placed in the field for the Board of Education, and as a result, Messrs. John Crane, W. H. Hill, T. H. Adams, Col. Miller and Dr. Burnham were elected by acclamation for two years and the Board will be entirely the same as this year.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Mass. — Frank W. Rollins of Bakersville, Mass., is the youngest boy preacher in the country if not in the world. Though only 16 years old he possesses a preacher's license. This he makes good use of by supplying his father's pulpit and preaching in different towns throughout the state. The boy is not out of school, having taken a post graduate classical course in the Torrington high school. He is preparing for a Wesleyan university and will follow with a course at the Theological seminary.

He is known in his vicinity as the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" and is perfectly at home in conducting prayer meetings. When he supplies his father's pulpit his sermons are of the sort to make the congregation sit up and take notice.

Francis is just like other boys. His nature is sunny and bright and his fondness for sports is very keen, but in spite of boyishness there is underneath a strain of earnestness forecasting his career. The people of his father's congregation accept his ministrations and sermons with as much seriousness as they do those of the parent. Throughout the state the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" is known and people flock to hear him whenever he comes.

QUEER AD TO LAND BRAINS

New York. — The following ad is appearing here: — $1,000,000 and over when he retired; came on salary $700 a year; $3000 salary when he came; retired with several million; $3 per week when he came; has large amount now to his credit.

I can make others rich if I can find the right kind of men. I want several men who have already shown ability, to relieve me in a very large measure so that I can give more attention to my Deep Sea hotel and my Colony for Cripples and Old People, and to start another Colony out west.

Ten thousand dollars salary for my first assistant per year; $5000 salary for my second assistant per year; $2500 salary for my third assistant per year.

Men from wholesale grocery house or mail order houses preferred. Answer only by letter marked "personal," which will be kept strictly confidential. JOHN ARBUCKLE, Arbuckle Bros., New York.

That "want ad" appeared in New York and Chicago papers. John Arbuckle is the millionaire coffee and sugar magnate. He has just come back from Europe, and explained his queer "ad." "It is like this," he said, "I want to get men with brains and ability to do big things. The best way, I have learned, to get such men is to let them know that you want them and tell them what there is in it for them, and the only way to do that is to advertise for them."

Report Again Published — War Costs Italy Much.

Rome. — After the capture of Tajura, the Italians found the bodies of former comrades with the limbs severed and others who had been crucified. The corpses of members of the Bersaglieri and other regiments were found in a well, where they had been buried alive and the top walled in.

An additional appropriation of $25,000 was made, to carry on the war until the end of 1911. Thus the war in three months has cost Italy $90,000,000.

Cross-Firing

Many are the stories told of "Bobs." Here is one of the best (says a "Daily News" writer), although I do not vouch for its accuracy. He was watching the firing at Bisley and noticed two or three errors on the part of the markers. So he went to the telephone and rang up the officer in charge. "The marking is very bad," he observed. "It's the best you'll get," retorted the officer. "Do you know who I am?" sternly demanded Lord Roberts. "No, I don't." "I am Lord Roberts." "Well, I am Lord Wolseley," came the reply. Lord Roberts loves a joke, but how he took this one is not recorded.

DEFIED THE KING OF SPAIN

Hurrah for Princess Eulalie! She Defies a King! She "Won't Be Sat On" By Her Royal Nephew.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Madrid. — Princess Infanta Eulalie has written a book advocating divorce. King Alfonso of Spain, on hearing of it, instantly telegraphed the princess, his aunt: "I order you to suspend publication until I have taken cognizance of the contents and give my permission to publish." The princess wired back that "I consider myself, so far as my private life is concerned, free to act as I deem fit," and to her friends she declares she will sell her property and leave Spain forever rather than suppress the publication of her book. "I will not be sat on," she adds. "The only things I value are my personality and my work. I do not attach any importance to my birth, because I cannot help it."

AN OCEAN ROMANCE ENDS IN TRAGEDY

New York, Dec. 21.—Driven from his bride by her family's threats to have him arrested because they declared she was too young to be a wife, Louis Segratta re-entered his own home in Williamsburg after a three-days' absence last night, and after firing ineffectively at his mother-in-law, and his wife's sister, wheeled in anger or desperation as his bride suddenly appeared, and shot her dead. Then Segratta turned the revolver on himself and inflicted mortal wounds.

The marriage of Miss Winnifred Heron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heron, Ottawa, and the granddaughter of the late Mr. Gordon Brown, Toronto, to Dr. Phillip Weatherbe, of Halifax, N.S., took place very quietly yesterday at Grace Church, Deer Park, from the residence of Mr. Edward B. Brown, K.C., uncle of the bride.

QUEER MASTERS

Robbie Burns Composed His Masterpiece "Tam o' Shanter" in One Day and Byron His Masterpiece in One Night.

Dr. John Brown, one of Ruskin's greatest friends, made an immortal name by one short story, "Rab and His Friends." Rab is a dog, and his history, full of a natural pathos and simplicity, is read, and will continue to be read, by old and young as long as the language lasts. Yet it was written in the first four hours of a midsummer morning. The author was then a young doctor, and he sat down to write his masterpiece at twelve o'clock midnight and finished at four o'clock in the morning. He was unaware that he had written anything exceptionally good, but the moment it appeared in print he found himself famous.

Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote his only novel in a week. This is the celebrated "Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia." His mother died at Lichfield in her ninetieth year, and in order to defray the funeral expenses, and to discharge some debts which she had left, he sat down to write a book. It took him seven days to complete, and he sent the sheets to the press without looking them over. He was paid $500 for the copyright, which was probably ten times more than he ever earned in the same space of time during any other period of his life. The book was an instant success and immediately became the talk of the town.

A Good Day's Work

Robert Burns composed his masterpiece, "Tam o' Shanter," in one day, in the open air. Burns went out of the house in the morning and, not returning, his wife joined him in the afternoon with her two children. Seeing that he was "crooning to himself" she forebore to interrupt him, but stayed in the fields at a distance, where she could see him. She observed him wildly gesticulating, and at times fairly leaping with joy. She said to Allan Cunningham, the poet, after her husband's death, "I wish ye had seen him, he was in such ecstasy that the tears were happing down his cheeks." He committed the poem to writing by the riverside, and went into the house and read it to his wife at the fireside with great triumph. One of the most notable day's work ever done in Scotland!

"The Diverting History of John Gilpin," a ballad which contains upwards of sixty verses, was composed by Cowper in bed during the hours of one night. Lady Austen, Cowper's friend, told him the story one evening to cheer him up, and he said next morning not only that convulsions of laughter at his recollections of its incidents had kept him awake during the greater part of the night, but also that he had made a ballad of it. As soon as it appeared in print it was recited on the stage and became vastly popular, a popularity which it retains to this day.

Byron, delayed by bad weather at an inn at Gruchy for a couple of days, wrote that sublime poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon," perhaps the best known of all his works. He wrote it, almost as it stands, in one night, sitting up late, in a perfect frenzy of inspiration, and completing it before he retired to rest. The whole history of literature does not contain a more unique instance of rapid composition.

Hard-and-Fast Routine

More and more, as we grow older, do we become the victims of routine and slaves of the hour.

The same round of duties lies every morning waiting for the coming of the mistress of the house as she takes up the reins of government with the best heart she may.

The woman who really rules her household and assumes the responsibility of wife and mother as her own, not to be laid on the shoulders of any deputy, gradually, in too many cases, lets go the opportunities of influence and blessing which would interrupt her prescribed order of accomplishment.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS SHOT.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and their party sat down in their box at Ford's Theatre the fateful night the President was shot, the guard who was acting as substitute for Col. McCook, took his position at the rear of the box, close to an entrance leading into the box from the dress circle of the theatre. His orders were to stand there, fully armed, and to permit no unauthorized person to pass into the box. His orders were to stand there and protect the President at all hazards. From the spot where he was thus stationed, this guard could not see the stage or the actors; but he could hear the words the actors spoke, and he became so interested in them that, incredible as it may seem, he quietly deserted his post of duty, and, walking down the dimly lighted aisle, deliberately took a seat in the last row of the dress circle It was while the President was thus absolutely unprotected through this guard's amazing recklessness—to use no stronger words—that Booth rushed through the entrance to the box, just deserted by the guard, and accomplished his foul deed. Realization of his part in the assassination so preyed upon the mind of the guard that he finally died as a result of it.

HUSBAND AS PRIZE

A lottery has just been organized for its women readers by the Odessa 'Courier,' the prize being a young and handsome member of the staff, who has undertaken to marry the winner, be she young or old, fair or ugly, rich or poor. Not only does the enterprising journal agree to pay all wedding expenses, but also promises the couple a sufficient annuity.

Similar was the offer made some years ago by a German newspaper. The prize, however, by no means came up to the expectations of the winner, who declared that the pursy, baldheaded little man who presented himself for her acceptance bore no resemblance to the portrait of the aristocratic-looking individual which had appeared in the paper.

"Mr. Arnett was born in Virginia, January 12th, 1880, making him twenty-five years old. He was educated in the University of Virginia, and is in business in Kansas City. He has chestnut hair and brown eyes; his height is 5 ft. 8 in., and his weight is 16 st. 10 lb. He does not use narcotics nor intoxicants, has no bad habits, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has a jovial disposition, and is very popular."

Husband With $1000 a Year.

In the early 'forties the proprietor of the leading library at one of the chief Kentish watering-places announced a grand raffle, the first prize to consist of a young man, who, in addition to good looks, amiable manners, and unexceptionable family connections, was guaranteed to be in possession of property bringing in an annual income of $1500. Considerable excitement prevailed, especially among spinsters—young, middle-aged and old — several of whom came from afar to take part in the event. Woeful, then, was the dismay when, on the morning of the day appointed for the drawing, a couple of constables arrived from London and arrested the much-advertised "prize" on a charge of fraud.

Creeps like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked. No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh, has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh, and prevents the disease spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes, and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a commonsense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone. The complete outfit costs only $1.00. Trial size, 25c. Sold by Druggists, and The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Painful Injury.

A very serious accident occurred on Saturday afternoon on the Chemong road, by which Mrs. Hattie Milburn, of Smith, received painful injuries. It appears that Mr. Isaac Milburn, and his two sisters, Miss Hattie and Miss Lizzie were driving into Peterborough and while passing two boys, drawing a Christmas tree, the horse shied and overturned the vehicle. Miss Hattie was badly injured. The others escaped more luckily. The buggy, however, was a total wreck. Dr. Scott, who was summoned, thinks that Miss Milburn will be all right in a short time, although badly bruised about the chest.

Many Happy Returns.

The other day there appeared in the personal column to the effect that Dr. Burnham is a guest of his daughter in Toronto. Now, as most of our citizens are aware, Dr. Burnham has no daughter, and the item therefore is misleading. This great family journal hastens to offer its apologies to the good doctor, and would explain that the printer, evidently in a fit of temporary mental aberration of intellect mistook his name for our old friend Dr. Bingham, who is, we believe, just now, putting in a good time with his boys in the Queen city. His many Peterborough friends will join in conveying to Dr. Bingham their best wishes for many happy returns of the festive Christmas season.

FOR ALDERMEN

YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED FOR

WM. LANGFORD, JR.

As Alderman for North Ward.

With best wishes to one and all for a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

Yours very truly,
WM. LANGFORD, JR.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN GILLESPIE

IN CENTRE WARD

To the Electors of the Centre Ward of Peterborough,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Alderman in the Centre Ward, for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,
GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

Dec. 24, 1911.

VOTE FOR

W. G. MORROW

IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most advantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season, I remain.

Yours truly,
W. G. MORROW.

VOTE FOR

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the Electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's general welfare, and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial, permanent improvements—especially in the matter of roadbeds—and power at cost, providing that cost be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests, particularly where the expenditure of large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,
W. J. JOHNSTON.

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

Miss Myrtle Stevens, of Myrtle; Mr. Clayton Stevens, of Toronto; Mr. Stevens, of Kingston, and Miss Florence Stevens of Napanee, are spending Christmas with their brother, Mr. Geo. Stevens, East City.

CARD OF THANKS

TO THE ELECTORS OF NO. 5 WARD.

It is my duty to return my most sincere thanks to the electors of No. 5 Ward who have shown their confidence in me by allowing me to be returned as Alderman by acclamation. It is an unusual honor and one which I appreciate highly. As in my past year's experience on the Council Board, I will, in the future, use every effort to further the best interests of the City as a whole and promote, in every way possible, the welfare and happiness of our citizens.

Thanking you again and wishing you all A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

Yours,
J. C. ANDERSON.

Issue of New Ordinary Capital Stock

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to a Resolution passed at the Special General Meeting of Shareholders on 7th October, 1908, an issue of $16,000,000 additional Ordinary Capital Stock of the Company, or 160,000 Shares of $100 each, has been ordered by the Board of Directors.

The said Stock will be offered to the shareholders of record at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, the 2nd day of January, 1912, at the price of One Hundred and Fifty Dollars per share, being at a premium of Fifty Per Cent. over and above the par value thereof on the basis of 10 per cent., or one share in ten of their respective holdings.

Payments will be received at the Bank of Montreal, London, New York or Montreal, as follows:

28 per cent or $30 per share on subscription on or before 13th February, 1912.
28 per cent or $30 per share on 12th April, 1912.
28 per cent or $30 per share on 14th June, 1912.
28 per cent or $30 per share on 16th August, 1912.
28 per cent or $30 per share on 18th October, 1912.

Interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum will be paid in October, 1912, from the due date of each instalment to September 30th, 1912, on instalments up to and including that of 16th August, 1912, which have been paid on or before due dates.

All shares of the issue on which instalments have been paid in full on the due dates will rank with the existing stock for the full dividend accruing for the quarter ending 31st December, 1912.

A circular containing the terms of subscription and payment, and enclosing warrants of subscription, will be mailed to the shareholders on or about the 15th day of January, 1912.

By order of the Board,
W. R. BAKER,
Secretary.

Dated at Montreal, 13th December, 1911.

Found Beside Track.

The body of a man was found lying beside the track of the C.P.R., east of Pontypool station. Sectionmen found the body out in two. They gathered it together and took it to the baggage room of the station, and is there awaiting the coroner and identification. It is supposed he had been riding the trucks of a freight train, and becoming cold and exhausted, fell off and was run over.

Good Prize Winners.

Out of sixty seven birds on exhibition at the Cammagton Poultry Show last week, Mr. Harry Lash carried off 64 prizes, including the special prize for the best bird in the show, which he won with a spangled Hamburg cock, also eight other special prizes.

Trains Mostly Late.

The trains on Friday and Saturday were mostly late, in consequence of the Christmas travel. Extra coaches were attached to all passenger trains.

No Paper To-morrow.

There will be no issue of The Times to-morrow, on account of Christmas. The Times being a morning daily newspaper, is published on all public holidays, but not on the succeeding day.

Christmas Music Yesterday.

In all the churches yesterday there was special Christmas music. The theme from the Protestant pulpits was in line with the occasion, having to do with the Birth of Our Lord and Saviour.

OBITUARY.

Stephen Payne.

There passed away on Saturday morning an old and respected citizen in the person of Mr. Stephen Payne, at the advanced age of 80 years. The deceased had been a resident of Peterborough for upwards of 40 years, having originally come from Dummer township. He was a consistent member of the George street Methodist church.

The funeral took place yesterday, interment taking place in the Warsaw cemetery.

COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Company was incorporated in 1906, and has made steady progress. Their Real Estate holdings are chiefly in and around Calgary and will so continue, but latterly they have been paying a little attention to Saskatoon, where such remarkable progress is being made. It will be the policy of the Company to purchase judiciously in and near Towns and Cities which have passed the uncertain stage of development and whose future is assured. The Company, with its expert knowledge of values is better able to handle such business than any individual, however well equipped he may be for the work.

While the Company has been, and will continue to be, conservative in the matter of dividends, it would appear probable that before very long a distribution of Assets, either in the shape of a Stock Bonus or substantial Cash Dividend, might be made. If not, however, the Shareholders will still benefit by holding a security of constantly increasing value, which will be reflected in the market price of the stock.

The remarkable progress of the City of Calgary is perhaps without precedent in Canada. Building permits issued during the ten months ended 31st October, 1911, reached the enormous total of $11,664,138.00.

HIGHER DIVIDEND PROSPECTS

Mr. H. A. MacLean, President of the Company, in a letter dated 15th November, 1911, makes the following reference to Dividend and Reserve Fund: "While I can say nothing official at this time, I may mention that at the Company's Annual Meeting, following its year-end at 31st December, it is my intention to recommend that the Dividend for 1911 be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, which will be an advance of 1 per cent. over the Dividend for 1910. I consider it safe to say in this connection, also, that the Dividend for 1912 will be at the rate of 12 per cent.

"The Asset and Liability Return covering the ten months ended 31st October shows, after allowing for all expenses and outlays of every kind, except the 1911 Dividend, a surplus of Assets over Liabilities of $311,736.72. The 1911 Dividend will amount to approximately $40,000.00, leaving a net surplus of approximately $271,736.72, equal to 90 per cent. of the Company's paid-up Capital. This amount may be fairly considered as a Reserve fund in its present shape, and the Company might continue with safety along its present lines. It is my intention, however, at the approaching Annual Meeting, to propose that a portion equal to 25 per cent. of the Real Estate forming this surplus, be set aside, and advantageously sold—the proceeds of such sale to be invested in high grade listed Railroad Bonds, yielding the Company about 5 per cent. This operation, repeated from year to year, will give the Company a reserve fund of pretty much the same nature as is carried by the Banks and other conservatively managed institutions."

COMPANY'S DIVIDEND RECORD

The Company has paid Dividends every year since its incorporation as follows:

1907 ..... 6 per cent.
1908 ..... 8 per cent.
1909 ..... 9 per cent.
1910 ..... 10 per cent.

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

The Company's statement of assets and liabilities as of October 31st, 1911, attested to by Messrs. Webb, Read & Hegan, appears in full in the prospectus. It shows the value of the Company's real estate and buildings, as valued by Mr. V. J. L. Eccles, to stand at $584,111, and balance of profit and loss account $311,736. Of the Company's authorized capital of $1,000,000, $398,380 is subscribed, $301,857.50 of which is paid up, leaving $96,522.50 of unmatured and unpaid calls.

Inquiries as to the Company's standing and the integrity and ability of the directors (of whom the President, Managing Director and Secretary-Treasurer devote their time exclusively to the Company's business) may be made of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal.

It is the intention to make application in due course to have the stock listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Copies of prospectus and application forms for shares may be obtained from the undersigned, and in cases where the request for application forms states the number of shares desired it will be considered that application has been received at that date. The right is reserved, however, to allot a smaller number of shares than applied for.

Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
BY J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?
A. Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

VOL XXXIV NO 293 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 27 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

A Happy, Prosperous and Joyous New Year to the Readers of The Times

JUST LIKE THE MAN WHO SIGNS A BLANK CHEQUE

The action of the City Council in asking the ratepayers of Peterborough to vote for a blind by-law was very well illustrated by one of the speakers at the Board of Trade meeting last week. He remarked that it was on the same principle as asking a business man to sign a blank cheque, leaving it to the person in whose favor the cheque was drawn, to fill in the amount.

Of course, no one could expect any real business man to be guilty of such slack business methods. If he were, his business would last just about as long as a celluloid tom cat in a blast furnace.

And the ratepayers of Peterborough should not be guilty of such folly as giving to, not only the incoming City Council, but to succeeding city councils, unlimited authority in the matter of mortgaging the City to the extent of $500,000, or more.

This is not a question of cheap power—every person wants cheap power. It is simply and solely a matter of voting blanket authority, in this respect, to the City Councils of Peterborough for all time to come. The opponents of the by-law merely ask that the Hydro-Commission furnish the City Council and the ratepayers, with an estimate of what the proposed scheme is going to cost, as well as the rate that the public may expect to pay for their light and power.

It is pretty generally known that the City Council did endeavor to obtain this information from the Hydro-Electric Commission, but they were refused it. They were told to go and pass the blind by-law—the by-law with a string to it.

And what is the by-law? The ballot; it is true, will look as harmless as a printed invitation to a kindergarten entertainment. However, it is more dangerous than it looks. It has a string to it. A glance at the Act dealing with the powers of the Hydro-Electric Commission, reveals this beyond any question. The Act recites, that upon the passing of a by-law of this description, the City Council, not this year's City Council alone, but any future City Councils may enter into a contract for the purpose of developing electrical energy, no matter what the cost may be, and regardless of the fact that the vast majority of the ratepayers may be adverse to the terms of the contract.

In a letter to the press Mr. Langford declares this not to be the case. If Mr. Langford really thinks so, and he no doubt does, his source of information is unreliable. Even Mr. Bradburn, the newly elected Mayor, who is a supporter of the by-law, has admitted this to be the case.

But Mr. Bradburn says:—"Trust the Council. They will do nothing that is not in the best interests of the people." The new Mayor's sublime confidence in the good judgment of the men who may constitute the City Councils of the City for the next 25 or 30 years is truly magnificent.

The one big question of the whole big question is as to why the people of Peterborough are asked to vote upon this by-law before the City Council has any information to offer them; and further, why, when the City Council was determined to submit the by-law at the present stage of the proceedings, did they not set out therein, that no contract involving the city in any expenditure on power development would be entered into by the City Council, before it would be submitted to the people for approval.

Beyond any doubt the signing of a blank cheque by a business man would not be more hazardous than the passing of this by-law—this innocent looking blind by-law, which has a string attached to it, as long as a comet's tail.

OPEN SWITCH CAUSED FATAL TROLLY ACCIDENT

FORMERLY THE SWITCH WHERE ACCIDENT OCCURRED POINTED TO THE WEST.

New Don Bridge Cause the Change—Motorman in Charge of the Car Was First Employed Eighteen Months Ago—Claims for Damages Will Be Heavy.

Toronto, Dec. 27.—When seen this morning at his office, Manager R. J. Fleming stated distinctly that he did not wish to say anything that would be in any way derogatory to Motorman Moore, who is now under arrest on a charge of manslaughter, in connection with the accident on Christmas Eve.

From officials sources it was learned, however, that all cars are required to stop in front of the barns about 100 feet to the east of the spot where the accident occurred.

The switch which caused the trouble is a new one and had only been opened to traffic on Saturday. The fact that it was open at one time was not at all unusual, as the orders of the company place the onus of closing switches on the motorman of the approaching car. The motorman who approaches a switch must either stop or turn the switch. In the present case a positive stop 100 feet distant would have prevented the car from gaining sufficient momentum before reaching the switch to do any damage even had the motorman not turned the switch at that point as it was his definite duty to do. This system it was explained obtains in all parts of the city with the exception of points where traffic is so heavy as to necessitate the presence of a switchman, and in each case it is the motorman who must be responsible for the switch. The car which has just passed through the switch leaves it open, and the motorman on that car has nothing further to do with it. The motorman in the approaching car, however, must perform the task of switchman.

The car was nine minutes late on arriving at the Don bridge, it was officially stated.

The reason for the lateness, was the numerous stops at the white posts to pick up passengers. All the way from the other end of the line the car had been forced to stop to gather in Christmas travellers.

MOTORMAN REFUSED BAIL.

Answering to a charge of manslaughter before Magistrate Denison in the Police Court this morning, William John Moore, the motorman, of the car that jumped the track at St. Lawrence street Sunday night, through his counsel, T. C. Robinette, K.C., asked for a week's adjournment.

"And will your Worship accept bail," asked the defence.

"No," answered the Magistrate, emphatically.

"But the coroner's jury have not handed in their verdict yet, and we don't know that he is guilty, persisted Mr. Robinette.

"That is just what we have to find out and he will remain in custody in the meantime," was the court's final decision.

The case was adjourned till January 2nd.

BANK OF OTTAWA.

Splendid Financial Report Presented At Annual General Meeting.

The Bank of Ottawa, whose 37th annual ...eeting was held at the head office of the Bank on the 20th December, shows that that institution not only had a successful year, but adopted the somewhat unusual procedure of voluntarily providing for outside inspection. The well known firm of chartered accountants, Price, Waterhouse & Co., audited the books and accounts of the Head Office and the larger branches throughout the year and found everything to be conducted in a satisfactory manner. The bank's net profits for the year amounted to $595,228, or an increase of $63,000 over the figures for the previous year. With the balance brought forward from the previous year the bank had $713,000 available for distribution, of which dividend requirements took $365,000, bank premises account $100,000, rest account $100,000, and officers pension fund $10,000, leaving $118,000 to be carried forward at credit of profit and loss account.

The bank to-day is in the somewhat unusual position of having a larger reserve than paid-up capital, the reserve standing at $4,000,000, while the paid-up capital is $3,500,000. This is a source of strength. Other evidences of the bank's progress is shown by the fact that the note circulation increased and now amounts to $3,743,000. The bank's deposits increased by $2,500,000, and the total assets by $2,800,000, which now totals $46,858,000. A marked increase was shown in the current loans in Canada, which gained over $3,000,000 and now stand at over $31,582,000. This indicates that the bank is taking a continually larger share in the business of the country and doing its part in developing the nation's resources. Altogether the showing made by the Management is satisfactory and congratulations are due the President and the Board of Directors.

MR. KENDRY HONORED.

A very pleasing event took place at the residence of Mr. James Kendry, the popular President of the Auburn Woollen Company on Saturday, when a delegation of the employees of the company waited on him and presented him with a beautiful gold headed cane and a Morris chair, accompanied by an address.

Mr. Kendry has been confined to his house during the last couple of weeks and while on the way to recovery, has not been able to reach the mill—a thing that has not happened in many years.

The address therefore expressed the sympathy of the employees, and their prayers for a speedy recovery.

Mr. Kendry, who was completely taken by surprise, on account of his illness, did not reply verbally, but wrote a letter, thanking the donors for their kindly good wishes and beautiful presents.

Laid At Rest.

The remains of the late Mrs. Jas. Killenbeck, of 27 Lafayette Avenue, who passed away on Friday evening last, were taken to Millbrook on Monday, where interment took place. A large number of friends assembled at the funeral to show a last mark of respect for the lady whose death is deeply regretted, and the beautiful display of floral tributes were also evidence of the esteem in which the deceased lady was held. The pallbearers were Messrs. Arthur, Thomas Joseph and Alex. Killenbeck, of Peterborough; Messrs. Wm. Wand, of Otonabee, and Philip Moore, of Toronto.

PUBLIC OPINION

HYDRO ELECTRIC BY-LAW

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Do not the ratepayers see where the opposition to the Hydro-Electric power vote is coming from? Money is being expended in opposing the vote. Only the power monopoly interests would spend money for this purpose. The people, I hope, will not be influenced by the power interests to vote against the interests of the City and all in it who use light and power.

The monopoly can have clever articles written and published. They have plenty of money to do it with. The trust is one backed by millions, and can pay for the best lawyers and other assistants to put up a fight for them.

But the question is so plain that no one should be misled.

In whose hands do the ratepayers think their power and light interests will be safer—in the hands of the power monopoly or of the people's Commission and Council? The power monopoly want to hold the market for themselves. They have gobbled the power sites and other companies for this purpose. If they can hold the market, they will compel the people to take light and power from them only, and reap handsome profits on their millions at the expense of the people.

The Hydro-Electric Commission is the people's Commission. It does not, and no member of it does, make or lose a cent whether the people take power from it or not. It exists only to serve the people.

By the power vote on New Year's Day, the ratepayers will say either that they will ask the aid of their own Commission, the Hydro-Electric or that they will be content to remain in the hands of the power monopoly, which is spending money to hold them in its clutches.

Yours truly,
Geo. H. Duncan.

CHEAP ELECTRIC POWER

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Peterborough with the water power in the city, should have electric power as cheap as any place in the Dominion.

This month a manufacturing company was written to from Peterborough regarding the location of their industry, and the reply was made that they had decided to locate in another city and that "the deciding factor in locating has been the low cost of electric power coupled with the excellent shipping facilities." A further enquiry as to the cost there of electric power brought this reply:—

".....Dec. 18th, 1911.

"Dear Sir,—

"We are in receipt of your favor of the 14th inst. and we may say that the regular price of City and ..... Power Company are $15.00 per h.p. per annum.

"Yours tryly,
"The Canadian Brakeshoe Company, Limited.
"P. McCULLOUGH,
"President."

This city should take advantage of the services and authority of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission to obtain power that will be owned and controlled by the Municipality for industrial purposes as well as for street and other lighting.

Yours truly,
W. Buller.

SHOULD HAVE INFORMATION.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—I am glad to notice my recent enquiry has started people thinking, and to-night we have two contradictory answers in our evening papers. The Councillors send in a letter pledging themselves to ascertain course—in which I believe they are honest, strictly so, and are only moved by a desire to serve the city's best interest, BUT WHAT EFFECT HAS THEIR PLEDGE ON FUTURE COUNCILS? How many of them will be there next year or the year after, or later years—or suppose the matter comes up next year and is dealt with as they suggest, and is defeated, how about future Councils? Is that the end of it?

Now "Enquirer" in same issue quotes the law, "Clause 11 of the Hydro-Electric Laws," and instead of requiring resubmission to the people, it EXPLICITLY STATES that "such contract" (with any city council) "shall be"—not MAY or WILL—but "SHALL BE legal, valid and BINDING." Read the clause in yesterday's papers for yourselves.

Now I ask, why did not the Council include the proviso, that there should be nothing binding until after the question was again submitted, instead of giving personal pledges? We are all human and liable to err, and it occurs to me that the Council were somewhat lax here.

Why can we not have the law on this matter made PLAIN? We do not want to know what the present Council will do—they will do what they say—but we want to know what FUTURE COUNCILS can not do.

Why should a meritorious proposition as this appears to be, be subjected to a suspicion of sinister motives, when it could be made perfectly plain?

Why do the Commission want the preliminary vote?—It is said, in order to submit estimates and prepare contracts, etc., but if there is nothing BINDING in this by-law, if it is as innocent as it appears, why not have these estimates made and contracts prepared BEFORE the second proposed by-law is submitted? If their is nothing ulterior and binding, as section 11 above referred to appears to show, it is not entirely superfluous?

I would suggest that the Council obtain their estimates and have the contracts made public and then submit it to the people, for their approval, on its merits. Failing this or an absolute guarantee that the said section 11, is not binding as it states, the ratepayers would be very unwise to support it.

THE EXTENSION OF THE RADIAL RAILWAY LINE

Ratepayers of North Monaghan Will Vote on the Question of Giving Company Permission to Use Monaghan Road—Will Mean a Big Thing for the Township Is General Opinion

The ratepayers of North Monaghan are being asked on January 1st at the coming municipal elections to vote on the question of whether or not the Peterborough Radial Railway Company shall be given permission to extend its Park street line as far south as the corner of Romaine street and Monaghan road. It is anticipated that the measure, which has already been passed and approved by the Council of the township will be carried by the ratepayers as it seems to be universally recognized that the extension of the line as desired, will bring people living in that section of the township in much closer connection with the business section of Peterborough, and will result in real estate in the township becoming correspondingly greater in value. This indeed is indicated by the fact that the mere announcement of the proposal to extend the line into that section has resulted in increased real estate values and activity. Building sites in the neighborhood of the line will come into immediate demand.

The Peterborough Radial Railway Company evidently have great faith in the possibilities of that section, as in an interview with The Times, Mr. W. H. Muffo, the manager, said that further extensions will be necessary in the course of a couple of years and that an application had already been made to the township for the use of the road for that purpose.

Mr. Munro also gave the information that if the by-law passed, the company expects to have its cars running over the new line by June 1 of next year. Work will be commenced just as soon as the weather permits in the spring and the material is already here and available.

Asked as to other probable extensions, Mr. Munro stated that his company has two more new suburban lines in view, one of which he expects to have in operation by the autumn of 1912.

G. N. GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, City of Peterborough,—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

As a candidate for Alderman for one of the two seats in the Centre Ward, I respectfully solicit your votes.

My platform is really this:

1.—Obtain Hydro-Electric estimates and reports as to prices, terms, &c., of obtaining power for the City's manufacturers, and for house and store lighting.

2.—Abate the nuisance caused by the G.T.R. using Bethune street as a shunting yard, which injuriously affects hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of realty.

3.—Obtain legislation allowing reduction of taxes on businesses and improvements and increasing taxation of land values, thus making the holders of vacant land pay their share of the taxes.

4.—Have every milk vendor's milk inspected at least fortnightly and a report with the milkman's name published showing the proportions of butter fat contained in each lot.

5.—Consideration of the question of permanent improvement of highways.

6.—Begin an aggressive campaign to obtain new industries, and inaugurate a strong publicity scheme.

There are two Aldermen to be elected for the Centre Ward, G. A. Gillespie is contesting one seat, while J. R. Metheral and W. G. Morrow, of Charlotte street, is contesting the other seat with me.

If elected, I will energetically support a progressive campaign for the City's advancement.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am.

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

Permanent War-Paint.

The new football rule making it imperative for a goalkeeper to wear a distinguishing jersey led to an amusing incident at a junior match in the Midlands recently.

When the visiting team came on the field their goalkeeper, a youth of gigantic proportions, was seen to be wearing a jersey of the same flaring colours as the rest of the side.

"You must get another jersey," ordered the referee, and the player trotted back to the pavilion.

Back he came in five minutes, still wearing the offending garment. "There ain't another jersey in the place half big enough," he explained.

"Then you'll have to play without one," snapped the autocrat of the whistle, whose temper was not sweetened by waiting about in a cold drizzle.

When the young giant once more reappeared on the field with his team's colours still in evidence, the patience of the official quite gave way.

"If you don't change that jersey I'll order you off the field!" he bellowed.

"I ain't got no jersey on, mister," came the reply. "I've been treatin' the blessed thing as an undershirt all the week, and the bloomin' dye's come out!"

PARLIAMENTARY PERQUISITES

For each session of the U. S. Congress each member is allowed twenty cents a mile for each mile going and coming between his home and Washington. As railroad fares these times run about two cents a mile, and as the Hon. Jasper on his first trip generally spurns the Pullman, as being fit only for the predatory and plutocratic rich, and rides in the day coach with the great common people, it will be seen that on this mileage item alone he cleans up to a considerable extent, especially if he chances to live a long distance from Washington. He gets twenty cents a mile. Every time eight telegraph poles go flittering by there are twenty cents coming in and only about two and a half cents going out. Here, of course, distance counts.

Mileage amounts to a most impressive sum in the case of Prince Cupid, the chubby delegate from the Hawaiian Islands, who comes all the way from Honolulu, and to practically nothing at all in the lamentable case of Representative Charles Creighton Carlin, who resides in Alexandria, right across the river from the district. One or two of the Maryland members, who live only a short distance away, also suffer distressingly in this regard, and are objects of commiseration among their fellows.

Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a ruling passion in his life it was politeness — if such a rare accomplishment can be called a passion.

All the days of his two-and-twenty years had been spent in imbibing the lesson that politeness is irresistible, that as a business asset its value is incalculable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner, for tea, and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Tired and despondent he tramped along.

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an exposition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job. He is at [illegible] in gaol.

THE COURAGE OF OPINIONS

The ways in which people form their opinions are most remarkable. Every man, when he begins his reasonable life, finds certain general opinions current in the world. He is shaped by these opinions in one way or another, either directly or by reaction. If he is soft and plastic, like the majority of people, he takes the opinions that are about him for his own. If he is self-assertive and defiant, he takes the opposite of these opinions and gives to them his vehement adherence. We know the two kinds well, and as we ordinarily see them, the fault which is at the root of both is intellectual cowardice. One man clings servilely to the old ready-made opinions which he finds, because he is afraid of being called rash and radical; another rejects the traditions of his people from fear of being thought fearful, and timid, and a slave..... Both are cowards. Both are equally removed from that brave seeking of the truth, which is not set upon either winning or avoiding any name, which will take no opinion for the sake of conformity and reject no opinion for the sake of originality; which is free, therefore — free to gather its own convictions, a slave neither to any compulsion nor to any antagonism.

—Phillips Brooks.

Latin Prescriptions

The following ludicrously illustrates the necessity of a reform in medical nomenclature.

Dr. Doane was very much confounded, a few years since, by a remark of one of his patients. The day previous the doctor had prescribed that safe and palatable remedy, syrup of buckthorn, and left his prescription duly written in the usual cabalistic characters—"Syr. Rham. Cath." On inquiring if the patient had taken the medicine, a thundercloud darkened her face, lightning darted from her eye, and she roared out:—

"No! I can read your doctor-writing. And I ain't a-going to take Syrup of Ram Cats for anybody."

A Pennyworth of Air.

An enterprising inventor has gone into the business of retailing compressed air for cycles and motor-car tyres on the principle of "drop a penny in the slot." The device is a cast-iron pump in a neat box arrangement, which is nailed to telegraph poles and walls in country districts that are frequented by cyclists and motorists. The handle shown in the centre of the box gives a supply of air when turned.

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a pleasant seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, it's this way. If it's no' sna', it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's sna'. If it's neither frost nor sna', it's rain; if it's no' rain, it's wind; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabbath."

Mrs. Nicholls and daughter, of Haliburton, will be the guests of Mr. Robert Wilson of East City for a few days.

Highest on Earth

The Lon Bridge in the China Andes is the highest bridge in the world. This wonderful construction is four hundred feet high, eight hundred feet long, and stands ten thousand feet above sea-level. It spans a great ravine some three hundred miles from Antofagasta, on the railway [illegible] from that port into Bolivia. This line is also of interest from the fact that it is the highest railway in the world, climbing at one point up to over sixteen thousand six hundred feet above sea-level.

FIFTEEN YEARS PAYING OFF

Loan Shark Extorts $500 On Note of One-Twentieth of That Sum.

Chicago. — Fifteen years ago Mrs. John Murphy borrowed $25 from a loan shark, to settle a debt that her boy had incurred secretly, contrary to his father's command. The note has just been cancelled, through the interference of the Chicago Legal Aid society.

In the 15 years during which the loan shark has been nursing along the note, Mrs Murphy has paid on it more than $500 — 20 times the original loan. She paid interest at the rate of 10 per cent per month, 120 per cent per year. Whenever she got the note nearly paid off the shark would bully her into a renewal. She did this many times — signing the new notes with her mark, for she can neither read nor write.

Finally the loan shark died and his son came to collect. Less circumspect than his father, he came when the son, John Murphy, jr., was at home. The latter heard the collector bullying his mother about a debt that he had thought settled a decade or more ago. He chased the man from the house.

The legal aid society did the rest.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

James Whitcomb Riley, the famous Indiana poet, has written his last poem. The paralytic stroke which he had two years ago has gone to his right hand, making it helpless. Riley says that poetry can never be written except with a pen in hand, not real poetry, he means, and for that reason refused to dictate a poem when asked to. It is learned that the noted bard hasn't long to live though it is hoped by all who know him personally and by reputation that the sweet tongued master of letters will yet give at least one other poem to the world.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Changing Habits of Business Men

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought nothing of staying until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon in mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing. Empires are being broken up, financial systems are passing away, struggles are threatening that will involve half the human race.

Mr. Gordon Vanmatter, of The Times' staff, and Mrs. Vanmatter, are spending a few days with relatives at Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Harvie and family, of Port Colborne, are spending the holidays with Mrs. Harvie's mother, Mrs. Allin, Murray street.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

A TRAIN-LOAD OF MONKEYS

A plague of monkeys some years ago sorely troubled the officials at a small station on the Saran Railway, in North-West India. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighbouring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons.

The officials were wearied out with keeping watch and scaring away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruit were put on the roofs of the wagons, with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted to the spot, and soon became perfectly indifferent to man.

One morning, when they were all busily feeding, an engine was stealthily attached to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared, and made no attempt to escape, sitting crouched together till the train had gone several miles and stopped at a jungle. Then they wanted no hint to leave. Every monkey leapt down howling and fled into the jungle, whence they never returned to trouble the railway.

ROYALTY HOSTS

Though Many Strive to Entertain Royalty — the Cost Limits Would Be Hosts in Addition to the Social Position.

King George, like the late King Edward, does everything that lies in his power to prevent undue trouble or expense being incurred by those whom he visits, and everything that savours of ostentation is most obnoxious to him. At the same time it is necessary that a certain amount of formality should be carefully observed and all this runs into money. His Majesty, for instance, is invariably accompanied by an Equerry, who, by reason of his position, becomes a member of the house-party, while if the Queen travels with His Majesty, her Lady-in-Waiting has likewise to be included among the guests. It is very rarely that the King is attended by more than two body servants; while three maids, as a rule, suffice for Queen Mary's requirements.

It is laid down that His Majesty must upon all occasions have a suite of apartments to himself, and it is desired that these should be as far removed from the rooms of the other members of the house-party as possible. A similar suite has to be provided for Queen Mary when she is present. Not many years ago a well-known nobleman who was entertaining the present King for the first time spent over $10,000 in providing a new suite of rooms for His Majesty's occupation.

An Expensive Luncheon

His Majesty lives very simply, so that in reality very little extra cost need be incurred for food and drink upon his account. Naturally, however, those honoured with his company find it incumbent upon them to exert themselves to the utmost to provide every delicacy — in or out of season — that can possibly be obtained. As much as $5 apiece has been paid for quails for the Royal table before to-day, and as much for peaches when not in season, while $3 a basket holding considerably less than a pound of early strawberries is regarded as nothing out of the ordinary upon these occasions. A short time before his accession it was estimated that one luncheon-table for ten guests, at which His Majesty was present, had cost between $1000 and $1500 to prepare. And then all that the King ate was a plate of cold roast-beef and some salad!

Royal Liking for Music

Both King George and Queen Mary have a great liking for good music, so that those who are their hosts and hostesses spend almost fabulous sums to obtain the services of the most talented vocalists and instrumentalists of the day. Upon one occasion, some years ago, Queen Alexandra having expressed her admiration for the playing of Kubelik, her host promptly wired to him and invited him to name his own terms for one evening's recital. Not only was the large amount demanded cheerfully paid to the gifted musician, but special trains were provided to convey him to the house and to take him back to London again, a sumptuous dinner awaited him, and the smallest wish he expressed was at once complied with. What the evening's entertainment cost it is almost impossible to say.

Quick Measurements.

A traveller was detained at a little country railway station for half an hour, and was chatting with the stationmaster, when the bell rang sharply half-a-dozen times. Instantly the three employés—stationmaster, booking-clerk and yard hand—ranged up in a line on the platform and stood at attention.

A moment later a locomotive with a single saloon-carriage slowed up. The military occupant of the saloon regarded the men sharply, made hurried notes, and quickly retired.

"Who was that?" the traveller asked the station agent after the train had gone. "Some prominent official of the line?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "That was the company's tailor measuring us for new suits."

Why the Dog Howled

He was a poor, miserable-looking dog, and the stranger's heart was filled with pity. For the dog was howling, and it was only too evident that he was suffering pain. So he asked the tired rustic who lounged near why the dog howled.

"Im?" asked the rustic. "He's just lazy, that's all."

"But laziness doesn't make a dog howl, surely?" queried the benevolent one.

"Does 'im," said the tired owner. "Only lazy."

"But how," queried the persistent questioner — "how can laziness make him howl?"

"Well, you see," said the rural lounger, "that pore dog is sittin' on some real, tough thistles, and he's too lazy to get off, so he just sits there and bowls 'cause it hurts so."

THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilised nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognised when the average smoker tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, sidings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know All — Who Heard That Years Ago — Can Be Taken Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything under the sun worth knowing.

When next you run up against him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this marvel, ask him which city is the farther east — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

Birth Stones.

For ages certain gems have been allotted to the months, each with its significance. The list given below is one generally accepted:—

January—Garnet: Constancy and fidelity.

February—Pearl or amethyst: Purity, peace of mind.

March—Jacinth or bloodstone: Courage in affection.

April—Diamond: Unchanging affection.

June—Agate: Ensures long life, health and prosperity.

July—Ruby: Exempts from love doubts and anxiety.

August—Moonstone: A charm for conjugal felicity.

September — Sapphire: Ensures cheerfulness.

October—Opal: Helpfulness and happy faith.

November — Topaz: Fidelity in friendship.

December — Turquoise: Success, happiness, and many friends.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he enlisted, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier: "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf."

Strength of Character

There are no circumstances so poor but that character may display itself and make itself therein. Strength of character lies not in demanding special circumstances, but in mastering and using any that may be given. Our work and daily contact with our fellows form our scene of action, and God blesses with a peculiar blessing the efforts to put to profit, not some self-selected occasion, but the actual conditions in which we find ourselves. — Canon Scot Holland, "Creed and Character."

DIVORCE IN NATIONS

Some Curious Grounds on Which Divorce Is Granted in the Different Nations of the Civilized World.

In connection with the agitation for the reform of English divorce laws, it is interesting to learn the grounds on which divorce is granted in the different countries. In the first place it will probably strike many people as exceedingly curious that, while Ireland has no divorce law — separation alone being allowed — in Scotland divorce is granted for misconduct of either the husband or wife, the sexes being regarded as on an equality in that respect or for malicious desertion for four years. And while in Queensland, Western Australia and Tasmania the divorce law is almost identical with that in England, in New Zealand misconduct on the part of the husband, wilful desertion by the husband or wife for five years without just cause, habitual drunkenness of four years and upwards, imprisonment or penal servitude, for seven years or more, and confinement in a lunatic asylum for ten years constitute grounds for divorce.

In Canada the law is the same as in England, while in America each of the forty-six States makes and administers its own laws of divorce. That is why they vary so much. "In only one State, South Carolina," says the author of "Marriage Making and Breaking," "is there no divorce, and in only one State, New York, is misconduct made an indispensable condition to the grant of a decree. Desertion and cruelty are in varying degrees common grounds in all other States, in fifteen States desertion for only one year being needed. In thirty-five States habitual drunkenness is a ground, and in a majority conviction for felony. Insanity is a ground in nine States, and neglect to provide for the wife and children in nineteen."

In Denmark divorce is obtainable for misconduct, leprosy, incurable insanity, imprisonment for three years, or separation for the same period. A new system of divorce law came into force in Norway in 1910. Under it the husband and wife agreeing to separate, an order is granted by a magistrate. If the parties do not agree, either of them can obtain a separation on the grounds of misconduct, drunkenness, ill-treatment, prodigality, or aversion. The marriage, where the parties agree to separation, may be dissolved at the end of one year.

SOME CLEVER ADS

How Sir George Newnes Advertised His First Venture in the Publishing Line — On An Asses Back.

After the English Tit-Bits was founded Sir George Newnes the proprietor, was always looking out for new ways of advertising it. He was always on the "qui vive" for fresh notions and an illustration of his ability in this direction is furnished by an incident which took place during a visit to Brighton. Sir Newnes noticed the usual bands of patient donkeys ready to take holiday-makers for "tuppenny" rides at a moment's notice, and the sight inspired him with the following plan: He engaged two of the donkeys, and had gorgeous cloaks prepared for them, bearing the inscription, in gigantic letters, "We don't read Tit-Bits." The public laughed heartily at the idea that the paper was only rejected by asses, and the sale that week was phenomenal.

On another occasion in Newcastle Mr. Newnes as he was then, engaged an army of sandwichmen, the first of whom displayed the name Tit-Bits in gigantic letters on the board towering high above him; the name, and nothing more. The second, in the same manner, paraded the phrase "I like it"; the third, "My wife likes it"; the fourth, "My daughter likes it"; the fifth, "My mother likes it"; and so on, through the whole of what must have appeared a family numerically blessed beyond the average. On the last board was blazoned forth the assertion "So do I," and soon everybody in Newcastle was talking about the name and fame of Tit-Bits.

Everyone to His Taste

With characteristic enterprise Newnes, noticing the popularity of the vegetarian restaurants in Manchester, decided to open one, and in a short time the "Vegetarian Company's Saloon," as he called it, was a great success. It became the talk of the town. At twelve o'clock on a Tuesday the saloon was opened. At 12.30 it was closed, and the proprietor sent a wire to his wife: "Eaten up in half an hour!"

Sir George Newnes's brother-in-law tells a delightful story in connection with this experiment. One day when the restaurant was in full swing, he came to it in search of its owner. He found that Mr. Newnes was not there — he had gone out a short time ago. Ultimately he tracked the advocate of vegetarianism to a neighbouring hotel, and discovered him doing justice to a large beefsteak. Mr. Newnes chuckled as he encountered the astonished eye of his brother-in-law, and said, quietly, and with the ghost of a wink, "Everyone to his taste!"

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope and I dreaded it. I tried several remedies and consulted doctors, but my wasted time was my money. I seemed to get worse all the time. I was getting better than regular. Something told me that I was off work so much and I lost many dollars. I listened to reason, consulted Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, had taken treatment from them myself and knew they were square and skilled. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first part of the treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week running a machine prior to treatment. Now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

A CONTRADICTION

The Case of the Fox is a Curious Contradiction — He Exists Solely by Reason of Persecution.

The position of the fox is a curious one — he exists solely by reason of persecution. Once let humanitarians step in and put an end to the cruel treatment the fox receives and he must cease to exist.

At present a huge sum is spent every year for the apparent purpose of exterminating canis vulpes, yet an outcry is raised if a single death save by orthodox means occurs. A fox is "vermin," yet he is more carefully protected than most game, and, save in the hunting season, his person is sacred.

True the naturalist, interested in one of the last wild beasts existing in England, tries to make out as good a case for him as he can. He points out with perfect truth that foxes kill rats, when they come across them, and that they eat worms and beetles upon occasion.

Should the gamekeeper be forced to admit this he will promptly give a further list of more daintly fare to which the fox has a leaning, while the poultry fancier will have a tale to tell of thousands of really valuable birds which foxes have accounted for. The culprit's champion may say that such birds should have been better protected, but if he does he will only bring down further wrath, since, alas, it is solely to protect his birds from foxes that many a fancier has to spend money, he can ill afford.

Farmers have also a good deal to say on the subject, for it is not an uncommon thing for young lambs to be taken by these pests, while in the West of Ireland pony foals are occasionally pulled down by them.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ON JURY

"We voted together for the first time and I guess we thought just alike all along," said Mrs Gideon Fraser, who, with her husband, sat three days recently on the same jury and helped return a verdict today convicting Meyer Cohen of embezzlement from the Moose Lodge. It was the first time a husband and wife had served on the same jury in this state, possibly in the country, and the couple were the centre of attraction for many who visited the trial.

AN UNREPORTED INCIDENT.

HOME SEC'Y.—"And what are you in for?"
THE CONVICT—"Abduction, sir. Tried to run off wiv a gal."
HOME SEC'Y.—"You must be pardoned. I don't see how a man with your appearance could expect to get a wife in any other way."
—London Opinion.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 357 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU have no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away the thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine, and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scanty and or offensive urine.
4—Pain or soreness in side kidneys.
5—Pain or soreness in the stomach.
6—General debility, nervousness, drowsiness.
7—Sleeplessness or fitful sleep.
8—Pain or uneasy feeling in any part of the body.
9—Puffiness under or about the eyes.
10—Frequent headaches or dizzy spells.
11—Irregular or intermittent action of the heart.
12—Pain in the joints or muscles.
14—Pain in the muscles of the arms.
15—Pain in the muscles of the legs.
16—Pain and soreness in the chest.
17—Pain and soreness in the limbs.
18—Kidneys or bladder troublesome.

BY-LAW NUMBER 644

A By-law to authorise the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan to execute an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the right to use a Highway in the Township of North Monaghan as therein mentioned.

Passed 17th day of November, 1911.

WHEREAS The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has applied to the Council of the Township of North Monaghan for the franchise and right for a period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the public highway or road, which may be better known as "The Monaghan Road" extending Southerly from Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances for the purposes of the said Railway, and the Council and Company have agreed on the terms and conditions on which in the opinion of the Council the said right should be given, which terms and conditions have been reduced to writing, and are fully set out herein, and it is necessary that the said terms and conditions and the period for which said right is to be granted should be submitted to the vote of the Electors of the Municipality in the manner provided in the Consolidated Municipal Act (1903) and the Ontario Railway Act 1906 with respect to By-laws requiring the assent of the Electors.

THEREFORE the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. The Council of the Township of North Monaghan are hereby authorized to enter into an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company in the words and figures following, namely:

THIS AGREEMENT made in duplicate the 17th day of November, 1911, between THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, hereinafter called the "Corporation," of the FIRST PART and THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY COMPANY, hereinafter called the "Company," of the SECOND PART.

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto and dated the Fourteenth day of March, 1904, the Corporation did grant unto the Company a franchise and right for the period of thirty years, therein set forth, together with the exemption therein referred to, and

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto, and dated the Nineteenth day of September, 1904, the Corporation did further grant unto the Company an extension of said Franchise to the Boundary Line running along the Western limit of the City of Peterborough from Charlotte Street to the Northern boundary of the Township of North Monaghan, and

WHEREAS the parties have further agreed to further extend the said Franchise from the north side of Charlotte Street southerly along the highway known as the Monaghan Road (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan), to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan.

1. WITNESSETH that the Corporation doth hereby upon and subject to the terms, provisoes and conditions hereinafter referred to and contained, and subject to the Special Statute incorporating the Company, and of the Sections of the Railway Act applying to the said Company, grant to the said Company the Franchise and right for the period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the Public Highway or Road, which may be known as "The Monaghan Road" extending southerly from the north side of Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee, in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances thereon for the purpose aforesaid. Provided, however, that the rails shall be laid along the centre of the road allowance as far South as Cameron Street and that from the North side of Cameron Street South to the River Otonabee the rails shall be laid on the portion of the highway designated by the Township Council.

2. AND it is expressly declared and agreed by and between the parties hereto that wherever in this agreement the parties of the First Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Corporation, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns, and wherever in this agreement the parties of the Second Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Company, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns.

3. AND the Company do hereby covenant, promise and agree with the Corporation in manner following, that is to say:

4. THAT the propelling power of such railway will be horses, electricity, or any other power except steam as the Company wish to adopt and put in operation.

5. THAT the Company will lay the rails flush with the road, and so as to cause the least possible impediment to ordinary traffic, that the same will be laid in accordance with the existing level or grade of the road at the time of laying the same or as near thereto as is compatible with a proper execution of the work.

6. THAT the Company will so construct and maintain the railway that the same will not interfere with that the Company will maintain their roadbed between their rails and the water tables and drainage, and dowlestrip in the same manner as the remainder of the Highway is maintained.

7. THAT the Corporation shall not be liable to the Company for any damage the Company may incur or sustain from the breakage of any sewer or water pipe or for any damage or delay that may be caused by the construction of sewers, laying of water pipes or repairing the same or from any delay that may be caused by freshets or fires.

8. THAT it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation to lay down or permit to be laid down in the road water pipes and gas pipes, and to alter and repair or permit to be altered and repaired the same respectively, and also subject to Section 5 here of to grade, alter, improve and repair the road whenever public convenience may so require without cost or claim for damages against the Corporation for interruption or interference with the traffic of the Company or its railway.

9. THAT in case the Company shall refuse or on reasonable notice, neglect to do and perform any matter or thing required by the Franchise or contract thereunder to be done and performed by the Company the same matter or thing may be done by the Corporation and the cost thereof recovered from the Company.

10. THAT the Company shall and will at all times indemnify and save harmless the Corporation from and against all loss, costs, charges, expense, suits, actions, claims and demands whatever arising or occurring by reason of the constructing, maintaining or operating of the said railway or in anything connected with or relating thereto, including the cost of said Townsaip Engineer.

11. THAT each car will be numbered and supplied with a gong to be sounded on approaching and crossing an intersecting street, or in case any person or vehicles shall appear on or near the track.

12. THAT the fares to be charged by the Company will be the same as those charged in the City of Peterborough, and the payment of fare upon any part of the line hereinbefore provided for will entitle the passenger to be carried to any part of the railway line in the City of Peterborough without additional fare.

13. IT shall be the duty of the Company when removing snow from its tracks to spread the same evenly upon the Highway so that the same will not injuriously affect the travel on that part of the Highway outside the Company's tracks.

14. SHOULD the Company forfeit its Franchise in the City of Peterborough the Township Council may declare this Franchise to be forfeited and cancelled.

15. IT is understood and agreed that the Company is to put the highway on each side of the track in as good a condition for general travel as the travelled part of the road was before the laying of the tracks.

In Witness Whereof the said parties of the First Part have hereunto affixed their Corporal Seal, evidenced by the hands of their Reove and Clerk and the parties of the Second Part have hereunto affixed their Corporate Seal, evidenced by the hands of their President and Secretary.

3. The Reeve and Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan are authorized to execute the said Agreement in duplicate under their hands, and the Corporate Seal, provided the same is executed by the said Peterborough Radial Railway Company, either prior to or at the time it is executed on behalf of the Corporation.

4. The votes of the electors of the said Township of North Monaghan will be taken on this By-law on the First day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual Election of the Municipal Council for the said Township is being held, and the polls will be held at the same hour on said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as are appointed and fixed for the said Municipal Elections.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Township Clerk in the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

6. The Twenty-ninth day of December, 1911, and the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively, on behalf of the persons interested in promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

7. In the event of the Company not constructing the said Railway upon the whole of that part of the Monaghan Road to which this Franchise applies, the Corporation may notify the Company, in writing, to proceed to construct and operate such said Railway over and upon the remainder of the road to which this Franchise extends, and in the event of the Company not constructing such Railway and operating the same within twelve months after the giving of such notice, this Franchise, at the option of the Corporation, may be terminated as to such portion of the road, to which this Franchise applies, not then constructed and operated upon by the Company.

Township Clerk.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY-LAW NUMBER 1639

A By-Law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws:—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. THAT the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say:—On the 9th, 16th and 23rd days of December A. D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George Street between Brock and Murray Streets, on Hunter Street between George and Aylmer Streets and between Water and Queen Streets, and on Charlotte St. between George and Aylmer Streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets in the City of Peterborough, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing appoint for him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW, Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration proving that he or his wife is the holder of a lease, which under the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Council Caamber, December 7th 1911.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Wharf at New Liskeard, Ont." will be received at this office until 4 P.M., on Wednesday, January 10, 1912, for the construction of a Public Wharf at New Liskeard, District of Nipissing, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract may be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at New Liskeard, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS, Secretary.

Department of Public Works, Ottawa, December 14, 1911.

PUBLISH MY LETTER THE WORLD OVER

The Words of Harold P. Bushy, Who Was Permanently Cured of Chronic Lumbago by "Nerviline."

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

McNAMARA AND HIS BACKING

(Publishers Press News Service)

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. It took only $30,000 to clear Vincent Altman, of Chicago, and if they could not convict him they can't convict me."

OSCAR LAWLER,
Assistant Attorney General of U.S.A. who is taking charge of federal activities.

This boast, attributed by Detective Malcolm McIlaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago on the night of April 12 last, caused Ortie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angered with McNamara for his independent statement and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion, and eventually to confess his connection with various dynamiting excursions throughout the country.

The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day, laying the foundations for the probe into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies that extended from coast to coast in the last three years.

FRANK M. RYAN,
International President of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, of which John J. McNamara was secretary-treasurer.

Federation Scores McNamaras

Washington, D. C.—Branding James B. and John J. McNamara as "recreants to the good name and high ideals of labor," and expressing the satisfaction of organized labor that the "culprits have been commensurately punished for their crime," the McNamara Ways and Means Committee of the American Federation of Labor, after a two days' conference here, issued a statement vigorously condemning the McNamaras for their "inhumanity," and declaring that organized labor should not be held "either legally or morally responsible for the crime of an individual member."

The labor leaders assert that they "will welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake."

BOY TO FILL JOHN D.'S SHOES

Walter Clark Teagle a Smart Boy of Thirty Three the Possible Successor of Rockefeller.

New York. — A six-foot, 33-year-old chap has been picked, they say, to fill the John D. shoes — those shoes first cobbled out of raw oil by John D. Rockefeller and just lately turned over to another John D. — Archbold — the shoes of command in Standard Oil's mighty camp.

Archbold is of the same generation as Rockefeller and cannot live many years. When he was elected chief of Standard Oil the other day, replacing Rockefeller, one Walter Clark Teagle was named a director and vice-president.

Teagle is the six-foot 33-year-old. To be exact, he is six feet and two inches from scalp to heel. He is a large party, 240 pounds worth built like a "white hope," with a pink and white complexion, eyes like a matinee idol's and a mouthful of white teeth.

He's a living vindication of the Horatio Alger and Merriman-Garcia stuff. By rights he ought to be a third assistant instructor in a night school, or a station agent along the C. P. R., for really good boys invariably blow up on the home stretch.

Hard-and-Fast Routine

More and more, as we grow older, do we become the victims of routine and slaves of the hour.

The same round of duties lies every morning waiting for the coming of the mistress of the house as she takes up the reins of government with the best heart she may.

The woman who really rules her household and assumes the responsibility of wife and mother as her own, not to be laid on the shoulders of any deputy, gradually, in too many cases, lets go the opportunities of influence and blessing which would interrupt her prescribed order of accomplishment.

COST OF WAR NEWS

The Modern Newspaper Spares No Expense to Get the Latest News from the Seat of War to the Breakfast Table.

"Get it, at a reasonable cost if you can, but get it." This practically constitutes the orders issued to its war correspondents by the enterprising newspaper of to-day; for whether a war is taking place next door to our own Britain, or a couple of thousands of miles away, the public expects a full account at breakfast time of the previous day's battle. The consequence is that the modern newspaper must spare no expense to obtain war news.

Take the last big war — that between Russia and Japan — which broke out at the beginning of 1904 and lasted twenty months. It is estimated that British newspapers were spending during that time $200,000 a week to secure news of the war. This money was expended on the salary of some 200 correspondents, their interpreters and servants, the upkeep of at least 600 horses, the maintenance of despatch-runners, and the forwarding of cable messages.

Costly Cables.

The expense of getting war news is so great that the smaller newspapers during recent years have, in some cases, combined and shared the cost of sending out correspondents. The more important newspapers, however, send out their own men and also have correspondents stationed at various places where news is most likely to be obtainable. In the Turco-Italian war, for instance, papers are receiving telegrams from "our own correspondent" at such places as Tripoli, Malta, Djerba, Sfax, Constantinople, Rome, Tunis, and many other places.

Telegraph Rates.

It is the cost of transmitting the news which is the biggest item in the war-bill for a newspaper. During the course of the South African War the cable Press rate was 25c. a word, although it is now reduced to 18c., while in the Russo-Japan War the rate varied from about 32c. to nearly 48c. per word. These are the special Press rates, but it often happened that when the correspondent had some exclusive news he paid two or three times these rates in order to secure precedence of Press-rate messages. In the case of the Tripoli War the cost of transmitting news is not so great, although from Tripoli itself there is no Press rate; but the full rate per word is only 14c., while that from Malta is only 04c.

The upkeep of war correspondents at the seat of the campaign is a great expense. As a rule the remuneration is from between $125 to $200 per week per man, apart from his personal expenses, and even such sums do not exhaust the liabilities of newspapers when war breaks out. Many proprietors take out a special insurance on the lives of their representatives, and some of the more generous go to the extent of giving an undertaking to see to the future of those dependant upon them.

AN INDIAN SENATOR

For the first time in the history of the United States a man with Indian blood was chosen to act as president pro-tempore of the Senate. He is Charles Curtis, who has been senator from Kansas since 1907. Mr. Curtis will act as substitute for Vice-President Sherman for one week. Then he may be re-elected or another may succeed him.

Senator Curtis, whose grandmother was a Kaw Indian, was born January 25, 1860, and was admitted to the bar thirty years ago. He was serving his eighth term in the House when elected senator. By reason of his Indian blood, in 1903 he received 1,600 acres of land in Oklahoma as his part of the Kaw allotment.

At the time of the great flood in Kansas in May, 1903, Senator Curtis was the first man at Topeka to dare the waters, rescuing his mother, then ninety-six years old.

A Point of Etiquette.

The wedding had gone off without a hitch, and the bride and groom had departed amid a perfect shower of confetti, rice, and slippers.

The process of departure had been watched with the keenest delight by little May, who with her parents was of the party of guests remaining behind. Then, when the hum of excitement had died away, the childish inquisitiveness was manifested once again.

"Why do they throw things at the pretty lady in the carriage?" piped May.

"For luck, my dear," replied a bridesmaid.

"And why," she asked again, "doesn't the pretty lady throw them back?"

"Oh," was the answer, "that would be rude."

"No it wouldn't," persisted the dear little May, to the delight of her parents, who were standing close by. "Ma always does."

In a Tree-Top.

It does not fall to the lot of everyone to see a donkey and cart perched on the top of an oak tree nearly thirty-five feet from the ground.

During the winter of 1909 a large limb of an oak tree, in Scotland, was almost torn from the stem, and was overhanging a glasshouse wherein were some very valuable plants. The foresters had climbed up the tree and fastened a long rope on the limb, with the intention of cutting the branch away and lowering it gently, and so saving a disaster. The limb, however, was heavier than was thought, and when the saw had done its work away the limb went with a crash, and a loop in the rope caught a hook in the donkey's cart (which was there to remove the limb when sawn in pieces), and in a twinkling donkey and cart were jerked up on to the tree-top, and held there entangled amongst the branches.

It is satisfactory to learn that the donkey and cart were got down in safety.

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

AMERICAN JEWS AND RUSSIA

"American Diplomacy Spoke to Russia for Special Interests and Not for the Whole American People," Says Wilson.

(Publishers Press News Service)

New York. — Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, in an interview, says:—

Jersey, in an interview, says: —

"For some eighty years a treaty has existed between this country and Russia tin which it is explicitly covenanted and agreed that the inhabitants of the two nations shall have the liberty of entering any part of the territory of either that is open to foreign commerce; that they shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of the territory thus opened to commerce, in order to attend to their affairs and that they shall enjoy the same security and protection as inhabitants of the country in which they are sojourning, on condition of course that they submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing, and particularly to the regulations there in force concerning commerce.

For some forty years the obligations of this treaty have been disregarded by Russia in respect to some Jewish fellow-citizens.

If the Russian government has felt through all these years that it could ignore the protest of American ministers and secretaries of state, it has been because the American government spoke for special interests or from some special point of view, and not for the American people. It is the fact that the attention of the American people has now been drawn to this matter that is altering the whole aspect of

WEARY OF THE MORNING

The Morning itself, few people, inhabitants of cities, know anything about. Among all our good people, not one in a thousand sees the sun rise once in a year. They know nothing of the morning. Their idea of it is that part of the day which comes along after a cup of coffee and a beefsteak or a piece of toast. With them, morning is not a new issuing of light, a new bursting forth of the sun, a new waking-up of all that has life from a sort of temporary death, to behold again the works of God, the heavens and the earth: it is only a part of the domestic day, belonging to reading newspapers, answering notes, sending the children to school, and giving orders for dinner. The first streak of light, the earliest purpling of the east, when the lark springs up to greet, and the deeper and deeper colouring into orange and red, till at length the "glorious sun in eam, regent of the day"—this they never enjoy, for they never see it. I never thought that Adam had much the advantage of us from having seen the world while it was fresh from manifestations of the power of God, like His mercies, are "new every morning" and fresh every moment. We see as fine risings of the sun as ever Adam saw: and its risings are as much a miracle now as they were in his day — and, I think, a good deal more, because it is now a part of the miracle, that for thousands and thousands of years he has come to his appointed time, without the variation of a millionth part of a second. Adam could not tell how this might be. I know the morning — I am acquainted with it, and I love it. I love it fresh, and sweet as it is — a daily new creation, breaking forth and calling all that have life and breath and being to new adoration, new enjoyments, and new gratitude.

RESCUE OF THE PRINCESS

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi of the name of McCaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of the who had stood by the vessel since she went aground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of the wreck, however, has grown more precarious, as the watertight partitions in the stern have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

THE BRITISH INSURANCE BILL

Had Its Final Reading in the House of Lords Which Is Now Practically Completed Only Requiring King's Assent.

London. — The House of Lords has passed the National Insurance Bill, providing for compulsory insurance against sickness and unemployment of the working classes, through its third and final reading.

The bill is now practically completed, only requiring to pass through the formality of receiving the King's assent.

COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE FOR WOMEN.

Germany Proposes Law to Enlist Them in Peace as in War.

Dusseldorf. — The Patriot Woman's League has appointed a committee to promote a law for compulsory military service of German women in war and peace times as nurses and helpers in the transportation, commissary and uniform departments of the navy.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Applications for shares should be sent to

WHEN LINCOLN WAS SHOT.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and their party sat down in their box at Ford's Theatre the fateful night the President was shot, the guard who was acting as substitute for Col. McCook, took his position at the rear of the box, close to an entrance leading into the box from the dress circle of the theatre. His orders were to stand there, fully armed, and to permit no unauthorised person to pass into the box. His orders were to stand there and protect the President at all hazards. From the spot where he was thus stationed, this guard could not see the stage or the actors; but he could hear the words the actors spoke, and he became so interested in them that, incredible as it may seem, he quietly deserted his post of duty, and, walking down the dimly lighted aisle, deliberately took a seat in the last row of the dress circle. It was while the President was thus absolutely unprotected through this guard's amazing recklessness—to use no stronger words—that Booth rushed through the entrance to the box, just deserted by the guard, and accomplished his foul deed. Realization of his part in the assassination so preyed upon the mind of the guard that he finally died as a result of it.

NINE KILLED IN A WRECK

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 23.—Derailment of a train on the Seaboard Air Line at Gloster, 35 miles northeast of Atlanta, resulted, it is said, today, in the injury of 41 persons. Nine are believed to be fatally hurt. The wreck occurred last night. Wires to the derailment scene were torn down.

The train which left Atlanta at 8.35 o'clock for Washington, was going 40 miles an hour when near Gloster Station struck a broken rail.

The engine and several cars went over safely, but a Pullman sleeper and one first-class passenger car went into a ditch.

WRECK ON THE B. & M.

Newburyport, Mass., Dec. 23.—The Boston-Portland passenger train on the Boston & Maine Railroad, which left Boston at 12.50 p.m., was wrecked in a head-on collision with a freight train just outside the Newburyport station about 1.25 p.m. today.

One woman has been taken to the hospital and several passengers hospital and several of the passengers fainted.

HUSBAND AS PRIZE

A lottery has just been organized for its women readers by the Odessa 'Courier,' the prize being a young and handsome member of the staff, who has undertaken to marry the winner, be she young or old, fair or ugly, rich or poor. Not only does the enterprising journal agree to pay all wedding expenses, but also promises the couple a sufficient annuity.

Similar was the offer made some years ago by a German newspaper. The prize, however, by no means came up to the expectations of the winner, who declared that the pursy, baldheaded little man who presented himself for her acceptance bore no resemblance to the portrait of the aristocratic looking individual which had appeared in the paper.

"Mr. Arnett was born in Virginia, January 12th, 1870, making him twenty-five years old. He was educated in the University of Virginia, and is in business in Kansas City. He has chestnut hair and brown eyes; his height is 5 ft. 8 in., and his weight is 10 st. 10 lb. He does not use narcotics nor intoxicants, has no bad habits, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has a jovial disposition, and is very popular."

Husband With $1000 a Year.

In the early 'forties the proprietor of the leading library at one of the chief Kentish watering-places announced a grand raffle, the first prize to consist of a young man, who, in addition to good looks, amiable manners, and unexceptionable family connections, was guaranteed to be in possession of property bringing in an annual income of $1000. Considerable excitement prevailed, especially among spinsters—young, middle-aged and old — several of whom came from afar to take part in the event. Needless to say, was the dismay when, on the morning of the day appointed for the drawing, a couple of constables from London and arrested "prize" on

LAME BACK

Just the Sort of Case That Proves to the World That the Best Liniment Ever Made is

NERVILINE

When it comes to determining the real merit of a medicine, no weight of evidence is more convincing than the straightforward statement of some reliable and well-known person that has been cured. For this reason we print the verbatim statement of Juan E. Powell, written from his home in Carleton. "I am a strong, powerful man, six feet tall, and weigh nearly two hundred. I have been accustomed all my life to lift great weight, but one day I overdid it, and wrenched my back badly. Every tendon and muscle was sore. To stoop or bend was agony. I had a whole bottle of Nerviline rubbed on in one day and by night I was well again. I know of no liniment possessing one-half the penetration and pain-subduing properties of Nerviline. I urge its use strongly as an invaluable liniment and household cure for all minor ailments, such as strains, sprains, swellings, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, and muscular pain."

LETTER NO. 4769

No better medicine for curing pain was ever put in a bottle than Nerviline—over one million bottles used every year—better try it yourself. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Her Kindness Appreciated.

Among the gifts on Christmas, the gentlemen boarders at Mrs. Bickle's, 617 George street, were surprised and pleased to find beside each plate, at breakfast, a nice new silk tie, as a gift from the hostess. The young men appreciated the kindness and said so in a tumulous vote of thanks.

Busy Time for Postmen.

The past week has been a busy time for postmen, the local posties have to have hand sleighs and wagons with boys to assist them in the distribution of the enormous quantities of mail matter in the city. The post office is still a busy place, the congestion hardly yet subsided.

Painful Accident.

On Monday evening Mrs. M. J. Dunford, of 240 Rubidge street, was the victim of a painful accident. She was walking along Rubidge street, and when between Sherbrooke and King streets she slipped on the sidewalk and fell on her arm, fracturing the bone. The injured lady was attended by Dr. McCullough.

Wins a Scholarship.

Miss Mamie V. McDougal, of Balsover, Ont., a student of the Lakefield school, has been awarded the Stratton scholarship, donated by the Hon. J. R. Stratton to Queen's University for the student of the school of Peterborough County making the best showing. Miss McDougal is in attendance at the university.

The Largest on Record.

Without a doubt, the largest mails ever brought to Peterborough post office, arrived on Saturday last. The post office staff deserve the greatest credit for the splendid way they handled the immense quantities of stuff. Thousands of packages were received and thousands more were sent abroad, necessitating day and night work for the staff.

Mr. S. W. Lowry Dead.

W. S. Lowry, a former resident of Peterborough, who has been residing in Alberta for a couple of years, died suddenly yesterday. Mrs. A. F. Calder, of 387 George street, is a sister. Another sister, Mrs. Geo. Clemens, lives in Warsaw. There are two brothers, Messrs. W. H. Lowry, of Montreal, and Thos. Lowry, of Highland Grove. His niece, Miss Lila Calder, is employed at the Richmond Studio. The funeral arrangements have not been decided upon as yet.

Poultry Men to Meet.

The Times is requested to state that the directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association, and all those having tickets, are requested to attend a meeting this evening at eight o'clock, in the store of the president, Mr. J. T. C. Lang. As the dates of the annual show are drawing near, it is important that all interested be on hand and in good time. The society has arranged for a lecture on January 10, by Mrs Wm. Dawson, of London, East, who is a well known breeder of white wyandottes.

It Happens in Lindsay.

The Owen Sound Sun says, that the firemen of Lindsay are thinking seriously of sending in a bill to the post office department for the time and labor expended on their run in an answer to a call of fire. They turned out at the call from box 32, and after a hard run through the city streets found that there was no fire. The alarm had been sent in by a lady, trying to post a letter in the fire alarm box. The firemen think that the least she could have done, after bringing them down, was to wait, so that they might have taken the letter to the post office for her.

Holiday Trade Was Good.

There is little to complain of in regard to the holiday trade, the merchants on the whole being very well satisfied with the business done. This is general throughout the country, in some cities it is said to be in excess of former years, revealing noteworthy ability and willingness among customers to spend. Wholesale operations are naturally held somewhat in check by the holiday trade and by the settlements incident to the closing of the year, but there is no indicated change in the more favorable situation in business, which has been progressively manifest during the past few weeks.

THE BANK OF OTTAWA

THIRTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING

The thirty-seventh Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Ottawa was held on Wednesday, the 20th day of December 1911, the Vice-President, the Hon. George Bryson, in the chair.

Report of the Directors

The Directors beg to present the Thirty-seventh Annual Report, showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 30th ultimo.

Balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account on 30th November, 1910, was	$117,938.85
Net profits for the year ended 30th November, 1911, after deducting expenses of management, and making necessary provision for interest due to depositors, unearned interest on current loans and for all bad and doubtful debts, and contingencies	595,228.59	$713,167.44
Appropriated as follows:—

		$595,000.00
Balance carried forward at credit of Profit and Loss Account		$118,167.44
The Rest Account on 30th November, 1910, was		$3,900,000.00
Transferred from Profit and Loss Account		100,000.00
		$4,000,000.00

Your Directors have pleasure in reporting that, as will be seen from the increased figures in the Balance Sheet, and in the Profit and Loss Statement, the Bank has shared substantially in the growth which has characterized the business of the country during the past year.

Branches have been opened since the last Annual Meeting at Eastview, Ottawa South, Ottawa East, Avonlea, Sask., Star City, Sask., Grenville, Que., Sudbury, Ont., Timmins, Ont., and St. James, Winnipeg, and it is the intention of the Directors to open additional offices in the near future in the Westerly and South-westerly parts of the City of Ottawa, and in Westboro.

Premises for the use of the Bank have been secured at Fourth Avenue, Ottawa, Fairmount Avenue, Montreal, Virden, Man., and Kinistino, Sask. Your Directors have also purchased the premises on Sparks Street immediately behind the present Head Office Building—for the purpose of enlarging the present Head Office building.

The usual inspections have been made of the Head Office and Branches, and your Directors have thought it advisable to anticipate the requirements of the proposed amendments to the Bank Act (a draft revision of which was made public some months ago), by having an independent audit made prior to this meeting, by a well-known and highly regarded firm of Chartered Accountants, whose certificate will be found appended to the General Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

The Directors desire to express their appreciation of the manner in which the Officers of the Bank have devoted themselves to the various duties assigned to them during the year.

GEORGE BRYSON,
Vice-President.

FOR ALDERMEN

YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED FOR

WM. LANGFORD, JR.
As Alderman for North Ward

With best wishes to one and all for a Happy New Year.
Yours very truly,
WM. LANGFORD, JR.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN GILLESPIE
IN CENTRE WARD

To the Electors of the Centre Ward of Peterborough,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Alderman in the Centre Ward, for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,
GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

Dec. 24, 1911.

VOTE FOR

W. G. MORROW
IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most advantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season, I remain.

Yours truly,
W. G. MORROW.

VOTE FOR

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON
IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the Electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's general welfare, and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial, permanent improvements especially in the matter of roadbuilding and power at cost, providing that cost be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests, particularly where the expenditure of large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,
W. J. JOHNSTON.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT

JOS. R. METHERAL
IN CENTRE WARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have been entrusted with your confidence for the past three years and my record stands open before you. It may show no extraordinary ability, but an endeavour to be straight-forward and honest in all dealing. I have not been swayed by cliques or outside influences, but voted and worked at all times in the interests of the ratepayers in general and will continue to do so in the future, if re-elected. I would advise the electors to vote for the Hydro-Electric Commission Power By-law. I firmly believe that the Hydro-Electric Commission will give Peterborough power at rates considerably reduced from those at present in force, but I pledge myself that no contract for power either with the Hydro-Electric Commission or private corporation shall be signed by the City Council without a By-law to that effect being submitted to the ratepayers.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

JOS. R. METHERAL.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN J. J. DUFFUS
IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Ratepayers of the West Ward and Peterborough Citizens in general:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having the honor of being duly nominated and urged by a large number of representative citizens to be a candidate in the West Ward, I have decided to again enter the Aldermanic field. As it will be impossible for me to interview each voter, I hereby most respectfully solicit you support and influence to assure my election.

If you so honor me I will pledge myself to do my utmost to assist in executing the city's business in a prudent and business like manner.

New industries, to my mind, is the one essential toward the future growth and success of our city, and I am in favor of a vigorous campaign to obtain cheap power and light, and also to induce the Radial Railway Co. to make extensive extensions. I would like to see the centre of our city with a permanent roadway.

I am opposed to the policy of increasing a man's taxes every time he makes improvements and minor extensions, and would support a measure to eliminate this condition of affairs.

Wishing all a bright and prosperous New Year.

Yours very respectfully,
JOS. J. DUFFUS.

VOTE FOR

ALDERMAN JAS. EDGAR
IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Electors of the West Ward, City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated as a candidate for Alderman from the West Ward, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge myself to legislate for economic government in broad lines, and to advocate the permanent improvement of highways, and the provision of additional bridge connection with East and West City at point most advantageous to the community as a whole. As to power for municipal purposes, I will only endorse the cheapest service, irrespective of the source from whence it comes; and will insist that any contract for the same shall be first submitted to the ratepayers before being finally passed by the City Council.

With best wishes for the New Year, believe me to remain,

Yours truly,
JAMES EDGAR.

FOR NORTH WARD.

To the Ratepayers,—

I ask your support for election to the Council of 1912. I am in favor of the Hydro-Electric By-law, but will support only such proposition as will give the city the lowest possible rates for power and light.

I will be watchful of the city's interests and endeavour to have its affairs administered economically consistent with progress of the city.

Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

ROMAN PRIEST STANDS BY STATEMENTS RE MARRIAGE

PRESBYTERIAN APPEALS TO THE ROMAN CATHOLICS—THE LOWER ANIMAL INSTINCTS TEACHES US BETTER.

Rev. Dr. Duval Says it is Blasphemous to Say a Secret Marriage by Priest of Man Already Wedded to a Protestant is Valid in the Eyes of God.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 27.—Father Comeau, pastor of St. Mary's church stated to-day that he had no intention of repudiating the interview in the Saturday's Winnipeg Tribune in which he lays down what he believes is Roman Catholic Church law with respect to martial relations. Neither has the archbishop given any sign of an intention of denying the principal.

But while there has not yet been any utterance from Archbishop Langevin, some authoritative declaration in regard to it is looked for.

The outspoken character of Father Comeau's setting forth of the doctrine of his church as superior to the state in regard to marriage is a general topic of conversation here. The interview is regarded as the most extraordinary ever published in Winnipeg and public interest is greatly aroused over it.

DR. DUVAL'S REPLY.

In reply to Father Comeau, Rev. Dr. Duval, formerly moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, discusses the hypothetical case advanced over a Catholic who has married a Protestant without permission and wishes to make another marriage.

"We find here," says the Presbyterian divine, "not simply a despising of marriage, which we could pass by with dignity, but despising of the law of the State which uses the marriage. It also implies that the Protestant wife has no rights of conscience which the Roman Catholic need respect. In this the Roman Catholic Church outrages the natural law and the natural rights of the man. The common law which gives the protection of the 'common law wife is better than such church law. The lower animal instinct teaches a better ethetic when it influences the noble male beast to stand by the mother in support of the young.

"But further, this priest says that this truant husband, after leaving his Protestant wife, may take up what seems to common judgment adulterous relations with another woman, and by-and-bye go to the priest and get a secret marriage, which shall be good in the eyes of God and the Church.

Dr. Duval closes with an appeal to "our more intelligent Roman Catholic fellow-citizens" against submitting to a teaching that in itself is morally degrading, and may open the way for conscienceless creatures to degrade Protestant women and leave them to their fate.

DETECTIVE MILLER ON KINRADE MURDER CASE

Says the Re-Opening of the Inquiry Has Not Been Yet Referred to Foy

THIEL DETECTIVE ACTS

Hamilton, Dec. 27.—Provincial Detective Miller arrived here this morning from Toronto. When asked if there was any likelihood of the Kinrade case being re-opened, he stated that the matter had not yet been placed before the Attorney-General's Department.

J. C. Grant, the Thiel detective, who was recently in Hamilton working on the Canadian Express robbery, is said to be the man who has requested the Crown to furnish the funds.

Ethel Kinrade, daughter of a wealthy family of this city, was found shot to death at her home on Febf 25, 1909, and after a sensational inquest an open verdict was finally rendered. Mrs. C. M. Wright (nee Miss Florence Kinrade), sister of the murdered girl, who was the principal witness at the inquest, was in the city a week ago.

A PROSPEROUS BANK.

The statement of the year's business submitted to the shareholders at the 47th annual meeting of the Union Bank of Canada by the president, shows a most satisfactory condition of affairs. In every department of the bank's activities there has been marked progress made during the year. The net profits which amounted to $662,000 are over $200,000 in excess of the figures for the previous year. The circulation of the bank now amounts to $4,490,000 as compared with $3,203,000 a year ago. The total deposits now amount to $45,232,000, an increase of $7,800,000 over the figures for the previous yearThe paid-up capital now stands at $4,914,000, and the rest account at $3,057,000 as compared with $4,000,000 and $2,400,000 for the previous year. The total assets amount to $58,434,000, as compared with $47,455,000 a year ago.

In addition to making this rapid progress the bank took the important step of establishing a branch in London, England, in order to enable it to take a more active part in the financial activities of Great Britain. Early in the year, the Union Bank absorbed the United Empire Bank of Toronto.

A decidedly important resolution was passed at the annual meeting of the shareholders by which it was decided to move the head office of the bank from Quebec to Winnipeg. The bank has by far the largest number of its branches in the west and the growing importance of its western business led to this step. Of a total number of 242 branches, the bank has 156 west of Lake Superior. This step is in keeping with the general policy of progress adopted by this progressive institution.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BRACE UP

The Hydro-Electric Commission has a message and a mission for Peterborough, and to the district as well. Are we deaf to that message and shall we ignore that mission?

Not by a jugful!

The Commission proposes to place us in the way of getting light and power at cost, to turn the energy of the water power site—which belongs to the people—into a tangible product, shorn of any charges for the middleman. The middleman will surely enhance to you the cost of light and power, just as surely as he does the cost of eggs and meat.

Let us restrain him—while there is time, and in the only way we can. And in a way sufficient.

Don't be frightened from the real point—reasonable cost power and light—by the bogey that Peterborough will have to pay for energy it cannot consume.

The City pays over $9,000.00 per year for municipal lighting now. Before the Hydro-Electric work is ready to supply current the city will be at revising its light contracts. Then the Hydro bred current will get in its work. More light for the same money—less money for the same light.

That is the end we are working for—as a municipality. We haven't worked zealously before, only in a half-hearted way. Now is the time to brace up.

Have we any sand?

Don't Forget the Big Power Meeting To-Night.

THE LAST CHANCE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If the ratepayers reject the aid of the Hydro-Electric Commission, they will be throwing away the last chance for municipal power. Even if Hydro-Electric power cost as much as it would to purchase it from the monopoly, it would still be much better to take through the Commission. In buying it through the Seymour Power Co., the price would be fixed for a time, but who could tell what it would be in years to come? There is no coal in Ontario; electric power is what we must depend upon. And as the demand increased the monopoly would raise the price, and they could do as they liked. This consideration should cause a favorable vote on the question on January 1st.

Again, the cities which are taking or will take power from the Commission will in future have cheaper power, for their debenture debt for their distribution plant will be paid off and also the debt contracted for the transmission lines. Then they will be in a position to drop the price of power, but if Peterborough ties itself up with the monopoly, there will be no such situation here. We should get municipal power, and get it as quickly as possible, so as to have the initial expense paid off at the same time as the other cities or they will have us at a great disadvantage.

Yours truly,
Harry Morgan.

THE POWER QUESTION

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P. in addressing the Board of Trade the other evening gave the legal opinion that if the Electors vote "Yes" upon the Power By-law that then the City Council would be authorized and empowered to enter into any contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission that they see fit and to legally bind the town to pay for whatever the Council agreed to pay. That is to say, if the Electors vote "Yes," upon this by-law the City Council can without any further authority from the ratepayers enter into a contract with the Hydro Electric Commission that would obligate the City for at least half a million dollars.

The City Council in their address to the electors say: "The City Council cannot borrow money for this purpose without again submitting the matter to the ratepayers."

That is a quibble that is only worthy of some gold brick shark. The Gold Brick Shark says to the Farmer, "enter into this contract and sign this note, it is not a mortgage on your farm." The farmer takes him at his word. The note becomes due. The farmer is sued upon his note and the Sheriff puts a lien his land.

The Council in adopting the latest gold brick method says to the ratepayers, "vote for this by-law, the Council cannot borrow money for this purpose without again submitting the matter to the ratepayers, to raise money on debentures.

But the City Council can enter into a contract under the present by-law making the town liable for $500,000.00 or more. Suppose the ratepayers do not pay, the court and the Sheriff will find a way to place a lien upon the town that will be as good as any debentures without any further vote of the ratepayers.

The City Council are treating the ratepayers like a pack of children in this transaction. It is not necessary for the Council to quibble with the ratepayers. The fact that the City Council are quibbling with the ratepayers in this transaction is the best reason why they should not be given any such authority.

If they are quibbling innocently, then they are a pack of incompetents. If they are quibbling to intentionally mislead then they are equally unworthy of confidence.

The City Council should treat the ratepayers with respect. Before asking the ratepayers to vote upon this by-law they should have submitted an estimate showing what it is going to cost the town, showing what they can sell light for, how much surplus quantity of power they would have on hand to attract new industries.

And still more important they should show how the loss on such surplus power is going to be made good. For instance if the City Council have 2000 surplus horse power on hand and unused, that will have cost the City at least $13.00 a horse power to produce, and until such surplus horse power is sold the city will lose a revenue of $13.00 per horse power on 2000 horse power.

A school boy can calculate a loss of $26,000.00 a year. It takes a good many tax bills in this town to make up a loss of $26,000.00 a year.

It has kept the City Council busy to keep the dust down on George street. They had better show the ratepayers that they have the ability to keep the mud off George street first before asking a free hand to enter into a contract involving nearly a million dollars.

Yours truly,
Enquirer.

WITH A BIG MUZZLE SLAMMED TIGHT ACROSS HIS FACE

That is the position in which each ratepayer will find himself when the City Council attempts to make a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission, in the event of the power by-law having been carried on Monday next.

He will have nothing to say about it whatever. The City Council of next year, or in future years, may, in their wisdom, burden the municipality with an additional debenture debt of half a million dollars for power development, with no guarantee that light and power will be any cheaper to the public than it is to-day, and although the vast majority of the ratepayers may not be in sympathy with the terms of the contract, they can do nothing to prevent it being carried out. It will be entirely out of their hands. They will be muzzled—muzzled by their own action in voting for the simple looking little blind by-law—the by-law with the string to it.

As some of the supporters of this by-law are stating that it will be necessary for the Council to come back to the ratepayers before any contract can be legally signed, it might be well to examine the Act and amendments thereto, under which the Hydro-Electric Commission operates.

It will be found that some few years ago it WAS NECESSARY for the City Council of any municipality, in dealing with the Hydro-Electric Commission, to first obtain certain information upon which a provisional contract would be framed. The Council would then submit the provisional contract to the ratepayers for approval or disapproval, as the case may be. This is known as the Act of 1907. Sections 12 and 12 thereof are as follows:—

12.—"Any municipal corporation may apply to The Commission for the transmission and supply to the corporation of electrical power or energy for the use of the corporation and the inhabitants of the municipality for lighting, heating and power purposes or for any or either of such purposes or for any of the purposes mentioned in Section14, and The Commission shall thereupon furnish to the corporation a statement of the maximum price per horse-power at which the electrical power or energy will be supplied at the point of development or of its delivery to The Commission and an estimate of the cost of constructing or providing a transmission line by means of which the amount of electrical power or energy required by the corporation is to be supplied and of maintaining the same, and may furnish to the corporation plans and specifications of the works, plant, machinery and appliances necessary for the distribution of such power or energy by the corporation and an estimate of the cost thereof, and such other information as The Commission may deem advisable. The Council may thereupon enter into a provisional contract with the Commission for the supply of electrical power or energy for the purposes mentioned in this Act.

13.—(1) The provisional contract shall not be binding upon the corporation unless and until a by-law approving the same has been submitted to and has received the assent in accordance with the provisions of The Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, of the electors qualified to vote on by-laws for creating debts, and the estimates of The Commission or a summary thereof and a copy of the provisional contract shall be published with or form part of the by-law.

(2) After the provisional contract has received the assent of the electors and has been executed by the corporation and approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, The Commission may carry out and execute the same and shall have power and authority to do all acts necessary for that purpose"

No doubt Mr. Langford and others who are supporting the by-law are under the impression that it is these clauses under which the City Council is to-day working. Such, however, is not the case and it is on this vital point that the advocates of cheap power and light break away from each other.

In 1909—just two years ago, an amendment to the Act of 1907 was put through the Legislature, and this is the string to which we refer as being attached to the by-law in question. By referring to Section 2, of the Hydro-Electric Commission Act, Chapter 19, 1909, we find this important amendment:—

"Where a municipal corporation not a party to the contract set forth in Schedule A, as varied by this Act applies for a supply of power and a question has been heretofore or is hereafter submitted to the vote of the electors of the municipality pursuant to paragraph A of Section 533 of The Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, and the amendments thereto, including the amendments made during the present session as to a supply of electric power from the Commission and the electors have voted in favour of a supply from the Commission, the Council of the corporation of such municipality may authorize the entering into and such corporation may enter into a contract with the Commission in the form set forth in the said Schedule or with such variations thereof as may be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, without submitting a by-law approving the same for the assent of the electors as provided by sub-section 1 of section 13 of the Power Commission Act, and when executed such contract shall be legal valid and binding."

The ratepayers, or anyone else who declares that the City Council must come back to the people for the approval of any contract they may enter into, is stating what is not in accordance with the facts of the case. The fact of the matter is that ratepayers are muzzled, bound hand and foot and can have nothing further to say on the power question. This is not the way in which the towns in Western Ontario were treated. They had some idea as to how much the undertaking was going to cost them. Their contracts were of a provisional nature and did not become legal and binding until the consent of the ratepayers was received.

Surely the ratepayers of Peterborough are not going to have a big muzzle slammed tight across their face.

BEST HOTEL IN BROCKVILLE WAS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

STRATHCONA HOUSE REDUCED TO ASHES, AT A LOSS OF $80,000.

Firemen Fought Pluckily for Hours And Saved the Surrounding Property.

Brockville, Dec. 27.—At an early hour this morning the main business section of Brockville narrowly escaped being wiped out by a fire which destroyed the Hotel Strathcona, the largest and finest hotel in the town. A heavy rain proved the only salvation, counteracting as it did a gale which blew from the southwest, carrying sparks and burning embers for blocks away.

It was about five o'clock that the night clerk and bell boy detected the smoke issuing from the basement directly under the barroom where the laundry is located. Mr. Brown, the proprietor, was immediately on hand and as the place was rapidly filling with smoke it was thought best to arouse the guests and servants. They easily found their way out with their belongings with the exception of Police Magistrate Clarke, of Cardinal, who occupied a room at the rear in the second storey. He was found in the building in a dazed condition an hour and a half later by two firemen. By means of a ladder he was rescued.

FLAMES BROKE THROUGH ROOF

The stifling smoke from the basement made it difficult for the brigade to locate the blaze and though barrels of water were directed towards the seat of the trouble the flames gradually worked through the partitions and an hour after the fire was discovered broke out in the roof and the upper stories. Caught by the wind it developed quickly into a veritable seething furnace. It was soon beyond the control of the brigade and efforts were then directed towards saving the adjoining buildings, both private and public, which surrounded the place.

LOSS $80,000.

After a heroic fight of hours, the firemen triumphed, but the hotel was reduced to ashes. It was a five storey structure, built of brick with an ornamental stone facing, and cost $75,000. The insurance, it is said, will not cover the loss.

CHINESE THRONE IS NOW READY TO ABDICATE

REJECTS PRESIDENCY

Peking, Dec. 27.—Representative members of the Imperial court, according to an authoritative source, have signified to Premier Yuan Shi Kai their willingness to agree to an abdication. The court, the same authority asserts, realizes that there is no hope for it in the retention of three or four detached sections of the country and semi-loyal provinces and hopes to obtain better terms by agreeing to the proposed referendum on the question of the form of Government.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai is certain that he could win several battles with the modern army at his disposal, which is better equipped and greatly superior to the rebel forces, but as he is unable to obtain any loans he would be unable to reconquer the lost Provinces.

Yuan will in all probability resign his office after making the best terms possible for the throne.

Yuan regrets what he considers to be Tang Shao Yi's desertion. He suggests that Tang Shao Yi, whom he sent to negotiate with the rebels might become president of the republic, which is an office he himself would not accept.

Yuan Shi Kai also regrets that foreign nations have withheld their financial support, with the help of which he could have reconquered the country.

LOCK-OUT PARALYSES THE LANCASHIRE COTTON MILLS

ABOUT 160,000 WEAVERS THROWN OUT OF WORK—MORE SERIOUS IF CONTINUED.

Many Spinners Reduced to Half-Time—Men and His Wife Refuse to Join Union.

Manchester, Eng., Dec. 27.—Notices were posted this morning at all the mills belonging to members of the Federation of master Cotton Spinners in the north and northwest of the county of Lancashire that the mills will be closed to-night and not re-opened until further notice.

Weavers to the number of 160,000 will thus be locked out to-night, and about an equal number of spinners will be reduced immediately to half-time, with every prospect of a complete stoppage of work is the trouble should be prolonged.

The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners at a meeting this morning decided that it was impossible to continue turning out yarn while the looms were idle. They will therefore curtail the production by stopping work on three days in each week beginning January 1.

The Lopes that a man named Riley and his wife, the two non-unionists whose employment originated the strike in the Helen Mill at Accrington on December 20, which led to the lockout, would consent to join the union, and thus obviate a rupture between the employers and the workers have been finally shattered. The Rileys have resisted every inducement thrown out to them to join the union, and announce late last night that their determination was unalterable.

NEGRO CONFESSES CRIME.

Murdered Two Children Who Owned Valuable Western Oil Land.

Muskogee, Okla., Dec. 27.—Court inquiry into the conspiracy that the resulted in the death of two negro children who owned oil lands valued at $250,000 went forward rapidly today. D. C. Allen, the negro accused of having killed the children—Herbert and Castella Sell—pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

F. L. Martin and John Coombs, the latter a wealthy oil operator of Bartlesville, are accused of having had a part in the conspiracy against the children. Martin will be placed on trial on Thursday, then Coombs will be arraigned.

One white man has been convicted in the case. He is William Irwin. It was charged he promised the negro all of the $2,000 to kill the Sell children.

The alleged conspiracy aimed at possession of the children's valuable oil lands.

HON. ADAM BECK COMING

Chairman of Commission Will Explain Advantages of Cheap Power.

For the purpose of placing before the electors of the districts the advantages to be gained by the use of cheap Hydro power, the Hon. Adam Beck has been invited and has agreed to speak at public meetings at Kingston, Peterborough and Lakefield before next Monday. These municipalities as well as Brockville, are submitting by-laws for the purpose of making contracts with the Hydro-Electric Commission for a supply of power. The by-law in Brockville will be submitted in about three weeks. The by-laws are being opposed strenuously by the private interests in the Eastern districts of the province, but there is little chance of them being defeated.

The Power Minister will be in Peterborough to-morrow evening.

Jumping Jack Tars

The rhythmic jumping of three hundred and fifty bluejackets saved H. M. S. Commonwealth from the fate of the Montague when she ran aground in a dangerous place.

The battleship Montague was abandoned as a hopeless wreck off the Scottish coast, but her sister ship the Commonwealth was safely got off by the muscular exertion of her crew.

The Commonwealth ran on to an unreported rock when returning from target practice, and was badly damaged. She was found to be hanging by her lodgment, however, that it was decided, after reversing the engines and failing to extricate her, to try the experiment of mustering all the available hands on the extreme stern and getting them to jump in unison. The regular jumping of twenty-five tons of solidly-built seamen had the effect of making the huge vessel rock sea-saw fashion until she gradually floated off with the rising tide. In fifteen minutes she was afloat, and saved.

Busy Time for Postmen.

The past week has been a busy time for postmen, the local posties have to have hand sleighs and wagons with boys to assist them in the distribution of the enormous quantities of mail matter in the city. The post office is still a busy place, the congestion hardly yet subsided.

The Largest on Record.

Without a doubt, the largest mails ever brought to Peterborough post office, arrived on Saturday last. The post office staff deserve the greatest credit for the splendid way they handled the immense quantities of stuff. Thousands of packages were received and thousands more were sent abroad, necessitating day and night work for the staff.

BUILDING OF A NEW DAM

Elephant Butte Dam, Biggest in America, to Reclaim Rio Grande Valley — "The Land of Lost Hopes."

Engle, New Mexico. — Here, in this land once known as "The Land of Lost Hopes," the United States government is building what will be, excepting the Assuan dam in Egypt, the biggest irrigation dam in the world. Certainly it will be the biggest in the new world.

This dam, known as the "Elephant Butte," will convert the Land of Lost Hopes into the smiling land of fertile well-watered fields that it was 300 years ago.

For the upper valley of the Rio Grande Del Norte wasn't always the arid waste that it is now. Time was when this country was covered with the crude but effective ditches of pioneer Mexican agriculturists and green with their gardens and vineyards.

But that was when the Rio Grande was an all-year-round river. That was before the folks of the Colorado valleys, where the Rio Grande has its sources, had begun to impound water on their own account.

Since 1886 the Rio Grande is as dry as a bone.

The dam will be 1400 feet long, 185 feet wide at bed rock and 265 feet high. It will take 410,000 cubic yards of concrete to build it, and it will take 350,000 barrels of cement to make the concrete.

The work is now well under way. It is the biggest irrigation enterprise now being pushed by the United States and perhaps the biggest engineering job it has on its hands, excepting the Panama canal.

PEACE TALKS ONLY DESULTORY

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai. — The revolutionaries here say the peace discussion will be only desultory. After this conference, the Nanking National Convention will be held. Delegates representing eighteen provinces are now in Nanking. One of the leading members of the convention said today: "If Yuan Shi Kai bows to the inevitable within a week he will be elected president. If he does not, Sun Yat Sen will be the first president."

It is evident the Republicans are convinced that Premier Yuan in proposing peace negotiations is simply sparring for time and the Republicans proceed with preparations for winter campaign.

The leaders assert that if the Manchu syndicate and Yuan Shi Kai consents to their elimination, the entire country would be quiet and safe within a week.

The Foreign Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai has adopted a resolution protesting against all loans to the administration.

"FAT MEAT AND STRONG COFFEE" LIVES TO BE 100

Columbus, O. — "I ate fat meat, drank strong coffee, worked hard and kept cheerful — that's how I have lived 100 years," says Mrs. Ellen Mitchell who just recently celebrated her 100th birthday. For the past 70 years she has smoked the strongest kind of tobacco in a clay pipe. That helps her to be cheerful, she thinks. Another aid is her habit of never worrying. For 93 years she escaped doctor's medicine.

Mrs. Mitchell has outlived eight of her ten children. During her more active years she wove cloth, husked corn, laid fence rails, and did the housework. Now her activities are confined to playing blindman's buff with her grandchildren.

How the Blind Learn to Read

Progress Was Brought About By Kindness of Gentleman on the Part of Valentine Hauy To Beggar.

How did the blind learn to read? It was in this way.

A man named Valentine Hauy, who for a long time had wondered how he could bring happiness to these unfortunate people, was one day walking through an out-of-the-way boulevard, when he came upon a blind beggar.

Touched by the helpless sorrow of the man, he put his hand in his pocket and gave him a piece of money. But he had hardly taken a step forward when the beggar, an honest man, called him back.

"Surely, sir," he said, "you have made a mistake; you have given me a crown instead of a penny."

The astonished giver asked the beggar how he had been able to quickly to detect the different value of the money.

"Oh," said the beggar, "it is enough for me to pass my finger over it."

This was like a flash of light.

"If the blind," thought Hauy, as he continued his walk, "can distinguish at the least touch a piece of money, why should they not distinguish by the same means a letter, a figure, a mark — in short, any sign whatever so long as it is raised?"

On this foundation he set to work, and presently invented a method for teaching the blind to read. His first pupil was a blind boy whom he rescued from begging at a church door. This boy learned with astonishing quickness to read by means of raised letters. Very soon Valentine Hauy was able to show his pupil in public, and the sight of a child reading with his fingers excited the greatest surprise and admiration.

When his method was perfected, he appealed to the public for funds to carry on his work, and, thanks to the subscriptions which came to him from all sides, Hauy was soon able to open the first institute for teaching the blind to read.

What Water Can Do

No sooner are the London and Ottawa seasons over than we see announcements of various more or less great personages departing for some Continental or British Spa to take the waters, and know their systems to recover from the fatigues of fashionable or political life. The drinking of the medicinal water is not the whole of the cure; change of scene, simplicity of diet, early hours, freedom from hustle and worry all play their part in the restoration of body and mind. It is quite possible, however, to have some of these benefits without the expense of going away from home, merely by the aid of pure drinking water. The human body consists of water in the proportion of about sixty per cent., and the water removed from the body by means of the breath, the perspiration, the urine and the bowels is the vehicle by which the body gets rid of the waste products resulting from the activity of its various organs. As a rule the more active a tissue is the more water it contains, and, therefore, within reasonable limits, an increase in the amount of water taken will lead to increased tissue change.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Changing Habits of Business Men

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought nothing of staying until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon in mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing. Empires are being broken up, commercial systems are passing away, dynasties are threatening that will involve half the human race.

Mr. H. F. La Combe of the Ingersoll Chronicle, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. Ward and parents, of this city, over Christmas.

Master Wyman and Miss Evelin Smith, the children of Dr. Everett G. Smith, of India, are guests of Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Webb, 194 London street. Both are natives of India.

G. N. GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, City of Peterborough,—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

As a candidate for Alderman for one of the two seats in the Centre Ward, I respectfully solicit your votes.

My platform is briefly this:

1.—Obtain Hydro-Electric estimates and reports as to prices, terms, &c., of obtaining power for the City's manufacturers, and for house and store lighting.

2.—Abate the nuisance caused by the G.T.R. using Bethune street as a shunting yard, which injuriously affects hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of realty.

3.—Obtain legislation allowing reduction of taxes on businesses and improvements and increasing taxation of land values, thus making the holders of vacant land pay their share of the taxes.

4.—Have every milk vendor's milk inspected at least fortnightly and a report with the milkman's name published showing the proportions of butter fat contained in each lot.

5.—Consideration of the question of permanent improvement of highways.

6.—Begin an aggressive campaign to obtain new industries, and inaugurate a strong publicity scheme.

There are two Aldermen to be elected for the Centre Ward, G. A. Gillespie is contesting one seat, while J. R. Metheral and W. G. Morrow, of Charlotte street, is contesting the other seat with me.

If elected, I will energetically support a progressive campaign for the City's advancement.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which the medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 857 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself as that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or scalding sensation of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Frequent headache.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weak nerves, dizziness.
8—Pain and tenderness in the side.
9—Swelling in any parts of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Sediment or gravel in the water.
12—Pain in the left side under the heart.
14—Pain in the muscles or joints.
15—Pain or soreness in the chest.
16—Pain or soreness in the stomach.
17—Pain or soreness of the bowels.
18—Pain or soreness in the muscles.
19—Attacks or dizziness (sometimes).

BY-LAW NUMBER 644

A By-law to authorize the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan to execute an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the right to use a Highway in the Township of North Monaghan as therein mentioned.

Passed 17th day of November, 1911.

WHEREAS The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has applied to the Council of the Township of North Monaghan for the franchise and right for a period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the public highway or road, which may be better known as "The Monaghan Road" extending Southerly from Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances for the purposes of the said Railway, and the Council and Company have agreed on the terms and conditions on which in the opinion of the Council the said right should be given, which terms and conditions have been reduced to writing, and are fully set out herein, and it is necessary that the said terms and conditions and the period for which said right is to be granted should be submitted to the vote of the Electors of the Municipality in the manner provided in the Consolidated Municipal Act (1903) and the Ontario Railway Act 1906 with respect to By-laws requiring the assent of the Electors.

THEREFORE the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. The Council of the Township of North Monaghan are hereby authorized to enter into an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company in the words and figures following, namely:

THIS AGREEMENT made in duplicate the 17th day of November, 1911, between THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, hereinafter called the "Corporation," of the FIRST PART and THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY COMPANY, hereinafter called the "Company," of the SECOND PART.

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto and dated the Fourteenth day of March, 1904, the Corporation did grant unto the Company a franchise and right for the period of thirty years, therein set forth, together with the exemption therein referred to, and

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto, and dated the Nineteenth day of September, 1904, the Corporation did further grant unto the Company an extension of said Franchise to the Boundary Line running along the Western limit of the City of Peterborough from Charlotte Street to the Northern boundary of the Township of North Monaghan, and

WHEREAS the parties have further agreed to further extend the said Franchise from the north side of Charlotte Street southerly along the highway known as the Monaghan Road (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan), to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan.

1. WITNESSETH that the Corporation doth hereby upon and subject to the terms, provisoes and conditions hereinafter referred to and contained, and subject to the Special Statute incorporating the Company, and of the Sections of the Railway Act applying to the said Company, grant to the said Company the Franchise and right for the period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the Public Highway or Road, which may be known as "The Monaghan Road" extending southerly from the north side of Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee, in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turnouts and other appliances thereon for the purpose aforesaid. Provided, however, that the rails shall be laid along the centre of the road allowance as far South as Cameron Street and that from the North side of Cameron Street South to the River Otonabee the rails shall be laid on the portion of the highway designated by the Township Council.

2. AND it is expressly declared and agreed by and between the parties hereto that wherever in this agreement the parties of the First Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Corporation, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns, and wherever in this agreement the parties of the Second Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Company, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns.

3. AND the Company do hereby covenant, promise and agree with the Corporation in manner following, that is to say:

4. THAT the propelling power of such railway will be horses, electricity, or any other power except steam as the Company wish to adopt and put in operation.

5. THAT the Company will lay the rails flush with the road, and so as to cause the least possible impediment to ordinary traffic, that the same will be laid in accordance with the existing level or grade of the road at the time of laying the same or as near thereto as is compatible with a proper execution of the work.

6. THAT the Company will so construct and maintain the railway that the same will not interfere with that the Company will maintain their roadbed between their rails and the water tables and drainage, and devil strip in the same manner as the remainder of the Highway is maintained.

7. THAT the Corporation shall not be liable to the Company for any damage the Company may incur or sustain from the breakage of any sewer or water pipe or for any damage or delay that may be caused by the construction of sewers, laying of water pipes or repairing the same or from any delay that may be caused by freshets or fires.

8. THAT it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation to lay down or permit to be laid down in the road water pipes and gas pipes, and to alter and repair or permit to be altered and repaired the same respectively, and also subject to Section 5 here of to grade, alter, improve and repair the road whenever public convenience may so require without cost or claim for damages against the Corporation for interruption or interference with the traffic of the Company or its railway.

9. THAT in case the Company shall refuse or on reasonable notice, neglect to do and perform any matter or thing required by the Franchise or contract thereunder to be done and performed by the Company the same matter or thing may be done by the Corporation and the cost thereof recovered from the Company.

10. THAT the Company shall and will at all times indemnify and save harmless the Corporation from and against all loss, costs, charges, expense, suits, actions, claims and demands whatever arising or occurring by reason of the constructing, maintaining or operating of the said railway or in anything connected with or relating thereto, including the cost of said Township Engineer.

11. THAT each car will be numbered and supplied with a gong to be sounded on approaching and crossing an intersecting street, or in case any person or vehicles shall appear on or near the track.

12. THAT the fares to be charged by the Company will be the same as those charged in the City of Peterborough, and the payment of fare upon any part of the line hereinbefore provided for will entitle the passenger to be carried to any part of the railway line in the City of Peterborough without additional fare.

13. IT shall be the duty of the Company when removing snow from its tracks to spread the same evenly upon the Highway so that the same will not injuriously affect the travel on that part of the Highway outside the Company's tracks.

14. SHOULD the Company forfeit its Franchise in the City of Peterborough the Township Council may declare this Franchise to be forfeited and cancelled.

15. IT is understood and agreed that the Company is to put the highway on each side of the track in as good a condition for general travel as the travelled part of the road was before the laying of the tracks.

In Witness Whereof the said parties of the First Part have hereunto affixed their Corporal Seal, evidenced by the hands of their Reeve and Clerk and the parties of the Second Part have hereunto affixed their Corporate Seal, evidenced by the hands of their President and Secretary.

Secretary.

3. The Reeve and Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan are authorized to execute the said Agreement in duplicate under their hands, and the Corporate Seal, provided the same is executed by the said Peterborough Radial Railway Company, either prior to or at the time it is executed on behalf of the Corporation.

4. The votes of the electors of the said Township of North Monaghan will be taken on this By-law on the First day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual Election of the Municipal Council for the said Township is being held, and the polls will be held at the same hour on said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as are appointed and fixed for the said Municipal Elections.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Township Clerk in the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

6. The Twenty-ninth day of December, 1911, and the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively, on behalf of the persons interested in promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

7. In the event of the Company not constructing the said Railway upon the whole of that part of the Monaghan Road to which this Franchise applies, the Corporation may notify the Company, in writing, to proceed to construct and operate such said Railway over and upon the remainder of the road to which this Franchise extends, and in the event of the Company not constructing such Railway and operating the same within twelve months after the giving of such notice, this Franchise, at the option of the Corporation, may be terminated as to such portion of the road, to which this Franchise applies, not then constructed and operated upon by the Company.

Township Clerk.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY-LAW NUMBER 1639

A By-Law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws:—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. THAT the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say:—On the 9th, 16th and 23rd days of December A. D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George Street between Brock and Murray Streets, on Hunter Street between George and Aylmer Streets and between Water and Queen Streets, and on Charlotte St. between George and Aylmer Streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets in the City of Peterborough, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing signed by him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW,
Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration proving that he or his wife is the holder of a lease, which under the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

Council Chamber, December 7, 1911.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

Auction Sales Conducted

I beg to announce to the residents of Peterborough County that I am prepared to conduct sales promptly and satisfactorily at reasonable rates Your patronage is solicited. See me at home, Lot 16, Con. 5, Smith, (or at Massey Harris Office, Saturday P.M.), or write to S. J. Brooks,

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Wharf at New Liskeard, Ont." will be received at this office until 4 P.M., on Wednesday, January 10, 1912, for the construction of a Public Wharf at New Liskeard, District of Nipissing, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at New Liskeard, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

"Sick Man's Friend"

1,000,000 Bottles Used Annually.

No better known or more popular family remedy has ever been compounded than "Nerviline." During the past half century its success has been phenomenal—due to the fact that it always cures.

"No one could get me to go to bed at night unless I was sure we had Nerviline in the house," writes Mrs R. R. Weightman, of Bolton P. O. "Six years ago my husband was taken badly with rheumatism, which affected his right arm and shoulder. It was so sore and stiff as to be almost helpless for four years. I read of the cure of James E. Everett, and felt sure that when Nerviline cured a case like his, it would cure my husband. I got a dollar's worth of Nerviline, five bottles, in Buhalo, and am pleased to write you that the fourth bottle cured. We have since used Nerviline for Lumbago, Neuralgia, Colds, Chest Tightness and other minor ailments in the family and found 'Nerviline' to be the 'Sick Man's Friend.'"

CURED 4 YEARS RHEUMATISM

No other remedy is so useful in the home, so universally employed to alleviate pain and curing the sick. Refuse anything offered you instead of Nerviline, which is sold: Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. By all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MCNAMARA AND HIS BACKING

(Publishers Press News Service)

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. It took only $30,000 to clear Vincent Altman, of Chicago, and if they could not convict him they can't convict me."

OSCAR LAWLER,

This boast, attributed by Detective Malcolm McLaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago on the night of April 12 last, caused Orrie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angered with McNamara for his independent statement and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion, and eventually to confess his connection with various dynamiting excursions throughout the country.

The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day, laying the foundations for the probe into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies that extended from coast to coast in the last three years.

FRANK M. RYAN,
International President of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, of which John J. McNamara was secretary-treasurer.

Federation Scores McNamaras

Washington, D. C.—Branding James B. and John J. McNamara as "recreants to the good name and high ideals of labor," and expressing the satisfaction of organized labor that the "culprits have been commensurately punished for their crime," the McNamara Ways and Means Committee of the American Federation of Labor, after a two days' conference here, issued a statement vigorously condemning the McNamaras for their "inhumanity," and declaring that organized labor should not be held "either legally or morally responsible for the crime of an individual member."

The labor leaders assert that they "will welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake."

BOY TO FILL JOHN D.'S SHOES

Walter Clark Teagle a Smart Boy of Thirty Three the Possible Successor of Rockefeller.

New York. — A six-foot, 33-year-old chap has been picked, they say, to fill the John D. shoes — those shoes first cobbled out of raw oil by John D. Rockefeller and just lately turned over to another John D. — Archbold — the shoes of command in Standard Oil's mighty camp.

Archibold is of the same generation as Rockefeller and cannot live many years. When he was elected chief of Standard Oil the other day, replacing Rockefeller, one Walter Clark Teagle was named a director and vice-president.

Teagle is the six-foot 33-year-old. To be exact, he is six feet and two inches from scalp to heel. He is a large party, 240 pounds worth; built like a "white hope," with a pink and white complexion, eyes like a matinee idol's and a mouthful of white teeth.

He's a living vindication of the Horatio Alger and Message-to-Garcia stuff. By rights he ought to be a third assistant instructor in a night school, or a station agent along the C. P. R., for really good boys invariably blow up on the home stretch.

Hard-and-Fast Routine

More and more, as we grow older, do we become the victims of routine and slaves of the hour.

The same round of duties lies every morning waiting for the coming of the mistress of the nursery who takes up the reins of government with the best heart she may.

The woman who really rules her household and assumes the responsibility of wife and mother as her own, not to be laid on the shoulders of any deputy, gradually, in too many cases, lets go the opportunities of influence and blessing which would interrupt her prescribed order of accomplishment.

COST OF WAR NEWS

The Modern Newspaper Spares No Expense to Get the Latest News from the Seat of War to the Breakfast Table.

"Get it, at a reasonable cost if you can, but get it." This practically constitutes the orders issued to its war correspondents by the enterprising newspaper of to-day; for whether a war is taking place next door to our own Britain, or a couple of thousands of miles away, the public expects a full account at breakfast time of the previous day's battle. The consequence is that the modern newspaper must spare no expense to obtain war news.

Take the last big war — that between Russia and Japan — which broke out at the beginning of 1904 and lasted twenty months. It is estimated that British newspapers were spending during that time $200,000 a week to secure news of the war. This money was expended on the salary of some 200 correspondents, their interpreters and servants, the upkeep of at least 600 horses, the maintenance of despatch-runners, and the forwarding of cable messages.

Costly Cables.

The expense of getting war news is so great that the smaller newspapers during recent years have, in some cases, combined and shared the cost of sending out correspondents. The more important newspapers, however, send out their own men and also have correspondents stationed at various places where news is most likely to be obtainable. In the Turco-Italian war, for instance, papers are receiving telegrams from "our own correspondent" at such places as Tripoli, Malta, Djerba, Sfax, Constantinople, Rome, Tunis, and many other places.

Telegraph Rates.

It is the cost of transmitting the news which is the biggest item in the war-bill for a newspaper. During the course of the South African War the cable Press rate was 25c a word, although it is now reduced to 18c., while in the Russo-Japan War the rate varied from about 32c to nearly 48c. per word. These are the special Press rates, but it often happened that when the correspondent had some exclusive news he paid two or three times these rates in order to secure precedence of Press-rate messages. In the case of the Tripoli War the cost of transmitting news is not so great, although from Tripoli itself there is no Press rate; but the full rate per word is only 14c., while that from Malta is only 04c.

The upkeep of war correspondents at the seat of the campaign is a great expense. As a rule the remuneration is from between $125 to $200 per week per man, apart from his personal expenses, and even such sums do not exhaust the liabilities of newspapers when war breaks out. Many proprietors take out a special insurance on the lives of their representatives, and some of the more generous go to the extent of giving an undertaking to see to the future of those dependent upon them.

AN INDIAN SENATOR

For the first time in the history of the United States a man with Indian blood was chosen to act as president pro-tempore of the Senate. He is Charles Curtis, who has been senator from Kansas since 1907. Mr. Curtis will act as substitute for Vice-President Sherman for one week. Then he may be re-elected or another may succeed him.

Senator Curtis, whose grandmother was a Kaw Indian, was born January 25, 1860, and was admitted to the bar thirty years ago. He was serving his eighth term in the House when elected senator. By reason of his Indian blood, in 1903 he received 1,600 acres of land in Oklahoma as his part of the Kaw allotment.

At the time of the great flood in Kansas in May, 1903, Senator Curtis was the first man at Topeka to dare the waters, rescuing his mother, then ninety-six years old.

A Point of Etiquette.

The wedding had gone off without a hitch, and the bride and groom had departed amid a perfect shower of confetti, rice, and slippers.

The process of departure had been watched with the keenest delight by little May, who with her parents was of the party of guests remaining behind. Then, when the hum of excitement had died away, the childish inquisitiveness was manifested once again.

"Why do they throw things at the pretty lady in the carriage?" piped May.

"For luck, my dear," replied a bridesmaid.

"And why," she asked again, "doesn't the pretty lady throw them back?"

"Oh," was the answer, "that would be rude."

"No it wouldn't," persisted the dear little May, to the delight of her parents, who were standing close by. "Ma always does."

In a Tree-Top.

It does not fall to the lot of everyone to see a donkey and cart perched on the top of an oak tree nearly thirty-five feet from the ground.

During the winter of 1909 a large limb of an oak tree, in Scotland, was almost torn from the stem, and was overhanging a glasshouse wherein were some very valuable plants. The foresters had climbed up the tree and fastened a long rope on the limb, with the intention of cutting the branch away and lowering it gently, and so saving a disaster. The limb, however, was heavier than was thought, and when the saw had done its work away the limb went with a crash, and a loop in the rope caught a hook in the donkey's cart (which was there to remove the limb when sawn in pieces), and in a twinkling donkey and cart were jerked up on to the tree-top, and held there entangled amongst the branches.

It is satisfactory to learn that the donkey and cart were got down in safety.

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

AMERICAN JEWS AND RUSSIA

"American Diplomacy Spoke to Russia for Special Interests and Not for the Whole American People," Says Wilson.

(Publishers Press News Service)

New York. — Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, in an interview, says:—

"For some eighty years a treaty has existed between this country and Russia tin which it is explicitly covenanted and agreed that the inhabitants of the two nations shall have the liberty of entering any part of the territory of either that is open to foreign commerce; that they shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of the territory thus opened to commerce in order to attend to their affairs and that they shall enjoy the same security and protection as inhabitants of the country in which they are sojourning on condition of course that they submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing, and particularly to the regulations there in force concerning commerce.

For some forty years the obligations of this treaty have been disregarded by Russia in respect to our Jewish fellow-citizens.

If the Russian government has felt through all these years that it could ignore the protest of American ministers and secretaries of state, it has been because the American government spoke for special interests or from some special point of view, and not for the American people. It is the fact that the attention of the American people has now been drawn to this matter that is altering the whole aspect of it.

GLORY OF THE MORNING

The Morning itself, few people, inhabitants of cities, know anything about. Among all our good people, not one in a thousand sees the sun rise once in a year. They know nothing of the morning. Their idea of it is that part of the day which comes along after a cup of coffee and a beefsteak or a piece of toast. With them, morning is not a new issuing of light, a new bursting forth of the sun, a new waking-up of all that has life from a sort of temporary death, to behold again the works of God, the heavens and the earth: it is only a part of the domestic day, belonging to reading newspapers, answering notes, sending the children to school, and giving orders for dinner. The first streak of light, the earliest purpling of the east, which the lark springs up to greet, and the deeper and deeper colouring into orange and red, till at length the "glorious sun is seen, regent of the day" — this they never enjoy, for they never see it. I never thought that Adam had much the advantage of us from having seen the world while it was new. The manifestations of the power of God, like His mercies, are "new every morning" and fresh every moment. We see as fine risings of the sun as ever Adam saw; and its risings are as much a miracle now as they were in his day — and, I think, a good deal more, because it is now a part of the miracle, that for thousands and thousands of years he has come to his appointed time, without the variation of a millionth part of a second. Adam could not tell how this might be. I know the morning — I am acquainted with it, and I love it. I love it fresh and sweet as it is — a daily new creation, breaking forth and calling all that have life and breath and being to new adoration, new enjoyments, and new gratitude.

RESCUE OF THE PRINCESS

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi of the name of McCaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of 100 who had stood by the vessel since she went aground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of the wreck, however, has grown more precarious, as the watertight partitions in the storm have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

INDIANS ARE "SOAKED."

Three Who Indulged in Fire Water Pay Dearly For Fun.

Yesterday Magistrate Edmison fined three Chemong Reserve Indians a $10.25 fine each for drunkenness. They were arrested Saturday under the influence of liquor by Constable McCue There names are John James David, Frank Jobe and John Irons. All pleaded guilty when arraigned at the County Police Court, and were fined the above amounts.

It Happens in Lindsay.

The Owen Sound Sun says, that the firemen of Lindsay are thinking seriously of sending in a bill to the post office department for the time and labor expended on their run in an answer to a call of fire. They turned out at the call from box 32, and after a hard run through the city streets found that there was no fire. The alarm had been sent in by a lady, trying to post a letter in the fire alarm box. The firemen think that the least she could have done, after bringing them down, was to wait, so that they might have taken the letter to the post office for her.

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Cousins Who Marry Is Told by Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew, or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of consanguinity. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view to ascertaining to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, and character, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this—that the general resemblance between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the amount of resemblance within certain degrees is founded on the closeness of consanguinity," Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marriage of uncle and niece with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins.

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues Miss Elderton, "that if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

A Pointer For Pie.

Never set a pie on a flat surface when removing from the oven. Use a fattron stand or wire teapot stand. This prevents steamed, soaked and soggy under pie crust. Three table forks placed so that the tines meet in one point in the center will let the air circulate under when one has not the stands.

Too Hoarse to Speak

"I had a patient with Quinsy that I found great difficulty in curing," states Dr. Wilson. "Every time he caught cold or got chilled he suffered intensely from sore throat, huskiness, throat and chest soreness. After every attack his throat and chest seemed more sensitive. This patient lived in the country, and couldn't come to the city for treatment. I concluded that the best remedy would be an honest liniment, and because of its enormous sale and well-known merit, I advised 'Nerviline.' Morning, noon, and night Nerviline was rubbed over the neck and chest, and once a day diluted with water it was used as a gargle. In a day or two my patient reported an improvement, and by continuing the treatment with Nerviline he was cured. I can recommend Nerviline for breaking up colds, for chest tightness, throat inflammation, quinsy, tonsilitis and similar conditions."

A PLEASING AFFAIR.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Campbell, of Smith, Honored by Friends.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Campbell of Smith gathered at their home on Saturday evening, Dec. 23rd, to wish them the compliments of the season and to make them a presentation prior to their removal from Central Smith to Harwood. The evening was spent in music and social intercourse and the ladies served refreshments at the close. A very interesting address was read by Mr. John Darling, and a handsome silver tea service was presented by Mr. J. Herbert Darling on behalf of the neighbors and friends The following is the address presented, to which Mr. Campbell responded in fitting terms.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Campbell,
Central Smith.

Dear Friends,—

It is with pleasure mingled with regret that we, your friends and neighbors of Central Smith, gathered at your home this evening, to express to you our high esteem and to give you God-speed on your approaching removal from our neighborhood. During the nine years of your residence among us, we have been gratified with genuine satisfaction, both in our business and social relations. In connection with the cheese and butter factory, we have found you, Mr. Campbell, an industrious honorable man, capable in your work and painstaking in your efforts to make the business a success. In our many social gatherings we have enjoyed your company and assistance In the letter we refer to Mrs. Campbell also, who enjoys the confidence of us all.

As a token of our esteem we ask you to accept this silver tea service and these gold coins, hoping you may often be reminded of the hospitality that awaits your future visits to the homes of your many friends in Smith.

As you enter upon your new enterprise at Harwood may God's blessing rest upon your efforts and may the coming year be a Happy and Prosperous one.

Signed on behalf of this gathering.

Royal Templars of Temperance.

A special meeting of the Royal Templars will be held in the Board Room of the Y.M.C.A. this evening, 28th inst. at 8 o'clock. All members of the order, with the 25 new members recently received are requested to be present. A cordial invitation is extended to all in sympathy with the temperance movement, to be in attendance and help in the work.

CARD OF THANKS

To The Ratepayers

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

By the retirement of Mr. J. J. Hartley, who had entered the field for the Mayoralty, my election follows as if by acclamation.

I desire to thank the many friends who came forward and proffered their support, and I esteem such offers fully as much as if rendered.

As Mayor of the City I will earnestly strive to assist in managing the affairs of the municipality that best results may come.

I outlined in my address certain measures and work which I feel will be for the benefit of the city and so far as I can will urge forward these propositions.

Looking for a progressive and prosperous year in Peterborough and wishing all the compliments of the season.

I remain, yours respectfully,

W. H. Bradburn

G. H. BALFOUR,
General Manager.

During the past year twenty-four branches and agencies of the Bank have been opened in the following provinces: New Brunswick, 1; Quebec, 2; Ontario, 9; Saskatchewan, 5; Alberta, 2; British Columbia, 4; England, 1.

Two branches in Alberta and one branch in Ontario, which proved unproductive, have been closed. The total number of branches is now 242.

During the year the capital of the Bank has been increased from $4,000,000 to $4,914,120. The premium arising from the disposal of new stock has been credited to the Rest Account.

The customary inspections of the head office and of all branches and agencies of the Bank have been made.

Quebec, December 18, 1911.

JOHN SHARPLES,
President.

Before moving the adoption of the report, the President addressed the Meeting, giving the Shareholders further particulars as to the increase of paid up capital by $914,120. Increase in number of Shareholders by 415, making a total of over 2,675. Mentioning specially the absorption of the United Empire Bank of Canada on April 1, which added twenty branches in the richest portion of Ontario, where this Bank was previously unrepresented. He also spoke in regard to the proposed removal of the head office from Quebec to Winnipeg, as recommended by the Directors, after considering the matter for two years, and which was to be voted on by the Shareholders later. Mr. Sharples, commenting on the hearty support which he had at all times received from the Board of Directors and the Executive Officers of the Bank, stated that the condition of his health would not permit of his continuing to discharge the important duties of President of the Bank after its removal to Winnipeg.

Another important event had been the opening of a branch in London, England, which was undertaken after the most careful consideration of the Board, and the personal visit to London by the General Manager and the Assistant General Manager, Mr. F. W. Ashe, formerly Eastern Superintendent, was appointed manager of this branch, and the results to date have exceeded expectations.

It was then moved by the Hon. John Sharples, and seconded by Mr. William Price, that the Report of the Directors, now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the Shareholders. Carried.

The General Manager addressed the meeting, referring particularly to the figures as shown by the Balance Sheet, and giving additional details as to the policy of the Bank in various matters of interest to the Shareholders, mentioning in particular the opening of twenty-four additional branches during the year, making a total of 242, as follows:—

New Brunswick	1
Nova Scotia	1
Ontario	76
Quebec	7
Manitoba	39
Saskatchewan	67
Alberta	39
British Columbia	11
London, England	1

Mr. Balfour expressed his regret at the decision of the Hon. John Sharples to retire from his duties as President at a future date, and said that he was voicing the feeling of the Directors, Shareholders and Officials in expressing the hope that he would long be spared to exert that keen interest in the institution which he has displayed during the past seventeen years as Director, Vice-President, and President of the Bank.

After the adoption of the Report, Mr. R. T. Riley, in a short address, stated that it was the wish of the Directors that when Mr. Sharples finds it necessary to retire from the Presidency of the Bank that he be tendered the position of Honorary President. He also spoke specially in reference to the Western Division, in which there are now 155 Branches with a staff of 755

Mr. Samuel Barker, M.P., of Hamilton, also addressed the meeting, congratulating the Shareholders on the Report presented to the meeting, thanking the President and Directors, the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for their efforts on its behalf, and expressing his approval of the proposed removal of the Head Office to Winnipeg.

At the request of the President, the Secretary then read the draft bill, now before the House of Commons, for the purpose of amending the Bank's charter, and moving the Head Office of the Bank from Quebec to Winnipeg.

It was then moved by Mr. William Price, seconded by Col. J. F. Turnbull, and unanimously resolved that the action of the Directors in applying for the foregoing amendment to the Bank's charter be and hereby is approved.

Moved by Mr. R. T. Riley, seconded by Mr. E. E. A. DuVernet: "That the Meeting now proceed to the election of Directors for the ensuing year, and that the ballot box for the receipt of votes be kept open until a quarter past four o'clock, or until five minutes have elapsed without a vote being offered, during which time proceedings be suspended. Carried.

At a subsequent Meeting of the newly-elected Board the Hon. John Sharples was elected President, and Mr. Wm. Price, Vice-President

FOR ALDERMEN

VOTE FOR

LANGFORD, Jr.

FOR NORTH WARD.

To the Ratepayers,—

I ask your support for election to the Council of 1912, I am in favor of the Hydro-Electric By-law, but will support only such proposition as will give the city the lowest possible rates for power and light.

I will be watchful of the city's interests and endeavour to have its affairs administered economically, consistent with progress of the city.

Your very respectfully,

WILLIAM LANGFORD, JR.

VOTE FOR

W. G. MORROW

IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most ddvantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season, Iremain,

Yours truly,

W. G. MORROW.

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the Electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's general welfare, and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial, permanent improvements especially in the matter of roadbeds—and power at cost, providing that cost be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests, particularly where the expenditure of large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,

W. J. JOHNSTON.

JOS. R. METHERAL

IN CENTRE WARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have been entrusted with your confidence for the past three years and my record stands open before you. It may show no extraordinary ability, but an endeavour to be straight-forward and honest in all dealing. I have not been swayed by cliques or outside influences, but voted and worked at all times in the interests of the ratepayers in general and will continue to do so in the future, if re-elected. I would advise the electors to vote for the Hydro-Electric Commission Power By-law. I firmly believe that the Hydro-Electric Commission will give Peterborough power at rates considerably reduced from those at present in force, but I pledge myself that no contract for power either with the Hydro-Electric Commission or private corporation shall be signed by the City Council without a By-law to that effect being submitted to the ratepayers.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

JOS. R. METHERAL.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN J. J. DUFFUS

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Ratepayers of the West Ward and Peterborough Citizens in general:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having the honor of being duly nominated and urged by a large number of representative citizens to be a candidate in the West Ward, I have decided to again enter the Aldermanic field. As it will be impossible for me to interview each voter, I hereby most respectfully solicit you support and influence to assure my election.

If you so honor me I will pledge myself to do my utmost to assist in executing the city's business in a prudent and business like manner

New industries, to my mind, is the one essential toward the future growth and success of our city, and I am in favor of a vigorous campaign to obtain cheap power and light, and also to induce the Radial Railway Co. to make extensive extensions. I would like to see the centre of our city with a permanent roadway.

I am opposed to the policy of increasing a man's taxes every time he makes improvements and minor extensions, and would support a measure to eliminate this condition of affairs.

Wishing all a bright and prosperous New Year.

Yours very respectfully,

JOS. J. DUFFUS.

VOTE FOR

ALDERMAN JAS. EDGAR

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Electors of the West Ward, City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated as a candidate for Alderman from the West Ward, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge myself to legislate for economic government in broad lines, and to advocate the permanent improvement of highways, and the provision of additional bridge connection with East and West City at a point most advantageous to the community as a whole. As to power for municipal purposes, I will only endorse the cheapest service, irrespective of the source from whence it comes; and will insist that any contract for the same shall be first submitted to the ratepayers before being finally passed by the City Council.

With best wishes for the New Year, believe me to remain.

Yours truly,

JAMES EDGAR.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN GILLESPIE

IN CENTRE WARD

To the Electors of the Centre Ward of Peterborough,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Alderman in the Centre Ward for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
By J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?
A. Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

TOO MANY OFFICES

Editor Morning Times.
Dear Sir,—Mr. Hill, the insurance man, is a candidate for alderman in our Ward.
I would suggest that there be placed a limit to the municipal offices any one person may hold.
Surely Mr. Hill should be satisfied with being one of the Water Commissioners as well as a member of the Board of Education.
Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain.
Yours,
West Ward.

RUMOR DENIED

Editor Morning Times.
Dear Sir,—I find that there is a rumor in circulation to the effect that I am the SEYMOUR POWER COMPANY'S CANDIDATE and that I am knocking the BY-LAW now before the people. This is absolutely untrue. Neither the Seymour Company or any other company have had anything to do with my being a candidate, nor have I been asked to pledge myself for or against the By-law.
I may also say that I have supported and will continue to support every sound measure for securing cheap power and cheap light for the CITY OF PETERBOROUGH, as well as a lower rate of taxation.
If the people carry this By-law and I am one of the Aldermen elected to next year's Council I will do as I have always done, deal with the power question and all other questions as in my judgment is in the best interests of the City.
Yours truly,
G. A. Gillespie.

A FALSE RUMOR

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—This afternoon I was told that a rumor had been circulated in the Centre Ward to the effect that I was not friendly to obtaining estimates and rates from the Hydro-Electric Commission.
There is not one word of truth in this rumor. If, elected to the Council I will energetically support a measure to provide for the Hydro-Electric Commission to give us estimates of the power that can be developed and cost of such development and transmission to the City of Peterborough.
I do not say that we should enter into a contract with either the power company or the Commission until we have the complete details and particulars of the whole transaction before us, and then a by-law should be submitted to the people authorizing the Council to enter into a contract with those who will give power the cheapest to Peterborough whether it be the Hydro-Electric Commission or the Power Company.
I am uncompromisingly in favor of getting power where it can be obtained the cheapest irrespective of any other consideration.
As a determined effort to defeat me is being made by these rumors being circulated I would ask that no ratepayer be misled by them
Yours truly,
G. N. Gordon.

WHO WILL PAY THE PIPER?

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—Alderman Duncan has written to the press in support of the power by-law. Alderman Duncan makes a few significant remarks. For instance, he says that the Hydro-Electric Commission would not lose or make one cent on Peterborough's civic power scheme. The alderman is quite right, if the scheme does not make profits enough to redeem the debenture debt, the people of Peterborough will have to pay the piper in their tax bills. This is what Campbellford abd Orillia are doing.
The Hydro-Electric Commission can plunge the city into any old scheme, and it will not cost the Hydro-Electric one cent.
This is the very reason that the opponents to the by-law are asking that they be furnished with some estimate, as to the probable cost of the undertaking. The people will have to pay for the scheme. Before the by-law is voted upon they should know the cost.
Yes, as the South Ward Alderman says, the Hydro-Electric Commission wont lose a cent. The City may though.
That is why I am going to vote against the by-law.
Yours
Ratepayer.

LET US HAVE CHEAP POWER

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—By all means let us have cheaper power and light from the Hydro-Electric Commission. A rapidly increasing number of other live municipalities are making use of the Hydro-Electric Commission. They have the Government behind them, who are anxious to give the people light and power at cost. In a word, they will make private power companies disgorge—cough up and hand back power that rightly belongs to the people and which these private power companies have gobbled up. Private companies will expend any amount of money to do us out of

NO BINDING OBLIGATION WHATEVER IN THE POWER BY-LAW TO BE VOTED ON NEXT MONDAY

"I'll Give You My Pledge, in Writing, That the Hydro-Electric Commission Will Enter Into No Contract With Peterborough For Power Until a Money By-Law is First Submitted to the People."—Hon. Adam Beck at the Grand Opera House Last Night.

At the Public meeting in the Opera House last night, Hon. Adam Beck, Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission delivered the following message from Premier Whitney to the people of Peterborough: "If you vote for the By-law on Monday next, and are desirous of contracting for Hydro-Electric Power at cost, on the same lines as existing in Western Ontario, the Commission will negotiate with the bondholders of the present Electric Merger, and if investigation into values indicate the property to be a good investment, the Ontario Government is prepared to advance sufficient money with which to purchase the whole Trent district power interests, let it be four million or eight million dollars. All the municipalities would be asked to do is to finance their distribution only, the Government will do the rest."

There was present a large and interested audience, who heartily endorsed the Hon. Adam Beck's proposition to supply Peterborough City with electric energy at cost, in a manner at times quite demonstrative. Although objections were cordially invited, not a dissenting voice was raised against the project, and the hon. gentleman's pledge that under no circumstances would the Commission enter into any contract with the Council until a money by-law had first been submitted to the people and endorsed by them, met with intensily enthusiastic plaudits.

Mayor Elect W. H. Bradburn presided in an exceedingly acceptable manner and opened the proceedings with a brief review of the City's previous negotiations for municipal owned power which had culminated in the present situation.

Mayor Morrow was unavoidably absent in Toronto on business.

There were seated on the stage, amongst others, Aldermen Buller, Brown, Metheral, Morgan, Graham, Duncan, Anderson and ex-Alderman Kerneghan; City Trust Commissioner W. H. Moore, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, G. N. Gordon, E. A. Peck, M.P.P., W. H. Bradburn, ex-M.P.P.; F. J. LiBierap, W. H. Casement, and E. A. Tanner, of Lakefield.

Mayor-Elect Bradburn offered that the By-law to be voted on next Monday binds the Council; it is merely an expression of opinion and he pledged himself that before any contract for power was signed a money by-law would be submitted to the people. "I stand," he said, "for cheaper power for manufacturing and domestic purposes." (Cheers.)

HON. ADAM BECK.

Hon. Adam Beck received a very flattering reception and after congratulating Mr. W. H. Bradburn upon his election as Mayor by acclamation, dipped at once into the issue at stake. "I am not here," he said, "either as a politician or a power vendor. The purpose of this project is to make electricity one of the common commodities, and at cost. This question, apart from its dollar and cent aspect, involves the conserving of the peoples' own natural resources to their children and their children's children. The Government proposes to develop and transmit power to the corporation's limits, at 4 per cent. on the investment, the municipality to finance its own distribution of same. A sinking fund that will pay for the depreciation, and defray the cost of the whole plant in thirty years is arranged for, the sum set aside for depreciation will renew the whole plant in ten years. There is no fixed price for Hydro-Electric power, it is always at cost; and an annual adjustment is made and any excess in the estimated cost goes back to the municipality. The more consumers of power within any given district the less that cost will be to the advantage of the whole. The initial cost for power would naturally be reduced year by year, until the lines' limit is reached. For instance, our Western system is capable of serving 80,000 h.p.; last year 18,000 was being used and while this year our rates have been adjusted on a basis of 19,000 h.p. we have in sight 22,000. This means that at the end of the year, a surplus accruing from the excess in contract price of about $100,000 will have to go back to the municipalities either by cheque or in credit. At the end of thirty years, when the whole system is paid for, dams, plants, line etc., will become the property of the municipalities. (Applause.)

Turning to the adverse criticisms of the Hydro-Electric by-law in the public press, the hon. gentleman characterized them as paid advertisements. "If this thing is not wanted by the people," he urged, "we don't want it any more than the power corporations, which we have had to fight before, and in all but a couple of isolated cases won out. Fourteen municipalities voted on the same by-law as is being submitted in Peterborough next Monday, and carried them by overwhelming majorities—the average majority was 75 per cent. in favor of the measure. And in each case a subsequent money by-law was submitted to the people before any binding contracts were made. The Government is not trying to take the people of Peterborough by the throat on this question. Who is the Government of the Province of Ontario but the people. We are your servants, and as long as we serve you honestly and well retain us in power, when we fail to do so, turn us out. It is nonsense to say that we are other than yourselves. Our object is to do our whole duty by the people and then seek their endorsation by being returned for another term of office." (Applause.)

Turning to the probable cost of power, the speaker said we gave Peterborough an estimate based on the Otonabee Power Co's plant, having been led to believe that there was an option on the property. Our action resulted in the Commission being tools for the Seymour Power Co., who absorbed the Otonabee Power Co. And I guess our estimate based on No. 4 and 5 dams was not far wrong. But to-day the Commission has practically No. 4 dam and consequently the Otonabee Power Co. is not worth quite so much as if they had No. 4 dam.

Reverting again to the by-law at stake, the hon. gentleman pointed out that the four municipalities that submitted a similar measure with a money by-law before entering into any contract for power, as Peterborough city will have to do "The Commission would not be a party to any such contract, without a money by-law being first carried, even if the law or the Government permitted it. The fourteen municipalities instanced gave greater majorities on their subsequent money by-laws than on the plebiscite measure."

COST OF POWER.

Turning to the probable cost of Hydro-Electric power for Peterborough, Hon. Adam Beck said the Commission had given one estimate at considerable expense, and could not continue estimating until Kingdomcome. Before going to any additional expense they now want an expression of opinion from the people. In the event of a contract being entered into, power would be dispensed at cost, nothing more, nothing less. The experience of other municipalities had been that the use of Hydro-Electric power effects considerable saving to the consumer. "Power at Hamilton has been reduced to $17.50, and I venture to say that in 12 months it will probably be reduced to near $14. In Ottawa domestic lighting has been reduced from 15c to 7½c per k.w. hour, street lighting from $65 to $45 per lamp, and motive power from $30 to $150 down to $25 to $30 per h.p., and we reduced the rates again by one-third last October, and electricity has become one of the common commodities at Ottawa. Similar savings have been effected in Port Arthur, Toronto, London, Woodstock, Guelph and wherever Hydro-

MORE ABOUT THE BY-LAW WITH THE STRING TO IT

The Review in its support of the power by-law, now before the ratepayers, has made some startling admissions, which only go to show still further, the extreme folly it would be in passing the by-law in question.

In fact, after reading The Review's editorial one would be inclined to think that the attitude of the City Council at the present time is, that the Seymour Power Company should have coaxed them to take the Company's power and light. The Seymour Power Company did not do so, (according to The Review), and so the Council, being composed of men of very sensitive feelings, felt hurt, and humiliated. With injured feelings, but commendable pride, they assumed the role of little boys. They said to each other "The Seymour Power Company can keep their old power and we (the Council) will get power some other place, no matter what it may cost us."

Now, we are not admitting that such was the case. Nevertheless, after reading The Review's article in which it attempts to justify the action of the City Council in trying to tie the City up to a scheme that would, perhaps, involve us in an expenditure of $500,000.. one would assume that today, this is the attitude of the Council towards the Seymour Power Company.

What are the circumstances? What are the facts? It may be a shock to some of the ratepayers to know that the Seymour Power Company did endeavor to sell power to the City of Peterborough.

Let the City Clerk of Peterborough speak up and say if it is, or is not, a fact, that in August last, when an appointment was practically arranged between the Seymour Power Company and the City Power Commission, he wrote the Seymour Power Company stating that the Mayor was absent from the city for a few days and the matter would be taken up upon his return.

Did the Mayor return? Of course he did; we all know that. But did the City Council then show any further effort to go into the matter with the Seymour Power Company? They did not.

Even later on, the Seymour Power Company by telephone conversation endeavored to get an appointment, but the representatives of the City were indifferent, to the degree of a point blank refusal, to discuss the matter.

And still The Review in its endeavor to make some excuse for the extraordinary action of the City Council in the matter, puts them before the public as children, who were not asked to buy something that was on the market. They felt real hurt about it and they now want to buy from someone else.

Ratepayers further, should bear in mind, that if the town had wanted to negotiate with the Seymour Power Company, they would not have had to pass any kind of by-law, not even a blind one with a tail to it.

It is not too late yet, to ask the Seymour Power Company for a block of power. Why under heavens can the Council not ask both the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Seymour Power Company for prices; then after deciding upon the contract that would be the most advantageous to the city, a by-law could be submitted for the approval of the ratepayers.

The ratepayers want a real by-law, not a blind by-law with a string to it; not a by-law that will hand over to the City Council for all time to come, authority to plunge the city into a debt of $500,000.

Ratepayers are now complaining about the high taxes. If the power by-law carries, there will be an uprising.

NORTH MONAGHAN RATEPAYERS SHOULD VOTE FOR RAILWAY EXTENSION

Cannot afford, in their own interests to turn down the Proposition. Will mean the Growth of a Big Suburb in the Township

On Monday next, January 1st, North Monaghan ratepayers will vote on the Peterborough Radial Railway Company's proposition to extend its Park street line to the corner of Romaine street and Monaghan Road, and the qualified voters will be lacking in sound judgment and realization of their own interests should they turn the question down. However, no such calamity as a negative majority vote is anticipated, for it is pretty generally conceded that the bringing of North Monaghan residents in closer connection with the business section of Peterborough City will afford a long-felt want, and will also create increased values in North Monaghan real estate. In fact the mere "proposition" for street railway extension has already engendered a boom in building lots in conjunction to the proposed railway route. Byersville has grown wonderfully of late, and the population of that small, but thriving community only lacks an electric car service with the centre of the city to assure continued healthy growth and increased prosperity.

Peterborough City itself is suffering to-day for want of desirable suburban districts within easy reach by car line, and the general concession of opinion is that the proposed railway extension is the one thing needed to encourage a rapid growth of a popular residential district in the neighborhood of the car line, to the direct advantage of North Monaghan property owners. The very fact that the Street Railway Company is prepared to make this extension is the surest indication of their confidence in the immediate future of that section of North Monaghan furnishing travelling patronage commensurate with their investment, Mr. W. H. Munro, the capable manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, has no hesitancy in asserting that within two years' time further expansion into North Monaghan will be called for; in fact, he has already applied to the township for a road franchise for that purpose.

If this by-law passes, and there should be no question about the matter, the new extension will, it is expected, be in operation by June 1st, 1912.

North Monaghan ratepayers cannot afford to reject this proposition. The running of cars out into two other suburban districts by the fall of next year is now under consideration, and the residential overflow from Peterborough City will naturally follow the car lines, in which ever direction they may be extended. And it is up to North Monaghan ratepayers to see to it that they are not left behind in the race for suburban expansion for want of adequate street railway service.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with the whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers.

LINDSAY MAY SECURE BIG AMMUNITION FACTORY

Lindsay Warder: Col. the Hon. Sam. Hughes, wife and family spent Christmas in Lindsay, and renewed acquaintances with a host of friends. The Minister of Militia is always a welcome visitor, and the occasion of his visit at this yuletide season he informed a Warder man that he had a big Christmas box in store for Lindsay. Not only will he see to it that large armouries are established here, and that a new concrete dock is built at the town wharf, but he also is doing his best to have located in Lindsay a large factory for the manufacturing of various kinds of ammunition and militia supplies.

The new Minister of Militia, as is well known in Lindsay, is progressive at all times, and has the interest of the town of Lindsay and the county of Victoria ever uppermost in his mind and heart. The above plums, it may be, are only incidentals to what is in store for the town and country during the years to come, by having such an alert member to represent them in the Federal House.

Shortly after taking over the reins of power as Minister of Militia, Col. Hughes outlined many reforms in which he intended to put into immediate practice, and as a result the militia department is already undergoing changes for the better, and the country in time will reap the benefit of having a practical man at the head of affairs. The new factory in Canada for the manufacture of various kinds of ammunition is one of the Minister's original schemes to have as far as possible the ammunition used in Canada manufactured in Canada.

The locating of such a factory in Lindsay would be a great boon to the town and would employ many hands. It is to be hoped that the scheme will bring forth results, and that Col. Hughes will land the plum for Lindsay.

BY SECRET MARRIAGE

A remarkable statement was made by Rev. Father Comeau, resident priest of St. Mary's Church, Winnipeg, in which he is reported to have said, in part: "Take this as an instance, I am sent away to a mission a long way up in the country. When I arrive, a man comes to me and says 'Father, I have committed a sin for which I am truly repentant. Three years ago I was married to a Protestant woman by a Protestant Minister. Later, we separated. We did not get a divorce, and now I am living with another woman. Will you marry us? I might say, I will run the risk and marry you in the eyes of God. I then get two witnesses whom I can trust never to reveal what has taken place, and I marry the parties in secret. After this they can never part, as there is no such thing as divorce in the Roman Catholic Church. Then they are married in the eyes of God and the church, though, perhaps not according to the law of the State. If the former wife should get to know of the second marriage, I might be prosecuted One never knows."

NEW LINE WILL START AT ONCE

Bethany-McNicholl Line Now Ready for Regular Trains

BIG THING FOR PETERBORO

A Big Thing for Peterborough Will Be the Opening of This Road—Two Trains Daily Each Way.

FREIGHT and passenger trains will pass over the new C.P.R. line between the Georgian Bay and Bethany, where the road joins the main line. It is said that two express trains will be put on at once between Peterborough and the Georgian Bay, of course, taking in all the intermediate points. At the present time there is a service from Port McNicoll to Coldwater Junction.

The new line was inspected by the engineer of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, Mr. Mountain, on Dec. 22, and in an interview with Mr. Jas. Osborne, superintendent of the C.P.R., The Times was informed that Mr. Mountain's report would be made to the Government within a few days, and that he expected it would be satisfactory in every respect. If a favorable report is received, trains will be at once put in operation over this line, but as to the number, or the stations they would stop at, Mr. Osborne was not in a position to discuss. The stations between Coldwater and Bethany Junction, or Uthoff, Orillia, Brechin, Eldon, Balsam Lake, Grass Hill, Lindsay, Reaboro, Franklin, Bethany and Orillia and Lindsay are the two most important points where railway facilities will be improved by this new line.

The C.P.R.'s new and extensive freight sheds, which are being constructed on the river front, is intended for the increased traffic which the new line will develop. The tracks for the storage of cars is also quite a heavy proposition.

Jumping Jack Tars

The rhythmic jumping of three hundred and fifty bluejackets saved H. M. S. Commonwealth from the fate of the Montagne when she ran aground in a dangerous place.

The battleship Montague was abandoned as a hopeless wreck off the Cornish coast, but her sister ship, the Commonwealth, was safely got off by a successful evasion of her crew.

The Commonwealth ran on to an uncharted rock when returning from target practice, and was badly damaged. She was so nicely balanced in her lodgment, however, that it was decided, after reversing the engines and hauling to extricate her, to try the experiment of mustering all the available hands on the extreme aft, and setting them to jump in unison. The regular jumping of twenty-five tons of solidly-built seamen had the effect of making the huge vessel rock sea-saw fashion until she gradually floated off with the rising tide. In fifteen minutes she was afloat, and saved.

Without a doubt, the largest mails ever brought to Peterborough post office, arrived on Saturday last. The post office staff deserve the greatest credit for the splendid way they handled the immense quantities of stuff. BUILDING OF A NEW DAM

Engle, New Mexico. — Here, in this land once known as "The Land of Lost Hopes," the United States government is building what will be, excepting the Assuan dam in Egypt, the biggest irrigation dam in the world. Certainly it will be the biggest in the new world.

This dam, known as the "Elephant Butte," will convert the Land of Lost Hopes into the smiling land of fertile well-watered fields that it was 300 years ago.

For the upper valley of the Rio Grande Del Norte wasn't always the arid waste that it is now. Time was when this country was covered with the crude but effective ditches of pioneer Mexican agriculturists and green with their gardens and vineyards.

But that was when the Rio Grande was an all-year-round river. That was before the folks of the Colorado valleys, where the Rio Grande has its sources, had begun to impound water on their own account.

Since 1886 the Rio Grande is as dry as a bone.

The dam will be 1400 feet long, 185 feet wide at bed rock and 265 feet high. It will take 410,000 cubic yards of concrete to build it, and it will take 350,000 barrels of cement to make the concrete.

The work is now well under way. It is the biggest irrigation enterprise now being pushed by the United States and perhaps the biggest engineering job it has on its hands, excepting the Panama canal.

PEACE TALKS ONLY DESULTORY

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai. — The revolutionaries here say the peace discussion will be only desultory. After this conference, the Nanking National Convention will be held. Delegates representing eighteen provinces are now in Nanking. One of the leading members of the convention said today: "If Yuan Shi Kai bows to the inevitable within a week he will be elected president. If he does not, Sun Yat Sen will be the first president."

It is evident the Republicans are convinced that Premier Yuan in proposing peace negotiations is simply sparing for time and the Republicans proceed with preparations for winter campaign.

The leaders assert that if the Manchu abdicate and Yuan Shi Kai consents to their elimination, the entire country would be quiet and safe within a week.

The Foreign Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai has adopted a resolution protesting against all loans to the administration.

'FAT MEAT AND STRONG COFFEE' LIVES TO BE 100

lived 100 years," says Mrs. Ellen Mitchell who just recently celebrated her 100th birthday. For the past 70 years she has smoked the strongest kind of tobacco in a clay pipe. That helps her to be cheerful, she thinks. Another aid is her habit of never worrying. For 93 years she escaped doctor's medicine.

Mrs. Mitchell has outlived eight of her ten children. During her more active years she wove cloth, husked corn, laid fence rails, and did the housework. Now her activities are confined to playing blindman's buff with her grandchildren.

HOW THE BLIND READS

The System Was Brought About By An Act of Charity on the Part of Valentine Hauy To Beggar.

How did the blind learn to read? It was in this way.

A man named Valentine Hauy, who for a long time had wondered how he could bring happiness to these unfortunate people, was one day walking through an out-of-the-way boulevard, when he came upon a blind beggar.

Touched by the helpless sorrow of the man, he put his hand in his pocket and gave him a piece of money. But he had hardly taken a step forward when the beggar, an honest man, called him back.

"Surely, sir," he said, "you have made a mistake; you have given me a crown instead of a penny."

The astonished giver asked the beggar how he had been able so quickly to detect the different value of the money.

"Oh," said the beggar, "it is enough for me to pass my finger over it."

This was like a flash of light.

"If the blind," thought Hauy, as he continued his walk, "can distinguish at the least touch a piece of money, why should they not distinguish by the same means a letter, a figure, a mark — in short, any sign whatever so long as it is raised?"

On this foundation he set to work, and presently invented a method for teaching the blind to read. His first pupil was a blind boy whom he rescued from begging at a church door. This boy learned with astonishing quickness to read by means of raised letters. Very soon Valentine Hauy was able to show his pupil in public, and the sight of a child reading with his fingers excited the greatest surprise and admiration.

When his method was perfected, he appealed to the public for funds to carry on his work, and, thanks to the subscriptions which came to him from all sides, Hauy was soon able to open the first institute for teaching the blind to read.

What Water Can Do

No sooner are the London and Ottawa seasons over than we see announcements of various more or less great personages departing for some Continental or British Spa to take the waters, and allow their systems to recover from the fatigues of fashionable or political life. The drinking of the "medicinal" water is not the whole of the cure; change of scene, simplicity of the early hours, freedom from bustle and worry all play their part in the restoration of body and mind. "It is quite possible, however, to have some of these benefits without the expense of going away from home, merely by the aid of pure drinking water. The human body consists of water in the proportion of about sixty per cent., and the water removed from the body by means of the breath, the perspiration, the urine and the bowels is the vehicle by which the body gets rid of the waste products resulting from the activity of its various organs. As a rule the more active a tissue is the more water it contains, and, therefore, within reasonable limits, an increase in the amount of water taken will lead to increased tissue change.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Changing Habits of Business Men

One who has been manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought nothing of staying until until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon in mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing. Empires are being broken up, commercial systems are passing away, principles are threatening that will involve half the human race.

The two men charged with being fortune tellers, who were fined in the police court recently have gone to Toronto.

A meeting of the Charity Board was called for Tuesday night, but it was cancelled, as there were only three members attended, Messrs. H. Rush, C. McClelland and F. Miller.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Fortunes Spent in Cinema Films Taken In All Part of the World. —Triumph of the Picture Playhouse.

After spending several months in the jungles of Africa, equipped with 10,000 ft. of film, a complete canvas dark-room, and a camera with a gyroscopic attachment which enabled him to take pictures from any position or angle without the use of a stand, that daring cinematographer and naturalist, Mr. Cherry Kearton, is returning home with some of the most amazing pictures of forest life ever taken. Such beasts as lions, tigers, ourang-outangs, and hippopotami are seen at close quarters, while another film shows a python making its way along a branch without any perceptible effort at locomotion.

Such an expedition in search of material for the ever-growing picture palace is naturally a somewhat costly affair. As a matter of fact, this enterprise has entailed a cost of over $25,000, although this is by no means a record, for the writer was recently told that to secure moving pictures showing "Buffalo Jones," the well-known cowboy, lassoing lions in the wilds of Africa $31,000 was paid by a London firm.

Demand for War Pictures.

As a matter of fact, film-makers spare no expense in their efforts to secure unique pictures. One thousand dollars was paid for special positions along the Coronation route, while in United States it has cost as much as $5000 to stage a drama for photographic purposes. And as an illustration of the enterprise of the American film-makers, the writer might mention that he was recently at a private view of a series of pictures depicting scenes from Irish novels, the actors, numbering over twenty, being sent from America to Ireland to play the incidents among the hills of the Emerald Isle.

Picture Profits

The question naturally arises, "Is there much profit to be gained by securing such expensive films as those mentioned?" There is certainly not so much profit as when the industry was in its infancy, when the price of a film was 25 cents a foot, and a film was reported to be making a profit of $25,000 a month. The price of the film has dropped to 8 cents a foot, but, whereas in the early days there were only a hundred or so picture palaces in this country, today there are hundreds and they are rapidly increasing. Furthermore, the owner of a good film can sell the same several times over to picture palace proprietors. It might be mentioned, however, that the owner of a film is usually an agent, who buys from the maker and lets to the exhibitor.

SHOES OF SNAKE SKINS

From all reptiles the ordinary woman shrinks in disgust. Yet fashionable women are now being compelled to conquer their aversion to the extent of wearing snake-skin shoes. One of the smartest boot shops in the West-end of London is "featuring" these shoes; but up to the present it seems to be uncertain if the fashion will really establish itself on widespread lines.

Choice of quite a variety of skins is offered. There is the dark and heavily-marked skin of the dead cobra or the lighter skin, with its more delicate pigment markings, of the rapacious python. The skins of the viper and the boa-constrictor have also been made up.

Snake skin is very soft, pliable, and durable. The shoes are expensive, of course, for the skins are not too plentiful, but this factor should rather commend itself to smart people, as it renders it much more difficult to copy the fashion on cheap lines.

"Mum, that little boy next door swears dreadfully. I hope you don't play with him."

"No, mother; not now. He's taught me all he knew."

A City of Salt

There is a city of salt situated at Wieliczka, a little town lying some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit every portion of this marvellous city, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries, horses have been brought to it, and have died there, without ever seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful hall-room, which is 250 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem. The mines contain twenty-five miles of railway lines, and there is a tempting buffet at the railway station.

INTENTIONS OF GREAT BRITAIN

Two Great Nations Must Not Be Embroiled by Actions of Any Individual, Says British Foreign Secretary.

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — Referring to the Persian question during a discussion of foreign affairs in the House of Commons, the foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, said that the Anglo-Russian agreement was not intended to impair the independence and integrity of Persia. A declaration to that effect had been made to the Persian Government, but, he added, Great Britain was not undertaking any obligation to protect the integrity of Persia.

The Russian Government, continued the Foreign Secretary, had demanded that Mr. Shuster should be withdrawn. The British Government had said that it did not object to that demand, Mr. Shuster's intentions in appointing British officials in Northern Persia were good, but the spirit and intention of the Anglo-Russian agreement could not be permitted to be upset, and two great nations embroiled by the action of any individual no matter how good the intentions were.

After what had happened he agreed with Russia's demand that the consent of the British and Russian legations should be obtained for the appointment of foreign advisers to Persia.

In conclusion, Sir Edward said that as Persia was unable to pay any indemnity he hoped Russia would be induced not to press that demand.

Philip Edward Morrell, Liberal, said that a poorer excuse for taking away the independence of Persia than that advanced in the case of Mr. Shuster had never been put forward in the House of Commons. The exact crime committed by Shuster, said Mr. Morrell, was that he did not call at the Russian legation as often as he ought to.

A Frenzied Population

The Teheran correspondent of the Times says that a grave situation has arisen at Shiraz, capital of the province of Fars. The chief mollah, Mirza Ibrahim, has stirred popular fanaticism against the British. He has declared that the imperial bank notes are unclean and as a result they are being presented at the bank wholesale for payment, while the shopkeepers refuse to sell even the smallest article to the Indian troops. The leaders of the religious bodies are urgent in their resistance to Russia and they are preaching a holy war. The Cabinet refuses to resign and it is difficult to see how Russia can obtain other than a poor victory against the frenzied population in their present state of mind.

EXCHANGE EXPRESSIONS

Point at the Bulls and Bears and Meaning of Sports and Profits and Settling Day Accounts.

In "the" times newspapers tell us that "Bulls" are having it all their own way. In bad times it appears that the "Bears" are getting an innings. What, then, are "Bulls" and "Bears."

Let us first glance at the [illegible] to the Stock Exchange. There the genuine investor, who is content with anything up to 4½ per cent. and sound security. Next comes a little more difficult man to satisfy. For he wants 5 per cent. on his money and a chance of capital appreciation in his stock or share. Lastly — and it is the client we are dealing with more particularly — there is the speculator who swarms in the mining, rubber, and oil share markets in active times. He pays but little regard to any of the questions that are all important to the other two classes. The speculator delights in possibilities, probabilities, rumours, prospects, in fact all the varied ingredients that go to make an appetising meal for a healthy, robust "Bull."

A Peep at the "Bulls" and "Bears"

A "Bull" is a speculator for the rise," a purchaser who hopes to sell at a profit, if possible before the settling day comes round, and not one who intends to take the shares off the market. He is known as a "stale bull," when after waiting wearily for the rise that never seems to come he sells in disgust. The "Bear" is the speculator who comes along when he thinks money can be made by selling; he fattens, of course, on the stale bull. When a successful "Bull" sells he differs from the "Bear" in that he takes his profit of course, but he takes his profit of course, but he [illegible] whereas the "Bear" is only just getting out to make them. Thus a "Bull" taking his profits does so by selling at a higher price what he bought, sharp, some time ago. The "Bear" sells not because he has shares in his possession upon which he desires to realise a profit, but because he thinks he can sell you or me some shares now at, say, $15, which before setting day he can [illegible] and secure at, say, $10, the difference between his selling and buying price is his profit. In effect he has sold us something at $15 which he has bought at $10. But he sold it first taking the risk of "covering" himself at a lower price before he is called upon to settle up. Settling days on the Stock Exchange come round every fortnight, when everybody, investors, speculators, "Bulls" and "Bears," settle their transactions.

WHY CHILDREN ASK QUESTIONS

The whole of the doing part of our nature depends, in the first place, upon a most important fact of our nature, which is that we possess instincts. All these instincts exist in order to serve our lives in one way or another, and their special business is to urge us to action. When we thus act under the influence of an instinct we commonly have a certain kind of feeling or emotion, which corresponds with the instinct that is at work.

One of the most interesting and valuable of our instincts is curiosity. In the history of the long line of beings who have preceded us, curiosity is a high instinct and one that is early in appearing. We do not find it among the lowest animals, but it is conspicuous in the highest kinds of monkeys.

The particular kind of feeling or emotion that goes with the instinct of curiosity is what we call wonder. Thus, when we ask a question of ourselves, we often say, I wonder why so-and-so. And this instinct grows, as mankind grows, from the most trivial curiosity about trivial things until it leads men to devote their whole lives to the discovery of the laws and wonders of Nature.

Children, therefore, ask questions because they are human, and because the possession of the instinct of curiosity and the feeling of wonder is a very great and worthy fact about the human race. Without it we should not be driven on to learn and to know, and without knowing our place in the world would not be nearly so safe as it is. The trouble is that so many of us stop asking questions when we grow up.

Quite a Difference

When Lawrence Barrett's daughter was married Stuart Robson sent a cheque for a thousand pounds to the bridegroom. The comedian's daughter Felicia Robson, who attended the wedding, conveyed the gift.

"Felicia," said her father, upon her return "did you give him the cheque?"

"Yes," father," answered the daughter.

"What did he say?" asked Robson.

"He didn't say anything," replied Miss Felicia; "but he shed tears."

"How long did he cry?"

"Why, father, I didn't time him. I should say, however, that he wept fully a minute."

"Fully a minute," mused Robson. "Why, daughter, I cried an hour after I signed it."

BY-LAW NUMBER 644

A By-law to authorize the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan to execute an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the right to use a Highway in the Township of North Monaghan as therein mentioned.

Passed 17th day of November, 1911.

WHEREAS The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has applied to the Council of the Township of North Monaghan for the franchise and right for a period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the public highway or road, which may be better known as "The Monaghan Road" extending Southerly from Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances for the purposes of the said Railway, and the Council and Company have agreed on the terms and conditions on which in the opinion of the Council the said right should be given, which terms and conditions have been reduced to writing, and are fully set out herein, and it is necessary that the said terms and conditions and the period for which said right is to be granted should be submitted to the vote of the Electors of the Municipality in the manner provided in the Consolidated Municipal Act (1903) and the Ontario Railway Act 1906 with respect to By-laws requiring the assent of the Electors.

THEREFORE the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. The Council of the Township of North Monaghan are hereby authorized to enter into an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company in the words and figures following, namely:

THIS AGREEMENT made in duplicate the 17th day of November, 1911, between THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, hereinafter called the "Corporation," of the FIRST PART and THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY COMPANY, hereinafter called the "Company," of the SECOND PART.

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto and dated the Fourteenth day of March, 1904, the Corporation did grant unto the Company a franchise and right for the period of thirty years, therein set forth, together with the exemption therein referred to, and

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto, and dated the Nineteenth day of September, 1904, the Corporation did further grant unto the Company an extension of said Franchise to the Boundary Line running along the Western limit of the City of Peterborough from Charlotte Street to the Northern boundary of the Township of North Monaghan, and

WHEREAS the parties have further agreed to further extend the said Franchise from the north side of Charlotte Street southerly along the highway known as the Monaghan Road (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan), to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan.

1. WITNESSETH that the Corporation doth hereby upon and subject to the terms, provisoes and conditions hereinafter referred to and contained, and subject to the Special Statute incorporating the Company, and of the Sections of the Railway Act applying to the said Company, grant to the said Company the Franchise and right for the period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the Public Highway or Road, which may be known as "The Monaghan Road" extending southerly from the north side of Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances thereon for the purpose aforesaid. Provided, however, that the rails shall be laid along the centre of the road allowance as far South as Cameron Street and that from the North side of Cameron Street South to the River Otonabee the rails shall be laid on the portion of the highway designated by the Township Council.

2. AND it is expressly declared and agreed by and between the parties hereto that wherever in this agreement the parties of the First Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Corporation, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns, and wherever in this agreement the parties of the Second Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Company, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns.

3. AND the Company do hereby covenant, promise and agree with the Corporation in manner following, that is to say:

4. THAT the propelling power of such railway will be horses, electricity, or any other power except steam as the Company wish to adopt and put in operation.

5. THAT the Company will lay the rails flush with the road, and so as to cause the least possible impediment to ordinary traffic, that the same will be laid in accordance with the existing level or grade of the road at the time of laying the same or as near thereto as is compatible with a proper execution of the work.

6. THAT the Company will so construct and maintain the railway that the same will not interfere with that the Company will maintain their roadbed between their rails and the water tables and drainage, and the strip in the same manner as the remainder of the Highway is maintained.

7. THAT the Corporation shall not be liable to the Company for any damage the Company may incur or sustain from the breakage of any sewer or water pipe or for any damage or delay that may be caused by the construction of sewers, laying of water pipes or repairing the same or from any delay that may be caused by freshets or fires.

8. THAT it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation to lay down or permit to be laid down in the road water pipes and gas pipes, and to alter and repair or permit to be altered and repaired the same respectively, and also subject to Section 5 hereof to grade, alter, improve and repair the road whenever public convenience may so require without cost or claim for damages against the Corporation for interruption or interference with the traffic of the Company or its railway.

9. THAT in case the Company shall refuse or on reasonable notice, neglect to do and perform any matter or thing required by the Franchise or contract thereunder to be done and performed by the Company the same matter or thing may be done by the Corporation and the cost thereof recovered from the Company.

10. THAT the Company shall and will at all times indemnify and save harmless the Corporation from and against all loss, costs, charges, expense, suits, actions, claims and demands whatever arising or occurring by reason of the constructing, maintaining or operating of the said railway or in anything connected with or relating thereto, including the cost of said Townsaip Engineer.

11. THAT each car will be numbered and supplied with a gong to be sounded on approaching and crossing an intersecting street, or in case any person or vehicles shall appear on or near the track.

12. THAT the fares to be charged by the Company will be the same as those charged in the City of Peterborough, and the payment of fare upon any part of the line hereinbefore provided for will entitle the passenger to be carried to any part of the railway line in the City of Peterborough without additional fare.

13. IT shall be the duty of the Company when removing snow from its tracks to spread the same evenly upon the Highway so that the same will not injuriously affect the travel on that part of the Highway outside the Company's tracks.

14. SHOULD the Company forfeit its Franchise in the City of Peterborough the Township Council may declare this Franchise to be forfeited and cancelled.

15. IT is understood and agreed that the Company is to put the highway on each side of the track in as good a condition for general travel as the travelled part of the road was before the laying of the tracks.

In Witness Whereof the said parties of the First Part have hereunto affixed their Corporal Seal, evidenced by the hands of their Reeve and Clerk and the parties of the Second Part have hereunto affixed their Corporate Seal, evidenced by the hands of their President and Secretary.

3. The Reeve and Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan are authorized to execute the said Agreement in duplicate under their hands, and the Corporate Seal, provided the same is executed by the said Peterborough Radial Railway Company, either prior to or at the time it is executed on behalf of the Corporation.

4. The votes of the electors of the said Township of North Monaghan will be taken on this By-law on the First day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual Election of the Municipal Council for the said Township is being held, and the polls will be held at the same hour on said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as are appointed and fixed for the said Municipal Elections.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Township Clerk in the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

6. The Twenty-ninth day of December, 1911, and the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively, on behalf of the persons interested in promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

7. In the event of the Company not constructing the said Railway upon the whole of that part of the Monaghan Road to which this Franchise applies, the Corporation may notify the Company, in writing, to proceed to construct and operate such said Railway over and upon the remainder of the road to which this Franchise extends, and in the event of the Company not constructing such Railway and operating the same within twelve months after the giving of such notice, this Franchise, at the option of the Corporation, may be terminated as to such portion of the road, to which this Franchise applies, not then constructed and operated upon by the Company.

A By-Law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws:—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. THAT the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say:—On the 9th, 16th and 23rd days of December A. D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George Street between Brock and Murray Streets, on Hunter Street between George and Aylmer Streets and between Water and Queen Streets, and on Charlotte St. between George and Aylmer Streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets in the City of Peterborough, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing signed by him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW,
Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration proving that he or his wife is the holder of a lease, which under the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

Council Chamber, December 7, 1911.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

Children's Chest Troubles

RUB ON NERVILINE

Every mother knows how difficult it is to get a young child to take a cough mixture. Seldom will one help unless given in large doses, and the result is to completely upset the stomach and make the child sick.

Speaking of the promptest cure for chest troubles and children's colds, Nurse Carrington says: "In all my experience in nursing I haven't met any preparation so dependable as Nerviline. It is the ideal liniment. Every drop you rub on is absorbed quickly, sinks through the pores to the congested muscles, eases, relieves, and cures quickly. Especially for chest colds, pain in the side, stiff neck, earache, toothache I have found Nerviline invaluable. In treating the minor ills of children Nerviline has no equal. I think Nerviline should be in every home."

A million bottles of Nerviline used every year—this is itself a burden of proof that it is the ideal liniment for the home. Refuse anything your dealer may offer instead of Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. Sold everywhere, and by The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

An "Ear Telephone."

Differing from the various kinds of instruments which are used to aid persons of defective hearing, a new long distance hearing apparatus has recently been invented to assist the hearing of normal persons in much the same way that a telescope does the eye; that is, it enables one to distinguish sounds through a greater distance, besides amplifying those which would ordinarily be detected by the unaided ears. For this reason it has been facetiously called the "ear telescope."

G. N. GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, City of Peterborough,—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

As a candidate for Alderman for one of the two seats in the Centre Ward, I respectfully solicit your votes.

My platform is briefly this:

1.—Obtain Hydro-Electric estimates and reports as to prices, terms, &c., of obtaining power for the City's manufacturers, and for house and store lighting.

2.—Abate the nuisance caused by the G.T.R. using Bethune street as a shunting yard, which injuriously affects hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of realty.

3.—Obtain legislation allowing reduction of taxes on businesses and improvements and increasing taxation of land values, thus making the holders of vacant land pay their share of the taxes.

4.—Have every milk vendor's milk inspected at least fortnightly and a report with the milkman's name published showing the proportions of butter fat contained in each lot.

5.—Consideration of the question of permanent improvement of highways.

6.—Begin an aggressive campaign to obtain new industries, and inaugurate a strong publicity scheme.

There are two Aldermen to be elected for the Centre Ward. G. A. Gillespie is contesting one seat with J. R. Metheral and W. G. Morrow, of Charlotte street, is contesting the other seat with me.

If elected, I will energetically support a progressive campaign for the City's advancement.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

DRUNKARDS PATRON

When Christians Decided to Merge Bacchus into St. Martin the Reputation of Former Was Handed On To Him.

What has come to be known as St. Martin Summer consists of a few lovely days about the second week of November. We hear a great deal about St. Luke's Summer, but St. Martin's Summer and his name-day, November 11th, suffer neglect — possibly because the saint was French and not English.

Perhaps, too, the knowledge that he is the patron saint of drunkards has not added to his reputation. That office came to him by accident. The reason how this doubtful honour was thrust upon him after his death was rather curious. The Vinalia, or Feast of Bacchus, was always celebrated on November 11th. Later, when the Christians decided to merge Bacchus into St. Martin, the reputation of the former was unfortunately handed on to the saint, although quite unmerited by him.

Before his conversion he was a military tribune, stationed at Amiens. When one day, so the story goes, in midwinter, at the city gate of Amiens a miserable beggar appealed to him for help, the soldier drew his sword and, dividing his cloak, gave half of it to the wretched beggar. At night, so it is said, Christ in person appeared to the astonished soldier, clad in the very cloak he had divided with the beggar a few hours before.

Another legend is that the saint, having been annoyed by the behaviour of one of the geese in his poultry-yard, ordered it to be slain and served up for dinner. He died immediately after partaking of it, and the anniversary has ever since been observed in France by the eating of goose on that day, November 11th. And even now, when the sunny days of St. Martin's Summer come round, there are but few French people who do not give a passing thought to that kindly saint who divided his cloak so that a poor beggar might be protected from the cold.

TRADING IN NIGERIA

Life on a trading station would not suit everyone, as it is a very quiet one. I am stationed at a place about 50 miles from the coast on an island in the centre of a creek, entirely isolated, and it requires a very optimistic disposition to keep cheerful under some of the circumstances which go to make up the life of a trading station.

The natives on this port of the coast are a fighting, semi-savage lot, and the white man's safety is not at all secure, as the natives are nearly always having tribal differences, and whatever state of civilisation they may have attained during the term of peace is entirely forgotten, and they return to their natural state of cannibalism.

When any person of importance dies, there is what is called a "play," in which all the surrounding chiefs take part. They dress up in all the fantastic and grotesque attires conceivable, and dance for hours on end, after which a great feast is prepared and drinkables consumed to no small extent. This may last for a day or two, and perhaps a week, when the next of kin takes possession of the household.

Ju-Juism is very much in evidence out here, and although Christianity is preached in every town, the native, irrespective of what he professes to be, has a superstitious nature, and no amount of preaching can eradicate his fear of the fetish Ju-Ju, to which he makes sacrifices of fruit and flesh of animals.

For instance, a native convert had just loaded his canoe with merchandise, of which he had a large amount, when he came into one of the stores where I was and stole a trifling article. I chased him to his canoe, but he got there first, and in my anger I told him that the Ju-Ju would get him. Coincidental though this may seem, his canoe sank in the middle of the creek, and needless to say he never would come back again to our station, although he sent a native witch doctor and some natives dance round it, to drive away the to build a fire near the factory and Ju-Ju.

'FIRST AID'

Canadian Railroad Now Introducing First Aid Classes All Over Its System.

Of such value does at least one railway consider its "First Aid to the Injured" work that it is now extending its sphere of activities in this connection. Formerly the railway's "First Aid" work was largely confined to the employees of its operating departments, but now the work is being extended to all classes of employees, classes being formed among the clerks and office staffs. This is being done not so much for the advantage of the railway itself, but from a feeling which those at the head of the railway have that everybody should have at least a rudimentary knowledge of "First Aid". Altogether on the C. P. R. system there are now about between 1800 and 2000 men enrolled in the classes, among the cities and towns in which these classes are situated being, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver, Victoria, Brandon, Carleton Place, Fort William, Port Arthur, Kenora, Nelson, North Bay, Ottawa, Outremont, Smith Falls, St. John, Havelock, London, Farnham, McAdam Junction, Windsor, Goderich, Fort Perry, Chapleau, Scriber, White River, Webbwood, Sault Ste Marie, Sudbury and Bing Inlet. Altogether there are over 100 classes, Montreal city heading the list with ten classes.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR.

London — London's lord mayor, Sir Thomas Crosby, is the first physician to be thus honored, and, too, he is one of the oldest lord mayors London ever had, having just celebrated his 81st birthday. The lord mayor has nothing to do but wear the robes of his office upon state occasions and hand the municipal key over to distinguished visitors occasionally. Sir Thomas is a spry old man, and it is expected that he will handle the robes and key as deftly as his youthful predecessors did.

COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Company was incorporated in 1906, and has made steady progress. Their Real Estate holdings are chiefly in and around Calgary and will so continue, but latterly they have been paying a little attention to Saskatoon, where such remarkable progress is being made. It will be the policy of the Company to purchase judiciously in and near Towns and Cities which have passed the uncertain stage of development and whose future is assured. The Company, with its expert knowledge of values is better able to handle such business than any individual, however well equipped he may be for the work.

While the Company has been, and will continue to be, conservative in the matter of dividends, it would appear probable that before very long a distribution of Assets, either in the shape of a Stock Bonus or substantial Cash Dividend, might be made. If not, however, the Shareholders will still benefit by holding a security of constantly increasing value, which will be reflected in the market price of the stock.

The remarkable progress of the City of Calgary is perhaps without precedent in Canada. Building permits issued during the ten months ended 31st October, 1911, reached the enormous total of $11,664,138.00.

COMPANY'S DIVIDEND RECORD

The Company has paid Dividends every year since its incorporation as follows:

1907.....6 per cent.
1908.....8 per cent.
1909.....9 per cent.
1910.....10 per cent.

HIGHER DIVIDEND PROSPECTS

Mr. H. A. MacLean, President of the Company, in a letter dated 15th November, 1911, makes the following reference to Dividend and Reserve Fund: "While I can say nothing official at this time, I may mention that at the Company's Annual Meeting, following its year-end at 31st December, it is my intention to recommend that the Dividend for 1911 be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, which will be an advance of 1 per cent. over the Dividend for 1910. I consider it safe to say in this connection, also, that the Dividend for 1912 will be at the rate of 12 per cent.

"The Asset and Liability Return covering the ten months ended 31st October shows, after allowing for all expenses and outlays of every kind, except the 1911 Dividend, a surplus of Assets over Liabilities of $311,736.72. The 1911 Dividend will amount to approximately $40,000.00, leaving a net surplus of approximately $271,736.72, equal to 90 per cent. of the Company's paid-up Capital. This amount may be fairly considered as a Reserve fund in its present shape, and the Company might continue with safety along its present lines. It is my intention, however, at the approaching Annual Meeting, to propose that a portion equal to 25 per cent. of the Real Estate forming this surplus, be set aside, and advantageously sold—the proceeds of such sale to be invested in high grade listed Railroad Bonds, yielding the Company about 5 per cent. This operation, repeated from year to year, will give the Company a reserve fund of pretty much the same nature as is carried by the Banks and other conservatively managed institutions."

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

The Company's statement of assets and liabilities as of October 31st, 1911, attested to by Messrs. Webb, Read & Hegan, appears in full in the prospectus. It shows the value of the Company's real estate and buildings, as valued by Mr. V. J. L. Eccles, to stand at $584,111, and balance of profit and loss account $311,736. Of the Company's authorized capital of $1,000,000, $388,380 is subscribed, $301,857.50 of which is paid up, leaving $86,522.50 of unmatured and unpaid calls.

Inquiries as to the Company's standing and the integrity and ability of the directors (of whom the President, Managing Director and Secretary-Treasurer devote their time exclusively to the Company's business) may be made of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal.

It is the intention to make application in due course to have the stock listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Copies of prospectus and application forms for shares may be obtained from the undersigned, and in cases where the request for application forms states the number of shares desired it will be considered that application has been received at that date. The right is reserved, however, to allot a smaller number of shares than applied for.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 887 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up-to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pains in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pains or soreness in the bladder.
5—Pains in the kidneys.
6—Pains or pulls in the stomach.
7—Impure blood, pimply complexion, dizziness
8—Pain or soreness around the eyes.
9—Specks before the eyes.
10—Sediment in the urine or brick dust.
11—Pain or soreness under the heart.
12—Pain in the shoulder blades.
13—Pain in the muscles or hands.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
16—Pain and soreness in the groins.
17—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

TELEGRAPH MARVELS

1700 Miles Per Minute is the Rate at Which a Wire Travelled Around the World Though this is Not the Record.

With a view to finding out how quickly a message could be sent round the world, the editor of the 'New York Times' recently carried out an ingenious test. He wrote a message of nine words addressed to the paper, and dispatched it eastwards. The message completely girdled the northern hemisphere, travelling through Honolulu to Manila, thence to Hongkong, Singapore, and Bombay, from which point it sped onwards to Suez, thence to Gibraltar, towards Fayal, and finally re-arrived at New York, a distance of 28,613 miles.

No attempt was made to clear the line for its transmission in the hope of establishing a record, but the messages was sent under ordinary commercial conditions. The message passed through sixteen relay stations, and sixteen and a half minutes after it left New York it re-entered that city, thus travelling at an average speed of 1,700 miles per minute.

This, however, is not a record. The quickest time in which a message has been dispatched round the world was in celebration of the opening of the Pacific cable, when the globe was telegraphically encircled in nine and a half minutes. In that case, however, the line was cleared specially for the passage of the message.

NEW CHURCH GOERS

In a Remote Part of India During a Service at a Mission a Tiger Once Put in an Appearance. But Turned Tail.

It is the commonest of common sights in the Highlands of Scotland, and in some of the remoter churches of the English Lake district, to see dogs at church. Their sheep-dogs are such inseparable companions of the shepherds that they would both look upon it as an unforgivable insult if one went anywhere without the other. So, when the shepherd goes to church, his dog goes with him, and so well trained are they that it is most unusual for any of them to stir during the service. They lie under the seats and generally go to sleep — a practice in which they are not imitated by their masters, for the Scottish shepherd is not accustomed to sleep under the longest sermon.

Bullocks in the Baptistry.

At the present moment a dog may be seen in a London church, for certain felonious and sacrilegious persons have taken to robbing the offertory-boxes at Westminster Cathedral by night. So the authorities have added to the staff a watch-dog, whose duty it is to keep watch at the money-boxes. Whether he stays during the service hours we do not know, but it is very noticeable that he does. He is probably only a night watch-man — or watch-dog — and goes home to supper and bed when other people are thinking about breakfast and the day's work.

Many people consider that the presence of a dog in church is a profanation of the sacred edifice, but surely a pig is much more so. Yet a pig might have been seen quite lately in a crate at the base of the pulpit during the harvest thanksgiving services at the Grimsby Fishermen's Church. It transpired that the minister had solicited a contribution from a local farmer, who said, "What would you like?" to which the minister replied, "Oh, anything from the farm." Well, the farmer might have sent potatoes, or eggs, or butter, or cheese, or even bacon, but he elected to send a pig — not in a poke, but in a crate. His contribution to the harvest thanksgiving services was thankfully received, and after the services were over was sold for a good price for the benefit of the church funds. The animal behaved splendidly in its unusual surroundings.

Too Much for the Tiger!

On one occasion at a mission church in a remote village of India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much frightened as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

In the north-west of Canada a bear once strolled into a church. There was an immediate panic among the women, and some men sprang towards the shaggy beast, intending to slay him. Bruin, however, took all these things very coolly, sat up, and looked so amiable and unaggressive that, instead of killing him, the men laughed at him. Indeed, it was almost immediately seen that the bear was the identical animal which had formerly been the pet of the village, and which had run from the settlements into the woods about six months before. He had only returned to pay his respects to his old friends, and finding them all at church had evidently thought he might as well go too.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

Advertisement by Water.

An ingenious machine has just been put on the Parisian market. According to details given in "La Publicite" the machine prints an announcement on the ground in water, which it sprays upon the soil in a fine shower. The letters or signs will last from twenty to thirty minutes, until the evaporation of the water is complete, and as the spray of water also serves the welcome purpose of laying the dust, the invention will doubtless be accorded a heartier welcome than the majority of advertising devices of this nature receive.

NEW CARDINALS. THEIR CHURCHES

(Publishers Press News Service)

Rome. — Pope Pius, in conferring the title of protector of an ancient Roman church upon each of the new American cardinals, has assigned them to churches particularly famous.

The custom of naming cardinal protectors dates from the early days when all the cardinals lived in Rome. There are 72 ancient churches, corresponding with the number of seats in the college of cardinals. The cardinal protector was expected to spend large sums in rebuilding and beautifying his church, to officiate at the more solemn ceremonies there and to confer upon it all the dignity possible. Upon his death his red hat is hung in the church.

Cardinal Falconio was made protector of the church of Santa Maria in Aracoeli, one of the oldest in Rome, standing on Capitoline Hill. It contains the shrine of "Bambino," a famous miraculous image, the altar of Cæsar Augustus and many relics. Down the steps leading from this church Julius Cæsar descended on his knees after his conquests in Britain.

Cardinal O'Connell was assigned to the protectorate of the church of San Calisto, famous for its catacombs, in which 170,000 early Christians were buried.

To Cardinal Farley was given the title of the church of Santa Maria in Sopra Minerva, famous as the only Gothic edifice of the 400 churches in Rome. It contains the tombs of St.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 32 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Vic Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 16 lb. of bread and butter, 16 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

FINGER PRINTS POINT TO GUILT

Finger Print on Cigaret Case May Send Man to Chair for Murder For First Time in United States.

New York. — A fingerprint on a cigaret case — the only tangible bit of evidence against him — may send Joseph Roberts, West Indian negro, to the electric chair for the murder of Isaac Vogel, jeweler.

Vogel was killed in a cellar a short time ago and his clothes looted. There was no clue and detectives had given up hope of solving the mystery when Detective Hayes found the loot in a loft that only Roberts had access to.

Searching among the recovered effects of the dead man he found a cigaret case which Vogel, on the day of his death, had cleaned and burnished and wrapped in tissue paper to keep it spotless. When Hayes opened the package he found the tissue had been disturbed and a smudge on the case.

Capt. Faurot, fingerprint expert in the central office, compared the mark with that of many different ones in police headquarters and announced that it matched that of Roberts, whose fingerprint had been taken some time ago when detectives were trying to run down the perpetrator of a safe robbery.

At the time of the safe robbery Roberts was arrested because his fingerprint matched that around the safe door. He was indicted, but never tried and was finally discharged.

"This is the first time in this country that fingerprints will be used as evidence of the first importance in a murder case," said Inspector Hughes.

Placing the Blame

Little Bertie's mother overheard him using some very strong language.

She promptly took him to task, explaining the wickedness as well as the vulgarity of such speech. She asked him where he had learned all those dreadful words. Bertie announced that Charlie, one of his playmates, had taught him.

Charlie's mother was straightway informed, and Charlie himself was brought to book. He vigorously denied having instructed Bertie, and neither threats nor tears could make him confess.

At last he burst out: "I didn't teach Bertie any bad words. Why should I know them better than he does? Hasn't his father got an automobile, too?"

WICKERSHAM ILL

New York. — Attorney General Wickersham is reported to be ill at his home in Washington; not seriously, it is said.

When George W. Wickersham left his $100,000 a year practice with the Wall-st law firm of Strong and Cadwalader, to become President Taft's attorney-general at less than $10,000 a year it was announced that it was with great difficulty the president persuaded him to take the job; then it was reported that the president's brother, Henry Taft, also a member of the same Wall-st law firm, and powerful corporations for whom Henry Taft and Wickersham had worked, did the persuading — persuaded the president to give him the place.

Before Wickersham's advent in the department of Justice at Washington, he was unknown except to the biggest of Big Business folk, J. P. Morgan, the sugar trust, the Chicago traction people, the New York street railway concerns. From them he had secured his monumental fees, which made him at one time the best paid lawyer in Wall-st. Not only was Wickersham one of the best paid, but he was one of the brainiest.

By far the most important anti-trust suit begun by Wickersham was the case against the United States tool corporation, Oct 27, 1911.

SAVE THE BABIES

Sea Water Injection is Cure for Infantile Cholera and Thousands of Children Have Been Saved By New Method.

A new cure has been found for infantile cholera, that dread complaint which wipes out so many young lives during the summer. The hot European summer, which has recently ended, claimed a toll of babies, and the new method was given an ample testing in London and Paris with what are claimed to have been excellent results.

Dr. Quintin, a Parisian philanthropist, was the discoverer of the new method, which is composed of carefully determined doses of modified sea water injected under the little infant's skin, and during the past five years thousands of children have been satisfactorily treated. The system was introduced into London by the generosity of Mr. Otto Kahn, and a large Polyclinic was opened, at which the children were treated. So successful were the results that many of the provincial hospitals also introduced the treatment with equal satisfaction.

The preparation is not a patent medicine, and, it is stated, can be prepared by any chemist, and a number of local ladies interested in child welfare are now in communication with the London officials with the idea of getting the treatment established in Montreal ready for next summer.

THE TIMID PENDULUM

Once upon a time a clock-maker was making a clock, putting each wheel into its proper place, and fitting the different parts together. The pendulum was lying on the table beside him, waiting for its turn, and it passed the time in making a calculation of how long it would be before the great wheels of the clock were worn out and its own work done.

"Of course, I shall go on ticking as long as these wheels last," said the pendulum. "I shall be expected to tick so many times to the minute — no sixty times that to the hour. I shall never rest day or night, so that I must tick twenty-four hours instead of lying still and sleeping peacefully through a few of them. Then there are 365 days in one year alone, and the clock will probably last good for at least seventy years. If I had a head I would put it all down, but I can't do multiplication in my head — millions of ticks, I'm sure, if not billions! I can never do it," and the poor unhappy pendulum sighed deeply.

"But surely you can do one tick at a time?" asked the clockmaker kindly.

"Oh, yes, that's a very simple matter," answer the pendulum.

"Well," said the clockmaker, "that's all you will ever have to do really," and he hung the pendulum in its place, taking care to make it quite comfortable, because it is more important to get properly settled on a hook than on a chair, and it sets to work steadily ticking.

"Now, if I were you," advised the clockmaker, "I should not count 'One, two, three, four,' because if you do happen to think of something else you'll get wrong. You will find it ever so much safer to say, 'Tick, tack, tick, tack,' that gets to be second nature in time and I can promise you will never go wrong." So the pendulum took his advice and went on steadily ticking one tick at a time, and it is ticking yet quite cheerfully, undaunted by any rows of figures either before or behind.

THE LITTLE BELL

For centuries it has been the custom to inscribe church bells with mottoes, sometimes in English, sometimes in Latin. If you have read Longfellow's "Golden Legend" you will remember the voices of the bells as they sing. These words are all taken from the mottoes on very old bells. As a child I remember seeing the enormous new bell for St. Paul's going by road to be hung in the Cathedral, and we could read the Latin inscription that was round it. When I was on my holiday I saw the bells in the tower of a beautiful old church, and looked for their inscriptions. Some of those only commemorated the date of the founding and the name of the giver or the founder, but one inscription was in rhyme:—

Although I am both light and small,
I will be heard above you all.

I could not help thinking that motto would do for a great many people as well as for that small bell, if anyone ever thought of putting an inscription round a little girl's pinafore or a little boy's box.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Handley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

OPIUM CONFERENCE

The Hague. — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

INDIANS ARE "SOAKED."

Three Who Indulged in Fire Water Pay Dearly For Fun.

Yesterday Magistrate Edmison fined three Chemong Reserve Indians a $10.25 fine each for drunkenness. They were arrested Saturday under the influence of liquor by Constable McCue. Their names are John James David, Frank Jobe and John Irons. All pleaded guilty when arraigned at the County Police Court, and were fined the above amounts.

It Happens in Lindsay.

The Owen Sound Sun says, that the firemen of Lindsay are thinking seriously of sending in a bill to the post office department for the time and labor expended on their run in an answer to a call of fire. They turned out at the call from box 32, and after a hard run through the city streets found that there was no fire. The alarm had been sent in by a lady, trying to post a letter in the fire alarm box. The firemen think that the least she could have done, after bringing them down, was to wait, so that they might have taken the letter to the post office for her.

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Co... Who Marry in Time ..., Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew, or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of resemblance. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view ... to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, ... per, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this—that the genera... between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the marri... within certain degrees is founded on ...

Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marri... with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins."

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues ... if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

A Pointer For Pie.

Never set a pie on a flat surface when removing from the oven. Use a flatiron stand or wire teapot stand. This prevents steamed, scalded and soggy under pie crust. Three table forks placed so that the tines meet in one point in the center will let the air circulate under when one has not the stands.

Too Hoarse to Speak

"I had a patient with Quinsy that I found great difficulty in curing," states Dr. Wilson. "Every time he caught cold or got chilled he suffered intensely from sore throat, huskiness, [illegible] every season his throat and chest seemed more sensitive. This patient lived in the country, and couldn't come to the city for treatment. I concluded that the best remedy would be an honest liniment, and because of its enormous sale and well-known merit, I advised 'Nerviline.' Morning, noon, and night Nerviline was rubbed over the neck and chest, and once a day diluted with water it was used as a gargle. In a day or two my patient reported an improvement, and by continuing the treatment with Nerviline he was cured. I can recommend Nerviline for breaking up colds, for chest tightness, throat inflammation, quinsy, tonsilitis and similar conditions."

Obituary

Mr. William Croft.

There passed away on Wednesday night one of Peterborough's oldest and most esteemed citizens, in the person of Mr. William Croft, at the advanced age of 88 years. The deceased had only been ill for a few days, having taken a chill on Saturday evening last, pneumonia supervening. Mr. Croft was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to Canada in the year 1830. His father, Richard Croft, also a native of England, settled in Cobourg in the same year, first on a rented farm, and afterwards purchased a farm in the same locality where he resided till his demise. His son lived at the homestead till of age and then came to Peterborough, and from that time made his home here. He married in 1850, Jane McMann, a native of Fermanah, Ireland, who with one son and one daughter survives.

In politics, the late Mr. Croft was a staunch Conservative, and was a man whose word was as good as his bond. His son is Mr. W. H. Croft, of Toronto; his daughter, Mrs. Andrew McNeil, matron of Rockwood hospital, Kingston and one sister, Mrs. Donaldson resides in Rochester N.Y.

The funeral will take place this afternoon from the late residence at 2 o'clock and will be private, to the Little Lake cemetery. Friends are requested to omit flowers. Rev. H. J. Keith will conduct the service.

PUBLIC OPINION

cheap light and power. It will pay them to spend thousands to defeat the Hydro-Electric By-law on January 1st, as they would soon make it up by charging us high prices for light and power. These private power companies have a lot of smooth writers and speakers engaged in trying to persuade the people to leave themselves at the tender mercies of the private monopolist. This move for Hydro, cheap light and power is the most important "industrially" that Peterborough has ever undertaken. Manufacturers will locate where they can have cheap power and light. If Peterborough does not secure cheaper power and light, then it will have to give other inducements as well as exemption from taxes. Then power and light means lower taxes, cheaper living, neR industries and plenty of work at better wages.

Every voter who is solicited for a vote by any candidate at the coming election should require a pledge from him to support the Hydro-Electric. The people's scheme for power at cost and he should not be allowed to evade the question by saying that he will see what it will cost. Let the private corporation and the power grabbers get from behind the people and their natural rights—there can be no dividends to capitalists, promoters fees, etc in the costs of the Hydro-Electric scheme.

NO BINDING OBLIGATION

Electric power is used. "And Peterborough, on one of the finest power rivers in the Province, should get power at least as cheap as Welland." (Applause).

WHICH WILL YOU HAVE.

The hon. gentleman was apparently quite confident that the Commission could get whatever power they wanted, and created quite a sensation when he asserted—

"We have the right to expropriate. If you want the Otonabee Power Co's plant vote for the by-law on Monday and we'll get it for you."

"If you want the Auburn Power Co's plant, vote for the by-law on Monday and you may have it."

"Or if you want the whole electric system in the Trent district, vote for the by-law on Monday, and we'll get it for you."

Continuing, he said, the Hydro-Electric system is controlled by the finest engineers on the continent; we father the whole scheme, and our policy is that power must be a success from generator to consumer. Even the Toronto Globe is fair in its criticism of us when it said, "Had not one horse power been transmitted over its lines the expenditure of four millions of dollars on the Hydro-Electric system would have been justifiable in the reduction of rates resulting from its installation."

TO SOLVE THE QUESTION.

The question of power at cost for Peterborough may now be readily solved, continued the distinguished visitor. "We asked from the Dominion Government for dams 4 and 8, and a week ago received in reply from the Cabinet that we could not only have those dams, but No. 5 dam also should we approve of it as a profitable investment." (Cheers.) "Again, the Seymour Power people have approached me with several offers, and the only one I could recommend is that they are ready to sell out. One of the directors in Montreal (representing the bondholders) has proposed that I investigate their whole system with a view to purchasing the same. And if such investigation pointed to the conclusion that the purchase of the whole Trent District electric interests would be a good investment the Government would advance the money, even up to eight millions." (Applause.)

NOT A MONEY BY-LAW.

In conclusion the speaker asserted that the by-law before the people has absolutely no binding effect whatever; it is, in fact, merely a referendum, and if answered in the affirmative, then before any contract is made with the Commission a money by-law must be submitted the Council seeking permission to issue debentures to raise money with which to purchase a power distributing system. "And I'll give you my pledge, in writing, that the Hydro-Electric Commission will make no contract with the City Council until such a by-law is endorsed by the ratepayers. We are merely at this juncture asking an expression of the people's opinion as to if they prefer to be partners with the Hydro-Electric Commission and get power at cost, or customers of the electrical merger in the Trent district.

In reply to a question of the Hydro-Electric proposition would not have a tendency to increase taxes, the hon. gentleman said, "positively no! In Berlin it effected a profit of $20,000 which was handed over to the city to reduce its tax rate." (Applause). "By dealing with the Commission you save money instead of handing it over to a merger with which to pay large dividends."

On motion of Mr. W. H. Moore, seconded by Ald. Morgan, the Hon. Adam Beck was tendered a unanimous vote of thanks, followed by three hearty cheers.

The general concessions of opinion seemed to be that the Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission had cleared the atmosphere of all doubt on the question of the by-law under consideration, and convinced all with in hearing of his voice that a money by-law MUST be first submitted to the people before any contract for power is signed by the City Council.

LORDS DISCUSS PERSIAN TROUBLE

Lord Curzon Makes Enquiry and Lord Morley Says Difficulty Will Soon Be Settled. Satisfactorily.

(Publishers Press News Service)

London — In the House of Lords Lord Curzon raised the Persian question and inquired as to the Government's policy. He asked for the papers referring to Russia's first ultimatum, with regard to which Great Britain had advised Persia to comply. He thought that the advice was unpalatable but wise. With regard to the second ultimatum, there was evidence that Mr. Shuster had shown an unfortunate lack of acquaintance with diplomatic usage and language, but Lord Curzon wanted to know if Mr. Shuster's action was really an excuse for an armed occupation on the part of Russia. The Government, he said, could not wash its hands of all responsibility for the second ultimatum. He foresaw that an administrative partition would inevitably proceed to a political partition, and then to a geographical one.

Lord Morley said that the trouble of Persia arose not out of the Anglo-Russian agreement, but from the very nature of the experiment that was being tried in Persia. With regard to Shuster, he agreed with Lord Curzon that Mr. Shuster certainly had shown a want of tact. He ignored the position of the indisputable claim of Russia and Great Britain. Russia's object, he said, was the establishment of a normal and stable relations with Persia, the removal of elements of discord. Russia intended further proposals to that end, though she did not aim at a violation of Persia's integrity and independence.

"She assured us categorically," said Lord Morley, "that such measures as had been taken were purely provisional."

EMPRESS WON BY BOY'S PLAYING

EFREM ZIMBALIST

St. Petersburg. — The empress of Russia liked the violin playing of the boy, Efrem Zimbalist, so that she had him excused from military duty so he could study. When he graduated his diploma was marked "Incomparable." Unlike most foreign musicians his hair is short. He is in America giving concerts.

Changing Habits in Brussels.

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought nothing of staying until until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon in mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

PILGRIMS TO MECCA

Of All the Millions Who Visit Mecca Not a Score of Christians are known to Come Out of the Sacred City Alive.

Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth, Mecca each year has visitors in such number that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims, who at the cost of incredible pains annually crowd into its confines. This city is the oldest place of resort in existence, yet of all the millions who have visited it not a score of Christians are known to have come out alive. No flag of citizenship would save a white life were he known to be a Christian within the sacred precincts of the city, where the Prophet himself decreed that no unbeliever should set foot. Of the 2,000,000 Mussulmans in the world only 15,500,000 live under the Turkish flag, yet most of them acknowledge the Sultan of Turkey as their caliph, the successor of the Prophet. As Mohammed unerringly foresaw, the Mecca pilgrimage binds together his disciples into a unity which could be effected in no other way. "Mecca," says Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, of Arabia, "has become the religious capital and the centre of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race."

FEWER INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

Ninety-five fatal and one hundred and ninety-one serious injuries to workpeople were reported to the Department of Labour during November. The record is considerably more favourable than that of the preceeding month or that of the same month last year. In October there were 344 accidents, fatal and non-fatal, and in November 1910, there were 407. The chief accident during the month was the foundering of the schooner Antigua off St. Martin's River in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, when the captain and eleven sailors were drowned. There were eleven killed in the railway service, eleven in the agricultural pursuits and twelve among unskilled labourers. The largest number of non-fatal accidents occurred in the metal trades, namely, forty-five, but the twenty-three non-fatal accidents reported in the railway service were of a more serious character.

NEW UNION'S POPULATION.

The population of the South African Union, according to the preliminary returns issued of the census taken May 7, 1911, is 5,958,490. Of this total 1,278,025 are European or white and 4,680,474 African or Asiatic. The population by provinces are: Cape of Good Hope, 583,177 white and 1,979,847 Asiatic; Natal, 98,582 white and 1,093,376; all others Transvaal, 420,891 white and 1,255,780 all others; Orange Free State, 175,435 white and 351,471 all others; The increase since 1904 is 782,675 or 15 per cent., the white population having increased by 161,219 or 14 per cent., and the colored population by 621,456 or 15 per cent.

VOTE FOR

LANGFORD, Jr.

FOR NORTH WARD.

To the Ratepayers,—

I ask your support for election to the Council of 1912, I am in favor of the Hydro-Electric By-law, but will support only such proposition as will give the city the lowest possible rates for power and light.

I will be watchful of the city's interests and endeavour to have its affairs administered economically, consistent with progress of the city.

Your very respectfully,

IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most advantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season. Iremain.

Yours truly,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Alderman in the Centre Ward, for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT

JOS. R. METHERAL

IN CENTRE WARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have been entrusted with your confidence for the past three years and my record stands open before you. It may show no extraordinary ability, but an endeavour to be straight-forward and honest in all dealing. I have not been swayed by cliques or outside influences, but voted and worked at all times in the interests of the ratepayers in general and will continue to do so in the future, if re-elected. I would advise the electors to vote for the Hydro-Electric Commission Power By-law. I firmly believe that the Hydro-Electric Commission will give Peterborough power at rates considerably reduced from those at present in force, but I pledge myself that no contract for power either with the Hydro-Electric Commission or private corporation shall be signed by the City Council without a By-law to that effect being submitted to the ratepayers.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

JOS. R. METHERAL.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN J. J. DUFFUS

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Ratepayers of the West Ward and Peterborough Citizens in general:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having the honor of being duly nominated and urged by a large number of representative citizens to be a candidate in the West Ward. I have decided to again enter the Aldermanic field. As it will be impossible for me to interview each voter, I hereby most respectfully solicit you support and influence to assure my election.

If you so honor me I will pledge myself to do my utmost to assist in executing the city's business in a prudent and business like manner.

New industries, to my mind, is the one essential toward the future growth and success of our city, and I am in favor of a vigorous campaign to obtain cheap power and light, and also to induce the Radial Railway Co. to make extensive extensions. I would like to see the centre of our city with a permanent roadway.

I am opposed to the policy of increasing a man's taxes every time he makes improvements and minor extensions, and would support a measure to eliminate this condition of affairs.

Wishing all a bright and prosperous New Year.

Yours very respectfully,

JOS. J. DUFFUS.

VOTE FOR

ALDERMAN JAS. EDGAR

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Electors of the West Ward, City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated as a candidate for Alderman from the West Ward, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge myself to legislate for economic government in broad lines, and to advocate the permanent improvement of highways, and the provision of additional bridge connection with East and West City at a point most advantageous to the community as a whole. As to power for municipal purposes, I will only endorse the cheapest service, irrespective of the source from whence it comes; and will insist that any contract for the same shall be first submitted to the ratepayers before being finally passed by the City Council.

With best wishes for the New Year, believe me to remain.

Yours truly,

JAMES EDGAR.

VOTE FOR

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's general welfare, and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial permanent improvements—especially in the matter of roadbeds—and power at cost, providing that cost be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests particularly where the expenditure of large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,

W. J. JOHNSTON.

WHOLE BLOCK AFIRE SCARES HUNTSVILLE

Inmates of House Rescued With Difficulty, Leading Hotel in Flames

BIG LOSS IN PROPERTY

Huntsville, Ont., Dec. 29.—Huntsville was visited to-day with the most serious fire experienced in years. About 7.45 o'clock a fire started in the rear of M. Wardell and Sons' store, and within fifteen minutes the whole block was in flames. The efforts of the firemen were futile to save the Wardens' stock and household furniture, and the greatest difficulty was experienced in getting the inmates of the house to a place of safety.

Mrs. Wardell and others members of the family were removed from the upper windows in their night robes.

For a time it was feared that the Kent House would go. The fire spread throughout the upper portion of the building. The damage from fire and water in the Kent House will amount to thousands of dollars. The firemen worked with wonderful heroism and tenacity.

The loss is divided among anumber of the leading insurance companies.

NATIONALIST BANQUET OFF; IS MR. BOURASSA ISOLATED?

For the Present, Nationalist Leader Has Postponed Annual Banquet—Lavergne is Sick, But Another Cause is Refusal of Certain M. P.'s to Attend

(Toronto Star)

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The isolation of M. Henri Bourassa, leader of the Nationalist party, is almost complete. His "ami vaillant," Armand Lavergne, has been stricken with appendicitis, and his other old friends who have found their reward in office now stand aloof from him and refuse to identify themselves openly with the cause. M. Bourassa announced in yesterday's issue of Le Devoir that the annual banquet to celebrate the birth of the Nationalist organ two years ago, which had been set for January 8, had been postponed sine die." The sickness of his gallant friend, Armand Lavergne, is given as the cause for the "adjournment," but it is stated on good authority that this is by no means the only cause. It is pointed out that certain men formerly prominent in the Nationalist cause, but now occupying the treasury benches of the new Government, have refused to attend the banquet for fear of compromising themselves, and that many other who attended the former celebration had also decided not to attend this year's affair.

NOT EASILY STIFLED.

Mr. Bourassa further states that the re-opening of Parliament on January 10th hinders him from fixing a date for the banquet. "But," says he, "there will certainly present itself an occasion upon which we can say and do those things which we have projected. The Nationalist idea is not one of those which is easily stifled."

The somewhat significant article appearing in Le Devoir which announced the postponement is freely translated as follows:—"In inviting our friends to remain around the banquet table, we think of something else than to celebrate with wine and good cheer the election success to which Le Devoir and the Nationalists have largely contributed. We do not even think that the first purpose is to celebrate the second anniversary of the birth of Le Devoir, whose death was predicted within six months by so manies and so many lukewarm friends. We wish above all to define and reaffirm anew the principles and raison d'etre of the Nationalist movement, of which Le Devoir is but one of the moving forces. We wish to exhort our true friends and our confirmed adherents to close up their ranks, to continue to look upward, to remain in the right path, and to guard themselves from the temptation of the success with the same resolution which they formerly showed in discouragement, defeat and isolation.

LAVERGNE'S RADIANT YOUTH

"In a celebration of this kind the place of Armand Lavergne cannot be left vacant, nor can it be filled by another while he himself lives, just as in the family feast nothing can replace his joyous smile and the flash of his young radiant youth."

For these reasons, Mr. Bourassa states that the celebration has been postponed.

As a matter of fact the "ipolation" which the Nationalist leader refers to as a thing of the past seems to have once more settled down upon this position.

Appeals towards the purchase of $3 tickets for the banquet before it was decided to postpone it met with little response. The spirit of enthusiasm was marked preparation for the last banquet has been replaced by one of disinterested aloofness on the part of past adherents. In fact, lack of support of the project is rumored to have been one of the chief causes for the postponement.

ISOLATION MORE COMPLETE.

Whether the Nationalst party will survive this "isolation" is a matter for conjecture, but it seems probable that that isolation will become more complete as the days go by. Rumor has it at the capital that at an early date the political aspirations of Mr. Bourassa will to a certain extent be satisfied by an appointment in the gift of the Government, that Lavergne will similarly be provided for, and that Mr. Monk will go on the bench. All the Nationalists in the House have furnished biographical notes to the Parliamentary Guide, in which they call themselves Conservatives.

IT SEEMS STRANGE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It seems unprecedented that W. G. Morrow should now aspire to be Alderman, after holding the Mayor's chair for two years—the first year by the expression of the people, and the second year the same courtesy as was accorded to his predecessors, namely, acclamation.

It seems strange that he should encroach upon the aspirations of the citizens who wish to commence at the bottom of the ladder.

Yours truly,
Citizen.

A SAD BLUNDER

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your issue of Friday contains a letter signed "West Ward," in which the writer refers to "Mr. Hill" a candidate for Aldermanic honors. In his communication the writer makes an excusable, but still sad blunder. He confuses the names of Mr. W. H. and Cyril Hill. The probable coming Alderman IS an insurance agent, but is not Mr. William Hill of the School Board. Incidentally, I will add that the electorate of Peterborough would act wisely should they elect Mr. Cyril Hill to the Council, and infuse a little new, vigorous and business-like blood into the semi-morbid material that seems to stagnate in the veins of our civic Council.

Centre Ward.

NOT A CANDIDATE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A correspondent of the city papers has criticised me because he says I am a candidate for membership of the City Council, while I am a Water Commissioner and a member of the Board of Education. The correspondent appears to have been misled by a similarity of names and occupation. The gentleman who is a candidat) in the West Ward for the office of Alderman is Mr. H. Cyril Hill, and I am not a candidate at this election in any ward for any position except that of a member of the Board of Education, and I have been re-elected by acclamation. The people of Peterborough have for a number of years given me a seat on the Board of Education, and I have through their votes been a Water Commissioner since the waterworks system was taken over by the city, and I am grateful to them for these manifestations of their confidence, but I am not trying to trespass on their good nature by also asking for a seat in the City Council. As a member of the Board of Education, I shall continue to serve the people on that Board to the best of my ability, but I have no desire at this time to enter the City Council and am not a candidate for a seat in that body.

FOUR DETECTIVES AT WORK ON OLD CRIME.

The Thiel Agency Is Trying to Unravel the Barton Mystery—Also the Bahren Murder.

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 29.—Crown Attorney Washington made a rather peculiar statement to-day that four Thiel detectives are at work here trying to clear up the old Barton murder mystery, in which an unknown woman was shot and her body found later in a hickory grove on the mountain and that Pinkerton detectives are working on the Barron murder, which occurred in 1903. In October of that year Policeman James Barron, while looking for alleged robbers near a house on Catharine St., was shot.

Mr. Washington says he knows nothing about any attempt to re-open the Kinrade case.

NEW STAMPS READY MONDAY

The Maple Leaves Stand Out More Prominently Gracefully Presenting Canada's National Emblem.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—Early in the New Year the first instalment of the King George V. postage stamp will be on sale. The new stamp, which in color and denominations will be the same as those of the current series, have for their central and dominant feature a faithful portrait of his Majesty in the uniform of an admiral, thus typifying the sailor-King. At the top and above the head of the King are found the crowns, one at each side, emblematic of the Empire. Just below the portrait, and forming a base for the oval frame containing the King's head, are two supporting branches of maple leaves, (more prominent than in either the present or previous stamp issue) and gracefully presenting Canada's national emblem.

The design which thus so fitly symbolizes the Empire and Canada was in due course submitted to his Majesty the King, who, as is well known is one of the most discriminating of judges in such matters, and received his ready approval, so that the new stamps, in addition to the departmental authority for their issue have the privilege of royal sanction.

WHAT POWER COSTS OTHER MUNICIPALITIES

If anyone in Peterborough imagines that the Hydro-Electric Commission is furnishing power to manufacturers in Western Ontario cities at cheaper rates than manufacturers are paying in Peterborough, they are mistaken.

The following figures show the amount of power used and the rates charged the various municipalities, last August, in the Hydro-Electric district. These rates are the prices paid by the municipalities to the Commission and do not include the cost of distribution or maintenance of distributing systems.

TOWN OR CITY	Commission Now Charging Per H.P. Per Year
Toronto	$18.10
London	28.00
Guelph	25.00
Stratford	32.00
St. Thomas	32.00
Woodstock	26.00
Berlin	25.00
Hespeler	26.00
Preston	25.00
New Hamburg	32.00
Ingersol	28.00
Dundas	17.00
Hamilton	17.92

These quotations are official and were supplied by the officials of the respective towns and cities.

The rate Peterborough manufacturers pay at their plants is only $20.00. The cost of transmission throughout the city would be $5.00 per h.p., so that this amount should be added to the prices quoted above. It can be seen, therefore, that Peterborough is obtaining power at reasonable rates without plunging the city into any debt.

Look Before You Leap

THE CITY OF TORONTO established a municipal electric light system and told the ratepayers it would cost $2,250,000.00. They have spent already $2,750,000.00 and are asking the ratepayers to vote $2,200,000.00 and they state it will take a further sum of $1,000,000.00 to complete the scheme, making a total of $5,450,000.00 on an original estimate of $2,250,000.00, just about double the original amount.

THE CITY OF LONDON established a municipal lighting system and asked the ratepayers for $235,000.00. They have spent up to date, $354,585.03.

Is it wise for the ratepayers to vote in favor of a by-law such as is being put before the people on the first of January, without knowing what the actual cost is going to be? Would it not be much better to turn down the present by-law, and insist on the City Council allowing you to vote on a by-law attached to which is an estimate of the amount which you are going to add to the city debt?

EX-ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON ON THE POWER BY-LAW

Mr. W. J. Johnston, a candidate in the North Ward for civic honors, and an ex-Alderman of many years' experience, is astounded that an intelligent electorate should question for one moment the limited scope of the power by-law to be voted on next Monday. It is merely a referendum, and he, of the people on the question of whether the city shall consider—not accept—Hydro-Electric power or not. Under the Municipal Act, as continued, no municipality has the power to enter into any project involving the expenditure of money to be acquired by the issuing of debentures without first getting the ratepayers' consent. It would not have needed, he offered, the assurance of the Hon. Adam Beck that the people would have a voice in the making of any contract with the Commission for power. Had it not been for the skilful manipulation of legal technicalities by agents of power interests. The whole agitation, he characterized, as a tempest in a teapot created with a view of diverting attention from the real issues at stake to a question of "possibilities" that really do not exist. He had had considerable experience on Peterborough's Council Board, and wished to assure his fellow citizens that the only way any Council had of raising money for Hydro-Electric contract purposes is to pass a by-law authorizing the issuing of debentures in two readings, and then send it to the people for their endorsation. Without the people's endorsation such a measure cannot be passed in the third and final reading. And the by-law before the people is simply asking for the people's opinion as to whether they want Hydro-Electric power or not, and if they are prepared to pass on a subsequent by-law authorizing a contract with the Government for such power, on estimated prices to be then submitted. Ex-Alderman Johnston firmly believes in Hydro-Electric power, and hopes for a big majority in favor of the referendum by-law on Monday.

The foregoing is the result of an interview with Ex-Ald. Johnston yesterday afternoon.

GORDON IN FAVOR OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Editor Morning Times.

Sir.—There is no truth in the rumor that I am the Power Companies' candidate. The Hydro-Electric By-law on Monday should be supported, and I am in favor of it. I will pledge myself if elected not to enter into any contract, without another by-law being favorably voted on by the ratepayers authorizing the City Council to execute a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Yours truly,

TWO CHILDREN DIED IN AN ALBERTA FIRE

Homestead Destroyed Near Red Deer, and Children Perished

FARMER LOSES HIS LIFE

Red Deer, Alta., Dec. 29.—Two children, eleven and three years of age, the family of a homesteader, named Brayden, were burned to death on Christmas Eve at Quill Lake, about 45 miles east of here.

HEROIC FARMER BURNED.

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 29.—A. A. Chapman, a prominent farmer, aged about 40 years, residing ten miles from Brockville, in the township of Elizabethtown, was burned to death this morning while attempting to rescue a team of horses from his barns which caught fire by a spark from the chimney of an adjoining dwelling. It is supposed he was overcome by smoke. The charred body was found two hours after in the ruins. Chapman leaves a widow but no children. A coroner has gone from Brockville to conduct an inquest if necessary.

HOW LOCAL OPTION HAS KILLED ORILLIA

By HIS WORSHIP MAYOR FROST.

The statement that local option has injured Orillia and that the town is "all gone to pieces" is the exact opposite of the truth, as a few facts will demonstrate.

When local option came into force four years ago our population was 5,571; to-day it is 6,885. Nearly two hundred houses have been built in town this year. Builders are still busy laying foundations and work will be pushed on straight through the winter in spite of the hard frost and deep snow.

Thirteen new stores have been opened on our main street since local option came into force, and several small stores are going up in the outskirts. There is not one empty store in town. Some of these stores are converted hotels; some entirely new buildings. One hotel under license paid $1,400 per annum in rent; the same property made into stores and rented under local option, pays $2,300. The assessed value of hotel property affected by local option has gone up twenty per cent. Building lots have increased from twenty-five to one hundred per cent. during the past year.

Despite the fact that the crops in this district were last year the poorest in many years Orillia's business is first-class. Our Customs revenue and postal returns lead all towns of like class in the Province, and the officials tell me that this year's figures will beat every past record.

Orillia killed by local option! I do not know of a town in Canada enjoying greater prosperity or making a more solid and healthy growth. The municipality owns a power plant which has cost in the neighborhood of $325,000 and is embarking on a further expenditure of $160,000 for its enlargement; $80,000 of this amount was voted this year and the work is in progress. The demands for light and power are so great that our plant has been taxed to its utmost capacity and we have had to strain every effort to keep up the service.

As to hotel accommodation, while we have fewer hotels, the accommodation given the travelling public is better than it ever was under license. Some of the hotels of former days scarcely deserved the name.

As to drunkenness, it is a rare thing to see a drunken man on our streets. Some come in from outside places, and occasionally one sees the effect of bottle-drinking, but the percentage is very small. We have our police force down to two men—one day man and one night man. The chief also collects taxes and performs a great many other duties. The town is sober, clean and law-abiding. A striking fact is that for two years we have had hundreds of foreign navvies engaged in the town and neighborhood in railway construction, and not one of the hundreds has appeared in our police court for any cause whatsoever. Would this have been true under license? Our Police Magistrate was appointed some years ago at a salary of $600. Under the Statute he is entitled to $1,000, but under local option his duties have been so light that he says he is ashamed to ask for the increased amount.

The dispensing of charity by the municipality is now confined to cases of sickness, old age, or misfortune. The neglect of husbands and wage-earners to provide for their families has almost entirely disappeared. I could name a number of men who under license were of little help to their families or to the community who are now useful citizens.

Orillia is fast becoming a manufacturing centre, and every manufacturer in town has recently signed a statement fully endorsing and testifying to the general good effect of local option. The manager of a large industry just locating here has publicly stated, that one of the inducements this town offered was its reputation as the "model dry town of Canada," all of which goes to prove that given a fair chance and decent enforcement local option should prove a blessing to any community.

(Signed) W. S. FROST,
Orillia, Dec. 28, 1911. Mayor.

STRATTON'S COACHMAN SUES RICHARD CROKER

Asks $100,000 for Alienation of the Affections of His Wife

GIRL WAS MISS CROKER

New York, Dec. 29.—Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, and his sons, Richard Croker, Jr., and Howard Croker, were made joint defendants in a civil action begun yesterday by John J. Breen to recover $100,000.

Breen was married to Miss Ethel J. Croker, daughter of the former leader, on April 23, 1910, and alleges that his wife's affections were alienated by Croker and his two sons. Breen declares in his complaint that he and his wife lived peaceably, happily and harmoniously together until the defendants influenced and induced his wife to leave him.

Breen was a teacher of horsemanship when he and Miss Croker were married by a Justice of the Peace on Hoboken, N.J. The family of the bride were much displeased.

Breen has since his marriage been horse trainer for Hon. J. R. Stratton, of Peterborough, Ont.

FOUND IN SUNDAY SCHOOL SHOT DEAD.

Joseph Rogers Went to Prayer Meeting, Was Found the Next Day—His Mind Was Not Right.

Woodstock, Dec. 29.—With a bullet hole through his head and evidently dead for some hours, the body of Joseph Rogers was found yesterday afternoon in the Sunday school room of the Dundas street Methodist church. The body was discovered when a man from a local store went to the church to measure for a carpet. Rogers was lying on the platform, with his coat neatly folded under his head, a bullet wound in his brain, and a 32-calibre Smith and Wesson revolver clenched in his hand.

Rogers, who was a young married man, between 30 and 40 years of age, had not been living with his wife for some months past. He attended the prayer meeting at the Dundas street church Wednesday evening. He had not been quite in his right mind for some time.

FEWER INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

Ninety-five fatal and one hundred and ninety-one serious injuries to workpeople were reported to the Department of Labour during November. The record is considerably more favourable than that of the preceding month or that of the same month last year. In October there were 344 accidents, fatal and non-fatal, and in November 1910, there were 407. The chief accident during the month was the foundering of the schooner Antigua off St. Martin's River in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, when the captain and eleven sailors were drowned. There were eleven killed in the railway service, eleven in the agricultural pursuits and twelve among unskilled labourers. The largest number of non-fatal accidents occurred in the metal trades, namely, forty-five, but the twenty-three non-fatal accidents reported in the railway service were of a more serious character.

UNSINKABLE SHIPS

New Invention For Forcing Water Out of a Ship by Compressed Air, Permitting the Holes to be Repaired from Within.

If all that is claimed for the idea proves correct there will be a revolution in the work of ship-saving in the near future. Indeed, it promises to revolutionize naval warfare, for it is claimed for this new invention that ships can be kept afloat even after being rammed. In fact, they can be made practically unsinkable. The invention is the outcome of an idea for forcing water out of a ship by compressed air, thus permitting the holes to be repaired from within. The idea is a very simple one, and was suggested to Commander Marsh, of the battleship North Carolina, lying off New York, by Mr. Witherspoon, the engineer engaged in the construction of the New York railway tubes under the Hudson River.

All the experiments tried proved entirely successful. The sea-cocks were opened on the Carolina and water was permitted to fill one of the watertight compartments. Compressed air at a pressure of twelve pounds to the square inch was then forced into the compartment through a small opening. In ten minutes all the water was driven back into the river. Simultaneously with the twelve-pound pressure into the waterlogged compartment compressed air at seven pounds pressure was driven into all the surrounding compartments and a three-pound pressure into the next series of compartments, this being necessary to prevent the pressure on the original compartment buckling the sides and the deck.

Commander Marsh is most enthusiastic regarding the idea. He points out that the invention now enables them to do repairs to the hull below water-line from the inside, either after collision or during a naval battle. "Ships," he says, "are now for the first time practically unsinkable, for the water-tight compartments alone will not keep a ship afloat indefinitely. There is always a leak somewhere. All that is necessary," he continues, "is to install a system of pipes and gauges and attach them to the compressed air plant. Every warship already has such a plant for the purpose of blowing off poisonous and explosive gases, which can be utilized for driving out the water. The whole cost for a battleship is about $400. How is that for a low insurance premium against the sinking of a battleship worth [illegible]"

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing, Empires are being broken up, immemorial systems are passing away, struggles are threatening that will involve half the human race.

Treasure in Stamps.

A lady living in Sydney for many years has hoarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition, and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

Photographs on Finger-Nails.

One of the latest fads in Germany is the mounting of photographs on the finger-nails, the idea growing out of the whim of a cousin of the Kaiser, who had an enamelled portrait of her fiancée worked on the nail of her little finger. This portrait was a work of art and cost $75, but now the fashionable manicures of Berlin have taken up the idea in the photograph form. The picture is rendered waterproof by coating it over with a sheliac-like substance burned upon the nail. It is said that a photograph so mounted will last about four months without renewal.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarasc, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

FORTUNE FROM A SHOVEL

The Shovel Used by Navvies on Canadian Road Making an Invention of a Labourer in England.

The simplest labour-saving device may quite possibly be worth a fortune. Eighty-nine years ago a number of men were at work on the road-bed of a line of railway in course of construction between Birmingham and Manchester, England. They were getting through a hill and moving the material by loosening it with picks, shovelling it into barrows, and wheeling it away. The shovels they were using were known as Irish shovels, with a square-cornered blade about 15 in. long. The work progressed but slowly, and the sub-contractor in charge rebuked his workmen for not making quicker progress. One of them replied that if he would grind off the corners of the shovels it would be easier to get them into the earth, and consequently they would be able to work more quickly.

The contractor ridiculed the idea, which he considered a piece of insolence on the part of the workman, but the navvy was quite in earnest and not easily discouraged. When the work was completed he discussed the matter with a friend of his at Sheffield, who persuaded an ironmonger he knew to make a dozen or so as an experiment. The tools were offered to a large contractor, who promised to let some of his men use the new shovels and report results.

About a week afterwards the contractor returned with the information that his men were fairly quarrelling as to who should use the new tools, one arriving to work a quarter of an hour before time in order to be there first when the tool-box was opened. The navvy's suggestion had proved a good one, a patent was secured, and an agreement made between the navvy, the manufacturer, and the contractor. When the navvy died he left a fortune of over $325,000 the proceeds from royalties on the manufacture of shovels under his patent.

FAMOUS SNUFF-TAKERS

The eighteenth century was the age of snuff-taking "par excellence." The custom was general among all classes of people. It was an act of politeness for well-bred men to offer their snuff-boxes to well-bred women. Women themselves carried their own boxes, and interchanged pinches with the gentlemen and in Canada it was fashionable amongst the officials.

At fashionable dinner-parties after the cloth was removed snuff-boxes were passed around. Pope and Bolingbroke, Swift and Congreve, Addison and Steele, all indulged in the pleasure of snuff. Dr. Johnson carried his snuff in the capacious pockets of his waistcoat, and would convey it to his nose without stint. He could not abide the narrow confines of a box. Frederick the Great resembled him in this respect. Both Napoleon and Wellington were prodigious snuff-takers, but Washington indulged only moderately. Jefferson was fond of snuff, as his waistcoat and frill often showed. Henry Clay was another famous snuff-taker, and often needed the stimulus of a pinch when making a speech.

Judge Got the Baby.

A few years ago an Iowa county court judge tried to imitate King Solomon in his well-known decision respecting the child that was claimed by two women. In the Iowa Court two women claimed to be the mother of a child that was produced before the judge. Thinking that history might repeat itself, the judge asked for the infant. Then, opening his knife, he announced his intention of cutting the child in half. Whereupon one of the mothers exclaimed, "Oh, no! If it comes to that you may keep the child yourself," and both women left the court.

"It appears to me that Solomon was very over-rated man," murmured the judge.

A Thought for To-day

As in that which we name Nature, so in Nature itself: he that breaks the physical law is guilty of all. The whole universe, as it were, takes up arms against him, and all Nature, with her numberless and unseen powers is ready to average herself upon him, and on his children after him, he knows not when nor where. He, on the other hand, who obeys the law of Nature with his whole heart and mind, will find all things working together to him for good. He is helped and befriended alike by the sun above his head and the dust beneath his feet: because he is obeying the will and mind of Him who made sun, and dust, and all things: and who has given them a law which cannot be broken.—Kingsley.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of attack.

POPULAR SONGS

Romantic Origin of Some Well Known Songs — How "Killarney" and "The Star Spangled Banner" Were Composed.

Composers tell many a curious and romantic story of the birth of songs which have become world-famous; and few of them are more remarkable than those told by Signor Tito Mattei.

"Several of my best songs," he says, "have come to my mind whilst idly strumming with my fingers on a window-pane or table; and my well-known 'Hear the Wild Winds Blow' was written when I was having an oyster supper."

"Dear Heart" had an equally curious origin. One night when the Signor went to see his publisher, Mr. Keppel, the latter produced a sheet of paper, saying, "Here are some pretty words; what do you think of them?" The composer glanced at the manuscript and, walking to the piano, instantly played the four last line of the air which has since been sung all the world over. The same evening the song was complete, and the following morning Mr. Keppel and the Signor were drinking to its success in "repeated glasses of champagne."

The sweet and universally popular "In Old Madrid" came to Mr H. Trotere one evening as he was returning home from the Theatre. He had no paper on which to jot it down, nor had the publican into whose house he rushed any to offer him. But, catching sight of some biscuit-bags, he seized one, and in a few moments the famous melody was written down.

"Go to Sea" was composed within a quarter of an hour was jotted down "Ashore" was written by Mr. Clifton Bingham and set to music by Mr. Trotère after lunching at Restaurant; and "The Brow of the Hill" eclipsed even these marvellous records, for Mr. Trotère composed the melody, wrote a letter, and ran 400 yards to catch the post, all within eight minutes!

Of "Killarney" a strange story is told. One day Boucicault took the words of the song to Balfe. Mrs. Balfe took them upstairs to her husband, who, after glancing through them, sat down to the piano. Scarcely had his wife left the room when the composer excitedly called her back. "I have done the song," he exclaimed. "It is sweet. Tell Boucicault to come and hear it."

It was while dreaming the time away in his yacht, that Michael Maybrick's great song, "The Holy City," came to him in a flood of inspiration. Hastily writing down the voice part, he called his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Maybrick, to the cabin and asked her to sing it while he extemporized an accompaniment; and within half an hour of reading Mr Weatherley's words the glorious song was sung by the woman who, but little later, was to make the world ring with her name.

In the war of 1812 Francis Scott ey wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner" on seeing the flag floating over Fort McHenry. When he returned to his division, we are told, he read it aloud once, twice, three times, until the entire division seemed electrified by its pathetic eloquence. An idea seized Ferdinand Durang. Hunting up a volume of flute music, he impatiently whistled snatches of tune after tune as they caught his eye. Note after note fell from his puckered lips until, with a leap and a shout, he exclaimed, "Boys, I've got it!" and there rang out for the first time the song of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

WHEN BIRDS BREED

Few Experts Can Really Tell When Birds Breed for Even When in Captivity They Baffle Those In Charge.

Although a thousand and one ornithological volumes have been written, it is a curious fact that not a scrap of information is to be found in any of them regarding the ages at which different species of birds breed in the wild state. This discovery has been made by a writer who suggests that as, in most cases, birds breed as a matter of course in their second season, writers have assumed that there is nothing to be said on the subject.

Dr. Seth Smith, who is in charge of the birds at the Zoological Gardens, London, says that in all probability many of the parrots do not breed till they are three or four years old — that is to say, till their fourth or fifth season. Geese, however, according to the same authority, are an exception to this generalization, as, in common with chickens and some of the pheasants, they breed in their second season. Possibly, as regards geese, this applies only to domesticated breeds.

Pigeons and the majority of game-birds attain their full plumage in the first summer, and the presumption accordingly is that they breed in their second season. That this is the case with partridges is rendered evident by the fact that in their second season, all the birds with pale bills, a few accidental exceptions, are paired.

PANTING FOR THE IDEALISTIC

Celebrated Suffragist Says Women Were Pants First and Are Going To Wear Them Again. And Why Not?

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — "Because skirts are unhealthy, hideous and immoral. Unhealthy because they collect germs. Hideous because they take the name of nature in vain. Immoral because they leave the feminine figure to the imagination."

That's why they're going to wear pants.

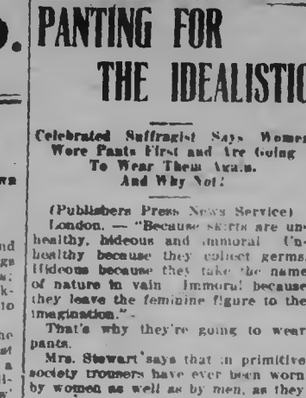
Mrs. Stewart says that in primitive society trousers have ever been worn by women as well as by men, as they are worn today in some parts of the Orient, and she prophesies that there will come a time when they will be worn thus again — when woman will shake off her entrammeling skirts and step forth again with limbs as free from shackles as those of Artemis herself.

Of course the indictment is true. Skirts ARE "unhealthy, hideous and immoral." They DO take the name of nature in vain. They are inexpressibly graceless — ugly in the full sense of the word.

BUT — and here is a grim impasse that the anti-skirt-pro-pants reformers must face:

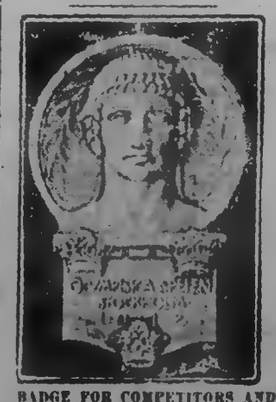
SO ARE PANTS!

If the ladies must get rid of skirts — as perhaps they should, and as no doubt they will sometime — may they garb themselves in some garment more pleasing to the eyes than this unspeakable brace of cylinders we've gone and got OUR legs tangled in.



THE IDEAL DRESS

May they don something inherently graceful, something suggestive of the lithe, chaste beauty of Diana, something that the modistes of Paris can't control, something everlastingly beautiful that shall be to us a joy forever, as the human form, divine that it drapes is a joy forever.



BADGE FOR COMPETITORS AND OFFICIALS AT STOCKHOLM OLYMPIC GAMES.

OLYMPIC PROGRAM BRINGS SURPRISE

Stockholm. — Surprises for athletes are found in the Olympic games program for next spring. The first is a 200-mile bicycle race, the only wheeling event listed. The short distance races expected are conspicuous by their absence. The 200 mile event will be a road race around Lake Malaren open to teams.

The football competition is limited to the Association game and teams affiliated with the International Football Federation.

The track and field contests, under the head of athletics, consist of the 100, 200, 400, 800, 1500, 5000 and 10,000 metres flat races, the marathon, 110 metre hurdle, running and standing high and broad jumps, hop, step and jump, pole vault, throwing javelin (right and left hand) throwing hammer and two all-round events; the pentathlon and decathlon, the former consisting of five events and the latter of 10.

Team competition consists of 400, 1600 and 3000 metre relay races and a tug of war between teams of eight. Combined team and individual competition consists of a cross country race 8000 metres. The bicycle race, 200 miles, is also a combined team and individual affair.

WOMAN DEALS IN XMAS TREES

Woman Builds Up Fine Business as a Dealer in Christmas Trees From Small Beginnings. With Hard Work.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Cincinnati. — Miss Mildred Brandon of Cincinnati is a wholesale dealer in Christmas trees. Every recurring holiday season carloads of her trees are shipped to New York, Cleveland and other cities. She has built a successful business on the pleasant thought of Christmas cheer.

Her work sprang from a small beginning. As a girl, her home was on a farm in Tennessee. Its fertile acres were far outnumbered by those of unproductive rocks and evergreens.

Enterprise and initiative are among Miss Brandon's leading traits. She decided the evergreens were valuable. With the aid of a small brother she felled a number of trees and hauled them eight miles to market in the nearest large town.

The first of November this girl dons a short skirt and stout shoes and is in the timber with her men. She oversees the felling and grading of her stock. Each tree is bound so that the limbs are held firm against the main trunk. This prevents trees from being torn and injured. In December they are packed and forwarded to city merchants.

NAVAL SECRETS

Every Workman Employed on a New Warship Has to Take An Oath That He Will Reveal Nothing He Sees.

The recent appointment of Mr. Winston Churchill to be head of the Admiralty recalls the fact that there is no more jealously-guarded department than that over which he now holds sway. The head of the Navy is the most reticent man in the Cabinet — when question time comes round. Whenever an answer is given you may be quite sure that it doesn't give very much away.

All new ships are built with the greatest possible secrecy. To begin with, every man who is employed, in whatever capacity, on a new warship has to take an oath that he will never reveal anything he may learn. No outsider is allowed anywhere near the building yards. When the first Dreadnought was being built, for instance, the great vessel was guarded so jealously that no one, save those officially employed on her, were allowed within forty yards. To show how strictly this order was carried out, two post-captains of the Navy, in uniform, were turned back by the police and private detectives on guard.

The actual plans of a new battleship are the most carefully guarded of all the Admiralty's secrets. They are kept in rooms which rival any strong-rooms of a bank. The draughtsmen never leave the whole plans in their possession. Parts are given out at a time to different men, and every draughtsman is carefully watched in order that he can take no copy of the part of the plan in front of him. So well are the complete plans divided up that even if three or four men agreed to act together they would be unable to find out much about Britain's latest Dreadnought. Whenever any portion of the plans goes out of the strong-room its movements are carefully watched and checked at every of the keys of the room.

When the German Emperor visited Gibraltar a few years ago the greatest precautions were quietly taken, in the politest possible way, to prevent members of the Kaiser's suite seeing too much. Sentries were posted at all sorts of odd corners on board all the men-of-war. Every part of the vessels was carefully guarded, and more than one German officer who had "wandered" below was politely shown the way up to deck again.

G. N. GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, City of Peterborough,—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

As a candidate for Alderman for one of the two seats in the Centre Ward, I respectfully solicit your votes.

My platform is briefly this:

1.—Obtain Hydro-Electric estimates and reports as to prices, terms, &c., of obtaining power for the City's manufacturers, and for house and store lighting.

2.—Abate the nuisance caused by the G.T.R. using Bethune street as a shunting yard, which injuriously affects hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of realty.

3.—Obtain legislation allowing reduction of taxes on businesses and improvements and increasing taxation of land values, thus making the holders of vacant land pay their share of the taxes.

4.—Have every milk vendor's milk inspected at least fortnightly and a report with the milkman's name published showing the proportions of butter fat contained in each lot.

5.—Consideration of the question of permanent improvement of highways.

6.—Begin an aggressive campaign to obtain new industries, and inaugurate a strong publicity scheme.

There are two Aldermen to be elected for the Centre Ward. G. A. Gilkespie is contesting one seat with J. R. Metheral and W. G. Morrow, of Charlotte street, is contesting the other seat with me.

If elected, I will energetically support a progressive campaign for the City's advancement.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

Musician and Scientist.

There is no more brilliant scientist in the world to-day than Sir William Ramsay, who has been warning Britain that, at the present rate of consumption, her coal supply will only last another 175 years. His most wonderful discoveries have been in connection with new gases in the atmosphere, upon which such names as argon, neon, and xenon have been bestowed, and the experimental work which led to these discoveries ranks as the most refined ever carried out. Of xenon, for example, there is only about one part in 70,000,000 parts of air. Sir William devotes his leisure to music. He plays both the piano and violin and has written the words of not a few songs. The collecting of curios is another of Sir William's hobbies, and at his house at Regent's Park may be seen many queer treasures thousands of years old.

COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Company was incorporated in 1906, and has made steady progress. Their Real Estate holdings are chiefly in and around Calgary and will so continue, but latterly they have been paying a little attention to Saskatoon, where such remarkable progress is being made. It will be the policy of the Company to purchase judiciously in and near Towns and Cities which have passed the uncertain stage of development and whose future is assured. The Company, with its expert knowledge of values is better able to handle such business than any individual, however well equipped he may be for the work

While the Company has been, and will continue to be, conservative in the matter of dividends, it would appear probable that before very long a distribution of Assets, either in the shape of a Stock Bonus or substantial Cash Dividend, might be made If not, however, the Shareholders will still benefit by holding a security of constantly increasing value, which will be reflected in the market price of the stock.

The remarkable progress of the City of Calgary is perhaps without precedent in Canada. Building permits issued during the ten months ended 31st October, 1911, reached the enormous total of $11,664,138.00

HIGHER DIVIDEN D PROSPECTS

Mr. H. A. MacLean, President of the Company, in a letter dated 15th November, 1911, makes the following reference to Dividend and Reserve Fund: "While I can say nothing official at this time, I may mention that at the Company's Annual Meeting, following its year-end at 31st December, it is my intention to recommend that the Dividend for 1911 be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, which will be an advance of 1 per cent. over the Dividend for 1910. I consider it safe to say in this connection, also, that the Dividend for 1912 will be at the rate of 12 per cent.

"The Asset and Liability Return covering the ten months ended 31st October shows, after allowing for all expenses and outlays of every kind, except the 1911 Dividend, a surplus of Assets over Liabilities of $311,736.72. The 1911 Dividend will amount to approximately $40,000.00, leaving a net surplus of approximately $271,736.72, equal to 90 per cent. of the Company's paid-up Capital. This amount may be fairly considered as a Reserve fund in its present shape, and the Company might continue with safety along its present lines. It is my intention, however, at the approaching Annual Meeting, to propose that a portion equal to 25 per cent. of the Real Estate forming this surplus, be set aside, and advantageously sold—the proceeds of such sale to be invested in high grade listed Railroad Bonds, yielding the Company about 5 per cent. This operation, repeated from year to year, will give the Company a reserve fund of pretty much the same nature as is carried by the Banks and other conservatively managed institutions."

COMPANY'S DIVIDEND RECORD

The Company has paid Dividends every year since its incorporation as follows:

1907	6 per cent.
1908	8 per cent.
1909	9 per cent.
1910	10 per cent.

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

The Company's statement of assets and liabilities as of October 31st, 1911, attested to by Messrs. Webb, Read & Hegan, appears in full in the prospectus. It shows the value of the Company's real estate and buildings, as valued by Mr. V. J. L. Eccles, to stand at $584,111, and balance of profit and loss account $311,736. Of the Company's authorized capital of $1,000,000, $398,380 is subscribed, $301,857.50 of which is paid up, leaving $96,522.50 of unmatured and unpaid calls.

Inquiries as to the Company's standing and the integrity and ability of the directors (of whom the President, Managing Director and Secretary-Treasurer devote their time exclusively to the Company's business) may be made of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal.

It is the intention to make application in due course to have the stock listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Copies of prospectus and application forms for shares may be obtained from the undersigned, and in cases where the request for application forms states the number of shares desired it will be considered that application has been received at that date. The right is reserved, however, to allot a smaller number of shares than applied for.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense, that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me name of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 857 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to the cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scanty or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic troubles.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weak nerves, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swellings in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Irregular or rapid action of the heart.
12—Pain in the left joints.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
16—Pain or soreness in the urethra.
17—Acidity of the stomach.
18—Loss of appetite.

BY-LAW NUMBER 644

A By-law to authorise the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan to execute an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the right to use a Highway in the Township of North Monaghan as therein mentioned.

Passed 17th day of November, 1911.

WHEREAS The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has applied to the Council of the Township of North Monaghan for the franchise and right for a period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the public highway or road, which may be better known as "The Monaghan Road" extending Southerly from Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances for the purposes of the said Railway, and the Council and Company have agreed on the terms and conditions on which in the opinion of the Council the said right should be given, which terms and conditions have been reduced to writing, and are fully set out herein, and it is necessary that the said terms and conditions and the period for which said right is to be granted should be submitted to the vote of the Electors of the Municipality in the manner provided in the Consolidated Municipal Act (1903) and the Ontario Railway Act 1906; with respect to By-laws requiring the assent of the Electors.

THEREFORE the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. The Council of the Township of North Monaghan are hereby authorized to enter into an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company in the words and figures following, namely:

THIS AGREEMENT made in duplicate the 17th day of November, 1911, between THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, hereinafter called the "Corporation," of the FIRST PART and THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY COMPANY, hereinafter called the "Company," of the SECOND PART.

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto and dated the Fourteenth day of March, 1904, the Corporation did grant unto the Company a franchise and right for the period of thirty years, therein set forth, together with the exemption therein referred to, and

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto, and dated the Nineteenth day of September, 1904, the Corporation did further grant unto the Company an extension of said Franchise to the Boundary Line running along the Western limit of the City of Peterborough from Charlotte Street to the Northern boundary of the Township of North Monaghan, and

WHEREAS the parties have further agreed to further extend the said Franchise from the north side of Charlotte Street southerly along the highway known as the Monaghan Road (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan), to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan.

1. WITNESSETH that the Corporation doth hereby upon and subject to the terms, provisoes and conditions hereinafter referred to and contained, and subject to the Special Statute incorporating the Company, and of the Sections of the Railway Act applying to the said Company, grant to the said Company the Franchise and right for the period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the Public Highway or Road, which may be known as "The Monaghan Road" extending southerly from the north side of Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee, in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances thereon for the purpose aforesaid. Provided, however, that the rails shall be laid along the centre of the road allowance as far South as Cameron Street and that from the North side of Cameron Street South to the River Otonabee the rails shall be laid on the portion of the highway designated by the Township Council.

2. AND it is expressly declared and agreed by and between the parties hereto that wherever in this agreement the parties of the First Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Corporation, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns, and wherever in this agreement the parties of the Second Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Company, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns.

3. AND the Company do hereby covenant, promise and agree with the Corporation in manner following, that is to say:

4. THAT the propelling power of such railway will be horses, electricity, or any other power except steam as the Company wish to adopt and put in operation.

5. THAT the Company will lay the rails flush with the road, and so as to cause the least possible impediment to ordinary traffic, that the same will be laid in accordance with the existing level or grade of the road at the time of laying the same or as near thereto as is compatible with a proper execution of the work.

6. THAT the Company will so construct and maintain the railway that the same will not interfere with that the Company will maintain their roadbed between their rails and the water tables and drainage, and devitstrip in the same manner as the remainder of the Highway is maintained.

7. THAT the Corporation shall not be liable to the Company for any damage the Company may incur or sustain from the breakage of, any sewer or water pipe or for any damage or delay that may be caused by the construction of sewers, laying of water pipes or repairing the same or from any delay that may be caused by freshets or fires.

8. THAT it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation to lay down or permit to be laid down in the road water pipes and gas pipes, and to alter and repair or permit to be altered and repaired the same respectively, and also subject to Section 5 hereof to grade, alter, improve and repair the road whenever public convenience may so require without cost or claim for damages against the Corporation for interruption or interference with the traffic of the Company or its railway.

9. THAT in case the Company shall refuse or on reasonable notice, neglect to do and perform any matter or thing required by the Franchise or contract thereunder to be done and performed by the Company the same matter or thing may be done by the Corporation and the cost thereof recovered from the Company.

10. THAT the Company shall and will at all times indemnify and save harmless the Corporation from and against all loss, costs, charges, expense, suits, actions, claims and demands whatever arising or occurring by reason of the constructing, maintaining or operating of the said railway or in anything connected with or relating thereto, including the cost of said Township Engineer.

11. THAT each car will be numbered and supplied with a gong to be sounded on approaching and crossing an intersecting street, or in case any person or vehicles shall appear on or near the track.

12. THAT the fares to be charged by the Company will be the same as those charged in the City of Peterborough, and the payment of fare upon any part of the line hereinbefore provided for will entitle the passenger to be carried to any part of the railway line in the City of Peterborough without additional fare.

13. IT shall be the duty of the Company when removing snow from its tracks to spread the same evenly upon the Highway so that the same will not injuriously affect the travel on that part of the Highway outside the Company's tracks.

14. SHOULD the Company forfeit its Franchise in the City of Peterborough the Township Council may declare this Franchise to be forfeited and cancelled.

15. IT is understood and agreed that the Company is to put the highway on each side of the track in a good a condition for general travel as the travelled part of the road was before the laying of the tracks.

In Witness Whereof the said parties of the First Part have hereunto affixed their Corporal Seal, evidenced by the hands of their Reeve and Clerk and the parties of the Second Part have hereunto affixed their Corporate Seal, evidenced by the hands of their President and Secretary.

3. The Reeve and Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan are authorized to execute the said Agreement in duplicate under their hands, and the Corporate Seal, provided the same is executed by the said Peterborough Radial Railway Company, either prior to or at the time it is executed on behalf of the Corporation.

4. The votes of the electors of the said Township of North Monaghan will be taken on this By-law on the First day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual Election of the Municipal Council for the said Township is being held, and the polls will be held at the same hour on said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as are appointed and fixed for the said Municipal Elections.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Township Clerk in the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

6. The Twenty-ninth day of December, 1911, and the hour of Two o'clock in the afternoon, and the office of the Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively, on behalf of the persons interested in promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

7. In the event of the Company not constructing the said Railway upon the whole of that part of the Monaghan Road to which this Franchise applies, the Corporation may notify the Company, in writing, to proceed to construct and operate such said Railway over and upon the remainder of the road to which this Franchise extends, and in the event of the Company not constructing such Railway and operating the same within twelve months after the giving of such notice, this Franchise, at the option of the Corporation, may be terminated as to such portion of the road, to which this Franchise applies, not then constructed and operated upon by the Company.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY-LAW NUMBER 1639

A By-Law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws:—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. THAT the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say:—On the 9th, 16th and 23rd days of December A. D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George Street between Brock and Murray Streets, on Hunter Street between George and Aylmer Streets and between Water and Queen Streets, and on Charlotte St. between George and Aylmer Streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets in the City of Peterborough, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing appoint to him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW, Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration proving that he or she was an leaseholder of a lease, which under the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Council Chamber, December 7, 1911.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Sciatica

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY.

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

We have all read and heard of the agonies of Sciatica, - but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS.

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." Large size bottle 50c., or sample size 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

AMERICAN JEWS AND RUSSIA

"American Diplomacy Spoke to Russia for Special Interests and Not for the Whole American People," Says Wilson.

New York. — Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, in an interview, says:—

of the territory of either that is open to foreign commerce; that they shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of the territory thus opened to commerce in order to attend to their affairs; and that they shall enjoy the same security and protection as inhabitants of the country in which they are sojourning, on condition of course that they submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing, and particularly to the regulations there in force concerning commerce.

For some forty years the obligations of this treaty have been disregarded by Russia in respect to our Jewish fellow-citizens.

If the Russian government has felt through all these years that it could ignore the protest of American ministers and secretaries of state, it has been because the American government spoke for special interests or from some special point of view, and not for the American people. It is the fact that the attention of the American people has now been drawn to this matter that is altering the whole aspect of it.

PEACE TALKS ONLY DESULTORY

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai. — The revolutionaries here say the peace discussion will be only desultory. After this conference, the Nanking National Convention will be held. Delegates representing eighteen provinces are now in Nanking. One of the leading members of the convention said today: "If Yuan Shi Kai bows to the inevitable within a week he will be elected president. If he does not, Sun Yat Sen will be the first president."

It is evident the Republicans are convinced that Premier Yuan in proposing peace negotiations is simply spacing for time and the Republicans proceed with preparations for winter campaign.

The leaders assert that if the Manchu ministers and Yuan Shi Kai consents to their elimination, the entire country would be quiet and safe within a week.

The Foreign Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai has adopted a resolution protesting against all loans to the administration.

JOURNALS [illegible]

Pitfalls for the Telegraph Expander — Some of the Peculiar Mistakes Made by Men Whose Business Is to Clothe News.

Receiving a telegram of "La Jocunde stolen from the Louvre," referring to the now famous theft of Da Vinci's masterpiece in Paris, the 'Chicago Methodist Chronicle' made a bad mistake in "expanding" this into:—

"Intelligence has just reached us that a young lady visitor, Miss Jocunde, was abducted in open daylight by a daring ravisher while she was visiting the Louvre Museum. This regrettable incident is a fresh proof of the dangers which honourable young women run, not only in the streets, but even in the public establishment of the modern Babylon."

Terrible Tibet.

The "expander" — one of the essential accessories of a telegraphic news agency — is always liable to this sort of thing. When Mr. Savage Landor, the well-known traveller, reached Russia not long ago, after his last journey through Tibet, a cable agency wired the news thus briefly: "Savage Landor arrived St. Petersburg from Tibet suffering hands natives." An imaginative sub-editor on one of the Australian papers, who seems never to have heard of Mr. Landor, thus expanded it: "A savage Landor got into St. Petersburg yesterday, and the people of the city were terrified. After considerable difficulty the beast, which came from Tibet, was captured, taken to a remote place, and there dispatched. It is said that this is the first animal of the sort ever seen in Russia. How he reached the city after his fight with the natives of Tibet, which is a comparatively unknown country, is a mystery."

Newspaper Hash.

It was another Australian paper which received a wire of "Apache rising in Micareme," and, believing this to refer to the Red Indian Apaches, gave a vivid account of a massacre by red men in North America, with as much vague detail of the town of Micareme as it could invent at the moment and keep safe. Only after publication did it discover that the Apaches were the hooligans of Paris, and Mi-carême a well-known carnival festival in France!

One of the largest London dailies made a similar hash of a telegram announcing the arrival of one of our fleets off Lagos. This is Lagos in Portugal, but the news editor got mixed in his Continents, and supposed it to be the other Lagos — in West Africa. Hence the expanded message, printed as though wired direct from West Africa, gave a glowing description of the locality: "It was a glorious sight for an Englishman in exile on this far-away coast to watch the great fleet enter the bay. The valley through which the river runs is much broken up by dykes (etc., etc.). Such is Lagos. The men were not allowed on shore, nor does one wonder at this, for it must be confessed that there are few places that tempt the visitor less than Lagos."

Only next day did the news editor learn, from sarcastic friends on rival papers, that the fleet was hundreds of miles away from the scene of this "[illegible]."

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Olvesta, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1887, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was impeded by the want of a dowry.

The System Was Brought About By An Act of Charity on the Part of Valentine Hauy To Beggar.

How did the blind learn to read? It was in this way.

A man named Valentine Hauy, who for a long time had wondered how he could bring happiness to these unfortunate people, was one day walking through an out-of-the-way boulevard, when he came upon a blind beggar.

Touched by the helpless sorrow of the man, he put his hand in his pocket and gave him a piece of money. But he had hardly taken a step forward when the beggar, an honest man, called him back.

"Surely, sir," he said, "you have made a mistake; you have given me a crown instead of a penny."

The astonished giver asked the beggar how he had been able to quickly to detect the different values of the money.

"Oh," said the beggar, "it is enough for me to pass my finger over it."

This was like a flash of light.

"If the blind," thought Hauy, as he continued his walk, "can distinguish at the least touch a piece of money, why should they not distinguish by the same means a letter, a figure, a mark — in short, any sign whatever so long as it is raised?"

On this foundation he set to work, and presently invented a method for teaching the blind to read. His first pupil was a blind boy whom he rescued from begging at a church door. This boy learned with astonishing quickness to read by means of raised letters. Very soon Valentine Hauy was able to show his pupil in public, and the sight of a child reading with his fingers excited the greatest surprise and admiration.

When his method was perfected, he appealed to the public for funds to carry on his work, and, thanks to the subscriptions which came to him from all sides, Hauy was soon able to open the first institute for teaching the blind to read.

What Water Can Do

No sooner are the London and Ottawa seasons over than we see announcements of various more or less great personages departing for some Continental or British Spa to take the waters, and allow their systems to recover from the fatigues of fashionable or political life. The drinking of the medicinal water is not the whole of the cure; change of scene, simplicity of diet, early hours, freedom from bustle and worry all play their part in the restoration of body and mind. It is quite possible, however, to have some of these benefits without the expense of going away from home, merely by the aid of pure drinking water. The human body consists of water in the proportion of about sixty per cent., and the water removed from the body by means of the breath, the perspiration, the urine and the bowels is the vehicle by which the body gets rid of the waste products resulting from the activity of the various organs. As a rule the more active a tissue is the more water it contains, and, therefore, within reasonable limits, an increase in the amount of water taken will lead to increased tissue change.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Applications for shares should be sent to

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague. — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

HANGED IN THE THEATRE

Jail Yard to Theatre of Institution.

Scene of Execution Shifted From the Jackson. — The scene of a legal hanging was hastily changed from the local jail yard to the town opera house here lately to prevent possible race trouble.

Will Turner, a negro preacher, was to pay the death penalty for killing Jesse Singley, a white man, last August. A large crowd gathered in the jail yard, and, fearing serious trouble, the authorities quickly moved Turner to the theatre and he was hanged on the stage here but few witnesses.

NEW UNION'S POPULATION.

The population of the South African Union, according to the preliminary returns issued of the census taken May 7, 1911, is 5,958,490. Of this total 1,278,025 are European or white and 4,680,474 African or Asiatic. The population by provinces are: Cape of Good Hope, 583,177 white and 1,979,847 Asiatic; Natal, 98,582 white and 1,093,376; all others Transvaal, 420,831 white and 1,...,-780 all others; Orange Free State, 175,435 white and 361,471 all others. The increase since 1904 is 782,675 or 15 per cent., the white population having increased by 161,219 or 14 per cent., and the colored population by 621,456 or 15 per cent.

It Happens in Lindsay.

The Owen Sound Sun says, that the firemen of Lindsay are thinking seriously of sending in a bill to the post office department for the time and labor expended on their run in an answer to a call of fire. They turned out at the call from box 32, and after a hard run through the city streets found that there was no fire. The alarm had been sent in by a lady, trying to post a letter in the fire alarm box. The firemen think that the least she could have done, after bringing them down, was to wait, so that they might have taken the letter to the post office for her.

WHY CHILDREN ASK QUESTIONS

The whole of the doing part of our nature depends, in the first place, upon a most important fact of our nature, which is that we possess instincts. All these instincts exist in order to serve our lives in one way or another, and their special business is to urge us to action. When we thus act under the influence of an instinct we commonly have a certain kind of feeling or emotion, which corresponds with the instinct that is at work.

One of the most interesting and valuable of our instincts is curiosity. In the history of the long line of beings who have produced us, curiosity is a high instinct and one that is late in appearing. We do not find it among the lowest animals, but it is conspicuous in the highest kinds of monkeys.

The particular kind of feeling or emotion that goes with the instinct of curiosity is what we call wonder. Thus, when we ask a question of ourselves, we often say: "I wonder why" so-and-so. And this instinct grows, as mankind grows, from the most trivial curiosity about trivial things until it leads men to devote their whole lives to the discovery of the laws and wonders of nature.

Children, therefore, ask questions because they are human, and because the possession of the instinct of curiosity and the feeling of wonder is a very great and worthy fact about the human race. Without it we should not be driven on to learn and to know, and without knowing our place in the world would not be nearly so safe as it is. The trouble is that so many of us stop asking questions when we grow up.

OBITUARY

Michael McCliggott.

On Thursday evening after an illness extending over a period of some five months, Mr. Michael McCliggott of 265 Carlisle avenue, East City, passed away. The deceased was 42 years of age and was born in Douro. He has been president of the city for six years. He is survived by two daughters, Mary Madeline and Frances. Four brothers also lament his demise, in the persons of James McCliggott, John, William and Edward, and four sisters, namely, Mrs. Jane McManus of Lakefield, Mrs. Michael Barry of Vancouver, Mrs. Patrick McMurray and Miss Teresa, both of Douro.

The funeral cortege will proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, at 9 o'clock, and afterwards to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro, for interment.

Albert Henry Cobb.

Early yesterday morning there passed away at the residence of his father, Mr. J. H. Cobb, 551 Aylmer street, Albert Henry Cobb, aged 53 years. The deceased was well known in Peterborough, having been born here on May 31st, 1859. He passed through the public and high schools of the town, when he served his apprenticeship in the drug business of Mr. J. D. Tully. He graduated as a druggist from the Ontario School of Pharmacy, and after a post graduate course, and spending some years in Ottawa, went into the drug business in Brockville, which he continued until his illness came. He was a highly respected citizen of that city and his death is deeply regretted there, as it also will be in Peterborough. In Brockville Mr. Cobb for four years filled the position of Warden of Trinity Anglican church.

The deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cobb, Peterborough, and by a wife and three children—Joseph P. Cobb; in Lachine, Fraser Cobb, in Brockville, and Miss Helen Cobb, in Peterborough.

For some years Mr. Cobb was secretary of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society.

The funeral will take place to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Canon Davidson will officiate. No flowers, by request.

Good Form

Little Social Calling.

The interest taken by the woman of today in athletics, in the world, in affairs of public tenor, has brought about at least one welcome social change—the abolition of the social call.

No longer are upper blinds seen to flutter suspiciously while maid or butler utters the solemn "Not at home" to relieved callers. The allotted twenty minutes of platitudes, during which hostess and guest conversed about such vital topics as the weather or the servant situation, is reckoned as so much wasted time by the busy woman of society.

The gradual disappearance of the calling custom does not mean a consequent damper upon social activity. What it does signify is a more sincere and a more natural phase of sociability. Today a woman rings up the friend she wishes to see on the telephone and arranges for a friendly little visit. The stiff rose and gilt of the front parlor have yielded to the cosy depths of the living room easy chairs and the staid conversation of the reception room to the cosy chatter of the tea table.

Telephone Courtesy.

Many otherwise polite persons feel that they can be rude when engaged in a telephone conversation. With the first "Hello" many a man and woman drop their courtesy as if it were a garment that did not fit them.

If the "central" were to record all that she hears and all that is said to her it would make some of us blush for shame. While men frequently swear over the telephone, there are many women who, while they do not give vent to profanity, so far copy the manners of the male sex that they scream like shrews at "central" if she happens to give them the wrong number or interrupts them before they have finished talking.

That the ways of telephones and the persons who operate them are trying to one's temper no one can deny, but the irritability that manifests itself in outward speech is not a requisite of the proper appreciation and use of the telephone. It is nothing less than a pernicious habit which most people acquire unconsciously. Let us remember that consideration and kindness pay better than rudeness and discourtesy. If not, then let us have poorer telephone service and preserve our self respect.

Make it a rule never to be rude to the telephone assistants. It is like shooting from an ambush—at an unseen foe. It is true, but it hurts just as much.

Politeness a Valuable Cult.

If regarded from no other point of view than as an asset in journeying through life, politeness and the observance of small courtesies will be found a very valuable cult.

True, the blustering, pushing man or woman makes a success of its sort, but if closely observed [illegible] in very readily come back [illegible] time with any success. Aggressiveness is often needed, but impoliteness never. When it is necessary to emphasize even that may be done with dignity and a perfectly polite manner, carrying weight far better than arrogance and rudeness ever can.

Many there are who think and say that with some people to be polite leaves the impression of cowardice, but the well bred man or woman knows better. They know that courtesy does not mean to be afraid of anything or anybody, and no mistake is possible.

The courteous woman has always the refuge of silence or, perhaps, the privilege of sarcasm, while the polite man can defend himself with his fists if need be, yet help his adversary up with all the courtesy of a friend, thereby making a friend of him indeed.

Just a Few Don'ts.

Here are a few suggestions in the way of don'ts which will be found to "wash well":

Don't put your secrets on paper. They are safest in your own custody.

Don't write anything unkind or condemnatory concerning a third person. The individual may hear of it and trouble follow.

Always say less than you mean in a letter.

Don't write affectionate letters to any man except your father or brother.

Don't write to a lover anything you wouldn't be willing the newspapers would print with your name attached. You can't tell what may happen.

Cultivate the art of writing jolly, cheerful, clever letters, from which personalities are carefully eliminated.

Maybe So.

"Pa!"
"Well, Hildegarde?"
"Sawfish live in the sea, don't they?"
"Yes, my child."
"Doesn't the salt water make their teeth rusty?"

LADY CARD-SHARPERS

Investigation Shows That Certain Women Make a Business of Attending Charity Card-Parties to Cheat.

Eleven women were refused admission recently to a charity card-party organized at the Church of St. Francis Assisi at Brooklyn, because they were believed to be card-sharpers. An investigation which was started unearthed the fact that a number of women make a business of attending such affairs of the gamblers who haunt Transatlantic liners. The women are not professional gamblers, but members of respectable families who are unable to resist the temptation to cheat at cards.

It has become known that women band themselves together for concerted work, by signals, by marking cards with tiny pin-pricks, and otherwise, and, according to Father Kelleher, of St. Francis [illegible] who discovered the latest conspiracy, even know how to stack the cards.

Father Kelleher's discovery was due to an extraordinary accident. He was riding on a Brooklyn trolley car when he overheard two women seated near him discussing how they intended to capture the prizes at the St. Francis party by cheating. Father Kelleher told the other priests of the church, and they watched the doorway of the 47th Regiment Armoury, where a card-party was being given. Father Kelleher detected the two women with nine others as they were endeavouring to enter. They were told that they could not get in. No explanation was offered, and the women did not demand any, but hastily disappeared. The churches and charity organizations are generally being notified of the discovery, with the suggestion that concerted effort should be made this winter to break up the practice. It is a disputed point whether the women are amenable to arrest on a charge of cheating.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Middle Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

VOTE FOR

WM. LANGFORD, Jr.

FOR NORTH WARD.

To the Ratepayers,—

I ask your support for election to the Council of 1912, I am in favor of the Hydro-Electric By-law, but will support only such proposition as will give the city the lowest possible rates for power and light.

I will be watchful of the city's interests and endeavour to have its affairs administered economically, consistent with progress of the city.

Your very respectfully,

WILLIAM LANGFORD, JR.

VOTE FOR

W. G. MORROW

IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most ddvantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season, Iremain.

Yours truly,

W. G. MORROW.

EX-ALDERMAN GILLESPIE

IN CENTRE WARD

To the Electors of the Centre Ward of Peterborough,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Alderman in the Centre Ward for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT

JOS. R. METHERAL

IN CENTRE WARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have been entrusted with your confidence for the past three years and my record stands open before you. It may show no extraordinary ability, but an endeavour to be straight-forward and honest in all dealing. I have not been swayed by cliques or outside influences, but voted and worked at all times in the interests of the ratepayers in general and will continue to do so in the future, if re-elected. I would advise the electors to vote for the Hydro-Electric Commission Power By-law. I firmly believe that the Hydro-Electric Commission will give Peterborough power at rates considerably reduced from those at present in force, but I pledge myself that no contract for power either with the Hydro-Electric Commission or private corporation shall be signed by the City Council without a By-law to that effect being submitted to the ratepayers.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

JOS. R. METHERAL.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN J. J. DUFFUS

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Ratepayers of the West Ward and Peterborough Citizens in general:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having the honor of being duly nominated and urged by a large number of representative citizens to be a candidate in the West Ward, I have decided to again enter the Aldermanic field. As it will be impossible for me to interview each voter, I hereby most respectfully solicit you support and influence to assure my election.

If you so honor me I will pledge myself to do my utmost to assist in executing the city's business in a prudent and business like manner.

New industries, to my mind, is the one essential toward the future growth and success of our city, and I am in favor of a vigorous campaign to obtain cheap power and light, and also to induce the Radial Railway Co. to make extensive extensions. I would like to see the centre of our city with a permanent roadway.

I am opposed to the policy of increasing a man's taxes every time he makes improvements and minor extensions, and would support a measure to eliminate this condition of affairs.

Wishing all a bright and prosperous New Year.

Yours very respectfully,

JOS. J. DUFFUS.

VOTE FOR

ALDERMAN JAS. EDGAR

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Electors of the West Ward, City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated as a candidate for Alderman from the West Ward, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge myself to legislate for economic government in bread lines, and to advocate the permanent improvement of highways, and the provision of additional bridge connection with East and West City at a point most advantageous to the community as a whole. As to power for municipal purposes, I will only endorse the cheapest service, irrespective of the source from whence it comes; and will insist that any contract for the same shall be first submitted to the ratepayers before being finally passed by the City Council.

With best wishes for the New Year believe me to remain.

Yours truly,

JAMES EDGAR.

VOTE FOR

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward Peterborough —

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the Electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's general [illegible] and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial permanent improvements especially in the matter of roadbeds and power at cost, providing that cost be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests, particularly where the expenditure of large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours truly,

W. J. JOHNSTON.

Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?
A. Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

A Happy, Prosperous and Joyous New Year to the Readers of The Times

THE PEOPLE'S POWER, OR THE MONOPOLY'S POWER—WHICH SHALL OWN IT

VOTE TO-DAY ON THE QUESTION

—...The peopl'e power or the monopoly power ——

The Hon. Adam Beck in his address in the Opera House made a number of things clear. Among them were :—

That the vote on Monday would not commit the electors to a contract. If they by their votes ask for people's power, the people's Commission, appointed by the Government, will get the necessary information, and then another vote will have to be taken to authorize the necessary expenditure.

The question now is, do the people want that information?

Every municipality that has taken power through the Commission has reduced rates, and provided for paying for the plant out of the revenue and still has asurplus.

Light is furnished in London at 4½ cents, and it is 120 miles from the water power. In Peterborough 7 cents is charged. It should be less than in London.

If the power monopoly retains control of the water powers, it will control the supply of electricity and the price. If the people desire to own the water powers the Commission will get them for the people and all the profits and benefits will belong to the people.

Do you want the power monopoly or the people to own the power in this district? If you say the people, then vote on Monday in favor of obtaining power.

In the cities which obtain power from the Commission, the price will go down steadily as more power is used—because it belongs to the people. Where the people do not own power, the price goes up as more is used and it becomes scarcer—Because it belongs to a monopoly.

When the Hydro-Electric cities pay off the cost of their plants (which is being done out of revenue from the plants) the price of power in them will go down with a thud. Here, if the monopoly still controls the powers, the tendency of prices will be upwards. How then could Peterborough compete with those cities?

Do you want the monopoly to control the powers here? If you do vote against obtaining power.

Do you want lower rates for light and power?

Do you want the people to own the water powers?

Do you want the benefits and profits of these great natural resources to go to the people?

Do you want rates that will be lower and that will be steadily reduced?

Do you want Peterborough to be in as good a position as any and better than most cities?

If you do, vote on Monday for obtaining power.

The vote on Monday WILL NOT authorize the Council to expend money. When amounts are ascertained ANOTHER VOTE must be taken to obtain that authority.

The vote on Monday WILL SAY whether the ratepayers want the people or the power monopoly to own and control the water powers.

Vote in favor of obtaining power, and by doing so vote in the interest of the City, of yourself, of your children and of your children's children.

DO NOT NEGLECT TO VOTE—TO-DAY!

OUR GREETING

WITH the advent of 1912, The Times extends to its many patrons and friends its hearty good wishes for a prosperous New Year.

During the past twelve months our business has grown in every department, and we wish to thank our friends for the part they have taken in assisting us to this remarkable success.

No business can prosper without the co-operation of the friends and patrons which in our case has been most cordial. We are now rapidly getting into a position that will enable us to produce a newspaper that will be in every way equal to those of the larger cities of the country.

The Times will Continue in its advocacy of "Equal Rights, With Special Privileges to None." No Church or race will be permitted to change this policy, and to those, Protestants as well as Roman Catholics, who are in sympathy with this stand, we appeal for support. During the past few months hundreds of new subscribers have been added to our lists, showing that our position is being approved of by a large majority of the people. By the establishment of rural mail routes, hundreds of leading farmers are brought into touch with our paper, as The Times is the only daily that will reach them the day of issue. Advertisers will at once see the point.

Appreciating the hearty support which has been accorded us, as well as hoping to merit a continuance of the same to even a greater degree, and wishing our patrons and friends the compliments of the season, we are

Yours very truly,

ANOTHER WOMAN DESIRES ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE

SHE WAS MARRIED EIGHT YEARS AGO, AND NOW CLAIMS THAT UNDER CHURCH LAW

She Was Too Closely Related to Her Husband—Plaintiff Wants Right to Sue as a Pauper.

Montreal, Dec. 30.—Another marriage annulment case came up before the court yesterday afternoon when a petition was presented before Mr. Justice Laurendeau by Dame Marie Anne Meunier, for permission to enter suit in forma pauperis, in order to have her marriage contracted in 1903 annulled by the civil tribunals, on the grounds of consanguinity.

The respondent in the case is Francois Xavier Blanchette, and the marriage was solemnized in St. Bridget's Church. As the two contracting parties were relations of third degree of consanguinity in the collateral line, petitioner represents that, both being members of the Catholic Church such consanguinity constitutes an impediment according to the Catholic church; and that such an impediment is endorsed by the civil law.

LOCOMOTIVE BLEW UP AT THAMESVILLE

BODY LIFTED CLEAN OFF ENGINE AND TURNED UPSIDE DOWN.

One Man Badly Hurt—Another Was Lifted Clean Over Several Cars, But Not Injured.

Thamesville, Ont., Dec. 30.—A locomotive on a westbound Wabash freight exploded exactly opposite the Grand Trunk station shortly after midnight. The explosion was terrific awakening the whole town, and burning pieces fell blocks from the track. The train was in charge of Conductor Cudmore, the engine, one of the large Wabash Moguls, Engineer Cade of Windsor being the driver. The whole body of the engine was blown several yards ahead of the lower part of the engine and turned completely upside down, parts of the car being found yards away.

Engineer Cade was found seriously scalded, principally about the head and arms, and is in a very serious condition. Fireman Cook was blown over the top of several cars, but escaped uninjured.

The local fire company was soon on the scene, and gave every assistance possible. The exact cause of the explosion is not known.

GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

The electors of the Centre Ward should elect Mr. Gordon an Alderman. There are many good reasons for this.

First of all, there should be a lawyer in the Council, and if there had been one, who had watched the City's interest as Mr. Gordon would do, we would not have had loaded on us the street railway bargain. As it is now, we cannot force the City to extend its lines and there is no provision in the agreement for taking over the railway by the City.

Mr. Gordon is a man of sound judgment, has progressive ideas, and is a most energetic and careful business man, his training and ability make him necessary during 1912, which will be Peterborough's great growing year.

A first class lawyer in the Council will save the City many law suits, by his being able to advise with the City Solicitor, and Mr. Gordon's wide experience in litigation would assist the City Solicitor very much.

Mr. Gordon's platform in favor of milk inspection and the Hydro-Electric is sound.

Mr. Gordon is the man who is needed to properly present the City's case to corporations who might locate industries here, as he is a first class speaker, is able to clearly and carefully array his facts, and is capable to put up a first class intelligent argument in favor of the City of Peterborough.

We trust that no one will let any thing stand in the way of Mr. Gordon's election to-day as it will mean very much indeed to the City of Peterborough if he is in this year's Council to assist in its deliberations.

MAN AND HIS WIFE KILLED BY TRAIN

HURLED AGAINST POST

London, Ont., Dec. 30.—A terrible level crossing accident on the G.T.R. at Mount Bridges occurred yesterday costing the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Miller of that village. They had been out for a short pleasure ride and when crossing the Grand trunk tracks within a hundred yards of their home were struck by an engine running light to Windsor.

Miller was busy trying to quiet the horse, which was fractious, and apparently never noticed the approaching engine. The buggy was caught squarely by the cowcatcher and Miller was hurled head first against the alarm bell post beside the tracks, while his wife and horse and buggy were carried on down the track until the fence at the crossing was reached. All were rolled together, Mrs. Miller being so horribly crushed that she died a few minutes after being taken out.

The coroner, Dr. Woods, will hold an inquest immediately.

DRUG KILLED ONE, AND ANOTHER IS ILL

THEY TOOK AN OVERDOSE

Wingham, Ont., Dec. 30.—William Rennie, aged 20, is dead, and Thomas Kennedy, of Toronto, is very seriously ill as a result of taking an overdose of bromide and chloral. Kennedy will recover.

Rennie had been employed by Dr. J. P. Kennedy. Thursday evening he complained of being unable to sleep, and asked Dr. Kennedy to give him morphine. The doctor refused, and gave Rennie a small bottle of bromide. Rennie apparently took it all, and it is thought that, wanting some more, he came back to the doctor's office and while Dr. Kennedy was out took a bottle containing bromide and chloral, believing it to be the same stuff which he had been given. On going back to the Hotel National, where he boarded, he went into the room of Thomas Kennedy, an architect from Toronto, and gave him some of the drug and took a large dose himself. Both men soon afterwards were overcome.

POLICE MADE MISTAKE.

J. Howard Ford Discharged With Expressions of Regret From the Court.

London, Dec. 30.—The presiding magistrate of the Bow Street Police Court to-day formally discharged J. Howard Ford, who was arrested by mistake at Dover at the request of the New York police authorities as he landed from the transatlantic steamer Lapland.

The police magistrate expressed his deepest regret at the mistake which had been made, and that Mr. Ford had been made to undergo the ordeal of appearing as a prisoner at the London Police Court.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED.

Frantic Mother Was Badly Burned in Attempt to Save Them.

St. Valerien, Que., Dec. 30.—While Mrs. Francois Roy was attempting to light the kitchen fire at her home near here the kerosene she was using exploded and the whole house was soon a mass of flames. Three of the six young children in the place made their escape, but the others were overcome and burned to a crisp. Mrs. Roy was badly burned in her frantic efforts to save her children. Time after time the frenzied woman attempted to push her way into the flaming building.

WANTED.

Girls at the Quaker Oats—Steady work.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—On account of the urgent requests of a very large number of all classes of citizens, I again present myself as a candidate for alderman, and as such I desire to make known some of my views in regard to the future welfare of our city, the citizens in general, and particularly the West Ward.

Having been a member of the Board of Works, I feel that outside portions of the different wards are to a certain extent neglected. For example Sherbrooke street west is in need of repairs and particularly in need of crossings. King street west, Thomas street, Bolivar street, William street and Pearl avenue, and in fact all that part of the city and vicinity formerly known as the Burnham property, which has been so well built up lately is deserving of the Council's early attention in the way of grading, crossings, sewer and water service and some new extensions made.

Also the northwest portion of the ward in the vicinity of Cedar, Elm, Donegal, Downie and Bonacord streets requiring grading and general improvement. Numerous portions of the other different wards are also in need of similar attention. AFTER these outside and other districts receive the attention due them I would very much like to see a portion of George, Charlotte and Hunter streets with a permanent roadway, for the following reasons:

During the fall and spring and when wet weather prevails, owing to heavy traffic, these streets become filthy and are not in keeping with a progressive city. Furthermore, when the weather is dry, it is impossible to subdue the due, and store keepers cannot possibly keep their goods and premises as clean as they would desire, and I am of the opinion, that due to this, myriads of germs must inevitably find their way into the stores and thence to the homes of the people. This nuisance can only be abated by the application of tons of [illegible] together with the traffic, cut up our streets and leave them in perpetual need of repair, and thus our money is wasted. Moreover this portion of the city is frequented by ladies and their children, while the former are doing their necessary shopping, and they as well as the hundreds of clerks and others employed in the stores are subject to the inconvenience of mud in the wet weather, dust in the dry weather and germs at all times.

Owing to its proximity to the many popular summer resorts of this district, Peterborough is visited by thousands of strangers during the summer and the absence of pavements on our roads is a poor advertisement and creates an impression of lack of progress, which is not in keeping with our flourishing city.

I would like to see the city acquire some land suitable for new industries particularly in the southern portion of the city, which is so conveniently intersected by both railways, and also so convenient to the Trent Canal.

I am strongly of the opinion that in order to make the necessary progress, we must inaugurate a different plan in order to obtain our share of new industries. Our city is admirably situated and cheap power must come our way. We possess more natural facilities than other cities and towns in Canada. Our education system is second to none, and altogether our city should appeal to strangers who are seeking a new home, either for the purpose of living retired, obtaining employment, or a location for a new industry.

What we need is co-operation from all classes of people, the Board of Trade and the Council. With sufficient amount of the right kind of public spiritedness manifesting itself, each doing their part, our city will surely grow, and we may look forward for a greater Peterborough.

If elected, I will do my utmost to put these views into effect.

Yours truly,
Jos. J. Duffus.

GORDON IN FAVOR OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—In certain quarters it has been said that I am not favorable to considering the Hydro-Electric Power question by the Council.

I beg to say that if I am elected a member of the Council, I WILL SUPPORT THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POLICY.

Since the Hon. Adam Beck has given his undertaking, on behalf of himself and the Ontario Government the ratepayers should not fail to pass the Hydro-Electric By-law to-day.

I strongly urge every ratepayer to vote favorably for the by-law to-day, as it is the only course open to get cheap power for the City of Peterborough, and I pledge myself, if elected, not to enter into any agreement unless a by-law, authorizing it, has been favorably voted on by the ratepayers.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

USING DECREE TO DEFEAT HOME RULE

PAPAL STATEMENT AS TO IMMUNITY OF PRIESTS IS BEING EMPHASIZED.

It's a Strong Campaign—Protestant Dailies are Waging a Strenuous Battle Over Issue.

London, Dec. 30.—The opposition press is seeking to use the recent Papal decree forbidding Roman Catholics from bringing priests or other ecclesiastics into lay courts on pain of excommunication for disobedience as an argument against the Government's Home Rule proposals. The organs of the opposition claim the decree makes the Pope dictator of the proposed Irish Parliament, which it is admitted, will be overwhelmingly Nationalist, and, therefore, overwhelmingly Catholic. The Government and Irish Nationalist newspapers combat this argument with the contention that the decree will be of no force in Ireland unless it is proclaimed by the Irish Roman Catholic bishops, who have not taken any action in the matter up to the present time.

The Dublin correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says the theory there is that the revival of the decree, which is an old one put in a clearer form, is due to Cardinal Logue, the Primate of Ireland, and Cardinal Bourne, of Westminster, who are said to be opposed to Home Rule and wish to kill it. The correspondent admits, however, that this theory doesn't jibe with the facts, as Cardinal Logue has been preaching Home Rule for a lifetime.

The Dublin Express, a strong Protestant organ, which was the originator of the propaganda, is now being backed by other anti-Catholic newspapers, which are evidently making an effort to influence Englishmen and Scotchmen who favor Home Rule to change their views.

Another coasting accident occurred at the West End on Thursday night, when Carl Breckenbridge, a young lad residing in the West End, was badly cut about the head, as a result of a coasting accident. Besides sustaining several nasty cuts about the face and head, he was badly shaken up. He was removed to his home, where his injuries were attended to.

A City of Salt

There is a city of salt situated at Wieliczka, a little municipality some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit ever portion of this marvellous city, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries. Horses have been brought to life and have died there, without seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful ball-room, which is 216 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem. The mines contain twenty-five miles of railway lines, and there is a tempting buffet at the railway station.

Why a Chinese Republic?

The statement that the revolution is likely to result in the formation of a Chinese Republic has caused a good deal of surprise in the Western world. When one thinks of it, however, this seems the most natural solution of the problem that will be presented by a successful revolution. The Manchu, a foreign dynasty, which has held power in China for some 300 years, is, of course, impossible since, as a matter of fact, the present

WICKERSHAM ILL

New York. — Attorney General Wickersham is reported to be ill at his home in Washington; not seriously, it is said.

When George W. Wickersham left his $100,000 a year practice with the Wall-st law firm of Strong and Cadwalader, to become President Taft's attorney-general at less than $10,000 a year it was announced that it was with great difficulty the president persuaded him to take the job; then it was reported that the president's brother, Henry Taft, also a member of the same Wall-st law firm, and powerful corporations for whom Henry Taft and Wickersham had worked, did the persuading — persuaded the president to give him the place.

Before Wickersham's advent in the department of justice at Washington, he was unknown except to the biggest of Big Business folk, J. P. Morgan, the sugar trust, the Chicago traction people, the New York street railway concerns. From them he had secured his monumental fees, which made him at one time the best paid lawyer in Wall-st. Not only was Wickersham one of the best paid, but he was one of the draniest.

By far the most important anti-trust suit begun by Wickersham was the case against the United States steel corporation, Oct. 27, 1911.

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Cousins Who Marry Is Told by Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew, or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of resemblance. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view to endeavouring to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, success, temper, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this—that the general resemblance between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the undesirability within certain degrees is founded on the closeness of [illegible]" Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marriage of [illegible] with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins."

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues Miss E. "that if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs, who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

Thoughts at 8 A. M.

I love to think of boyhood days when I the turkeys fed.
I used to fix their breakfast feed ere yet the sky was red.
I used to dry shampoo the horse and manicure the cow.
I love to lie in bed and think I needn't do it now.

I love to think of boyhood days when I rose at four
And fetched the water from the well, a hundred pails or more.
And then I dragged the harrow out and harrowed up the plow.
I love to lie in bed and think I needn't do it now.

Pigs From All Quarters

Old prints, old books, old anything, postcards or paintings, are all fit subjects to form a collection. But one of the most curious, and one of the most interesting collections is a museum of pigs.

Not five pigs, mind you, but model ones. For some years now the wife of mine host of the Green Man Hotel, at Blackheath, London, has been gathering together a wondrous assortment of model pigs. They are pigs in pewter, china, and ivory, earthenware, silver, and gun-metal; pigs that stand a foot high, and pigs that measure less than half an inch over all; pigs in fancy-dress, and pigs in clover; as paper-knives, inkstands, or ash-trays. In every form and shape there are pigs.

They have come from all over the world, and practically every country is represented. People have stayed at the hotel, admired the collection, and later from some far-away spot has come a pig.

How many there are it would be difficult to say. Many a time has their owner begun to number them, but lost count.

ARABI PASHA.

When the late Arabi Pasha received his pardon ten years ago, and was permitted to return to Egypt, he was very grateful. He expressed a hope, that he would be able to come to England to pay his respects to the King, and thank those who had helped him, but that hope was never realised. It is understood that it was on the recommendation of Lord Cromer that the exiled rebel was allowed to return to his native land, and the liberty accorded him does not appear in any way to have been abused. Arabi had sixteen children in exile with him in Ceylon, and the $250 allowance per month which he received from the Egyptian government he used to say was scarcely sufficient to provide for his large family.

New Garibaldi Died.

A book recently published thus describes the death of Garibaldi: "The end came in his white house at Caprera, on a June evening in 1882. The old sailer, farmer and fighter was propped up on the pillows to watch for the last time the sunlight gilding the waves and the granite rocks. While his life was slowly ebbing out, two little birds whom he had taught not to fear him fluttered in from the moor, and sat chirping on the window-sill. The attendants were about to drive them away lest they should disturb him, when that voice was heard once more by men, bidding them let the little birds come in, and always feed them after he was gone. And then the old warrior turned his face to the wall and quietly passed away."

A Time of Change.

We are in one of the great crisis of the world's history; the era of transition is full upon us, and there is no people which is not rocking on its waves. International relations are changing. Empires are being broken up, immemorial systems are passing away. Struggles are threatening that will involve half the human race.

FIRST MOVING PICTURE

Considerable discussion has been going on for some time past as to who originated cinema. Many claimants to the distinction have come forward, but after careful investigation it would appear that the honour really belongs to an Englishmen, Edward Muybridge, who emigrated from Kingston-upon-Thames in the forties, and settled in California, where later on he obtained an appointment as photographic surveyor of the Pacific Coast.

The first moving picture which he produced was really the outcome of a wager made between the Governor of California (Leland Stanford) and a friend as to whether a horse ever has four legs off the ground at the same moment while running. Muybridge was asked to settle the point. He placed 24 cameras in a line to cover each movement of the horse and the rider, the camera shutters being moved by connecting pieces of string which the animal broke as it passed. The result was a series of pictures showing each movement of the horse. It settled the argument, for Muybridge was able to show that except when jumping the horse never had all its feet off the ground at one time.

This experiment caused Muybridge to think what an interesting thing it would be to present the photos in motion. To do this he copied the method made familiar to many in the zoetrope. This toy was a pasteboard cylinder, with slits in the upper section, and when it revolved rapidly it reproduced drawings apparently in motion. To reproduce the effect upon a screen, using photographs was a mechanical feat which was finally conquered, the movements of the horse being shown, but no background. This was before the introduction of the flexible film for the camera, and before rapid photography had been developed.

Muybridge lived to see the wonderful moving picture of to-day. When he died in 1904 at his home in England, he left with officials of the community and his friends the photographs and much of the apparatus [illegible]

Race Dying Out.

There is at least one native race that is not dying out. This is the Maori, of New Zealand. According to statistics obtained in the census of Maoris taken in last March, the total native population of New Zealand is said to be 49,350, an increase for five years of 1617. In addition there are 215 Maoris on the Chatham Islands. It is a matter of difficulty to ascertain the number of half-castes living as Maoris. Probably all half-castes, and a large proportion of the Maoris as well in the South Island, now live in European fashion. The health of the natives has been generally good. There has been a great advance in the observance of sanitary laws, and the Maoris are beginning to realise that the excessive mortality amongst their children has been due to unsanitary conditions.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

MASTER OF ETON.

Canon Lyttelton Has a Passion for Beautiful Trees.

Nature study has an ardent and loyal supporter in the headmaster of Eton, Canon the Hon. Edward Lyttelton, who has kept his fifty-sixth birthday. It claimed Dr. Lyttelton at the age of sixteen when he began to learn to draw trees, which from that time onward exercised over him a most potent charm. The excitements of cricket notwithstanding, he has during a match gazed with delight on stately trees "in verdure clad."

Not very long ago Dr. Lyttelton drew in an unreported speech an interesting comparison between music and nature study. "Music," he pointed out, "stimulates the imagination, while nature study stimulates and steadies the imagination." He thinks that boys between the ages of eleven and sixteen, the most impressionable period in their lives, should be persuaded to regard nature study as a pleasure, and certainly not merely as something that may be useful in after-life.

Dr. Lyttelton denies that he is an autocrat. He regards, at all events, the genus puer with catholic and humorous sympathy, realising that the dunce at school may possess mental faculties which sooner or later develop. Dr. Lyttelton tells of a boy who, regarded as an idiot by masters and pupils, spent his holidays in Paris, bought a Continental Bradshaw, studied it intently, and ultimately knew the times of departure and arrival of every train; he eventually became, indeed, one of the cleverest of railway specialists.

Canon Lyttelton is almost perfectly ambidextrous, and when famous as a cricketer he was known to throw a cricket ball 105 yards with his right hand, and then, changing over, to throw it almost as far with his left.

Naturally this gift often enabled him by a quick change to run out an unsuspecting batsman. It is said that this little dodge of his "came off" triumphantly one day when playing for a clerical eleven, and the victim on retiring from the field was heard to murmur, "Hang it all! when playing parsons you don't expect to be diddled out."

BORN AFTER MOTHER'S BURIAL

Gruesome Experience of Woman, Who Rescued from Death by Courteous Grave-Digger, Lived to Add to Family Birth Roll.

To be buried alive is a fate of which many persons have a nervous dread which is by no means as fanciful as it appears. Very many cases have occurred in which a temporary suspension of animation has led to a living man or woman being actually fastened down into a coffin and even buried.

Most gruesome was the experience of the mother of Ebenezer Erskine, an Englishman, who was buried twenty years before her son was born. During an illness Mrs. Erskine was subject to faluting fits, and from one of these she was believed to have passed away. After the usual interval arrangements were made for her interment; and the village undertaker, who also served the community as sexton, measured her for coffin. The "deceased" was duly buried, and there but for the cupidity of the grave-digger-undertaker, her story would have ended. But a ring which had been buried on the poor lady's hand had attracted his greed, and after the funeral this worthy opened the grave one night and began to saw off the finger bearing the ring. A ringing scream from the supposed corpse almost scared the thief out of his wits, but his humanity overcoming his fear, he roused the parson's family, and the buried lady was restored to health at the expense of a finger.

A similar experience was that of the mother of the famous General Lee. Those sorrowing relatives calmly looked on while she was buried alive! It is related that she was fully aware of all the incidents of the funeral, but mustered strength to make a striking noise on the coffin lid when clods of earth began to descend heavily upon it. The sound attracted the sexton's notice, and he hastily [illegible] in time to save [illegible] suffocation.

A Thought for To-day

As in that which is above Nature, so in Nature itself: he that breaks one physical law is guilty of all. The whole universe, as it were, takes up arms against him, and all Nature, with her numberless and unseen powers is ready to average herself upon him, and on his children after him, he knows not when nor where. He, on the other hand, who obeys the law of Nature with his whole heart and mind, will find all things working together to him for good. He is helped and befriended alike by the stars above his head and the dust beneath his feet: because he is obeying the will and mind of Him who made sun, and dust, and all things: and who has given them a law which cannot be broken. — Kingsley.

QUICK MASTERS

Bobbie Burns Composed His Masterpiece "Tam o' Shanter" In One Day and Byron His Masterpiece In One Night.

Dr. John Brown, one of Ruskin's greatest friends, made an immortal name by one short story, "Rab and His Friends." Rab is a dog, and his history, full of a natural pathos and simplicity, is read, and will continue to be read, by old and young as long as the language lasts. Yet it was written in the first four hours of a midsummer morning. The author was then a young doctor, and he sat down to write his masterpiece at twelve o'clock midnight and finished at four o'clock in the morning. He was unaware that he had written anything exceptionally good, but the moment it appeared in print he found himself famous.

Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote his only novel in a week. This is the celebrated "Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia." His mother died at Lichfield in her ninetieth year, and in order to defray the funeral expenses, and to discharge some debts which she had left, he sat down to write a book. It took him seven days to complete, and he sent the sheets to the press without looking them over. He was paid $500 for the copyright, which was probably ten times more than he ever earned in the same space of time during any other period of his life. The book was an instant success and immediately became the talk of the town.

A Good Day's Work

Robert Burns composed his masterpiece, "Tam o' Shanter," in one day, in the open air. Burns went out of the house in the morning and, not returning, his wife joined him in the afternoon with her two children. Seeing that he was "crooning to himself" she forebore to interrupt him, but stayed in the fields at a distance, where she could see him. She observed him wildly gesticulating, and at times fairly leaping with joy. She said to Allan Cunningham, the poet, after her husband's death, "I wisht ye had seen him, he was in such ecstasy that the tears were happing down his cheeks." He committed the poem to writing by the riverside, and went into the house and read it to his wife at the fireside with great triumph. One of the most notable day's work ever done in Scotland!

"The Diverting History of John Gilpin," a ballad which contains upwards of sixty verses, was composed by Cowper in bed during the hours of one night. Lady Austen, Cowper's friend, told him the story one evening to cheer him up, and he said next morning not only that convulsions of laughter at his recollections of its incidents had kept him awake during the greater part of the night, but also that he had made a ballad of it. As soon as it appeared in print it was recited on the stage and became vastly popular, a popularity which it retains to this day.

Byron, delayed by bad weather at an inn at Cruchy for a couple of days, wrote that sublime poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon," perhaps the best known of all his works. He wrote it, almost as it stands, in one night, sitting up late, in a perfect frenzy of inspiration, and completing it before he retired to rest. The whole history of literature does not contain a more unique instance of rapid composition.

INDIAN CHIEFS PLEAD FOR ANCIENT DANCES

Oklahoma City. — Chiefs Cloud and Washee, representing the Cheyenne and Kiowa tribes, have successfully persuaded Gov. Cruse, of Oklahoma, to intervene at Washington to have the privilege of holding the gift and "willow" dances restored to the tribes.

Indian agents at Segar have threatened to forbid these ancient tribal customs. The willow dance marks the consecration of one of the men of the tribe to some particular mission. Only men take part. It lasts two days and there is a feast at the conclusion.

The gift dance is the occasion for a gathering of the tribes and the squaws join in it. Guests are loaded with gifts. The chiefs are indignant at the report that their tribal dances lead to trouble and lawlessness.

What poverty is like that of moral penury? When the head is poor, what mockery is money wealth!

Few people regret the times when they were silent, but many regret and often suffer because of imprudent speech.

People who pray on their knees on Sunday, and prey on their neighbors on Monday, need simplicity in their faith.

The essence of all good work is timeliness. For the right thing done at the wrong time is as bad as the wrong thing at any time.

COMPULSORY MILITARY SERVICE FOR WOMEN.

Germany Proposes Law to Enlist Them in Peace as in War.

Dusseldorf. — The Patriot Woman's League has appointed a committee to promote a law for compulsory military service of Germain women in war and peace times as nurses and helpers in the transportation, commissary and uniform departments of the navy.

THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilized nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognised when the average smoker tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, sidings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know All Who Heard That Years Ago — Can He Take Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything, under the sun worth knowing.

When next you run up against him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this marvel, ask him which city is the father city — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

Birth Stones.

For ages certain gems have been allotted to the months, each with its significance. The list given below is one generally accepted:—

January—Garnet: Constancy and fidelity.

February—Pearl or amethyst: Purity, peace of mind.

March—Jacinth or bloodstone: Courage in affection.

April—Diamond: Unchanging affection.

May—Emerald: Ensures happiness in love and domestic felicity.

June—Agate: Ensures long life, health, and prosperity.

July—Ruby: Exempts from love doubts and anxiety.

August—Moonstone: A charm for conjugal felicity.

September — Sapphire: Ensures cheerfulness.

October—Opal: Helpfulness and happy faith.

November — Topaz: Fidelity in friendship.

December — Turquoise: Success, happiness, and many friends.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he enlisted, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier, "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf."

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a pleasant seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, it's this way. If it's no' rain, it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's wan' if it's neither frost nor rain, it's rain; if it's no' rain, it's wind; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabbath."

W. WAINWRIGHT, Manager

G. N. GORDON FOR ALDERMAN

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, City of Peterborough,—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

As a candidate for Alderman for one of the two seats in the Centre Ward, I respectfully solicit your votes.

My platform is briefly this:

1.—Obtain Hydro-Electric estimates and reports as to prices, terms, &c., of obtaining power for the City's manufacturers, and for house and store lighting.

2.—Abate the nuisance caused by the G.T.R. using Bethune street as a shunting yard, which injuriously affects hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of realty.

3.—Obtain legislation allowing reduction of taxes on businesses and improvements and increasing taxation of land values, thus making the holders of vacant land pay their share of the taxes.

4.—Have every milk vendor's milk inspected at least fortnightly and a report with the milkman's name published showing the proportions of butter fat contained in each lot.

5.—Consideration of the question of permanent improvement of highways.

6.—Begin an aggressive campaign to obtain new industries, and inaugurate a strong publicity scheme.

There are two Aldermen to be elected for the Centre Ward, G. A. Gillespie is contesting one seat with J. R. Metheral and W. G. Morrow, of Charlotte street, is contesting the other seat with me.

If elected, I will energetically support a progressive campaign for the City's advancement.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season, I am.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

...attention ... That Have Been Made ... Lines.

It has often been suggested that a Royal Railway Museum should be formed in Great Britain on the lines of the Museum of Transportation in Berlin, where one may follow the story of travel by land and sea by visiting the models and relics exhibited. There would certainly be little difficulty in establishing such a museum in England, for most of the railways have already many curiosities of their lines at their headquarters.

At Euston, for instance, the London and Northwestern Railway have got together a remarkable collection of railway relics. Here one can see an unrestrained first copy of "Bradshaw," which only had thirty-six pages as compared with the 1,200 of the "Bradshaw" of today. Numberless old timetables are there, and the spade and barrow used by Sir Robert Peel in cutting the first sod of the Trent Valley line. In addition, there is a complete set of models of the early types of coaches and passenger trucks. A specimen of the truncheon with which a railway servant was armed in the early days when he had to act as porter, ticket collector, inspector, and policeman all rolled into one is numbered amongst the other curiosities of this remarkable collection.

Then, again, at Paddington Station, the Great Western Railway have got together a number of articles, which are added to from time to time, and each of which illustrates the progress of the railway from its earliest days. The pride of the museum is the collection of old prints which have been gradually got together during the last half century. They are very valuable, and form a gallery which, perhaps, is not, at its kind, surpassed in the country.

[illegible] dated from 1730 to 1750 show the views and views of landscapes on the routes now followed by the railway. One of the most curious of the prints shows an old oak tree at Moreton, near Hereford, which was used as a station on the Shrewsbury and Hereford line in the 'fifties. The stationmaster's office was inside the trunk, and it was from there that he issued tickets.

When railway stations first came into existence it was customary to have suspended outside them a big bell, which was sounded to give notice of the approach of trains. The Great Western have preserved one of these bells, which used to hang in the footway leading to Windsor Station.

Two years ago the company, to their great regret, had to destroy one of their most prized possessions. This was the engine, "Lord of the Isles," which was running in 1849. It was a fine example of the typical locomotive of that day, but unfortunately the company had no place in which to store it. It was offered to the South Kensington Museum, but was refused by the authorities there.

Ten Years Ago.

It was just ten years ago that Argonauts defeated Ottawa and won the Ontario championship. The Argo team that day was as follows: Fullback, Irving Ardagh; right half-back, Hardisty; centre half, Percy Darling; left half, Henderson; quarter, Russell Britton; scrummage, Phil Boyd (right), Joe Wright (centre), Banty Russell (left); wings, Langton (inside right), Bill Brant (left), Leslie Wilson (middle right), Pud Kent (captain, left), Chummy Hill (outside right), Chadwick (left); flying wing, Parmenter. Banty Russell and Pud Kent are the only two who have played in this season's games.

About a week afterwards the contractor returned with the information that his men were fairly quarrelling as to who should use the new tools, some arriving to work a quarter of an hour before time in order to be there first when the tool-box was opened. The navvy's suggestion had proved a good one; a patent was secured, and an agreement made between the navvy, the manufacturer, and the contractor. When the navvy died he left a fortune of over $335,000 the proceeds from royalties on the manufacture of shovels under his patent.

FAMOUS SNUFF-TAKERS

The eighteenth century was the age of snuff-taking "par excellence." The custom was general among all classes of people, it was an act of politeness for well-bred men to offer their snuff-boxes to well-bred women. Women themselves carried their own boxes, and interchanged pinches with the gentlemen and in Canada it was fashionable amongst the officials.

At fashionable dinner-parties after the cloth was removed snuff-boxes were passed around. Pope and Bolingbroke, Swift and Congreve, Addison and Steele, all indulged in the pleasures of snuff. Dr. Johnson carried his snuff in the capacious pockets of his waistcoat, and would convey it to his nose without stint. He could not abide the narrow confines of a box. Frederick the Great resembled him in this respect. Both Napoleon and Wellington were prodigious snuff-takers, but Washington indulged only moderately. Jefferson was fond of snuff, as his waistcoat and frill often showed. Henry Clay was another famous snuff-taker, and often needed the stimulus of a pinch when making a speech.

COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Company was incorporated in 1906, and has made steady progress. Their Real Estate holdings are chiefly in and around Calgary and will so continue, but latterly they have been paying a little attention to Saskatoon, where such remarkable progress is being made. It will be the policy of the Company to purchase judiciously in and near Towns and Cities which have passed the uncertain stage of development and whose future is assured. The Company, with its expert knowledge of values is better able to handle such business than any individual, however well equipped he may be for the work

While the Company has been, and will continue to be, conservative in the matter of dividends, it would appear probable that before very long a distribution of Assets, either in the shape of a Stock Bonus or substantial Cash Dividend, might be made If not, however, the Shareholders will still benefit by holding a security of constantly increasing value, which will be reflected in the market price of the stock.

The remarkable progress of the City of Calgary is perhaps without precedent in Canada. Building permits issued during the ten months ended 31st October, 1911, reached the enormous total of $11,-...,136.00

HIGHER DIVIDEN D PROSPECTS

Mr. H. A. MacLean, President of the Company, in a letter dated 15th November, 1911, makes the following reference to Dividend and Reserve Fund: "While I can say nothing official at this time, I may mention that at the Company's Annual Meeting, following its year-end at 31st December, it is my intention to recommend that the Dividend for 1911 be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, which will be an advance of 1 per cent. over the Dividend for 1910. I consider it safe to say in this connection, also, that the Dividend for 1912 will be at the rate of 12 per cent.

"The Asset and Liability Return covering the ten months ended 31st October shows, after allowing for all expenses and outlays of every kind, except the 1911 Dividend, a surplus of Assets over Liabilities of $311,736.72. The 1911 Dividend will amount to approximately $40,000.00, leaving a net surplus of approximately $271,736.72, equal to 90 per cent. of the Company's paid-up Capital. This amount may be fairly considered as a Reserve fund in its present shape, and the Company might continue with safety along its present lines. It is my intention, however, at the approaching Annual Meeting, to propose that a portion equal to 25 per cent. of the Real Estate forming this surplus, be set aside, and advantageously sold—the proceeds of such sale to be invested in high grade listed Railroad Bonds, yielding the Company about 5 per cent. This operation, repeated from year to year, will give the Company a reserve fund of pretty much the same nature as is carried by the Banks and other conservatively managed institutions."

COMPANY'S DIVIDEND RECORD

The Company has paid Dividends every year since its incorporation as follows:

1907	6 per cent.
1908	8 per cent.
1909	9 per cent.
1910	10 per cent.

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

The Company's statement of assets and liabilities as of October 31st, 1911, attested to by Messrs. Webb, Read & Hegan, appears in full in the prospectus. It shows the value of the Company's real estate and buildings, as valued by Mr. V. J. L. Eccles, to stand at $584,111, and balance of profit and loss account $311,736. Of the Company's authorized capital of $1,000,000, $398,380 is subscribed, $301,857.50 of which is paid up, leaving $96,522.50 of unmatured and unpaid calls.

Inquiries as to the Company's standing and the integrity and ability of the directors (of whom the President, Managing Director and Secretary-Treasurer devote their time exclusively to the Company's business) may be made of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal.

It is the intention to make application in due course to have the stock listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Copies of prospectus and application forms for shares may be obtained from the undersigned, and in cases where the request for application forms states the number of shares desired it will be considered that application has been received at that date. The right is reserved, however, to allot a smaller number of shares than applied for.

Twixt Bull and Bear.

Lincoln stories are common, and the tellers of them are not as accurate in ascertaining their genuineness as they are prolific in producing them. The following tale may or may not be a real Lincoln." It is, in any event, a good story:

Two farm-hands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole in the tree that proved to have an exit in the rear.

The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow, the bull made for him. He turned and again shot through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole.

The strange pursuit kept up some minutes. At first it mystified the farm-hand up in the tree. Then it angered him.

"Hey," he shouted, "you idiot! Why don't you stay in the hole?"

The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout, and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"Idiot yourself! There's a bear on the hole."

Musician and Scientist.

There is no more brilliant scientist in the world to-day than Sir William Ramsay, who has been warning Britain that, at the present rate of consumption, her coal supply will only last another 175 years. His most wonderful discoveries have been in connection with new gases in the atmosphere, upon which such names as argon, neon, and xenon have been bestowed, and the experimental work which led to these discoveries ranks as the most refined ever carried out. Of xenon, for example, there is only about one part in 70,000,000 parts of air. Sir William devotes his leisure to music. He plays both the piano and violin and has written the words of not a few songs. The collecting of curios is another of Sir William's hobbies, and at his house at Regent's Park may be seen many queer treasures thousands of years old.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 807 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

- Pain in the back.
- Too frequent desire to urinate.
- Pain in the groins in the bladder.
- Frequent headache.
- Pain or pain in the stomach.
- General debility, weakness, dizziness.
- Pain or soreness under right rib.
- Soreness in any part of the body.
- Constipation or fever trouble.
- Pain in the heart.
- Pain in the joints.
- Pain in the small of the back.
- Pain in the muscles of the abdomen.
- Pain in the muscles of the shoulders.

BY-LAW NUMBER 644

A By-law to authorize the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan to execute an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the right to use a Highway in the Township of North Monaghan as therein mentioned.

Passed 17th day of November, 1911.

WHEREAS The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has applied to the Council of the Township of North Monaghan for the franchise and right for a period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the public highway or road, which may be better known as "The Monaghan Road" extending Southerly from Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances for the purposes of the said Railway, and the Council and Company have agreed on the terms and conditions on which in the opinion of the Council the said right should be given, which terms and conditions have been reduced to writing, and are fully set out herein, and it is necessary that the said terms and conditions and the period for which said right is to be granted should be submitted to the vote of the Electors of the Municipality in the manner provided in the Consolidated Municipal Act (1903) and the Ontario Railway Act 1906 with respect to By-laws requiring the assent of the Electors.

THEREFORE the Corporation of the Township of North Monaghan by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. The Council of the Township of North Monaghan are hereby authorized to enter into an Agreement with The Peterborough Radial Railway Company in the words and figures following, namely:

THIS AGREEMENT made in duplicate the 17th day of November, 1911, between THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, hereinafter called the "Corporation," of the FIRST PART and THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY COMPANY, hereinafter called the "Company," of the SECOND PART.

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto and dated the Fourteenth day of March, 1904, the Corporation did grant unto the Company a franchise and right for the period of thirty years, therein set forth, together with the exemption therein referred to, and

WHEREAS by Agreement made and entered into between the parties hereto, and dated the Nineteenth day of September, 1904, the Corporation did further grant unto the Company an extension of said Franchise to the Boundary Line running along the Western limit of the City of Peterborough from Charlotte Street to the Northern boundary of the Township of North Monaghan, and

WHEREAS the parties have further agreed to further extend the said Franchise from the north side of Charlotte Street southerly along the highway known as the Monaghan Road (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan), to the water's edge of the River Otonabee in the Township of North Monaghan.

1. WITNESSETH that the Corporation doth hereby upon and subject to the terms, provisoes and conditions hereinafter referred to and contained, and subject to the Special Statute incorporating the Company, and of the Sections of the Railway Act applying to the said Company, grant to the said Company the Franchise and right for the period of twenty-four years from the First day of July, 1910, to use the Public Highway or Road, which may be known as "The Monaghan Road" extending southerly from the north side of Charlotte Street, (and which Road constitutes the boundary between the City of Peterborough and the Township of North Monaghan) to the water's edge of the River Otonabee, in the Township of North Monaghan, for the purpose of a Street Railway, including the right to place the necessary poles, wires, ties, rails, turn-outs and other appliances thereon for the purpose aforesaid. Provided, however, that the rails shall be laid along the centre of the road allowance as far South as Cameron Street and that from the North side of Cameron Street South to the River Otonabee the rails shall be laid on the portion of the highway designated by the Township Council.

2. AND it is expressly declared and agreed by and between the parties hereto that wherever in this agreement the parties of the First Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Corporation, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns, and wherever in this agreement the parties of the Second Part are referred to under that designation, or as the Company, the same shall extend to and include as far as applicable their successors and assigns.

3. AND the Company do hereby covenant, promise and agree with the Corporation in manner following, that is to say:

4. THAT the propelling power of such railway will be horse, electricity, or any other power except steam as the Company wish to adopt and put in operation.

5. THAT the Company will lay the rails flush with the road, and so as to cause the least possible impediment to ordinary traffic, that the same will be laid in accordance with the existing level or grade of the road at the time of laying the same or as near thereto as is compatible with a proper execution of the work.

6. THAT the Company will so construct and maintain the railway that the same will not interfere with that the Company will maintain their roadbed between their rails and the water tables and drainage, and ditchstrip in the same manner as the remainder of the Highway is maintained.

7. THAT the Corporation shall not be liable to the Company for any damage the Company may incur or sustain from the breakage of any sewer or water pipe or for any damage or delay that may be caused by the construction of sewers, laying of water pipes or repairing the same or from any delay that may be caused by freshets or fires.

8. THAT it shall and may be lawful for the Corporation to lay down or permit to be laid down in the road water pipes and gas pipes, and to alter and repair or permit to be altered and repaired the same respectively, and also subject to Section 5 hereof to grade, alter, improve and repair the road whenever public convenience may so require without cost or claim for damages against the Corporation for interruption or interference with the traffic of the Company or its railway.

9. THAT in case the Company shall refuse or on reasonable notice, neglect to do and perform any matter or thing required by the Franchise or contract thereunder to be done and performed by the Company the same matter or thing may be done by the Corporation and the cost thereof recovered from the Company.

10. THAT the Company shall and will at all times indemnify and save harmless the Corporation from and against all loss, costs, charges, expense, suits, actions, claims and demands whatever arising or occurring by reason of the constructing, maintaining or operating of the said railway or in anything connected with or relating thereto, including the cost of said Townsaip Engineer.

11. THAT each car will be numbered and supplied with a gong to be sounded on approaching and crossing an intersecting street, or in case any person or vehicles shall appear on or near the track.

12. THAT the fares to be charged by the Company will be the same as those charged in the City of Peterborough, and the payment of fare upon any part of the line hereinbefore provided for will entitle the passenger to be carried to any part of the railway line in the City of Peterborough without additional fare.

13. IT shall be the duty of the Company when removing snow from its tracks to spread the same evenly upon the Highway so that the same will not injuriously affect the travel on that part of the Highway outside the Company's tracks.

14. SHOULD the Company forfeit its Franchise in the City of Peterborough the Township Council may declare this Franchise to be forfeited and cancelled.

15. IT is understood and agreed that the Company is to put the highway on each side of the track in as good a condition for general travel as the travelled part of the road was before the laying of the tracks.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY-LAW NUMBER 1639

A By-Law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws:—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. THAT the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say:—On the 9th, 16th and 23rd days of December A. D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George Street between Brock and Murray Streets, on Hunter Street between George and Aylmer Streets and between Water and Queen streets, and on Charlotte St. between George and Aylmer Streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets in the City of Peterborough, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing signed by him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912, at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW, Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration [illegible] the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Council Chamber, December 7, 1911.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Heaviness at Pit of The Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and heavy [illegible] with that heavy feeling [illegible] the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a weighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises, gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

You'll find a hundred uses for Nerviline—it's a trusty household remedy that sells to the extent of a million bottles per year—that's the best proof that it must cure and give unlimited satisfaction. Refuse anything offered in place of Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS SHOT

When Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and their party sat down in their box at Ford's Theatre the fateful night the President was shot, the guard who was acting as substitute for Col. McCook, took his position at the rear of the box, close to an entrance leading into the box from the dress circle of the theatre. His orders were to stand there, fully armed, and to permit no unauthorized person to pass into the box. His orders were to stand there and protect the President at all hazards. From the spot where he was thus stationed, this guard could not see the stage or the actors, but he could hear the words the actors spoke, and he became so interested in them that, incredible as it may seem, he quietly deserted his post of duty, and, walking down the dimly lighted aisle, deliberately took a seat in the last row of the dress circle. It was while the President was thus absolutely unprotected through this guard's amazing recklessness—to use no stronger words—that Booth rushed through the entrance to the box just deserted by the guard, and accomplished his foul deed. Realization of his part in the assassination so prayed upon the mind of the guard that he finally died as a result of it.

POPULAR SONGS

Romantic Origin of Some Well Known Songs — How "Killarney" and "The Star Spangled Banner" Were Composed.

Composers tell many a curious and romantic story of the birth of songs which have become world-famous; and few of them are more remarkable than those told by Signor Tito Mattei.

"Several of my best songs," he says, "have come to my mind whilst idly strumming with my fingers on a window-pane or table; and my well-known 'Hear the Wild Winds Blow' was written when I was having an oyster supper."

"Dear Heart" had an equally curious origin. One night when the Signor went to see his publisher, Mr. Keppel, the latter produced a sheet of paper, saying, "Here are some pretty words; what do you think of them?" The composer glanced at the manuscript and, walking to the piano, instantly played the four last line of the air which has since been sung all the world over. The same evening the song was complete, and the following morning Mr. Keppel and the Signor were drinking to its success in "repeated glasses of champagne."

The sweet and universally popular "In Old Madrid" came to Mr. H. Trotère one evening as he was returning home from the Theatre. He had no paper on which to jot it down, nor had the publican into whose house he rushed any to offer him. But, catching sight of some biscuit-bags, he seized one, and in a few moments the famous melody was written down.

"Go to Sea" was composed within a quarter of an hour was jotted down "Ashore" was written by Mr. Clifton Bingham and set to music by Mr. Trotère after lunching at Restaurant; and "The Brow of the Hill" eclipsed even these marvellous records, for Mr. Trotère composed the melody, wrote a letter, and ran 400 yards to catch the post, all within eight minutes!

Of "Killarney" a strange story is told. One day Boucicault took the words of the song to Balfe. Mrs. Balfe took them upstairs to her husband, who, after glancing through them, sat down to the piano. Scarcely had his wife left the room when the composer excitedly called her back. "I have done the song," he exclaimed. "It is sweet. Tell Boucicault to come and hear it."

It was while dreaming the time away in his yacht, that Michael Maybrick's great song, "The Holy City," came to him in a flood of inspiration. Hastily writing down the voice part, he called his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Maybrick, to the cabin and asked her to sing it while he extemporized an accompaniment: and within half an hour of reading Mr. Weatherley's words the glorious song was sung by the woman who, but little later, was to make the world ring with her name.

In the war of 1812 Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner" on seeing the flag floating over Fort McHenry. When he returned to his division, we are told, he read it aloud once, twice, three times, until the entire division seemed electrified by its pathetic eloquence. An idea seized Ferdinand Durang. Hunting up a volume of flute music, he impatiently whistled snatches of tune after tune as they caught his eye. Note after note fell from his puckered lips until, with a leap and a shout, he exclaimed, "Boys, I've got it!" and there rang out for the first time the song of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

WHEN BIRDS BREED

Few Experts Can Really Tell When Birds Breed for Even When in Captivity They Baffle Those In Charge.

Although a thousand and one ornithological volumes have been written, it is a curious fact that not a scrap of information is to be found in any of them regarding the ages at which different species of birds breed in the wild state. This discovery has been made by a writer who suggests that as, in most cases, birds breed as a matter of course in their second season, writers have assumed that there is nothing to be said on the subject.

Dr. Seth Smith, who is in charge of the birds at the Zoological Gardens, London, says that in all probability many of the parrots do not breed till they are three or four years old — that is to say, till their fourth or fifth season. Geese, however, according to the same authority, are an exception to this generalisation, as, in common with sheldrakes and some of the pheasants, they breed in their second season. Possibly, as regards geese, this applies only to domesticated breeds.

Pigeons and the majority of gamebirds attain their full plumage in the first summer; and the presumption accordingly is that they breed in their second season. That this is the case with partridges is rendered evident by the fact that in their second season, all the birds, with possibly a few accidental exceptions, are paired

BONAR LAW NEW LEADER

Says that the Canadian Elections Were a Declaration for Reciprocal Preference.

(Special Cable Service.)

LONDON.—Andrew Bonar Law, the new Unionist leader in the House of Commons, who succeeded Mr. Balfour, made his first speech at a leader at the annual conference of the Conservative associations of Great Britain at Leeds.

Mr. Law dwelt at length upon the Canadian elections, paying a warm tribute to ex-Premier Laurier as being the first to give preference to Great Britain and thereby setting an example to be followed by the other dominions. His admiration for Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not abated a jot when he rejoiced at the result of the elections. It was an ignorant and impudent claim, he said, that the elections did not bear upon the cause of preference. They were, and are, an emphatic reminder that reciprocal preference is the aim of Great Britain's autonomous dominions.

AMERICAN JEWS AND RUSSIA

"American Diplomacy Spoke to Russia for Special Interests and Not for the Whole American People," Says Wilson.

(Publishers Press News Service)

New York. — Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, in an interview, says:—

Jersey, in an interview, says: —

"For some eighty years a treaty has existed between this country and Russia tin which it is explicitly covenanted and agreed that the inhabitants of the two nations shall have the liberty of entering any part of the territory of either that is open to foreign commerce; that they shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of the territory thus opened to commerce in order to attend to their affairs and that they shall enjoy the same security and protection as inhabitants of the country in which they are sojourning, on condition of course that they submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing, and particularly to the regulations there in force concerning commerce.

For some forty years the obligations of this treaty have been disregarded by Russia in respect to our Jewish fellow-citizens.

If the Russian government has felt through all these years that it could ignore the protest of American ministers and secretaries of state, it has been because the American government spoke for special interests or from some special point of view, and not for the American people. It is the fact that the attention of the American people has now been drawn to this matter that is altering the [illegible] of it.

Vast Economy.

"Your [illegible] mean bring you a large salary?" said the diffident interviewer.

"Oh, yes," replied the prima donna complacently. "And, besides, think of the enormous sums I save by getting to hear myself sing for nothing."—Washington Star.

In Austria, between Laibach and Trieste, a few miles distant from the former, are the famous Adlesberg caves, visited by thousands of sightseers every year. A feature of these caves, visited by thousands of sight-215 yds. broad, and 190 ft. in height. In this hall the Austrian Government has lately established a post-office at which stamps and illustrated postcards are sold to visitors. Each card bears a special post-mark denoting the fact of its having been mailed in the lower regions. In the first few months after the opening of the post-office the number of cards dispatched amounted, on an average, to 10,000 a day.

Judge Got the Baby.

A few days ago an Iowa county court judge tried to imitate King Solomon in his well-known decision respecting the child that was claimed by two women. In the Iowa Court two women claimed to be the mother of a child that was produced before the judge. Thinking that history might repeat itself, the judge asked for the infant. Then, opening his knife, he announced his intention of cutting the child in half. Whereupon one of the mothers exclaimed, "Oh, no! If it comes to that you may keep the child yourself," and both women left the court.

"It appears to me that Solomon was a very over-rated man," murmured the judge.

Local Option in 87 Contests.

JOURNA[illegible]

Pitfalls for the T[illegible]

Some of the [illegible]

Made by Men Whose P[illegible]

Is to Clothe News.

Receiving a telegram of "La Joconde stolen from the Louvre," referring to the now famous theft of Da Vinci's masterpiece in Paris, the 'Chicago Methodist Chronicle' made a bad mistake in "expanding" this into:—

"Intelligence has just reached us that a young lady visitor, Miss Joconde, was abducted in open daylight by a daring ravisher while she was visiting the Louvre Museum. This regrettable incident is a fresh proof of the dangers which honourable young women run, not only in the streets, but even in the public establishment of the modern Babylon."

Terrible Tibet.

The "expander" — one of the essential accessories of a telegraphic news agency — is always liable to this sort of thing. When Mr. Savage Landor, the well-known traveller, reached Russia not long ago, after his last journey through Tibet, a cable agency wired the news thus briefly: "Savage Landor arrived St. Petersburg from Tibet suffering hands natives." An imaginative sub-editor on one of the Australian papers, who seems never to have heard of Mr. Landor, thus expanded it: "A savage Landor got into St. Petersburg yesterday, and the people of the city were terrified. After considerable difficulty the beast, which came from Tibet, was captured, taken to a remote place, and there dispatched. It is said that this is the first animal of the sort ever seen in Rusia. How he reached the city after his fight with the natives of Tibet, which is a comparatively unknown country, is a mystery."

Newspaper Hash.

It was another Australian paper which received a wire of "Apaches rising in Micareme," and, believing this to refer to the Red Indian Apaches, gave a vivid account of a massacre by red men in North America, with as much vague detail of the town of Micareme as it could invent at the moment and keep safe. Only after publication did it discover that the Apaches were the hooligans of Paris, and Mi-carême a well-known carnival festival in France!

One of the largest London dailies made a similar hash of a telegram announcing the arrival of one of our fleets off Lagos. This is Lagos in Portugal, but the news editor got mixed in his Continents, and supposed it to be the other Lagos — in West Africa. Hence the expanded message, printed as though wired direct from West Africa, gave a glowing description of the locality: "It was a glorious sight for an Englishman in exile on this far-away coast to watch the great fleet enter the bay. The valley through which the river runs is much broken up by dykes (etc., etc.). Such is Lagos. The men were not allowed on shore, nor does one wonder at this, for it must be confessed that there are few places that tempt the visitor less than Lagos."

Only next day did the news editor learn, from sarcastic friends on rival papers, that the fleet was hundreds of miles away from the scene of the "calamity."

Friendship of Books

To fall in love with a good book is one of the greatest events that can befall us. It is to have a new influence pouring itself into our life, a new teacher to inspire us, a new friend to be by our side always, who, when life grows narrow and weary, will take us into his wider and calmer and higher world.

Whether it be biography, introducing us to some humble life made great by duty done; or history, opening vistas into the movements and destinies of nations that have passed away; or poetry, making music of all the common things around us, and filling the fields and the skies and the work of the city and the cottage with eternal meanings — whether it be these, or religious books or science, no one can become the friend even of one good book without being made wiser and better.

$850 FOR CUP AND SAUCER.

London. — A sale of rare Nantgarw porcelain at Christie's included a Bristol teacup and saucer, painted with figures emblematic of liberty, sold for $850. A hexagonal teapot and cover of Chinese enamelled porcelain went for $750. Another similar one went for $525.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. WRITE US for full information.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Applications for shares should be sent to

TO HOLD HATPINS

Sticking one's hatpins into the pincushion generally results in the ruin of a dainty cover and very much detracts also from the attractive and harmonious effect of the dressing table. It is much wiser to have a special receptacle for them.

A very pretty and useful hatpin holder can be made by covering a glass tube with ribbon. These tubes can be bought at many of the large shops. They are just long enough to hold the hatpin, are closed at the bottom, and finished at the top with a flip like rim. After buying the glass buy ribbon to match the decorations of your room just wide enough to make a cover for the glass by sewing two pieces together. The cover may be either the length of the tube and put on smooth, or it may be longer and shirred on each side. The latter way is prettier, but it will catch dust and must be frequently brushed out.

At the bottom of the case the ribbon is gathered together tightly, and either a tassel sewed on or a bunch of bows of baby ribbon. At the top it is finished by hemming each piece of ribbon separately, not sewing the pieces together. The hem must be wide enough to come out beyond the rim of the glass. A long loop of the baby ribbon is sewed at the top of each seam to hang the case up or one piece of ribbon may be used, an end sewed at each side. In either case a small bunch of bows is used as a finish where the ribbon is sewed.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS

Worm-Catherers.

A little known and seldom heard of trade is that of the worm-gatherer, who flourishes greatly at Nottingham, England. The worm-gatherer does not have a particularly easy job, neither does he earn what might be termed a "high salary."

His duties consist of collecting worms from out of the ground and selling them to the fishing depots.

The prices paid for worms are at the rate of about 50 cents per 1,000.

The "wormers'" busiest time is during wet weather, for then the worms crawl out of the earth, and are easier to "trap." During the recent drought the "wormers" of Nottingham have had a rough time, and they have been agitating for higher prices for their "catches."

They have demanded an extra 25 cents per 1,000 worms from the fishing-tackle dealers. A compromise has been arrived at by the dealers agreeing to pay from 60 to 75 cents per 1,000, according to the quality of the worms.

Thus was a strike of "wormers" averted.

Immortal.

Mr. Fred. Terry, who went from a sick bed and, propped up amongst a heap of cushions in one of the boxes, watched the triumph of his daughter, Miss Neilson Terry at the New Theatre, London, in "Romeo and Juliet," recently, tells a story which, while amusing, illustrates the popular actor's thoroughness. "One day," he says, "we were rehearsing the death scene in "The Heel of Achilles,' and a member of my company came in from the street and asked the call-boy how far the rehearsal had gone. 'Mr. Terry's just dying,' replied the boy. 'Good; I've time to smoke a cigarette before my entrance.' Presently the actor returned, and repeated the question. 'Still dying,' answered the boy. 'Oh, I'll go and have another cigarette then.' Back he came, but only got the same reply from the call-boy. Finally, after smoking five cigarettes, he asked, a little wearily, how far the rehearsal had gone. 'Still dying,' answered the call-boy. 'Great heavens!' gasped the actor, 'he must be immortal!'"

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says, "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

Advertising by Water.

An ingenious method has just been put on the Parisian market. According to details given in "La Publicité" the machine prints an announcement on the ground in water, which it sprays upon the soil in a fine shower. The letters or signs will last from twenty to thirty minutes, until the evaporation of the water is complete, and as the spray of water also serves the welcome purpose of laying the dust, the invention will doubtless be accorded a heartier welcome than the majority of advertising devices of this nature receive.

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution says that it is desirable that governments decide whether to punish those having opium illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges that governments restrict the traffic in opium substances to medicinal and legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegate declared that a future conference should consider governments interested in the production and consumption of opium should arrive at an agreement limiting the trade there in to international requirements already existing.

HANGED IN THE YARD

Jail Yard to Be Scene of Future Executions Instead of Institution.

Scene of Execution Shifted From Jackson. — The scene of executions hanging was hastily changed from the local jail yard to the town opera house here lately to prevent possible trouble.

Will Turner, a negro preacher, was to pay the death penalty for the murder of Jesse Singley, a white man, last August. A large crowd gathered in the jail yard, and, fearing serious trouble, the authorities quickly moved Turner to the theatre and he was hanged on the stage there but few witnessed.

NEW UNION'S POPULATION.

The population of the South African Union, according to the preliminary returns issued of the census taken May 7, 1911, is 5,956,490. Of this total 1,278,925 are European or white and 4,680,474 African or Asiatic. The population by provinces are: Cape of Good Hope, 583,177 white and 1,979,847 Asiatic; Natal, 98,582 white and 1,093,376; all others Transvaal, 420,831 white and 1,255,780 all others; Orange Free State, 175,435 white and 351,471 all others; The increase since 1904 is 783,675 or 15 per cent., the white population having increased by 161,219 or 14 per cent., and the colored population by 621,456 or 15 per cent.

It Happens in Lindsay.

The Owen Sound Sun says, that the firemen of Lindsay are thinking seriously of sending in a bill to the post office department for the time and labor expended on their run in an answer to a call of fire. They turned out at the call from box 32, and after a hard run through the city streets found that there was no fire. The alarm had been sent in by a lady, trying to post a letter in the fire alarm box. The firemen think that the least she could have done, after bringing them down, was to wait, so that they might have taken the letter to the post office for her.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was impeded by the want of a dowry.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveller of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would waken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the travelling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4890

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James Matchett.

There passed away with terrible suddenness on Saturday afternoon, at the family residence, Murray street, Mrs. James Matchett. On Thursday last Mrs. Matchett was taken ill with bronchitis, which carried her off. She leaves besides a sorrowing husband, one son and two daughters, Mrs. R. J. Matchett, Miss Beatie Matchett, Mrs. J. Sharpe of all of this city; and also a sister and brother, Mrs. West of this city, and Mr. D. P. Macfarlane of California. The deceased lady was 67 years of age and was born in Otonabee, where she lived until her marriage to Mr. Jas. Matchett. Since then she has resided here, and was a staunch and highly respected member of St. Paul's church.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at two o'clock.

Many are the anecdotes told of "Dobs," one of the best essays a "Daily Mail" writer), although I do not vouch for its accuracy. He was watching the firing at Bisley and noticed two or three errors on the part of the markers. So he went to the telephone and rang up the officer in charge. "The marking is very bad," he observed. "It's the best you'll get," retorted the officer. "Do you know who I am?" sternly demanded Lord Roberts. "No, I don't." "I am Lord Roberts." "Well, I am Lord Wolseley," came the reply. Lord Roberts loves a joke, but how he took this one is not recorded.

Hon. Adam Beck showed conclusively on Thursday night that Peterboro's industrial salvation is bound up in the present government offer. I pledge myself to do all in my power to see that this great scheme is not blocked but is successfully carried through. I solicit your vote. Yours truly,

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

VOTE FOR

W. G. MORROW

IN CENTRE WARD.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Centre Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Bradburn, I respectfully ask your vote and influence in my behalf. If elected I pledge myself to conserve the city's interests by advancing and supporting as economic a civic government as is consistent with twentieth century progress, and to bid for industries on reasonable conditions. I will also advocate improved bridge connection between East and West Peterborough, by means of additional service at a point that will prove most advantageous to the city as a whole. On the municipal power question, my vote will only be given for the cheapest, whether that be Hydro-Electric Commission or otherwise.

Wishing you all the compliments of this joyous season, I remain,

Yours truly,

W. G. MORROW.

EX-ALDERMAN GILLESPIE

IN CENTRE WARD

To the Electors of the Centre Ward of Peterborough,

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been again urged by a large number of ratepayers interested in the welfare of the City, I have consented to accept the nomination for Aldermen in the Centre Ward, for 1912.

My previous record in the Council is known to you all. If again honoured with your confidence I will endeavour to render such efficient service as will conduce to the best interests of the city irrespective of wards or boundaries.

As my business engagements will not permit me to personally interview the Electors, I take this means of soliciting your votes and influence. And wishing you all health, wealth and prosperity the coming year.

Yours respectfully,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

FOR NORTH WARD.

To the Ratepayers,—

I ask your support for election to the Council of 1912, I am in favor of the Hydro-Electric By-law, but will support only such proposition as will give the city the lowest possible rates for power and light.

I will be watchful of the city's interests and endeavour to have its affairs administered economically, consistent with progress of the city.

Your very respectfully,

WILLIAM LANGFORD, JR.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT

JOS. R. METHERAL

IN CENTRE WARD

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

I have been entrusted with your confidence for the past three years and my record stands open before you. It may show no extraordinary ability, but an endeavour to be straight-forward and honest in all dealing. I have not been swayed by cliques or outside influences; but voted and worked at all times in the interests of the ratepayers in general and will continue to do so in the future, if re-elected. I would advise the electors to vote for the Hydro-Electric Commission Power By-law. I firmly believe that the Hydro-Electric Commission will give Peterborough power at rates considerably reduced from those at present in force, but I pledge myself that no contract for power either with the Hydro-Electric Commission or private corporation shall be signed by the City Council without a By-law to that effect being submitted to the ratepayers.

Wishing you all the compliments of the season.

JOS. R. METHERAL.

VOTE FOR

ALDERMAN JAS. EDGAR

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Electors of the West Ward, City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having been duly nominated as a candidate for Alderman from the West Ward, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge myself to legislate for economic government in broad lines, and to advocate the permanent improvement of highways, and the provision of additional bridge connection with East and West City at a point most advantageous to the community as a whole. As to power for municipal purposes, I will only endorse the cheapest service, irrespective of the source from whence it comes; and will insist that any contract for the same shall be first submitted to the ratepayers before being finally passed by the City Council.

With best wishes for the New Year, believe me to remain,

Yours truly,

JAMES EDGAR.

VOTE FOR

EX-ALDERMAN J. J. DUFFUS

IN THE WEST WARD.

To the Ratepayers of the West Ward and Peterborough Citizens in general:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having the honor of being duly nominated and urged by a large number of representative citizens to be a candidate in the West Ward, I have decided to again enter the Aldermanic field. As it will be impossible for me to interview each voter, I hereby most respectfully solicit you support and influence to assure my election.

If you so honor me I will pledge myself to do my utmost to assist in executing the city's business in a prudent and business like manner.

New industries, to my mind, is the one essential toward the future growth and success of our city, and I am in favor of a vigorous campaign to obtain cheap power and light, and also to induce the Radial Railway Co. to make extensive extensions. I would like to see the centre of our city with a permanent roadway.

I am opposed to the policy of increasing a man's taxes every time he makes improvements and minor extensions, and would support a measure to eliminate this condition of affairs.

Wishing all a bright and prosperous New Year,

Yours very respectfully,

JOS. J. DUFFUS.

VOTE FOR

EX. ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

IN NORTH WARD.

To the Electors of the North Ward, Peterborough:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Having consented to allow my name to go once again to the Electors in candidature for Aldermanic honors for the year 1912, I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of North Ward citizens in my behalf. If favored with a renewal of your confidence I will use my best efforts, not only in ward matters, but in advancement of the community's generality, and in pursuance of a progressive policy that will stand the city in good stead when bidding for new industries. My platform is economic government, substantial permanent improvements—especially in the matter of roadbuilding—and power at cost, providing same be a substantial reduction from present rates. If elected, I feel that my many years' experience on past Council Boards will prove of value in conserving the ratepayers' interests particularly where the expenditure large sums of money is at stake.

Wishing all A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

Yours truly,

W. J. JOHNSTON.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
By J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
BY J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?
A. Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

VOL XXXVII NO 2 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY JANUARY, 3 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

$65,000 WANTED FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES

The Board of Education met last night in regular session. There were present chairman John Crane and Trustees Adams, L. M. Hayes, Dr. Burnham, B. F. Ackerman, V. Eastwood, W. H. Hill, Dr. Morrison and R. Fair. Mr. D. Walker tendered his resignation as the Board's representative on the Public Library Board—Referred to the Committee on appointments.

Miss Foster wrote, regretting that she will not be able to resume her duties on the Public School teaching staff owing to ill-health—Received as a letter of resignation.

Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie asked permission to use the Collegiate Institute auditorium for the purpose of conducting a Children's choral organization—Referred to the Supervision Committee with power to act.

In accordance with a resolution passed the Board will require from the City this year $65,000 for educational purposes. This amount is $3,000 in excess of that of last year, mainly due to increase in salaries made imperative by prevailing conditions throughout the country.

The chairman congratulated the members on being returned by acclamation this year, which showed the lack of any dissention to the measures adopted by the Board last year.

MR. EDGAR'S DEFEAT

The surprise of the day was perhaps the defeat of Ald. Edgar, who, although he had not the record of Ald. Metheral whose usefulness during the past year has been of the most constant and practical, nevertheless he was slated for return. Mr. H. C. Hill divided up a vote that ex-Ald. Edgar would have got, but it was persistently rumored that Ald Edgar was to get the Post Office, and that his time would be fully taken up there. This operated against him, and possibly secured his defeat. Under the circumstances his vote was very large. At the poll where he lived, and at the poll near All Saints where he has done such excellent work, Mr. Edgar came out ahead, which is somewhat of a tribute to the esteem in which he is held.

The boy's appetite is often the source of amazement. If you would have such an appetite take Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only create a healthy appetite, but strengthen the stomach and enable it to do its work naturally. For sale by all dealers.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—In sending the statement of funds received for Dr. Grenfell's Deep Sea Mission, I desire to express my sincere thanks for the assistance given to this work by the daily papers. It is no doubt owing to their interest and co-operation that the response to the appeal has been so generous. The total amount received and forwarded to Miss Greenshields, is $190.10. Of this amount $50 are for the maintenance of the Peterborough Cot at St. Anthony's Hosital—the remainder is used in the general work of the mission.

If any contributors have not received acknowledgment by mail, it is because the addresses were not fully given. Again thanking you for your share in this good work, I remain, yours sincerely.

Sec'y Treas. of D.S.M.

OLD COUNTRY DANCE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to make an appeal, through the columns of your paper, to my fellow countrymen and especially the ladies, to attend the "Old Country Dance," to be held in the Conservative of Music on Friday night, January 5th. A good number of tickets have been sold and a large attendance is assured. I believe in these gatherings, where all from home may meet together, and in a dance song and games, etc., spend a very happy and pleasant evening. We ought to have more of these gatherings. The one thing necessary to make this a grand success, is to make it known, and this is the object of this latter.

Tickets can be bought from Coleman Bros, the well known confectioners in George street, and at the hall doors. I would urge my fellow-countrymen to help the committee in their endeavors to promote friendship and pleasant evenings, for all from the "Old Land." A splendid programme has been arranged to suit the tastes of all. The dances will all be British, and the splendid orchestra from the Opera House will provide the music. Refreshments will be served.

Come and make this the splendid success it deserves to be. English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh—all from the old land are heartily invited, and a pleasant, happy evening is assured all. Come and bring a lady friend with you and spend a pleasant evening with the boys and girls of your own country. Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

Percival G. S. Hebb.

FOUR NEW MEN ELECTED TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Result of the Municipal Elections in the City—Hydro-Electric By-Law Carried.

The municipal elections on Monday resulted in the election of four new men to the City Council. These are Ald. G. N. Gordon, G. A. Gillespie, W. J. Johnston and J. J. Duffus. The defeat of Ald. Edgar and Ald. Metheral came as a surprise to the public, for both were regarded as strong men, and their re-election seemed to be certain. Their defeat is attributed to the fact that there was a three-cornered contest. In the defeat of Ald. Metheral a good man is lost to the Council.

Mr. Morrow's defeat is also regretted by many, as it is believed he would have made an excellent councillor. However, his opponent, Mr. Gordon, is the right man in the right place, and it is somewhat of a satisfaction to be beaten by so worthy an opponent. Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Johnston, as well as Mr. Duffus, had experience at the Council Board, and no doubt will be found as capable in the future as they have been in the past, which is saying a great deal. Mr. Jos. Garside has no reason to feel discouraged over the result, as he polled a splendid vote for a new man. Mr. C. H. Hill may also feel the same, for his standing at the close of the poll indicated that he is not a weak man, and has a large number of supporters.

Mr. Gorden may well feel proud of leading the poll. He put up a winning campaign from the start. The Times predicts that Mr. Gordon will be a leader in every movement that goes to build up and promote the best interests of the city.

The following table of returns will show how the candidates fared in the five wards:

RED DEER, ALBERTA

Will Be Greatest Divisional Point of Canadian Northwest—A Good Investment.

Undoubtedly at the present moment there is no point in the whole of Canada, that is showing such activity in railroad construction as Red Deer, Alberta. This town is the divisional point of the C.P.R. main line to Edmonton. The Alberta Central have their headquarters, shops and yards in the town. Steel is already laid through the town as far west as the river, and work trains are now operating over this part of the line, which will greatly facilitate the construction of the huge bridges across the river, as the material for this purpose can be brought directly to the spot. The C.N.R. have gangs at work grading through the town or their line to Edmonton, also their branch line West through the Yellowhead Pass. It is doubtful if any other city can show such an increase in all departments of trade, traffic, freight, telegraph and postal receipts for 1911 were from 150 to 350 per cent. in excess of last year, while building permits showed an increase of 425 per cent. The population has increased nearly 100 per cent. this year, and people are still pouring into the town, all the available accommodation being taken up. Altogether Red Deer is enjoying a prosperity that few places can ever expect to equal. Situated as it is in the midst of the greatest agricultural and farming country on the Continent of North America, and surrounded by a hinterland that is rich in coal and timber, it is destined to become one of the greatest centres of activities that this country will ever know. The enormous increase of business that will naturally flow into this much to be envied town will insure a rapid advance in the prices of property, and purchasers at the present price will reap the benefit of a quick and substantial rise. Particulars and information of property can be had on application to Messrs. Ashie & Percy, Exchange Building, 142 Westings street West, Vancouver, B.C., who have a fine subdivision west of town in which they are selling lots for $100 each on exceptionally easy terms.

WEDDING BELLS

Weddell—Alford.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday, when Miss Mabel Helena (Lena) Alford, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Alford, of 301 Reid street, and Mr. Alexander Weddell, of Peterborough, were united together in the bonds of holy matrimony by the Rev. Jas. Robins.

To the strains of the wedding March, the bride, charmingly attired in white mipon over white silk, trimmed with Brussels lace, entered the room leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Stanley Alford, of Windsor, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridal couple left for a short trip west, the bride wearing a travelling costume of navy blue, with a navy blue hat trimmed with metallic roses, and carried the gift of the bridegroom, a set of mink furs.

Freight Conditions Good

During a recent dispute between the Grand Trunk Pacific and their boilermakers, sympathetic interests with the latter endeavored through several channels to circulate the report that the freight traffic of the Grand Trunk Pacific was badly congested, and they had difficulty in moving freight. The Secretary of the Board of Trade of Watrous, Sask., wrote an unsolicited letter to the General Freight Agent of the railway, in which he complimented him on the position of the freight condition on the line. In this letter he gives the information that in connection with the installation of the electric light plant at Watrous they received a carload of machinery on the 9th of Dec. that was shipped from Montreal on November 29th via Grand Trunk route, and says: "At ten day service between Montreal and Watrous appears to us an exceptionally good service under the best conditions and it certainly does not go to show that your road is tied up in any manner but entirely the opposite, that you are able to handle all freight to the best interests of the shipper. I compliment you on the prompt service rendered.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

London. — London's lord mayor, Sir Thomas Crosby, is the first physician to be thus honored, and, too, he is one of the oldest lord mayors London ever had, having just celebrated his 81st birthday. The lord mayor has nothing to do but wear the robes of his office upon state occasions and hand the municipal key over to distinguished visitors occasionally. Sir Thomas is a spry old man, and it is supposed that he will handle the robes and key gracefully as his youthful predecessors did.

Postage in Stamps

A lady living in Sydney for many years has boarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition, and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

Photographs on Finger-Nails

One of the latest fads in Germany is the mounting of photographs on the finger-nails, the idea growing out of the whim of a cousin of the Kaiser, who had an enamelled portrait of her fiancée worked on the nail of her little finger. This portrait was a work of art and cost $75, but now the fashionable manicures of Berlin have taken up the idea in the photograph form. The picture is rendered waterproof by coating it over with a celluloid-like substance burned upon the nail. It is said that a photograph so mounted will last about four months without renewal.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Not ten gage a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

It was just ten years ago that Argonauts defeated Ottawa and won the Ontario championship. The Argo team that day was as follows: Fullback, Irving Ardagh; right half-back, Hardisty; centre half, Percy Darling; left half, Henderson; quarter, Russell Britton; scrummage, Phil Boyd (right), Joe Wright (centre), Banty Russell (left); wings, Langton (inside right), Bill Brant (left), Leslie Wilson (middle right), Pud Kent (captain, left), Chummy Hill (outside right), Chadwick (left); flying wing Parmenter. Banty Russell and Pud Kent are the only two who have played in this season's games.

New Invention For Forcing Water Out of a Ship by Compressed Air, Permitting the Holes to be Repaired from Within.

If all that is claimed for the idea proves correct there will be a revolution in the work of ship-saving in the near future. Indeed, it promises to revolutionize naval warfare, for it is claimed for this new invention that ships can be kept afloat even after being sunk. In fact, they can be made practically unsinkable. The invention is the outcome of an idea for forcing water out of a ship by compressed air, thus permitting the holes to be repaired from within. The idea is a very simple one, and was suggested to Commander Marsh, of the battleship North Carolina, lying off New York, by Mr. Witherspoon, the engineer engaged in the construction of the New York railway tubes under the Hudson River.

All the experiments tried proved entirely successful. The sea-cocks were opened on the Carolina and water was permitted to fill one of the watertight compartments. Compressed air at a pressure of twelve pounds to the square inch was then forced into the compartment through a small opening. In ten minutes all the water was driven back into the river. Simultaneously with the twelve-pound pressure into the waterlogged compartment compressed air at seven pounds pressure was driven into all the surrounding compartments and a three-pound pressure into the next series of compartments, this being necessary to prevent the pressure on the original compartment buckling the sides and the deck.

Commander Marsh is most enthusiastic regarding the idea. He points out that the invention now enables them to do repairs to the hull below water-line from the inside, either after collision or during a naval battle. "Ships," he says, "are now for the first time practically unsinkable, for the water-tight compartments alone will not keep a ship afloat indefinitely. There is always a leak somewhere. All that is necessary," he continues, "is to install a system of pipes and gauges and attach them to the compressed air plant. Every warship already has such a plant for the purpose of blowing off poisonous and explosive gases, which can be utilized for driving out the water. The whole cost for a battleship is about $400. How is that for a low insurance premium against the sinking of a battleship worth $10,000,000?"

Thoughts at 5 A. M.

I love to think of boyhood days when I

I used to fix their breakfast feed ere yet

I used to dry shampoo the horse and manicure the cow.
I love to lie in bed and think I needn't do

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most interesting of recent additions to the [illegible] is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer, bearded vulture, or bearded vulture. This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wings, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip on the Pacific Coast announces that new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

Managing Hotels in Britain.

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and [illegible] At that time business men spent two hours over luncheon in middle-day. Now the usual custom is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but the hurried lunch in mid-day has to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The "Father of Southwark."

Thousands of poor people in the South of London will protest that, owing to advancing age, Canon Horsley is obliged to leave his busy parish of St. Peter's, Walworth, for a quiet living in the south of England. For years he has worked zealously on behalf of the people of the slums, and there is scarcely a branch of parish or municipal work in London with which Canon Horsley has not been connected. To the people of Southwark he has been in every sense a "father of the flock," and it is stated that he once refused a colonial bishopric that he might stay at home and work in the slums.

The canon is a man with a fund of anecdote, and describing the odd dress of English bishops some time ago, he told a story of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, who had been visiting Scarborough. On the way to the train he had lost his reckoning, and stopped a boy. "I say, my lad, how far it is to the station?" "About a mile ahead," said the boy, who had never seen a bishop before. Then, staring at the bishop's knee-breeches and silk stockings, he added, "Hallos, guv'nor, where's your trousers? Somebody swiped yer kilts!"

ON "THE CANNY SCOT."

Scotsmen Not Sentimental. But Deeply Romantic at Heart, Says a Well-known English Writer.

"I have been trying all my life to like Scotsmen," said Charles Lamb, "and am obliged to desist from the experiment in despair." There are still probably a few people who secretly or openly harbour similar antipathetic feelings towards the natives of Caledonia, but their number is decreasing daily. It would hardly be correct to say that the Scots are universally popular. Popularity is usually the product of leisure and luxury, and is seldom accorded to those who have had little opportunity for the cultivation of the graces and external beauties of life. For generations the Scots have been held fast in the grip of uncompromising realities. The poverty of the country, with its long stretches of bleak but beautiful moorland; the "Sawbath gloom" which so long reigned over the Lowlands, combined with the "Celtic gloom" permeating every "distant shieling" in the Highlands, has not been conducive to the development of a spirit of gaiety and charm. But what they have lost in one way they have gained in another. It is this very schooling in "strait and narrow" ways which has given the nation the grit and dogged determination it now possesses.

HUMOUR NORTH OF THE TWEED

A sense of humor is not now denied Scotsmen by the Sassenach. "A Scotsman and therefore quick to see the humor of things," was the recent comment of so cosmopolitan a critic as Mrs. Annie Besant. What would Sydney Smith say if he could have heard it?

Meanness is another charge which seems to have been withdrawn in recent years. It probably arose in the first instance from the Scot's necessity for economy. Brought up in a country where money was unusually scarce, it was difficulty for him to develop suddenly an open-handed generosity. This fostered habit of economy, brought about by circumstances, must be carefully distinguished from the merely mean desire to hoard. Great generosity of heart is often found in the most economical person, while a certain cold selfishness not infrequently accompanies the most outrageous extravagance.

Another charge which has sometimes been levelled against the Scots is a lack of romance, but their history is an ample refutation of this charge. The Scotsman is not sentimental, but he is deeply romantic at heart."

Two Days to Make a Town

The largest single building ever moved bodily was a block of dwelling-houses known as Normandy Apartments in America. The building weighed 3,000 tons, yet it was decided to shift it as it stood, in order to make room for an elevated railway. It was done, however, without any mishaps, though the move took ten weeks' hard labour to accomplish.

In 1890 the inhabitants of Tipperary had a dispute with their ground landlord, and gave notice to quit in a body. At a spot some miles distant they were provided by the Land League with a brand-new Tipperary. Unlike the inhabitants of Platte they decided to leave the houses standing, though everything else portable was taken. It was lucky they did so, for New Tipperary proved a hopeless failure, and after a few months the inhabitants had another huge flitting back to their old homes.

Milking by Electricity.

We have had milking machines for some while; now comes the American electric machine which jealously watches the milk from cow to pail, from pail to dairy, from dairy to sterilizer, from sterilizer to separator, from separator to churn, from churn to refrigerator, neatly packed up as germless butter.

Too press a button. Four cows are electrically milked simultaneously, and all this happens. And not a person not a molecule of contamination. This is an era of hard choices for the man who loves health and purity equally. The farmyard of the future is not an inspiring speculation, but the most aesthetic person cannot preserve a blind eye to the sediment in his glass of milk.

What poverty is like that of moral penury? When the head is poor, what mockery is money wealth?

Few people regret the times when they were silent, but many regret and often suffer because of imprudent speech.

People who pray on their knees on Sunday, and prey on their neighbors on Monday, need simplicity in their faith.

The essence of all good work is timeliness. For the right thing done at the wrong time is as bad as the wrong thing at any time.

LADY CARD-SHARPERS

Investigation Show That Certain Women Make a Business of Attending Charity Card-Parties to Cheat.

Eleven women were refused admission recently to a charity card-party organized at the Church of St. Francis Assisi at Brooklyn, because they were believed to be card-sharpers. An investigation which was started unearthed the fact that a number of women make a business of attending such affairs of the gamblers who haunt Transatlantic liners. The women are not professional gamblers, but members of respectable families, who are unable to resist the temptation to cheat at cards.

It has become known that women band themselves together for concerted work, by lip signals, by marking cards with tiny pin-pricks, and otherwise, and, according to Father Kelleher, of St. Francis Assisi, who discovered the latest conspiracy, even know how to stack the cards.

Father Kelleher's discovery was due to an extraordinary accident. He was riding on a Brooklyn tram-car when he overheard two women seated next to him discussing how they intended to capture the prizes at the St. Francis party by cheating. Father Kelleher told the other priests of the church, and they watched the doorway of the 47th Regiment Armoury, where a card-party was being given. Father Kelleher detected the two women with nine others as they were endeavouring to enter. They were told that they could not get in. No explanation was offered, and the women did not demand any, but hastily disappeared. The churches and charity organizations are generally being notified of the discovery, with the suggestion that concerted effort should be made this winter to break up the practice. It is a disputed point whether the women are amenable to arrest on a charge of cheating.

RESCUE OF THE PRINCESS

Admiral Craddock, the Duke and a Passenger Saved the Princess Royal of England from Drowning.

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi of the name of McCaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of 100 who had stood by the vessel since she went aground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of the wreck, however, has grown more precarious, as the watertight partitions in the stern have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

THE BRITISH INSURANCE BILL

Had Its Final Reading in the House of Lords Which is Now Practically Completed Only Requiring King's Assent.

London. — The House of Lords has passed the National Insurance Bill, providing for compulsory insurance against sickness and unemployment of the working classes, through its third and final reading.

The bill is now practically completed, only requiring to pass through the formality of receiving the King's assent.

Friendship of Books

To fall in love with a good book is one of the greatest events that can befall us. It is to have a new influence pouring itself into our life, a new teacher to inspire us, a new friend to be by our side always, who, when life grows narrow and weary, will take us into his wider and calmer and higher world.

Whether it be biography, introducting us to some humble life made great by duty done; or history, opening vistas into the movements and destinies of nations that have passed away; or poetry, making music of all the common things around us, and filling the fields and the skies and the work of the city and the cottage with eternal meanings — whether it be these, or religious books or science, no one can become the friend even of one good book without being made wiser and better.

Mrs. GORDON WRIGHT, Prominent in Temperance

Mrs. Gordon Wright, W. C. T. U. president of the Dominion of Canada, possesses many brilliant talents and her advancement in the W. C. T. U. ranks has been phenomenal. Beginning fifteen years ago as Local Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics in London, Ont., her home city, the following year she became provincial head of the same department, and a year later was placed in charge of the Dominion superintendency. While still holding this office, Mrs. Wright was elected president of the London Union, an active organization of some three hundred members.

In 1898 Mrs. Wright was again advanced, being appointed recording secretary of the Province of Ontario. Two years later she was elected to the office of corresponding secretary for the same Union. This position she filled with conspicuous success, her management of difficult correspondence with influential bodies displaying a genius for this work, which made her a valued member of the provincial sub-executive for a number of years. Mrs. Wright also acted for some time as editor of the Canadian White Ribbon Tidings.

In 1903 Mrs. Wright was further honored by being elected to the vice-presidency of the Dominion. Two years later she was raised to the highest position in the gift of the Union, that of Dominion President.

Mrs. Gordon Wright is a typical Canadian — a woman of culture and charm. Her winning personality, her natural gifts as an executive officer and public speaker, her devotion to all temperance, missionary and philanthropic causes, combine to place her in the front rank of Canadian womanhood.

HON. A. G. MACKAY
Who resigned Ontario Liberal Leadership.

The hon. gentleman who resigned the Leadership of the Liberal party in the Ontario House of Legislature a few days ago, is an M.A. and a K.C. Born at Sydenham, Grey County Ont., on 7th March 1860, his early educational days were spent at Sydenham Public school, Owen Sound High School, the High School of Mount Forest, and finishing at Toronto University from which he graduated B. A. in 1883 and M.A. in 1885. With such an array of instructional influences it is no surprise if the young Sydenham Scot was pointed in early life as a man who knew things, a man who was likely to go to the front in whatever direction he might decide to devote his abilities. That results have justified the faith of those prophets, is known today of all men who give attention to public affairs in Ontario.

Finishing his university career, Mr. Mackay was during four years Principal of Port Rowan High School, following which, he went in for law study and was called to the bar in May 1891, and three years later had the honor of being elected Crown Attorney for Grey County, a position he held until 1901.

Switching into the political arena at the 1902 general election, success came his way at the first venture, being returned representative for North Grey, a constituency that has continued its confidence right along to the present time.

Hon Mr. Mackay is a director of the Imperial Cement Co. and president of the Owen Sound Dredging and Construction Company. He takes a live interest in military matters and is captain of the 31st Reg't of Militia.

A TRAIN-LOAD OF MONKEYS

A plague of monkeys some years ago sorely troubled the officials at a small station on the Saran Railway, in North-West India. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighbouring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons.

The officials were worried out with keeping watch and scaring away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruit were put on the roofs of the wagons, with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted to the spot, and soon became perfectly indifferent to man.

One morning, when they were all busily feeding, an engine was stealthily attached to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared, and made no attempt to escape, but crouched together till [illegible] several miles and stopped at [illegible]

Judge Got the Baby.

A few years ago an Iowa county court judge tried to imitate King Solomon in his well-known decision respecting the child that was claimed by two women. In the Iowa Court two women claimed to be the mother of a child that was produced before the judge. Thinking that history might repeat itself, the judge asked for the infant. Then, opening his knife, he announced his intention of cutting the child in half. Whereupon one of the mothers exclaimed, "Oh, no! If it comes to that you may keep the child yourself," and both women left the court.

"It appears to me that Solomon was a very over-rated man," murmured the judge.

Cause of Rheumatism.

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is a result of eating too much meat

A Pointer for Pies.

Never set a pie up on a flat surface when removing from the oven. Use a trivet stand or wire teapot stand. This prevents steamed, soaked and soggy under crust. Three tine forks placed so that the three meet in one point in the center will let the air circulate under when one has not the stand.

Not Known.

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers of trunks are too clumsy. Only prudish, silly people with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says. "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

COMPANY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

The Company was incorporated in 1906, and has made steady progress. Their Real Estate holdings are chiefly in and around Calgary and will so continue, but latterly they have been paying a little attention to Saskatoon, where such remarkable progress is being made. It will be the policy of the Company to purchase judiciously in and near Towns and Cities which have passed the uncertain stage of development and whose future is assured. The Company, with its expert knowledge of values is better able to handle such business than any individual, however well equipped he may be for the work

While the Company has been, and will continue to be, conservative in the matter of dividends, it would appear probable that before very long a distribution of Assets, either in the shape of a Stock Bonus or substantial Cash Dividend, will be made If not, however, the Shareholders will still benefit by holding a security of constantly increasing value, which will be reflected in the market price of the stock.

The remarkable progress of the City of Calgary is perhaps without precedent in Canada. Building permits issued during the ten months ended 31st October, 1911, reached the enormous total of $11,664,138.00

HIGHER DIVIDEN D PROSPECTS

Mr. H. A. MacLean, President of the Company, in a letter dated 15th November, 1911, makes the following reference to Dividend and Reserve Fund: "While I can say nothing official at this time, I may mention that at the Company's Annual Meeting, following its year-end at 31st December, it is my intention to recommend that the Dividend for 1911 be declared at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, which will be an advance of 1 per cent. over the Dividend for 1910. I consider it safe to say in this connection, also, that the Dividend for 1912 will be at the rate of 12 per cent.

"The Asset and Liability Return covering the ten months ended 31st October shows, after allowing for all expenses and outlays of every kind, except the 1911 Dividend, a surplus of Assets over Liabilities of $311,736.72. The 1911 Dividend will amount to approximately $40,000.00, leaving a net surplus of approximately $271,736.72, equal to 90 per cent. of the Company's paid-up Capital. This amount may be fairly considered as a Reserve fund in its present shape, and the Company might continue with safety along its present times. It is my intention, however, at the approaching Annual Meeting, to propose that a portion equal to 25 per cent. of the Real Estate forming this surplus, be set aside, and advantageously sold—the proceeds of such sale to be invested in high grade listed Railroad Bonds, yielding the Company about 5 per cent. This operation, repeated from year to year, will give the Company a reserve fund of precisely the same nature as is carried by the Banks and other conservatively managed institutions."

COMPANY'S DIVIDEND RECORD

The Company has paid Dividends every year since its incorporation as follows:

1907..... 6 per cent.
1908..... 8 per cent.
1909..... 9 per cent.
1910..... 10 per cent.

FINANCIAL POSITION STRONG

The Company's statement of assets and liabilities as of October 31st, 1911, attested to by Messrs. Webb, Read & Hegan, appears in full in the prospectus. It shows the value of the Company's real estate and buildings, as valued by Mr. V. J. L. Eccles, to stand at $584,111. and balance of profit and loss account $311,736. Of the Company's authorized capital of $1,000,000, $388,380 is subscribed, $301,857.50 of which is paid up, leaving $86,522.50 of unmatured and unpaid calls.

Inquiries as to the Company's standing and the integrity and ability of the directors (of whom the President, Managing Director and Secretary-Treasurer devote their time exclusively to the Company's business) may be made of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal.

It is the intention to make application in due course to have the stock listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Copies of prospectus and application forms for shares may be obtained from the undersigned, and in cases where the request for application forms states the number of shares desired it will be considered that application has been received at that date. The right is reserved, however, to allot a smaller number of shares than applied for.

Musician and Scientist.

There is no more brilliant scientist in the world to-day than Sir William Ramsay, who has been warning Britain that, at the present rate of consumption, her coal supply will only last another 175 years. His most wonderful discoveries have been in connection with new gases in the atmosphere, upon which such names as argon, neon, and xenon have been bestowed, and the experimental work which led to these discoveries ranks as the most refined ever carried out. Of xenon, for example, there is only about one part in 70,000,000 parts of air. Sir William devotes his leisure to music. He plays both the piano and violin and has written the words of not a few songs. The collecting of curios is another of Sir William's hobbies, and at his house at Regent's Park may be seen many queer treasures thousands of years old.

Two Good Reasons

"Dorothy," said that young lady's mamma, "It seems to me that you had the gas turned rather low when young Smart was here last evening."

"It was solely for economy, mamma," answered the maiden.

"There is no use trying to beat the gas company, my daughter. I have noticed that the shutting off of the gas is always followed by a corresponding increase of pressure."

"Well, that lessens the waist measure, dear; doesn't it?" replied the artless girl. And her fond parent could find no answer.

De Ruyter: "You see, I drop into poetry occasionally."

Editor: "Yes, so I see! You appear to dive clear through it."

Thought it was a Crack.

A corpulent gentleman with a large appetite entered a mean-looking restaurant, and ordered a chop, and waited twenty minutes. Then the waiter reappeared with a plate on which rested a dab of mashed potatoes, a bit of meat burnt almost to a cinder, out of which emerged a long, thin piece of bone.

The waiter set it down before the starving gentleman and hurried off.

"See here," called the customer, "I ordered a chop."

"Yes sir," replied the man, "there it is."

"Ah, so it is," mused the hungry man, readjusting his spectacles. "I thought it was a crack in the plate."

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, and which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 357 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From my standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that. I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pains in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scalding or unnatural pain of urinate.
4—Pain or uneasiness in the bladder.
5—Bladder trouble.
6—Pain or pains in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or uneasiness in the side.
9—Tenderness in any part of the body.
10—Frequent pain or pains across the loins.
11—Pain or pains under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joints.
13—Pain in the small of back.
14—Pain or uneasiness in the groins.
15—Pain or uneasiness in the testicles.
16—Pain and uneasiness in the kidneys.
17—Pain and uneasiness in the bladder.
18—Pain and uneasiness in marriage.
19—Acidity or excessive secretions.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organised recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $3,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

Distress in the Stomach

Hundreds of Thousands of Bottles of Nerviline Used Every Year for Curing Cramps, Diarrhoea, and Stomach Disorders.

Deadly cramps—the symptoms are not to be mistaken. Suddenly and without warning the patient experiences such agony in the stomach as to contort the countenance and cause him to cry aloud for help.

Then it is that the wonderful power of Nerviline can make itself felt — it cures so quickly, you would think it was made to cure cramps and cramps only

LETTER NO. 4877

"Last summer I was stricken with a frightful attack of cramps. I feared the pain in my stomach would kill me.

"My eyes bulged out and the veins in my forehead stood out like whipcords.

"My cries attracted a neighbor, who came to my assistance, and in a moment or two handed me half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in some sweetened water.

"It seemed as if an angel had charmed away the pain. In ten seconds I was well. Nerviline has a wonderful name in this locality, and is considered best for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, stomach and bowel disorders. I urge all my friends to use Nerviline.

"MANLEY M. LEGARDE, Williamsburg."

No home is safe or can afford to miss the manifold advantages of having Nerviline on hand in case of accident or emergent sickness. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TOWN NAMES OF THE WEST

The Men Who Found Names for Many Western Canadian Towns Displayed Much Ingenuity and Occasionally Humor.

The matter of place-names in the West is an interesting bit of study, and reveals not only an amazing profundity but a very considerable originality. They are not the kind of names that are known in the East. Very seldom does a western town duplicate the name of an eastern town — which is more than can be said of the East itself, where there are many repetitions. A glance at the newest map of the prairie provinces will show an interesting variety of names that are practically copyright. They are the kind of names that would not fit well in the East, simply because they have grown out of western experiences and conditions. The earliest were Indian, and many sweet-sounding Indian names are on the map; then the cue was taken from the appearance of Nature, particularly in the case of rivers, hills, and valleys; and latterly the surnames of men are being commemorated, men who have taken some part in the establishment of the town, or in the case of many of the newest stations, the officials or engineers of the railway which is bringing the town into being.

But even greater in variety, interest, and occasional oddity than the place-names are the names of the people. Here, too, an effort is made to commemorate some phase of western life, not infrequently with strange results. An Indian mother near Edmonton heard of the large part being played in the West by the railways, and straightway named her youngest "C.P.R." Another, desirous of doing honour to the white man's medicine, conferred upon her first-born the surprising distinction of "Mary Ann Thomson's Sarsaparilla."

HUSBAND AS PRIZE

In Many Parts of Europe Lotteries Are Held in Which Husbands Are Offered as First Prize, to the Winner.

A lottery has just been organized for its women readers by the Odessa 'Courier,' the prize being a young and handsome member of the staff, who has undertaken to marry the winner, be she young or old, fair or ugly, rich or poor. Not only does the enterprising journal agree to pay all wedding expenses, but also promises the couple a sufficient annuity.

Similar was the offer made some years ago by a German newspaper. The prize, however, by no means came up to the expectations of the winner, who declared that the pursy, baldheaded little man who presented himself for her acceptance bore no resemblance to the portrait of the aristocratic-looking individual which had appeared in the paper.

"Mr. Arnett was born in Virginia, January 12th, 1880, making him twenty-five years old. He was educated in the University of Virginia, and is in business in Kansas City. He has chestnut hair and brown eyes; his height is 5 ft. 9 in., and his weight is 10 st. 10 lb. He does not use narcotics nor stimulants, has no bad habits, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has a jovial disposition, and is very popular."

Husband Worth $650 a Year.

In the early days the proprietor of the leading lottery at one of the chief Scottish watering-places announced a grand prize, the first prize to consist of a young man, who, in addition to good looks, amiable manners, and unexceptionable family connections, was guaranteed to be in possession of property bringing in an annual income of £1000. Considerable excitement prevailed, especially among spinsters, young, middle-aged and old — several of whom came from afar to take part in the event. Great, then, was the dismay when, on the morning of the day appointed for the drawing, a course of contables arrived from London and arrested the would-be "prize" on

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Wharf at New Liskeard, Ont." will be received at this office until 4 P.M., on Wednesday, January 10, 1912, for the construction of a Public Wharf at New Liskeard, District of Nipissing, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at New Liskeard, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

FIRST LOVE OF KAISER WILHELM

The Stern Necessities of Politics Cast a Cloud Over Two Young Lives and Compelled a Prince to Desert His Love Who Died.

The touching story of the romantic attachment of the Emperor William I. to Princess Eliza Radziwill when he was a young man and she a girl, and of the obstacles that arose to prevent their union, is related in detail in a book just written by Dr Bruno Hennig, of Berlin. The stern necessities of politics cast a cloud over these two young Royal lovers, and compelled Prince William — as he then was — to desert the girl he loved to contract a union based on prudence instead of on personal inclination.

Towards the end of the eighteenth century Prussia had absorbed a portion of the ancient kingdom of Poland, and was engaged in the difficult task — still only imperfectly accomplished — of assimilating the conquered Poles, who regarded their German masters with repugnance.

The hopes of Prussia in those days were largely centred in Prince Antony Radziwill, one of the Polish magnates, who accepted Prussian supremacy over his native land in a friendly spirit, and married Princess Louise, a niece of Frederic the Great, after which he was appointed Viceroy of Prussian Poland, with his seat of government at Posen. His real home, however, was in Berlin, and it was here that his daughter, Princess Eliza, who as a Hohenzollern on the maternal side associated freely with the Prussian Royal Family, met Prince William, the second son of the reigning King, Frederic William III.

Prince William and Princess Eliza grew up from childhood together, and it was not until 1820, when he was 23 and she three years younger, that their friendship ripened into love. The first words of love were spoken at a pic-nic in the forest round Berlin, at which Prince Antony and Princess Louise Radziwill and the King's remaining children, the Crown Prince, Prince Charles, and Princess Alexandra, were also present. "Dear, dear Lulu," wrote little Princess Eliza to her friend, Countess Stosch, "how happy, how supremely happy I was with William."

A Shadow

During the next two years the young couple saw one another constantly, but a shadow had fallen across their happiness owing to the degree of difference in their respective ranks, which constituted a bar to their marriage. When Princess Eliza's mother — a Hohenzollern Princess — married Prince Radziwill, her inferior in birthright, she descended to his rank, and their children were not Royal Princes and Princesses, but merely the descendants of a Polish noble family, with Royal blood in their veins.

A marriage between Prince William and Princess Eliza would thus have been a morganatic union, and the right of their children to inherit the Prussian Throne would, according to the "House Laws" of the Hohenzollern dynasty, have been open to doubt. The question was raised whether Princess Eliza could not be raised to the rank of "Royal Highness" either by the King of Prussia or by the Tsar, and the two lovers went through an anxious time, which extended into several years, while this matter remained undecided.

But Prince William was obliged by what he considered his duty to the State to desert the girl of his heart, and in February 1829 his engagement to Princess Augusta of Weimar was announced.

Princess Eliza did not live long after the marriage of William to Princess Augusta of Weimar.

HOW VANDERBILT SQUEEZED

Many are the battles royal fought between the "Bulls" and "Bears." Those who read money articles in newspapers have often seen the phrase, "[illegible] and such a share rose sharply [illegible] to be a "bear" [illegible] "bear squeeze" [illegible] ght be [illegible] the "Bears" [illegible] "bulls" and [illegible] them. Where [illegible] sinful operation [illegible] Bear." The best illustration [illegible] it is the classic instance of how a big railroad magnate "squeezed" a whole Legislature in America a long time ago. It was in the days when American Legislatures were rather corrupt. It appeared that this body promised Commodore Vanderbilt certain railroad concessions which inflated the value of his stock. They then formed themselves into a "Bear" clique, and sold it heavily. The "Bears" kept on selling until they had sold a good deal more stock than there was actually in existence. When they thought they had made millions they repealed their grant of the concession. The stock had come down very little despite all the selling, but they thought that when their decision was announced it would slump. It did not. Some of them then decided to "cover." The price they sold at was 75, and it had dropped to only 73. If they could close their deal at that figure they would have a profit of two points on each share. But when they came into the market there was no stock to be had. They started bidding, and the price rose with amazing rapidity to 179. The Commodore had all the stock! He allowed the "Bears" to settle at 179. They lost millions, and he raked in millions as the result of his great "corner."

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

DISMISSAL OF KING'S CHAPLAIN

(By special cable)

London. — The first court scandal in King George's reign exploded with violence, when The Gazette announced officially the dismissal of the Rev. Frederick Percival Farrar, the King's domestic chaplain, and also honorary chaplain to Queen Alexandra.

Charges of drunkenness and immorality have been made against the deposed King's chaplain, and they are now being investigated by the Bishop of Norwich. The disgraced clergyman has been rector of Sandringham, where the favorite residence of the late King Edward and of Queen Alexandra was situated. It is understood that he has resigned his rectorship in consequence of the charges against him, and a startling report is abroad that the Rev. Farrar is missing and that search is being made for him.

He is a son of the late Dean Farrar, and only last July he married Miss Nora Davis, a sister of Richard Harding Davis, the author, and a daughter of the late Clarke Davis, of Philadelphia. The wedding was attended by many prominent society people of London. Members of the Royal family sent wedding gifts, those of King George, Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra being especially handsome.

GERMANY AND MOROCCAN CRISIS

Many People Are Sore on the Supposed Laxity of German Government in Allowing Britain to Dictate.

Berlin. — The official report of the secret sitting of the budget committee of the Reichstag in November, when Foreign Minister von Kiderlin-Waechter made a report on Anglo-German relations as affected by the Moroccan dispute with France, is now published.

The Foreign Minister's account of the interviews between the British Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, and the German Ambassador at London, Count Wolff-Metternich, and of the communications that passed between Germany and England, show that the situation was most tense from July 21 to July 27, and the language used on both sides was so sharp that a peaceful outcome of the affair under the circumstances is considered most fortunate.

Great Britain, according to Herr von Kiderlin-Waechter, after receiving on July 1 an individual, as well as a general, explanation of the objects of the despatch of the German warship Panther to Agadir, remained silent until July 21.

Sir Edward Grey then had a conversation with the German ambassador, in which he declared that the time had come for Great Britain to intervene in the Franco-German negotiations, since these apparently were about to be broken off owing to Germany's unacceptable proposals, which would raise the question of the future of Morocco, whereby British interests would be affected. He requested an explanation of the German designs at Agadir.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

London.—The unionist forces in the British parliament have called upon a Canadian to lead them against the assaults of the progressive liberal forces. Andrew Bonar Law, born in New Brunswick and who removed to Glasgow, as was from there sent to the House of Commons, has been chosen leader of the British standpatters to succeed former Premier A. J. Balfour. Law is one of the ablest conservative debaters, also, he is the best chess player in parliament.

BONAR LAW

THE EMPIRE AND CANADA

London. — The London Chamber of Commerce tonight discussed "Canada" in its relation to the Mother Country. Faithfull Begg, treasurer, who presided, said that no country could show such a remarkable advance in progress as Canada during the past five years. Canada had done its part nobly in the recent elections and it was for the United Kingdom now to do hers and show appreciation of the efforts of the Dominion in the cause of imperial unity.

A. W. Smithers, chairman of the G. T. R., thought the British Government was discreditable for investigating the emigration question so unscientifically. The Dominion doesn't want the riffraff of our cities, and he appealed to the Government to transform unemployed casual labor into citizens acceptable to Canada.

She: "Oh, yes, I quite believe there's a fool in every family, don't you?"

He: "Well — er — my opinion is rather biased. You see, I am the only member of our family!"

Trust Thrusts.

PILGRIMS TO MECCA

Of All the Millions Who Visit Mecca Not a Score of Christians are Known to Come Out of the Sacred City Alive.

Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth, Mecca each year has visitors in such number that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims, who at the cost of incredible pains annually crowd into its confines. This city is the oldest place of resort in [illegible] yet of all the millions [illegible] visited it not a score of Christians known to have come [illegible] flag of citizenship [illegible] life were he known within the sacred city, where the Prophet [illegible] that no unbeliever [illegible] the 225,000 [illegible] only 15,5[illegible] flag. Household Hints.

Never wash marble with soap and water. Use ammonia in the water if you would have a highly polished, clean surface after your trouble.

To avoid mixing up towels when all the family use the same bathroom embroider initials or one initial on towels for each member of the household.

To protect your rolling pin and board in absolute cleanliness make coverings for them of unbleached muslin, having drawing strings and loops sufficiently strong to hold them when the bags are hung up.

[illegible] SUITS

[illegible] bathing suits are [illegible] in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman who [illegible] abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says, "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

Judge Got the Baby.

A few years ago an Iowa county court judge tried to imitate King Solomon in his well-known decision respecting the child that was claimed by two women. In the Iowa Court two women claimed to be the mother of a child that was produced before the judge. Thinking that history might repeat itself, the judge asked for the infant. Then, opening his knife, he announced his intention of cutting the child in half. Whereupon one of the mothers exclaimed, "Oh, no! If it comes to that you may keep the child yourself," and both women left the court.

"It appears to me that Solomon was a very over-rated man," murmured the judge.

Captain Herbert Edward Greenstreet of the New Zealand Shipping company recently departed on his eighteenth voyage round the world. Altogether he has sailed 2,000,000 miles and never had a mishap.

Judge Edgar Jay Sherman, statesman, soldier, author and jurist, who recently resigned from the Massachusetts superior bench, was admitted to the bar fifty-three years ago. He is now seventy-seven.

Dr. James Curtis Hepburn, the oldest surviving graduate of Princeton, class of 1832, began his career as a medical missionary to China in 1840. On his ninetieth birthday anniversary he was honored with an imperial decoration from the mikado. He was born at Milton, Pa., ninety-six years ago.

F. Dewitt Fisher, clerk in the postoffice at Toledo, O., has received word from the postoffice department that he has been proclaimed the champion mail distributer in the United States postal service. Fisher's record is a test on Aug. 9 was 711 pieces of mail in eleven minutes, an average of sixty-five a minute. The title had formerly been held by John B. Francis of the Cincinnati postoffice.

Sporting Notes.

Baseball statistics just compiled show that during the last nine years American league teams have won 1,239 games in interleague contests to 1,170 for National league teams.

Miss Dorothy Campbell, one of the greatest golf players in the world, will reside in the United States and take up newspaper work this winter. Miss Campbell has won ten gold medals for championships in various countries.

Uhlan's feat in trotting a mile in 2.02¾ over a half mile track is in some respects the most wonderful performance that has ever characterised the American trotting turf. One-quarter of this great mile was trotted in 30 seconds by the son of Bingen, two others in 31 seconds each and the final one in 30¾ seconds.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp [illegible] for paper manufacture, according [illegible] Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

Scottish Wealthon.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a fashionable seaside resort noted for its golf links asked one of the caddies if he had much caddying to in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, it's this way. If it's no' sna', it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's sna'. If it's neither frost nor sna', it's rain; if it's no' rain, it's winds; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabbath."

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3560 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was impeded by the want of a dowry.

The Time of Long Sermons.

Those who, like long sermons should have lived in the seventeenth century. The manner in which the Rev. John Howe, Minister of Great Torrington, in Devonshire, conducted Divine service on a public fast day is thus described by a contemporary: "Mr. Howe said that upon these occasions he began about nine in the morning with a prayer for about a quarter of a hour, in which he begged a blessing upon the work of the day, and afterwards read and expounded a chapter or psalm, in which he spent three-quarters of an hour; then prayed for about an hour, preached for another hour, and prayed for about half an hour. After this he retired and took some little refreshment for about a quarter of an hour (the people singing all the time) and then came into the pulpit and prayed for another hour; and gave them another sermon of about an hour's length and so concluded the service of the day."

Cookery Points

Pickled Red Cabbage.

Remove the outer leaves of two or three firm heads of red cabbage. Shave them fine, put in a large bowl and sprinkle over a good handful of salt for each head; mix well with the salt, cover and let stand twenty-four hours, then drain in a colander. For three heads of cabbage boil one gallon of vinegar with a pound of sugar, adding to this four large onions chopped fine, three bruised cloves of garlic, one ounce of whole peppers, one-half ounce of whole cloves, the same of mace, two tablespoonfuls of celery seed and a little cayenne. Boil slowly half an hour, remove and when cold strain the vinegar through a napkin; return it to the fire, let it get boiling hot, put the cabbage in a stone jar, pour over the scalding hot vinegar and when cold cover the jar and tie paper over the top. This cabbage may also be rinsed with cold water and served sometimes with a French dressing as slaw.

Carrot Pickles.

Scrape and wash six medium sized carrots, cut them in lengthwise slices and, laying one over the other, cut them down into small strips as for soup. Boil them three minutes in salt water, drain in a colander and set aside to cool. Cut the same way six green tomatoes in slices and fine strips, also three large white onions, one big red pepper and three sour apples. Put the tomatoes, onions, red pepper and apples into a bowl, sprinkle over salt and let them stand twelve hours. Then drain off the water and put all the ingredients into a kettle with one cup of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of celery seed tied up in muslin. Add sufficient vinegar barely to cover materials and boil two minutes. Then mix one tablespoonful of English mustard with a little vinegar and stir it into the rest; put into small well cleaned jars and set in a cool place.

Sweet Gherkin Pickles.

Fill a tub with salt water strong enough to bear up an egg. Put gherkins not over a finger long in this and let them stand nine days. Take them out and harden them by letting them stand in fresh cold water for several hours; then spread them out on a folded tablecloth to free them of moisture, pack them in glass quart jars, fill with cold vinegar and set them aside for three weeks in a cool place. Then open the jars, drain off the vinegar and to that of each jar add one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of extract of mace and the same of extract of cloves and cinnamon and cayenne pepper to taste. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, pour the liquid over the pickles, close the jars and set in a cool place.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.83, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Applications for shares should be sent to

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague. — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

HANGED IN THE THEATRE

Jail Yard to Theatre of Institution.

Scene of Execution Shifted From the Jackson. — The scene of a legal hanging was hastily changed from the local jail yard to the town opera house here lately to prevent possible race trouble.

Will Turner, a negro preacher, was to pay the death penalty for killing Jesse Singley, a white man, last August. A large crowd gathered in the jail yard, and, fearing serious trouble, the authorities quickly moved Turner to the theatre and he was hanged on the stage here but few witnessed.

Our tame dogs would all go wild if left to themselves for a few years. They tried the experiment once on Robinson Crusoe's Island. They left some of their dogs there, and nobody called at the island again for about thirty years. And they found all the dogs had become quite wild. They hunted just like wolves, and they had forgotten how to bark; they could only howl. It was not till they became used to men again that they learnt to bark. A few years ago two dogs near to Peterham lost their owners, so made homes for themselves and hunted sheep. A great deal of damage was done by these dogs before they were killed.

BORN AFTER MOTHER'S BURIAL

To be buried alive is a fate of which many persons have a nervous dread, which is by no means as fanciful as it appears. Very many cases have occurred in which a temporary suspension of animation has led to a living man or woman being actually fastened down into a coffin and even buried.

Most gruesome was the experience of the mother of Ebenezer Erskine, an Englishman, who was buried two years before her son was born! During an illness Mrs. Erskine was subject to faluting fits, and from one of these she was believed to have passed away. After the usual interval arrangements were made for her interment; and the village undertaker, who also served the community as sexton, measured her for coffin. The "deceased" was duly buried, and there, but for the cupidity of the grave-digger-undertaker, her story would have ended. But a ring which had been buried on the poor lady's hand had attracted his greed, and after the funeral this worthy opened the grave at night and began to saw off the finger bearing the ring. A ringing scream from the supposed corpse almost scared the thief out of his wits, but his humanity overcoming his fear, it roused the parson's family, and the buried lady was restored to health at the expense of a finger.

A similar experience was that of the mother of the famous General Lee, whose sorrowing relatives calmly looked on while she was buried alive! She related that she was fully aware of all the incidents of the funeral, but only mustered strength to make a rattling noise on the coffin lid when the clods of earth began to descend heavily upon it. The sound attracted the sexton's notice, and he hastily broke open the coffin, in time to save her from suffocation.

CARD OF THANKS

From Mr. C. H. Hill to the Electors of the West Ward,—

I wish to sincerely thank the electors of the above ward, who so kindly gave me their votes in the municipal election, and take this opportunity of extending the season's greetings.

H. CYRIL HILL.

TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE CENTRE WARD.

I beg to thank the electors of the Centre Ward for electing me Alderman by such a large majority. During this year I shall make every effort to prove to the electors that their confidence has not been misplaced.

Wishing you a happy New Year, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

A CARD

I desire to thank the ratepayers and my many friends in the West Ward, who supported my candidature which I very sincerely appreciate.

I am pleased that the vote on the Hydro-Electric matter was so full and decisive expressing most satisfactory the wish of the people.

I am ladies and gentlemen, wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year.

Very respectfully,
JAS. EDGAR.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of the Centre Ward:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Although not having been favored with a majority vote sufficient to return me as one of your representatives on the Aldermanic Board for 1912, still permit me to take this opportunity of heartily thanking my friends and supporters in the election on Monday last, and of wishing ALL citizens of progressive Peterborough a happy and very prosperous New Year.

Yours very truly,
JOS. R. METHERALL.

ALDERMAN BULLER'S

CARD OF THANKS.

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough,—

Please accept my hearty thanks for the renewal of your confidence in again electing me as one of your Aldermen for 1912.

Such an independant expression of your good will places me under a strong obligation to do my best. In the interests of the city, as well as to give equal rights to all.

The many important questions for the betterment of the city, which are likely to come up this year, will have my careful attention.

Yours truly,
WM. BULLER.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of the West Ward and Citizens of Peterborough,—

Please accept my warmest thanks for the hearty support given me on Monday, which resulted in my election as a member of the Board of Aldermen for 1912.

I so thoroughly appreciate this indication of your confidence in my ability to again represent you at the Council Board, that I will consider it my duty to faithfully discharge the important trusts you have imposed on me.

I have already outlined my position regarding some of the important matters in connection with the city's interests, but I will be pleased at all times to hear the views of any of the electors on the various questions as they may arise, which will have my careful consideration.

Yours respectfully,
JOS. J. DUFFUS.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of the North Ward of the City of Peterborough.—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

Allow me to thank you for the confidence you placed in me on Monday by electing me one of your representatives at the City Council Board, I would be very ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge that confidence.

I will make an honest effort to look after your interests to the very best of my ability. I realise that a great deal of our future progress hinges upon the action of the present City Council. The great majority vote polled in favor of the power by-law convinces me that the people are thoroughly in earnest on this great question, and that they want this matter looked after in their interests. I promise you that after this matter has been most rigidly gone into by the Council that not one cent of the people's money will be spent upon it without their sanction.

I want to try and see that the people get the very best results for money expended all over our city, consistent with proper management.

Wishing you one and all a very happy and prosperous New Year, I am your obedient servant.

W. J. JOHNSTON.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P.E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried NERVILINE different remedies, CURES but was unable to QUICKLY relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co'y, Kingston, Ont.

THANKS TO THE ELECTORS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

My thanks are due and are hereby tendered to the electors of the Centre Ward for the very hearty and unsolicited support at the polls, which resulted in my being again elected a member of the Board of Aldermen for this city.

That I should be successful in the face of the strong opposition, and out of a ballot composed of four candidates, and without any personal canvassing on my part, is satisfactory evidence of public confidence, which I value highly.

Trusting that the year 1912 will prove one of advancement and prosperity for Peterborough, and that all citizens will share to the fullest extent in this prosperity.

I remain,
Yours truly,
GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

POISONED HIS WIFE.

Dr. J. Frank Sudman, a Jackson, Michigan Murderer, Breaks Down and Tells of Crime.

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 1.—Dr. J. Frank Sudman, the Jackson physician in custody since Sept. 7, charged with the murder of his wife, has made a signed confession of guilt in the presence of county officers. The punishment is life imprisonment.

Sudman said his act followed a quarrel with his wife. Shortly after the quarrel, he said, she complained of being ill and he gave her pepsin and soda in which he mixed potassium cyanide. In his confession Sudman expressed the desire that his children be prohibited from visiting him in prison until they are grown.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
By J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?
A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
BY J. W. BROWETT, OPTOMETRIST.
Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?
A. Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

WON'T ANNUL MARRIAGE UNTIL CHURCH ACTED

Woman Who Claims She is Blood-Relation of Husband is so Told

WIFE MAY TRY AGAIN

Montreal, Jan. 3.—A decision was rendered yesterday in the case of Dame Marie Annet Meunier against F. X. Blanchet. Plaintiff is seeking annulment of her marriage, alleging that it had been contracted in spite of impediment of consanguinity to the third degree, which, it was alleged, was a case of annulment of marriage under the laws of the Catholic Church, under which the marriage was contracted.

Mr. Justice Laurendeau held that the petition could not be considered, since it was based on religious considerations which were not substantiated by a decree from the proper religious authorities.

The dismissal of the case means only that plaintiff may, if she succeeds in securing the religious decree referred to, renew the application to the civil courts for annulment of her marriage. Briefly summed up the marriage has been referred to the church courts.

THREE INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK NEAR COCHRANE STATION

Engineer Jessop and Conductor Hamilton Were in Charge of the Train—Passengers Escaped.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Word was received at the local office of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway this forenoon that passenger train No. 11, due at Cochrane at 7.35 a.m., had run into an open switch at the Union Station, Cochrane, derailed the engine and severely injured three of the crew. None of the passengers were hurt.

The train was in charge of Engineer Jessop and Conductor Hamilton. A man was standing in front of the track was cleared of the wreckage. switch target and as the engine approached he was unable to see that it was thrown in the direction indicating an open switch.

Conductor Hamilton was the most seriously injured. He was caught in the wreckage of the baggage car which burned, and he received cuts about the head and was injured internally in addition to being badly burned. Two of the brakemen were injured less seriously. They are named Sutherland and Russell, both of whom were cut about the head, while Russell also received injuries. Within an hour of the accident the

OPPOSITION IN ENGLAND TO AMERICAN PROPOSAL

IS UNITED GOVERNMENT GOING TO GRANT PREFERENCE TO AMERICAN SHIPPING IN THE PANAMA CANAL?

Violation of Hay-Pauncefote Treaty—Different Views—Most Shipping Authorities are Incredulous.

London, Jan. 3.—The Morning Post has started a strong agitation against the reported proposal of the United States Government to grant preference to American shipping in the Panama Canal. It devotes three columns and a long editorial this morning to that subject. It declares that such discrimination would be a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and says:

"By no sophistry can the American Government pretend that it is not bound by the terms of the treaty. An evasion of the obligation into which it entered would prove to the world that its pledges are meaningless."

The Post gives interviews with various shipping authorities in different British ports, most of whom refuse to believe that the Washington Government has such an intention.

Sir Walter Runciman, senior partner of Walter Runciman & Co., of Newcastle-on-Tyne and London, thought that is the report was true the British Government had been caught napping, but he doubted if such discrimination, even if adopted, would have the expected result of encouraging traffic in a manner to make the canal pay.

J. H. Turner, agent general for British Columbia, agreed that it would be a violation of the treaty and would seriously injure British Columbia. It would also injure the canal itself for many years, until the United States had built up a mercantile fleet.

PINKERTONS NOW SUE DETECTIVE W. J. BURNS

Montreal, Que., Jan. 3.—A suit for $50,000 was this morning entered against Detective William J. Burns, the man who worked up the case against the McNamara brothers, by William and Allen Pinkerton of the Pinkerton Detective Agency for alleged libel. The action was entered on the court records this morning, and the writ was sent to Los Angeles to be served on Burns. Meredith McPherson, the legal representative of the Pinkertons here, declined this morning to give any details of the alleged libel.

Burns worked up an unsuccessful case against the Pinkerton Agency, for Dave Russell, a Montreal Millionaire, who claimed that the detectives had been concerned in a conspiracy against him. Russell's suit was dismissed by the court's. Burns did not give evidence during the hearing of the case, though he was in Montreal at the time.

BANQUET TO EMPLOYEES

The G. Walter Green Company's Annual Function

Given by the Company to its Men—A Most Enjoyable Affair at Hooper's Restaurant Last Night.

THE annual banquet given by the G. Walter Green Co. to their employees, took place last night in Hooper's Palm Palours, George street, and was a most enjoyable affair. The tables were laden with the good things of the season, about sixty persons being present. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. Walter Green the popular president of the company, while Mr. T. O. Donaldson, the efficient secretary-Treasurer, filled the vice-chair.

After the good things provided had been disposed of, the chairman proposed the toast of the King, which was honored with the singing of the National Anthem.

Then followed the toast of the "employees," in proposing this toast the president of the company referred to the pleasant relations which had always existed between the company and its employees, the latter always taking a deep interest in promoting the best interests of the company. They all felt that in these strenuous times, unity of employees and employers was necessary to produce the best results.

When the toast of "The Company" was proposed and honored, the guests sang with enthusiasm, "They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which a "tiger" followed.

Both the president and secretary responded in happy terms.

A number of other toasts, including "The Ladies," and "The Press," followed.

During the evening a number of vocal selections were rendered by those present, as well as a choice programme of instrumental music. About eleven o'clock the party broke up, all well pleased with the affair.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES.

Sir,—By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution will be made during the coming winter and spring of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.), white oats (4 lbs.), barley (5 lbs.), and field peas (3 lbs.) These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants should give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms; and should also state what varieties they have already tested and in what way these have been found unsatisfactory, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be sent.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed or written form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. No applications can be accepted after Feb. 15th.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. Grisdale.
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

WAS DICKENS GOING TO WRITE FURTHER "AMERICAN NOTES"?

SOME BELIEVE HE WAS GOING TO SATIRIZE AMERICANS LIKE HIS FATHER.

Fund for the Heirs—Just Announced That Destitute Descendants are to be Provided For.

New York, Jan. 3.—That the United States has been spared the ridicule of another "American Notes" by the sudden death of Alfred Tennyson Dickens, eldest son of the late Charles Dickens, is the belief to-day of those who became acquainted with the lecturer during his sojourn in this country.

Dickens expired suddenly yesterday in the Hotel Astor, while preparing to continue his tour through America, lecturing on "My Father's Life and Works."

Charles Dickens came to America, and was wined, dined and feted every where he went. He returned to England to pen his "American Notes" of bitter satire and invective. That his son was preparing to also turn a vitriolic pen upon his hosts was evidenced by many of his remarks during his visit here.

New York, Jan. 3.—It has just become known through announcement, by Henry Clews, the banker, that a number of wealthy men had recently organized to create a fund in this country for relieving the conditions of destitute heirs of Charles Dickens in England and elsewhere. The details of the plan have not been fully worked out as yet, Mr. Clews said, but it is expected soon to make definite announcement of them. The fact that the fund was in progress of formation, the banker said, was not known to Alfred Tennyson Dickens, son of the novelist, whose sudden death occurred here last evening.

FRENCH HOPE TO-DAY TO CROWD ENGLISH OUT OF CONTROL OF R. C. SCHOOL

BITTER STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL OF THE SEPARATE SCHOOL AT ALEXANDRIA.

French Educational Congress Leading the Attack—Reserve Position of Languages.

Alexandria, Jan. 3.—French aggression in the matter of schools is becoming very acute in Alexandria. A Roman Catholic Separate School has been in existence here from time immemorial, and as the population of the town is more than two-thirds Catholic, the school is one of the largest of its kind in the Province, having an attendance of over five hundred pupils, with ten teachers. Hitherto, the English have had control, and the school has been run strictly according to the school law and regulations. French has been used only in the lower grades, and then only as the language of communication, and the result has been that the French children rapidly learned English, and French disappeared after the baby classes had been passed. The French pupils have afterwards been taught in English only, and the result is that an excellent school has been in existence here passing a large class at the entrance every year, the majority of whom are generally French pupils.

FRENCH MORE NUMEROUS.

The French supporters of the school have gradually been becoming more numerous until about ten years ago an effort was made by them to get control, but this was checkmated by the then village being created into a town and the election of trustees put on the ward system. As there was one of the three wards almost entirely French, this left the other two wards still under the control of the English supporters. But the French influx still continued, so in another of the three wards the French now have a small majority of the Catholic vote. This having once been created, immediately the attempt has been repeated under instructions from the French Educational Congress at Ottawa, which is quite active in this county. Rather unexpectedly at the annual meeting of the supporters of the school a full compliment of French trustees had been nominated, with the avowed intention of getting control of the school and having the French language taught. The English supporters have allowed the election to go by default in the French ward, but are opposing in the other two with their own nominees. The election will be held to-morrow.

THEY FEEL BITTERLY.

Great interest is being taken in the result, as the future of one of the oldest and best Separate schools in the Province is at stake. The English supporters feel keenly the unfairness of the French aggression, which is allowed under the present school system. They have in the past built up a fine school, which was largely endowed by the Scotch clergy and others. They are to-day paying three-quarters of the Separate school taxes, though two-thirds of the pupils now being educated are French. If they now find that they must continue to pay the taxes without having the opportunity of their own children obtaining a proper English training, the situation will be intolerable. They would have no objection to the French forming a Separate school of their own, but this is not agreeable to the French, and in any event could not be done under the present law.

There is one pleasing feature, however: a few of the older French families have not joined the new propaganda and recognize the value of English Education in Ontario. Amongst those is Mr. J. N. Gauthier, a native born Alexandrian and a brother of the present Archbishop of Ottawa.

FIRE PERIL VERY GREAT

Many Places in Peterboro Where Danger Lurks

THE GREATEST OFFENDER

Probably the Uptown Picture Shows—Frequently These Places Are Jammed to the Doors.

FIRE is bad enough when it destroys only property, but when life is endangered it is a different matter. The Times is of opinion that drastic action should be taken by our city authorities in regard to public halls, theatoriums, and banquet rooms. That there is emphatic need for inspection and regulation of many of these places, there can be no doubt. The fire traps have existed year after year free from local interference and waiting only for the certain moment when a catastrophe will turn the limelight on municipal negligence.

Halls with a single stairway for the ingress and egress of five hundred or a thousand men, women and children, could be counted not in several places, but in many.

It is high time that audiences begin to think of their safety. To imagine the chances during a panic of leaving a seat in the centre of a thousand persons and clambering over broken chairs to a single doorway seventy-five feet distant is to imagine a certain and gruesome death. A town on the shores of the St. Lawrence comes to mind, where a narrow, rickety wooden stairway provides the sole entrance for a thousand persons to the local opera house. Underneath the floor is a moving picture concern which in ten minutes could send the whole building into smoky vapor, and destroy fully fifty per cent. of the inmates.

And that is the story here, there and almost everywhere. Halls with no more fire protection than a rat trap are permitted to hold their menace over the heads of a willing population, and no responsible official dares interfere lest the owner of the hall take offence, or the complainant be labelled as a reformer.

The moving picture shows in many places are the chief offenders. In Peterborough one of the places appears to have regard for the law, and no crowding of the aisles is permitted. The Times has had complaints regarding the others, which we propose to follow up by an investigation. A representative of this paper visited The Princess a few days ago, and found a solid mass of people standing inside the doors, totally blocking up the passages. Should a fire break out in such a place at a time when it is crowded, there would be awful results. The Times feels it a public duty to call the attention of Chief Thompson to this matter, as well as direct the attention of the Council to the matter of public halls generally.

A FEAST OF REASON.

There are few Canadian publications so well "worth while" as "World Wide," which is a weekly reprint of articles and cartoons from the leading journals and reviews reflecting the current thought of both hemispheres.

Without wisdom of its own, "World Wide" reflects the wisdom of the age—the day—the hour—the moment. Without opinions of its own, "World Wide" beats to the tick of modern British and American thought. "World Wide" finds a welcome place on the study table. Business men, preachers, teachers, writers, and thinking people in all walks of life hail it as a most delightful visitor.

An effort is made to select the articles each week so that due proportion is given to the various fields of human interest to the shifting scenes of the world's greatest drama, to letters and science, and beautiful things.

There is no paper more acceptable than "World Wide" to the busy man or woman who wants to keep in touch with the world's thinking, and many of "World Wide's" readers would heartily endorse the words of one of them who says "almost every article in almost every issue you feel you would like to show to a friend or put away among your treasures." Or of another. "World Wide" is a mine of information, "good to have, hard to do without."

If you do not know "World Wide" personally, the publishers will gladly send samples free of charge on application. "World Wide" sells at five cents (5c) per copy, but the yearly subscription is only $1.50 a year. On one year's trial to new subscribers, only $1.00, by mentioning this paper. CAVAN.

A Bad Fire.

The fire which destroyed the three large barns and stables of Mr. Thos. Bradburn, lot 6, con. 11, Cavan, some time ago, proved a serious loss. Not only were three fine barns 30x60 destroyed. But the stables as well, and also 1000 bushels wheat and 1,000 bushels of barley were lost, as well as a couple of fat hogs and some poultry, entailing a total loss of about $5,000. Insurance only about $1200.

The fire originated from a steam threshing machine, which was at work in one of the barns at the time. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Bradburn and family over his loss.

YOUNG MAN TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF

Created Disturbance on Montreal Train—Was Put in Jail in Smith's Falls

BELIEVED TO BE INSANE

Smith's Falls, Ont., Jan. 3.—A young man named mugh Mason created a disturbance on a C.P.R. express from Montreal last night, and was arrested on the arrival of the train here. He was placed in the cells and twenty minutes later when the officer returned to speak to him Mason was found lying in a pool of blood and examination revealed the fact that he had made a determined effort to commit suicide with apair of scissors which had apparently been concealed in his clothing. An artery in his neck and wind pipe were almost completely severed. He was taken to St Francis Hospital and is still alive. Letters found in his pocket indicated that he came from Montreal and was apparently out of work. Several clippings of advertisements were in his pockets.

Mason is 28 years of age and is of most respectable appearance. Temporary insanity is believed to have been the cause.

MUTINY AT CAMP MOUNTED INFANTRY WANTED A HOLIDAY

WHEN NEW YEAR REST WAS DENIED THEM.

They Soon Began to Make Trouble—Attacked Officers.

London, Jan. 3.—Despite efforts to keep the matter secret, it leaked out this afternoon that a regiment of mounted infantry at Longmoor camp in Hampshire mutined Sunday morning, bayoneted several sergeants, and shot one officer inflicting severe wounds, and were only quelled after the ring leader fought a bare fist duel with one of the commissioned officers.

The soldiers had confidently expected that they would be granted the usual New Year's day holiday and when it was announced on Sunday morning that the men would remain on duty all day, trouble began. Before the commissioned officers could get the upper hand, the soldiers were holding an indignation meeting. Efforts to disperse them were made and several sergeants were bayoneted, some of them receiving severe wounds. A sergeant-major received a revolver bullet in the shoulder and several of the line officers were threatened with rough treatment.

Finally an officer who has for years been considered one of the crack boxers of the army challenged the ring leader of the privates to a bare fist duel which would decide the issue. The private accepted, a ring was formed and the fight was on. The conflict raged furiously for a few minutes when the officer knocked his opponent out. It required some time to revive him.

The privates then returned to their posts. Every effort was made to suppress the news of the outbreak.

"CHRISTIANS ARE ASSASSINS, KILLING WITH WORDS OF FRATERNITY ON THE LIP"

PIERRE LOTI, FAMOUS TRAVELLER, PLAYS THE RAPACITY OF EUROPEANS.

The Powers are Like So Many Hyenas—A Plea for World Peace—Treat Yellow and Brown Men as Cattle.

Paris, Jan. 3.—The Figaro to-day publishes a striking appeal to the world in favor of peace, written by Pierre Loti, the famous traveler author, and friend of the Mohammedan, in which he flays the rapacity of Europe in regard to the Mohammedan.

Italy's indefensible seizure of Tripoli and her war on Turkey are, says M. Loti, manifestations of this mockery of modern civilization, which looks on tranquilly at massacre, at war, and at the spilling of innocent blood.

M. Loti compares certain European powers to hyenas waiting to fill their stomachs with the remains of the maimed and dying Turkey. He declares that the time has arrived for the Christian world to cease from human butchery, for, he says, the Christians are the greater assassins of all, killing with words of fraternity on their lips and destroying with fire and shot the old worlds of Africa and Asia, and treating like cattle the men of the brown and yellow races.

M. Loti concludes: "Wars of conquest, on whatever pretext they are undertaken, must be stopped, or the world's peace, progress and arbitration will remain empty and derisive, and a shame to humanity."

FATAL ACCIDENT AT PARIS ONTARIO

Paris, Ont., Jan. 3.—George Spahlegher, a piano tuner, of Goderich, was killed by a second section of express train No. 15 at Paris about 9 o'clock last night.

Mr. Spahlegher was at the depot waiting for a train to take him to his home, and walked onto the track directly in front of the express, which was late, and which does not stop at Paris. It is thought that the unfortunate man, thinking that No. 15 was his train, stepped on the tracks intending to enter the train, and was caught before he could get across. Deceased was about 34 years of age. He was married, but had no family.

A City of Salt

There is a city of salt situated at Wieliczka, a little municipality some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit ever portion of this marvellous city, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries. Horses have been brought to life and have died there, without seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful ball-room, which is 216 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem. The mines contain twenty-five miles of railway lines, and there is a tempting buffet at the railway station.

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to suit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

HANGED IN THE THEATRE
Jail Yard Is Theatre of Institution.

Scene of Execution Shifted From the Jackson — The scene of a legal hanging was hastily changed from the usual jail yard to the town opera house here lately to prevent possible race trouble.

Will Turner, a negro preacher, was to pay the death penalty for killing Jesse Singley, a white man, last August. A large crowd gathered in the jail yard, and, fearing serious trouble, the authorities quickly moved Turner to the theatre and he was hanged on the stage but few witnessed.

TOWN NAMES OF THE WEST

The Men Who Found Names for Many Western Canadian Towns Displayed Much Ingenuity and Occasionally Humor.

The matter of place-names in the West is an interesting bit of study, and reveals not only an amazing profundity but a very considerable originality. They are not the kind of names that are known in the East. Very seldom does a western town duplicate the name of an eastern town — which is more than can be said of the East itself, where there are many repetitions. A glance at the newest map of the prairie provinces will show an interesting variety of names that are practically copyright. They are the kind of names that would not fit well in the East, simply because they have grown out of western experiences and conditions. The earliest were Indian and many sweet-sounding Indian names are on the map; then the cue was taken from the appearance of Nature, particularly in the case of rivers, hills, and valleys; and latterly the surnames of men are being commemorated, men who have taken some part in the establishment of the town, or in the case of many of the newest stations, the officials or engineers of the railway which is bringing the town into being.

But even greater in variety, interest, and occasional oddity than the place-names are the names of the people. Here, too, an effort is made to commemorate some phase of western life, dot infrequently with strange results. An Indian mother near Edmonton heard of the large part being played in the West by the railways, and straightway named her youngest "C.P.R." Another, desirous of doing honour to the white man's medicine, conferred upon her first-born the surprising distinction of "Mary Ann Thomson's Sarsaparilla."

The Time of Long Sermons.

Those who like long sermons should have lived in the seventeenth century. The manner in which the Rev. John Howe, Minister of Great Torrington, in Devonshire, conducted Divine service on a public fast day is thus described by a contemporary: "Mr Howe said that upon those occasions he began about nine in the morning with a prayer for about a quarter of a hour, in which he begged a blessing upon the work of the day, and afterwards read and expounded a chapter or psalm, in which he spent three-quarters of an hour; then prayed for about an hour preached for another hour, and prayed for about half an hour. After this he retired and took some little refreshment for about a quarter of an hour (the people singing all the time) and then came into the pulpit and prayed for another hour and gave them another sermon of about an hour's length; and so concluded the service of the day."

HUSBAND AS PRIZE

In Many Parts of Europe Lotteries Are Held in Which Husbands Are Offered as First Prize to the Winner.

A lottery has just been organized for its women readers by the Odessa 'Courier,' the prize being a young and handsome member of the staff, who has undertaken to marry the winner, be she young or old, fair or ugly, rich or poor. Not only does the enterprising journal agree to pay all wedding expenses, but also promises the couple a sufficient annuity.

Similar was the offer made some years ago by a German newspaper. The prize, however, by [illegible] up to the expectations of the winner, who declared that the pursy, bald-headed little man who presented himself for her acceptance bore no resemblance to the portrait of the aristocratic-looking individual which had appeared in the paper.

He has chestnut hair and brown eyes; his height is 5 ft. 8 in., and his weight is 10 st. 10 lb. He does not use narcotics nor intoxicants, has no bad habits, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has a jovial disposition, and is very popular."

Husband With $1000 a Year.

In the early forties the proprietor of the leading library at one of the chief Scottish watering-places announced a grand raffle, the first prize to consist of a young man, who, in addition to good looks, amiable manners, and unexceptionable family connections, was guaranteed to be in possession of property bringing in an annual income of £1000. Considerable excitement prevailed, especially among spinsters—young, middle-aged and old — several of whom came from afar to take part in the event. Woeful, then, was the dismay when, on the morning of the day appointed for the drawing, a couple of constables arrived from London and arrested the [illegible] "prize" on a charge [illegible]

THE ROMANTIC HAPSBURG FAMILY

Archduke Henry Ferdinand Abandons His Rank and Title in Order to Marry a Bavarian Girl of the People.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Vienna. — Another romance connected with the imperial house of Hansburg is contained in the dry official announcement that the Emperor Francis Joseph has placed the Archduke Henry Ferdinand, brother of the Princess Louise of Saxony, and of Archduke Leopold Salvatore "on leave, with the stoppage of all emoluments."

Archduke Henry Ferdinand, who is a painter, with great distate for court life and military duties, has been living for some time in Munich. He has desired for a long time to abandon his rank and title in the same way as Archduke John Orth, Archduke Leopold Salvatore, and, more recently, Archduke Ferdinand Charles in order, as is reported, to marry a Munich girl belonging to family not of noble rank. Finding this to be most difficult, the Archduke has taken the easier course of throwing up his military career.

A Romantic Family

The family of the Hapsburgs has experienced a series of romances. The first among the more recent was that of the Archduke John Salvatore, known as John Orth, who completely disappeared after giving up his rank and title and marrying an actress named Milly Stiebel. He was said to have sailed for Chile on board the Santa Margaretha in July, 1890, and no trace of him has since been found.

Then came Princess Louise of Saxony, who disappeared from Dresden in 1902, leaving her husband, the present King of Saxony. She was forbidden to use her title of archduchess by imperial decree. She was divorced from the King of Saxony in 1903.

Archduke Ferdinand Charles this year ran away from his military duties and married a daughter of a court chancellor, afterwards assuming the name of Burg and living as a private citizen.

Archduke Leopold, who was a major-general in the Austrian army, renounced his career in 1902 in order to marry a Bavarian actress named Adamovich, whom he later divorced. He lives in Switzerland under the name of Woelfling.

Thought It was a Crack.

A corpulent gentleman with a large appetite entered a mean-looking restaurant, and ordered a chop, and waited twenty minutes. Then the waiter reappeared with a plate on which rested a dab of mashed potatoes, a bit of meat burnt almost to a cinder, out of which emerged a long, thin piece of bone.

The waiter set it down before the starving gentleman and hurried off.

"See here," called the customer, "I ordered a chop."

"Yes sir," replied the man, "there it is."

"Ah, so it is," mused the hungry man, readjusting his spectacles. "I thought it was a crack in the plate."

UNSINKABLE SHIPS

New Invention For Forcing Wa er Out of a Ship by Compressed Air, Permitting the Holes to be Repaired from Within.

If all that is claimed for the idea proves correct there will be a revolution in the work of ship-saving in the near future. Indeed, it promises to revolutionise naval warfare, for it is claimed for this new invention that ships can be kept afloat even after being rammed. In fact, they can be made practically unsinkable. The invention is the outcome of an idea for forcing water out of a ship by compressed air, thus permitting the holes to be repaired from within. The idea is a very ample one, and was suggested to Commander Marsh, of the battleship North Carolina, lying off New York, by Mr. Witherspoon, the engineer engaged in the construction of the New York railway tubes under the Hudson River.

All the experiments tried proved entirely successful. The sea-cocks were opened on the Carolina and water was permitted to fill one of the watertight compartments. Compressed air at a pressure of twelve pounds to the square inch was then forced into the compartment through a small opening. In ten minutes all the water was driven back into the river. Simultaneously with the twelve-pound pressure into the waterlogged compartment compressed air at seven pounds pressure was driven into all the surrounding compartments and a three-pound pressure into the next series of compartments, this being necessary to prevent the pressure on the original compartment buckling the sides and the deck.

Commander Marsh is most enthusiastic regarding the idea. He points out that the invention now enables them to do repairs to the hull below water-line from the inside, either after collision or during a naval battle. "Ship, as it were, now for the first time practically unsinkable, for the watertight compartments alone will not keep a ship afloat indefinitely. There is always a leak somewhere. All that is necessary," he continues, "is to install a system of pipes and pumps and attach them to the compressed air. Every warship is fitted with a steam-pipe for the purpose of blowing off [illegible] and explosive gases which can be utilized [illegible] water. The whole [illegible] ship is about [illegible] a low [illegible] making [illegible] $100,000."

Changing Habits in Britain.

One who served as manager of a leading hotel in London for twenty-five years, tells in a recent publication of the changing habits of British business men. He says when he first assumed the management of the hotel in question, business men made it a practice to go to their offices by eight or nine in the morning, and thought no one of enjoying bed until seven. At that time, however, they spent two hours over luncheon, at mid-day. Now the usual practice is to start the day at half-past ten and quit at half-past five, but to take a hurried lunch in mid-day, and to keep under high pressure from the time they start until the time they actually quit.

ENORMOUS EATERS.

Some Great Gastronomic Feats Performed at Different Times by Gluttons for Wagers, and Then Boas.

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Two Days to Make a Town

The largest single building ever moved bodily was a block of dwelling-houses known as Normandy Apartments in America. The building weighed 8,000 tons, yet it was decided to shift it as it stood, in order to make room for an elevated railway. It was done, however, without any mishaps, though the move took ten weeks' hard labour to accomplish.

In 1890 the inhabitants of Tipperary had a dispute with their ground landlord, and gave notice to quit in a body. At a spot some miles distant they were provided by the Land League with a brand-new Tipperary. Unlike the inhabitants of Platte they decided to leave the houses standing, though everything else portable was taken. It was lucky they did so, for New Tipperary proved a hopeless failure, and after a few months the inhabitants had another huge flitting back to their old homes.

Milking by Electricity.

We have had milking machines for some while; now comes the American electric machine which jealously watches the milk from cow to pail, from pail to dairy, from dairy to sterilizer, from sterilizer to separator, from separator to churn, from churn to refrigerator, neatly packed up as germless butter.

You press a button. Four cows are electrically milked simultaneously, and all this happens. And not a germ, not a molecule of contamination. This is an era of hard choices for the man who loves health and beauty equally. The farmyard of the future is not an inspiring speculation, but the most aesthetic person cannot preserve a blind eye to the sediment in his glass of milk.

The officials of the Children's Shelter desire to thank those whose names are given below, for contributions towards the Shelter at Christmas time and also to the many anonymous donors who so generously contributed. Mrs. W. G. Cowan, Mrs D. Kennedy, Mrs. R. W. Travers, G. W. Greeve, Mrs. Geo. Evans, Mr. Rambo, Mrs. Dr. Greer, Mrs. Soper, Bolvar street; Miss Borradaile, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davidson, Misses Dickson, the girls of the Primary class of Bethel Sunday School, Gladys Jay.

QUAINT CHARITIES.

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was impeded by the want of a dowry.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

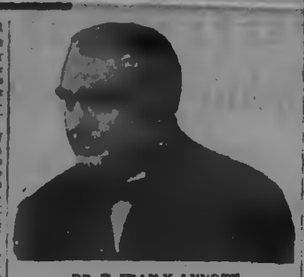
I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send your a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can know them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 487 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that. I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.



DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic trouble.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

IMPERIAL HOME RE-UNION.

Among the schemes of furthering good immigration is that of the British Imperial Home Re-Union Association, which is doing much in the building up of a nation by rendering facilities for the establishment of homes. The scheme may be regarded as peculiarly fulfilling the "quality of mercy," in that it blesses him that gives, and him that receives. Our Dominion, with its wonderful magnificence of space must look to its development in bringing into it the best type of blood. It must cater for the permanent and not the transient resident. The title of the association describes its functions, namely the bringing together of families. It is not a charitable organization, but it plays a paternal role in suitable advancements to the wage earner who requires it for bringing his family to join him in a permanent home. The advance is to be paid back, and so far it is pleasing to note that $77,000 have been refunded in four months. The scheme is one which, while benefitting the immigrant, also benefits the Dominion. For one thing the money earned in this country is kept in this country. Apart from removing the hardship of keeping up two homes it goes greatly in favor of community building. It creates in the settler a new and abiding interest in the land of his adoption, and does much in raising the moral tone all around. Satisfied units make a satisfied nation. The highest and noblest ideals emanate from the home. The stability of its homes, marks the stability of a country. The scheme not only encourages population, but betters it. It is the young population in a new country who will make its future. The facilities for creating homes will bring children under the inspiration of the Canadian national mind and ideal. This country does not require the drifting alien but the permanent citizen. There are many schemes of Empire-building, and the Home Re-Union is doing its part in bringing British blood here, and developing it into the best and finest of Canadian citizenship

MANHOOD SUFFRAGE IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Manhood suffrage will be the next move in Liberal legislation in Great Britain. The old order is changing consequent on the curtailment of the Veto power of the House of Lords, and the penulum is swinging more and more in the direction of democratic measures. The lowering of the franchise will be conducive of much good if only it creates a responsibility and a feeling of more interest amongst those to whom the privilege is to be extended. Apart from this, there are many anomalies which the measure will remove. Notably the one of plural voting a privilege which is still enjoyed by many who, through property qualifications, are able to vote in more than one constituency. This will not, perhaps, be much resented by those who are so privileged, for the justice of "one man one vote" is becoming more and more recognized amongst all. With this anomaly removed, Great Britain will be able to adopt the up-to-date method of having all elections held on the same day.

Possibly the only feeling of regret which the measure will cause, will be the doing away with the university constituencies. But this, after all, is only a sentimental one, and if viewed in a practical light, must be considered just. Under the present system the university candidate is not of much use in the House, owing to the small number of them, and he only serves the purpose of adding votes to either political party without being fundamentally representative. These constituencies have been aptly described as "fancy" ones, and must appear incongruous to thinking men in affording, as they do, the means for plural voting.

Amongst those in the House of Commons there will always be a good percentage of university men, and the universities may always be sure of, at any rate, indirect representation. Those who represent the universities may be said to be in a sense the replica of the Lords Spiritual in the Second Chamber. Tradition is being ruthlessly set aside in these days of modern thought and progress, and possibly this change of sentiment tends to prevent a nation from becoming decrepit.

Cold Storage and Fish Freezing Plant.

The opportunities which are offering in all lines of trade and resourcefulness on the Pacific Coast is demonstrated by the fact that the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. Ltd., have recently erected a cold storage and fish freezing plant at Ritchie Point in the City of Prince Rupert, B.C., the western terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and has been built for the handling of the fish industry of the Northern Pacific Ocean.

The waters surrounding Prince Rupert teem with Halibut, Ling and Grey Cod, Salmon, Sole, Herring, etc., the market for which is unlimited, and with the completion of the railway, the fish can be in transit to the eastern markets on the day caught, thus assuring with speedy transportation, their arrival in first class condition at destination.

The building is constructed of reinforced concrete throughout. The foundation is built on solid rock, and is of sufficient strength to carry the building to the height of ten stories. The present structure is six stories high, and can be extended as soon as trade permits.

The daily fish freezing capacity will be sixty tons, and the storage capacity of frozen fish about 6000 tons.

The ice making plant is of 25 tons daily capacity, and space has been left for an additional 25 tons for future installation.

Over 30 miles of piping was required for the refrigeration installation. Twenty-three car loads of cork were used in the building for the flooring and for the partitions between each room.

Freight Conditions Good

During a recent dispute between the Grand Trunk Pacific and their boilermakers, sympathetic interests with the latter endeavored through several channels to circulate the report that the freight traffic of the Grand Trunk Pacific was badly congested, and they had difficulty in moving freight. The Secretary of the Board of Trade of Watrous, Sask., wrote an unsolicited letter to the General Freight Agent of the railway, in which he complimented him on the position of the freight condition on the line. In this letter he gives the information that in connection with the installation of the electric light plant at Watrous they received a carload of machinery on the 9th of Dec. that was shipped from Montreal on November 29th via Grand Trunk route, and says: "At ten day service between Montreal and Watrous appears to us an exceptionally good service under the best conditions and it certainly does not go to show that your road is tied up in any manner but entirely the opposite, that you are able to handle all freight to the best interests of the shipper. I compliment you on the prompt service rendered.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has received another diploma for their exhibit which was installed at the Coronation Exhibit in the White City, Sheppard's Bush, London, Eng. during 1911.

Propriety.

They waltzed and waltzed to a wild, sweet strain—
The music throbbed, like a beating heart—
They waltzed and waltzed, and they waltzed again.
It seemed, in fact, that they couldn't part.

He held her close with his hand and arm.
Near to her cheek his own cheek burned.
Against his bosom her soft young form
Closely pressed as they twirled and turned.

Later, when taking her to her coach,
He caught her hand on the stairway dim.
"How dare you?" she asked, with stern reproach.
And "What do you mean, sir?" she asked of him.

—Puck.

How He Escaped.

One of the boys had broken one of the school rules, and no one would own up.

The teacher announced that he would thrash the whole class if some one did not tell him who had committed the offence.

All were silent, and he began with the first boy and thrashed every one in the class until finally he reached the last one. Then he said, "Now, if you will tell me who did this I won't thrash you."

"All right, sir. I did it," was the reply.—Idea.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

Ten Years Ago.

With the Boxers

Ray Temple, the Milwaukee lightweight, is going to Australia to box for Promoter Hickey.

After his recent bout with Bob Moha, Bill Papke said that he was through with the game for good.

Mat Wells has returned to his home in England and will perhaps be matched to meet Packy McFarland in London.

Not Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

RED DEER, ALBERTA

Will Be Greatest Divisional Point of Canadian Northwest—A Good Investment.

Undoubtedly at the present moment there is no point in the whole of Canada, that is showing such activity in railroad construction as Red Deer, Alberta. This town is the divisional point of the C.P.R. main line to Edmonton. The Alberta Central have their headquarters, shops and yards in the town. Steel is already laid through the town as far west as the river, and work trains are now operating over this part of the line, which will greatly facilitate the construction of the huge bridges across the river, as the material for this purpose can be brought directly to the spot. The C.N.R. have gangs at work grading through the town or their line to Edmonton, also their branch line West through the Yellowhead Pass. It is doubtful if any other city can show such an increase in all departments of trade, traffic, freight, telegraph and postal receipts for 1911 were from 150 to 350 per cent. in excess of last year, while building permits showed an increase of 425 per cent. The population has increased nearly 100 per cent. this year, and people are still pouring into the town, all the available accommodation being taken up. Altogether Red Deer is enjoying a prosperity that few places can ever expect to equal. Situated as it is in the midst of the greatest agricultural and farming country on the Continent of North America, and surrounded by a hinterland that is rich in coal, and timber, it is destined to become one of the greatest centres of activities that this country will ever know. The enormous increase of business that will naturally flow into this much to be envied town will insure a rapid advance in the prices of property, and purchasers at the present price will reap the benefit of a quick and substantial rise. Particulars and information of property can be had on application to Messrs. Arbin & Percy, Exchange Building, 142 Hastings street West, Vancouver, B.C., who have a fine subdivision west of town in which they are selling lots for $100 cash on exceptionally easy terms.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organised recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES IT PAYS

BORN AFTER MOTHER'S BURIAL

Gruesome Experience of Woman, Who Rescued from Death by Covetous Grave-Digger, Lived to Add to Family Birth Roll.

To be buried alive is a fate of which many persons have a nervous dread, which is by no means as fanciful as it appears. Very many cases have occurred in which a temporary state of suspension of animation has led to the burial, or worse, of a man or woman being actually [illegible] thrown into a coffin and even buried. Most gruesome was the experience of the mother of Eberezer Erskine, Englishman, who was buried [illegible] years before her son was born. During an illness Mrs. Erskine was subject to fainting fits, and [illegible] these she was believed to have passed away. After [illegible] arrangements were made for her interment; and the [illegible] who also served the community as sexton, measured her for coffin. The deceased" was duly buried, and there [illegible] for the cupidity of the undertaker, her story would have ended. But a ring which had been buried on the poor lady's hand had attracted his greedy eye after the funeral this worthy opened the grave by night and began to saw off the finger bearing the ring. A ringing scream from the supposed corpse almost scared the thief out of his wits, but his humanity overcoming his fear, he roused the parson's family, and the buried lady was restored to health at the expense of a finger.

A similar experience was that of the mother of the famous General [illegible] whose sorrowing relatives calmly looked on while she was buried alive. It is related that she was fully aware of all the incidents of the funeral, but mustered strength to make a rattling noise on the coffin lid when the clods of earth began to descend heavily upon it. The sound attracted the sexton's notice, and he [illegible] broke open the coffin, in time to save her from suffocation.

(Cross-Lines)

Many are the stories told of "Bobs" (here is one of the best (says a "Daily News" writer), although I do not vouch for its accuracy. He was watching the firing at Bisley and noticed two or three errors on the part of the markers. So he went to the telephone and rang up the officer in charge. "The marking is very bad," he observed. "It's the best you'll get," returned the officer. "Do you know who I am?" sternly demanded Lord Roberts. "No, I don't. I am Lord Roberts." "Well, I am Lord Wolseley," came the reply. Lord Roberts loves a joke, but how he took this one is not recorded.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS SHOT.

When Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and their party sat down in their box at Ford's Theatre the fateful night the President was shot, the guard who was acting as substitute for Col. McCook, took his position at the rear of the box, close to an entrance leading into the box from the dress circle of the theatre. His orders were to stand there, fully armed, and to permit no unauthorized person to pass into the box. His orders were to stand there and protect the President at all hazards. From the spot where he was thus stationed, this guard could not see the stage or the actors; but he could hear the words the actors spoke, and he became so interested in them that, incredible as it may seem, he quietly deserted his post of duty, and, walking down the dimly lighted aisle, deliberately took a seat in the last row of the dress circle. It was while the President was thus absolutely unprotected through this guard's amazing recklessness—to use no stronger words—that Booth rushed through the entrance to the box, just deserted by the guard, and accomplished his foul deed. Realization of his part in the assassination so preyed upon the mind of the guard that he finally died as a result of it.

From Generation to Generation.

Grandfather Billings smiled covertly when Billings junior wondered where Billings [illegible] aged seven, got his "trickiness." "If I didn't keep my eyes open," said Billings junior, hotly, "Billy would outwit me every time."

"This morning," he continued, "I promised him a whipping to-night. When the event came off just now, he never flinched or yelled. Black pure and simple!" said I to myself, mighty proud, for I wasn't sparing him in the least. But that wasn't it at all," he concluded, in disgust. "The young rascal had on three pairs of trousers."

"As I remember it," observed Grandfather Billings, reflectively, "you used to insert a small geography when a 'good sound one' was due you."

SHOOTING PAINS, IN SIDE, ARMS, BACK

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful, but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you wonderful things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

FORTUNE FROM A SHOVEL

The Shovel Used by Navvies on Canadian Road Making an Invention of a Labourer in England.

The simplest labour-saving device may quite possibly be worth a fortune. Eighty-nine years ago a number of men were at work on the road-bed of a line of railway in course of construction between Birmingham and Manchester, England. They were cutting through a hill and moving the material by loosening it with picks, shovelling it into barrows, and wheeling it away. The shovels they were using were known as Irish shovels, with a square-cornered blade about 15 in. long. The work progressed but slowly, and the sub-contractor in charge rebuked his workmen for not making quicker progress. One of them replied that if he would grind off the corners of the shovels it would be easier to get them into the earth, and consequently they would be able to work more quickly.

The contractor ridiculed the idea, which he considered a piece of impudence on the part of the workman, but the navvy was quite in earnest and not easily discouraged. When the work was completed he discussed the matter with a friend of his at Sheffield, who persuaded an ironmonger he knew to make a dozen or so as an experiment. The tools were offered to a large contractor, who promised to let some of his men use the new shovels and report results.

About a week afterwards the contractor returned with the information that his men were fairly quarrelling as to who should use the new tools, some arriving to work a quarter of an hour before time in order to be there first when the tool-box was opened. The navvy's suggestion had proved a good one; a patent was secured, and an agreement made between the navvy, the manufacturer, and the contractor. When the navvy died he left a fortune of over $335,000 the proceeds from royalties on the manufacture of shovels under his patent.

FAMOUS SNUFF-TAKERS

The eighteenth century was the age of snuff-taking "par excellence." The custom was general among all classes of people, it was an act of politeness for well-bred men to offer their snuff-boxes to well-bred women. Women themselves carried their own boxes, and interchanged pinches with the gentlemen and in Canada it was fashionable amongst the officials.

At fashionable dinner-parties after the cloth was removed snuff-boxes were passed around. Pope and Bolingbroke, Swift and Congreve, Addison and Steele, all indulged in the pleasures of snuff. Dr. Johnson carried his snuff in the capacious pockets of his waistcoat, and would convey it to his nose without stint. He could not abide the narrow confines of a box. Frederick the Great resembled him in this respect. Both Napoleon and Wellington were prodigious snuff-takers, but Washington indulged only moderately. Jefferson was fond of snuff, as his waistcoat and frill often showed. Henry Clay was another famous snuff-taker, and often needed the stimulus of a pinch when making a speech.

Twixt Bull and Bear.

Lincoln stories are common, and the tellers of them are not as accurate in ascertaining their genuineness as they are prolific in producing them. The following tale may or may not be a real Lincoln." It is, in any event, a good story:

Two farm-hands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole in the tree that proved to have an exit in the rear.

The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow, the bull made for him. He turned and again shot through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole.

The strange pursuit kept up some minutes. At first it mystified the farm-hand up in the tree. Then it angered him.

"Hey," he shouted, "you idiot! Why don't you stay in the hole?"

The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout, and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"Idiot yourself! There's a bear in the hole."

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

London. — London's lord mayor, Sir Thomas Crosby, is the first physician to be thus honored, and, too, he is one of the oldest lord mayors London ever had, having just celebrated his 81st birthday. The lord mayor has nothing to do but wear the robes of his office upon state occasions and hand the municipal key over to distinguished visitors occasionally. Sir Thomas is a spry old man, and it is expected that he will handle the robes and key as deftly as his youthful predecessors did.

Maybe So.

"Pa!"

"Well, Hildegarde!"

"Sawfish live in the sea, don't they?"

"Yes, my child."

A TRAIN-LOAD OF MONKEYS

A plague of monkeys some years ago sorely troubled the officials at a small station on the Sarai Railway, in North-West India. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighbouring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons.

The officials were worried out with keeping watch and scaring away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruit were put on the roofs of the [illegible] with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted [illegible] and soon became perfectly [illegible] to man.

One morning, when they were all [illegible], an engine was stealthily [illegible] to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared, and made no attempt to escape, sitting crouched together till the train had gone several miles and stopped at a jungle. Then they wasted no time to leave. Every monkey leapt down howling and fled into the jungle, whence they never returned to trouble the railway.

PEACE TALKS ONLY DESULTORY

Preparations Are Going On for a Winter Campaign Because of Doubt of Yuan Shi Kai the Prime Minister.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai. — The revolutionaries here say the peace discussion will be only desultory. After this conference, the Nanking Nationat Convention will be held. Delegates representing eighteen provinces are now in Nanking. One of the leading members of the convention said today: "If Yuan Shi Kai bows to the inevitable within a week he will be elected president. If he does not, Sun Yat Sen will be the first president."

It is evident the Republicans are convinced that Premier Yuan in proposing peace negotiations is simply spending for time and the Republicans proceed with preparations for winter campaign.

The leaders assert that if the Manchus abdicate and Yuan Shi Kai consents to their elimination, the entire country would be quiet and safe within a week.

The Foreign Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai has adopted a resolution protesting against all loans to the administration.

"FAT MEAT AND STRONG COFFEE" LIVES TO BE 100

Columbus, O. — "I ate fat meat, drank strong coffee, worked hard and kept cheerful — that's how I have lived 100 years," says Mrs. Ellen Mitchell who just recently celebrated her 100th birthday. For the past 70 years she has smoked the strongest kind of tobacco in a clay pipe. That helps her to be cheerful, she claims. Another aid is her habit of never worrying. For 93 years she escaped doctor's medicine.

MRS. ELLEN MITCHELL

Mrs. Mitchell has outlived eight of her ten children. During her more active years she wore cloth, husked corn, laid fence rails, and did the housework. Now her activities are confined to playing blindman's buff with her grandchildren.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

THE COURAGE OF OPINIONS

The ways in which people form their opinions are most remarkable. Every man, when he begins his reasonable life, finds certain general opinions current in the world. He is shaped by these opinions in one way or another, either directly or by reaction. If he is soft and plastic, like the majority of people, he takes the opinions that are about him for his own. If he is self-assertive and defiant, he takes the opposite of these opinions and gives to them his vehement adherence. We know the two kinds well, and as we ordinarily see them, the fault which is at the root of both is intellectual cowardice. One man clings servilely to the old ready-made opinions which he finds, because he is afraid of being called rash and radical; another rejects the traditions of his people from fear of being thought fearful, and timid, and a slave.... Both are cowards. Both are equally removed from that brave seeking of the truth, which is not set upon either winning or avoiding any name, which will take no opinion for the sake of conformity and reject no opinion for the sake of originality; which is free, therefore — free to gather its own convictions, a slave neither to any compulsion nor to any antagonism.

—Phillips Brooks.

Latin Prescriptions

The following ludicrously illustrates the necessity of a reform in medical nomenclature.

Dr. Doane was very much confounded, a few years since, by a remark of one of his patients. The day previous the doctor had prescribed that safe and palatable remedy, syrup of buckthorn, and left his prescription duly written in the usual cabalistic characters—"Syr. Rham. Cath." On inquiring if the patient had taken the medicine, a thundercloud darkened her face, lightning darted from her eye, and she roared out:—

"No! I can read your doctor-writing. And I ain't a-going to take Syrup of Ram Cats for anybody."

A Pennyworth of Air.

An enterprising inventor has gone into the business of retailing compressed air for cycles and motor-car tyres on the principle of "drop a penny in the slot." The device is a cast-iron pump in a neat box arrangement, which is nailed to telegraph poles and walls in country districts that are frequented by cyclists and motorists. The handle shown in the centre of the box gives a supply of air when turned.

Mrs. GORDON WRIGHT, Prominent in Temperance

Mrs. Gordon Wright, W. C. T. U. president of the Dominion of Canada, possesses many brilliant talents and her advancement in the W. C. T. U. ranks has been phenomenal. Beginning fifteen years ago as Local Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics in London, Ont., her home city, the following year she became provincial head of the same department, and a year later was placed in charge of the Dominion superintendency. While still holding this office, Mrs. Wright was elected president of the London Union, an active organization of some three hundred members.

In 1898 Mrs. Wright was again advanced, being appointed recording secretary of the Province of Ontario. Two years later she was elected to the office of corresponding secretary for the same Union. This position she filled with conspicuous success, her management of difficult correspondence with influential bodies displaying a genius for this work, which made her a valued member of the provincial sub.-executive for a number of years. Mrs. Wright also acted for some time as editor of the Canadian White Ribbon Tidings.

In 1903 Mrs. Wright was further honored by being [illegible] to the [illegible] presidency of the Dominion. Two years later she was raised to the highest position in the gift of the Union, that of Dominion President.

Mrs. Gordon Wright is a typical Canadian — a woman of culture and charm. Her winning personality, her natural gifts as an executive officer and public speaker, her devotion to all temperance, missionary and philanthropic causes, combine to place her in the front rank of Canadian womanhood.

HON. A. G. MACKAY Who resigned Ontario Liberal Leadership.

The hon. gentleman who resigned the Leadership of the Liberal party in the Ontario House of Legislature a few days ago, is an M.A. and a K.C. Born at Sydenham, Grey County Ont., on 7th March 1860, his early educational days were spent at Sydenham Public school, Owen Sound High School, the High School of Model Forest, and finishing at Toronto University from which he graduated B. A. in 1883 and M.A. in 1885. With such an array of instructional influences it is no surprise if the young Sydenham Scot was pointed in early life as a man who knew things, a man who was likely to go to the front in whatever direction he might decide to devote his abilities. The results have justified the faith of those prophets, is known today of all men who give attention to public affairs in Ontario.

Finishing his university career, Mr Mackay was during four years Principal of Port Roman High School following which, he went in [illegible] study and was called to the bar May 1891, and three years later had the honor of being elected Crown Attorney for Grey County, a position he held until 1901.

Switching into the political arena in the 1902 general election, success came his way at the first venture being returned representative for North Grey, a constituency that has continued its confidence right along to the present time.

Hon Mr. Mackay is a director of the Imperial Cement Co., and president of the Owen Sound Dredging and Construction Company. He takes a live interest in military matters and is captain of the 31st Reg't of Militia.

Jumping Jack Tars

The rhythmic jumping of three hundred and fifty bluejackets saved H. M. S. Commonwealth from the fate of the Montague when she ran aground in a dangerous place.

The battleship Montague was abandoned as a hopeless wreck off the Cornish coast, but her sister ship, the Commonwealth, was safely got off by the muscular exertion of her crew.

The Commonwealth ran on to an uncharted rock when returning from target practice, and was badly damaged. She was so nicely balanced in her lodgment, however, that it was decided, after reversing the engines had failed to extricate her, to try the experiment of mustering all the available hands on the extreme aft, and setting them to jump in unison. A regular jumping of twenty-five hundred of solidly-built seamen had the effect of making the vessel rock in such fashion that she gradually worked off with the rising tide. In fifteen minutes she was afloat, and saved

The "Father of Southwark."

Thousands of poor people in the South of London will regret that, owing to advancing age, Canon Horsley is obliged to leave his busy parish of St. Peter's, Walworth, for a quiet living in the South of England. For years he has worked zealously on behalf of the people of the slums, and there is scarcely a branch of parish or municipal work in London with which Canon Horsley has not been connected. To the people of Southwark he has been in every sense a "father of the flock," and it is stated that he once refused a colonial bishopric that he might stay at home and work in the slums.

The canon is a man with a fund of anecdote, and describing the odd dress of English bishops some time ago, he told a story of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, who had been visiting Southborough. On the way to the train he lost his reckoning, and stopped a boy. "I say, my lad, how far is it to the station?" "About a mile ahead," said the boy, who had never seen a bishop before. Then, staring at the bishop's knee-breeches and silk stockings, he added, "Hallos, guv'nor, you've got up. Somebody swiped your [illegible]

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a fashionable seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter [illegible] no sun, it's frost; if it's no frost, it's sun; if it's neither frost nor sun, it's rain; if it's no rain, it's winds and [illegible] like the [illegible]."

SIRES AND SONS.

At sixty Sir William R. Smith, who began life as a ropemaker's boy, takes over Sir Philip Watts' job as director of naval construction for the fleets of George V.

Captain Herbert Edward Greenstreet of the New Zealand Shipping company recently departed on his eightieth voyage round the world. Altogether he has sailed 2,000,000 miles and never had a mishap.

Judge Edgar Jay Sherman, statesman, soldier, author and jurist, who recently resigned from the Massachusetts superior bench, was admitted to the bar fifty-three years ago. He is now seventy-seven.

Dr. James Curtis Hepburn, the oldest surviving graduate of Princeton, class of 1832, began his career as a medical missionary to China in 1840. On his ninetieth birthday anniversary he was honored with an imperial decoration from the mikado. He was born at Milton, Pa., ninety-six years ago.

F. Dewitt Fisher, clerk in the postoffice at Toledo, O., has received word from the postoffice department that he has been proclaimed the champion mail distributer in the United States postal service. Fisher's record is a test on Aug. 9 was 711 pieces of mail in eleven minutes, an average of sixty-five a minute. The title had formerly been held by John B. Francis of the Cincinnati postoffice.

Sporting Notes.

[illegible] statistics just compiled show that during the last nine years American league teams have won 18% games in interleague contests to 17% for National league teams.

Miss Dorothy Campbell, one of the greatest golf players in the world, will reside in the United States and take up newspaper work this winter. Miss Campbell has won ten gold medals for championships in various countries.

Dixiana's feat in trotting a mile in 2.02¼ over a half mile track is in some respects the most wonderful performance that has ever characterized the American trotting turf. One-quarter of this great mile was trotted in 30 seconds by the son of Bingen, two others in 31 seconds each and the final one in 30¼ seconds.

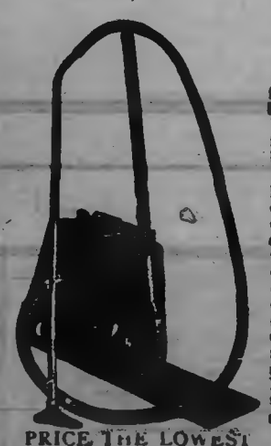
KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER



You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.
The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Musician and Scientist.

There is no more brilliant scientist in the world today than Sir William Ramsay, who has been warning Britain that, at the present rate of consumption, her coal supply will only last another 175 years. His most wonderful discoveries have been in connection with new gases in the atmosphere, upon which such names as argon, neon, and xenon have been bestowed, and the experimental work which led to these discoveries ranks as the most refined ever carried out. Of xenon, for example, there is only about one part in 70,000,000 parts of air. Sir William devotes his leisure to music. He plays both the piano and violin and has written the words of not a few songs. The collecting of curios is another of Sir William's hobbies, and at his house at Regent's Park may be seen many queer treasures thousands of years old.

A Destructive Blaze.

The home of Mr. E. J. Ferguson, Rogers street, East City, was destroyed by fire on Monday morning, entailing a loss of over $1,200. Mr. Ferguson was returning from the stable when he noticed the blaze in the upstairs of his house, and had to run to a neighbor's to send in an alarm, the wires to his telephone being burned. The fire had a big start on the firemen.

Another coasting accident occurred at the West End, on Thursday night, when Carl Brechenbridge, a young lad residing in the West End, was badly cut about the head, as a result of a coasting accident. Besides sustaining several nasty cuts about the face and head, he was badly shaken up. He was removed to his home, where his injuries were attended to

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 50 acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

Two Good Reasons

"Dorothy," said that young lady's mamma, "it seems to me that you had the gas turned rather low when young Smart was here last evening."

"It was solely for economy, mamma," answered the maiden.

"There is no use trying to beat the gas company, my daughter. I have noticed that the shutting off of the gas is always followed by a corresponding increase of pressure."

"Well, that lessens the waist mamma, dear; doesn't it?" replied the artless girl. And her fond parent could find no answer.

MASTER OF ETON.

Canon Lyttelton Has a Passion for Beautiful Trees.

Nature study has an ardent and loyal supporter in the headmaster of Eton, Canon the Hon. Edward Lyttelton, who has kept his fifty-sixth birthday. It claimed Dr. Lyttelton at the age of sixteen when he began to learn to draw trees, which from that time onward exercised over him a most potent charm. The excitements of cricket notwithstanding, he has during a match gazed with delight on stately trees "in verdure clad."

Not very long ago Dr. Lyttelton drew in an unreported speech an interesting comparison between music and nature study. "Music," he pointed out, "stimulates the imagination, while nature study stimulates and steadies the imagination." He thinks that boys between the ages of eleven and sixteen, the most impressionable period in their lives, should be persuaded to regard nature study as a pleasure, and certainly not merely as something that may be useful in after-life.

Dr. Lyttelton denies that he is an aristocrat. He regards, at all events, the genius poor with catholic and human sympathy, realizing that the dunce at school may possess mental faculties which sooner or later develop. Dr. Lyttelton tells of a boy who, regarded as an idiot by masters and pupils, spent his holidays in Paris, bought a Continental Bradshaw, studied it intently, and ultimately knew the times of departure and arrival of every train; he eventually became, indeed, one of the cleverest of railway specialists.

Canon Lyttelton is almost perfectly ambidextrous, and when famous as a cricketer he was known to throw a cricket ball 105 yards with his right hand, and then, changing over, to throw it almost as far with his left.

Naturally this gift often enabled him by a quick change to run out an unsuspecting batsman. It is said that this little dodge of his "came off" triumphantly one day when playing for a clerical eleven, and the victim on retiring from the field was heard to murmur, "Hang it all! when playing parsons you don't expect to be diddled out."

Friendship of Books

To fall in love with a good book is one of the greatest events that can befall us. It is to have a new influence pouring itself into our life, a new teacher to inspire us, a new friend to be by our side always, who, when life grows narrow and weary, will take us into his wider and calmer and higher world.

Whether it be biography, introducing us to some humble life made great by duty done; or history, opening vistas into the movements and destinies of nations that have passed away; or poetry, making music of all the common things around us and filling the fields and the skies and the work of the city and the cottage with eternal meanings — whether it be these, or religious books or science, no one can become the friend even of one good book without being made wiser and better.

SIR CHAS. TUPPER ILL

London. — Sir William Barlow and the physicians in attendance upon Sir Charles Tupper, at Bexley Heath, this morning issued a bulletin stating that their distinguished patient is maintaining his condition.

Great Moral Question

Mr. Alexander, the evangelist, tells the following story:—

"There were two darkies over in my country named Moses and Ephraim, who went out one night to rob a hen-roost. Moses planted the ladder, climbed up the tree where the chickens were roosting, grabbed them round the neck one by one, and handed them down to Ephraim, who put them in a bag. About a dozen had been bagged when Moses suddenly stopped the proceedings.

"'What's the matter, Brother Moses?' asked Ephraim.

"'I'se jes' been thinkin' whether, now you and me's members ob de church, it's right for us to take all dis yer man's chickens.'

"'Brudder Mose,' said Ephraim, 'dat's a great moral question which you an' I ain't got time to wrestle wid. Pass down anudder yaller-leg!'"

An Evidence of Chinese Awakening.

G. Davidson, who for 25 years has been engaged in educational work in China, gives this typical incident as illustrating the viewpoint of the modern Chinaman as aroused by the revolution. A British teacher in one of the schools of Chengtu, we are told, was pointing with pride, before his native geography class, to the many red colored possessions of Great Britain, when he was stopped by shouts from the little Chinese pupils of:

"You stole them."

We are further told that in connection with the propaganda of the revolutionary party there has been circulated a poster depicting the swallowing of Egypt by Great Britain

RESCUE OF THE PRINCESS

Admiral Craddock, the Duke and a Passenger Saved the Princess Royal of England from Drowning.

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi, of the name of Lethaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of 100 who had stood by the vessel since she went ground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of the rock, however, has grown more precarious, as the storm's fiercest fury in the sterns have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

THE BRITISH INSURANCE BILL

Had Its Final Reading in the House of Lords Which Is Now Practically Completed Only Requiring King's Assent.

London. — The House of Lords has passed the National Insurance Bill, providing for compulsory insurance against sickness and unemployment the working classes, through its third and final reading.

The bill is now practically completed, only requiring to pass through a formality of receiving the King's assent.

PARLIAMENTARY PERQUISITES

For each session of the U. S. Congress each member is allowed twenty cents a mile for each mile going and coming between his home and Washington. As railroad fares these times run about two cents a mile, and as the Hon. Jasper on his first trip generally spurns the Pullman, as being fit only for the predatory and plutocratic rich, and rides in the day coach with the great common people, it will be seen that on this mileage item alone he cleans up to a considerable extent, especially if he chances to live a long distance from Washington. He gets twenty cents a mile. Every time night telegraph poles go flittering by there are twenty cents coming in and only about two and a half cents going out. Here, of course, distance counts.

Mileage amounts to a most impressive sum in the case of Prince Cupid, the chubby delegate from the Hawaiian Islands, who comes all the way from Honolulu, and to practically nothing at all in the lamentable case of Representative Charles Creighton Carlin, who resides in Alexandria, right across the river from the district. One or two of the Maryland members, who live only a short distance away, also suffer distressingly in this regard, and are objects of commiseration among their fellows.

Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a ruling passion in his life it was politeness — if such a rare accomplishment can be called a passion.

All the days of his two-and-twenty years had been spent in imbibing the lesson that politeness is irresistible, that as a business asset its value is incalculable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner, for tea, and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Tired and despondent he trampled along.

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an exposition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job. He is at it still. He is in glue.

FIFTEEN YEARS PAYING OFF

Loan Shark Exacts $500 On Note of One-Twentieth of That Sum.

Chicago. — Fifteen years ago Mrs. John Murphy borrowed $25 from a loan shark, to settle a debt that her boy had incurred secretly, contrary to his father's command. The note has just been cancelled, through the interference of the Chicago Legal Aid society.

In the 15 years during which the loan shark has been nursing along the note, Mrs. Murphy has paid on it more than $500 — 20 times the original loan. She paid interest at the rate of 10 per cent per month, 120 per cent per year. Whenever she got the note nearly paid off the shark would bully her into a renewal. She did this many times — signing the new notes with her mark, for she can neither read nor write.

Finally the loan shark died and his son came to collect. Less circumspect than his father, he came when the son, John Murphy, jr., was at home. The latter heard the collector bullying his mother about a debt that he had thought settled a decade or more ago. He chased the man from the house.

The legal aid society did the rest.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

James Whitcomb Riley, the famous Indiana poet, has written his last poem. The paralytic stroke which he had two years ago has gone to his right hand, making it helpless. Riley says that poetry can never be written except with a pen in hand, not real poetry, he means, and for that reason refused to dictate a poem when asked to. It is learned that the noted bard hasn't long to live though it is hoped by all who know him personally and by reputation that the sweet tongued master of letters will yet give at least one other poem to the world.

J. W. RILEY

ON "THE CANNY SCOT."

Scotsmen Not Sentimental, But Deeply Romantic at Heart, Says a Well-known English Writer.

"I have been trying all my life to like Scotsmen," said Charles Lamb, "and am obliged to desist from the experiment in despair." There are still probably a few people who secretly or openly harbour similar antipathetic feelings towards the natives of Caledonia, but their number is decreasing daily. It would hardly be correct to say that the Scots are universally popular. Popularity is usually the product of leisure and luxury, and is seldom accorded to those who have had little opportunity for the cultivation of the graces and external beauties of life. For generations the Scots have been held fast in the grip of uncompromising realities. The poverty of the country, with its long stretches of bleak but beautiful moorland; the "Sawbath gloom" which so long reigned over the Lowlands, combined with the "Celtic gloom" permeating every distant shieling" in the Highlands, has not been conducive to the development of a spirit of gaiety and charm. But what they have lost in one way they have gained in another. It is this very schooling in "strait and narrow" ways which has given the nation the grit and dogged determination it now possesses.

HUMOUR NORTH OF THE TWEED.

A sense of humor is not now denied Scotsmen by the Sassenach. "A Scotsman and therefore quick to see the humor of things," was the recent comment of so cosmopolitan a critic as Mrs. Annie Besant. What would Sydney Smith say if he could have heard it?

Meanness is another charge which seems to have been withdrawn in recent years. It probably arose in the first instance from the Scot's necessity for economy. Brought up in a country where money was unusually scarce, it was difficulty for him to develop suddenly an open-handed generosity. This fostered habit of economy, brought about by circumstances, must be carefully distinguished from the merely mean desire to hoard. Great generosity of heart is often found in the most economical person, while a certain cold selfishness not infrequently accompanies the most outrageous extravagance.

Another charge which has recently been levelled against the Scots is a lack of romance, but their history is an ample refutation of this charge. The Scotsman is not sentimental, but he is deeply romantic at heart."

Secretary—Mrs. Benj. Shortly (acclamation).
Treasurer—Mrs. S. A. Oke.

To Close at Nine O'clock.

The Times is requested to state that the grocers in the Southwestern portion of the city have decided to close their places of business at 9.00 o'clock in future. The following grocers have agreed to close: Mitchell, Goheen, Parks, Dunsford, Donaghue, Lillico, Bradshaw, Wotten. They invite the co-operation of their customers in this movement to make shorter hours for themselves and their assistants.

A Painful Accident.

An employee of the Seymour Power Company, named Newberry, was severely burned about the face at the company's plant on Tuesday. Bellesheim's private ambulance was notified and was soon on the scene. The injured man was conveyed to the Nicholls Hospital, and his injuries attended to by Dr. Eastwood. Last night it was ascertained that the victim was doing as well as could be expected.

Changes Firm's Name.

Mr. V. J. McElderry, barrister, of Guelph, son of J. E. McElderry, Manager of the Guelph and Ontario Investment and Savings Society has been admitted to membership in the old established legal firm of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr. Mr. McElderry comes to this city with high recommendations, and will be generally welcomed by our citizens. The firm will now be composed of Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P. for West Peterborough, Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. McElderry and will be known as Peck, Kerr & McElderry, and their office will be as at present ot No. 416 Water street.

Bass Are Plentiful.

While the government dredge "Little Lake" was busily at work at the new wharf dredging last week a number of fine bass were brought up by the dipper and deposited on the scow. Fortunately for the "Little Lake" Inspector Watt was not in the vicinity. However, Mr. T. Wade, superintendent at the works, held a court on the spot and after hearing the evidence, reserved judgement as to whether the fish should be confiscated or not. The "Little Lake" may appeal if judgment is given against it, when Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the T.V.C. waterway, will be called in to give the final decision.

Poultry Association Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association will be held in their hall, Simcoe St. this evening at 8 o'clock. As this is the last meeting before the annual show which opens on January 9th, all members are asked to be present, and renew their membership for 1912. Every local member who intends to exhibit at the show, is asked to hand in his entry Thursday night, or as early as possible, and this will greatly facilitate the work of the secretary in making out entry tickets for all exhibits. Mrs. Wm. Dawson of London, East, Ont., will be present at the show on January 10th, afternoon and night, and will lecture on hatching and care of chickens, also preparing birds for shows. All specials must be turned in at once. Please be on time with entries. Joseph Kelly, sec'y.-treas., 264 King street.

Treat for Children.

St. George's Society is doing good work these days in Peterborough, a great many families having been relieved and provided with food and clothing by the Society. Under the auspices of the Society a very successful social evening was spent on Christmas Day, when all the old Christmas customs of the Old Country were reproduced to the satisfaction of the audience present. Following this a children's treat is now in progress. This is to take place in the Market Hall this afternoon, Jan. 4th, at 5.30, when every English child under 14 years of age in the city will be made welcome. Details have been left in the capable hands of a committee of ladies, who have each done their best to help make it a success. The Market Hall has been secured for the event and the little folks are looking forward with pleasure to the grand time they will have. Tea will be served and there will be a present for every child from the tree. The Society wants to see every English child in Peterborough have a good time.

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

WEDDING BELLS

Galley—Ivey.

At the residence of the bride on Wolseley street, on Monday at 5 p.m. Miss Stella Ivey and Garnett L. Galley, were united in matrimony by the Rev. Isaac Couch.

The contracting parties were unattended. Immediately after the ceremony a dainty wedding dejeuner was served at the home of the bride. They will reside on Aylmer street.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawkey, of Port Hope.

Big G For 30 Years the Standard Remedy for

Diseases of Mucous Membranes

Experienced pharmacists will tell you Big G is the accepted standard remedy for diseases of mucous membranes—discharges from the nose, throat and urinary organs. Avoid substitutes. To expose them is dangerous. Big G, used everywhere since 1889, has proved safe and reliable. Non-poisonous, antiseptic and basic in its properties, containing no other ingredients, and guaranteed not to stop a discharge, it may be used full strength with safety. Why not cure yourself? Sold by druggists, or we will send prepaid, in plain wrapper, on receipt of $1.00, full particulars and booklet sent on request. Big G is sold in plain wrapper only, and is not sold in bulk or by the gallon. Avoid substitutes. Big G is sold under a positive guarantee to cure in 1 to 5 days. Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid in plain wrapper, on receipt of $1.00, full particulars and booklet sent on request.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The City Schools re-opened yesterday after the Christmas holidays.

The annual dance of the Belmont Club will take place on Friday evening, January 19th.

A Lindsay bartender named Robert Griffiths at the King Edward Hotel, was fined $35.80 at the Police Court in that town on Tuesday, for selling liquor to a minor.

A large Collie dog, belonging to someone in the South End of the city, was run over and killed by a street car near the C.G.E. on Tuesday night.

Jim Wilson, who has been on remand for the last week charged with drunkenness, was brought before Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning, and allowed to go. Jim promised to turn over a new leaf and carry out his good resolutions in the New Year.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the electors of the municipality of Burleigh and Anstruther, for their liberal support in the election of January 1st, 1912, for the office of Councillor, this being my first candidature for the honors.

Yours truly,
HARRY McILMOYLE.

AN INTERESTING REPORT

Read at the Annual Meeting of the Provincial Ministerial Association.

The Lord's Day Advocate has the following: From Peterborough a most interesting report was given Rev. Rollins was the speaker. He drew attention to the fact that the ministerial association there had refused first of all to be a party to the hiring of cabs in connection with the decoration day services held under the auspices of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and had further stated that they would not participate in the services.

A specially interesting feature of his report was the request made by the city council of the Peterborough railway, with only two members dissenting, that the city street railway run on Sunday in connection with this memorial service. When the manager of the city street railway was confronted with this request he dismissed it at once. In the meantime, however, the mayor had been notified that the Council had placed itself in this rather anomalous position, that it had requested the management of the city street railway to perform an illegal act. This had not occurred to the mayor, or to the members of the council voting therefor. The result, therefore, was that the movement to establish a temporary Sunday car service came to a sudden end.—R.

Cold on the Chest

Had Suffered for Weeks—Used Fourteen Different Remedies Without Effect.

CURED QUICKLY BY 'NERVILINE'

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher, who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N. S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimonial to the efficacy of your wonderful Liniment, "Nerviline." I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline, and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

"You are at liberty to publish this unsigned letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline.

(Signed) "LUCY MOSHER"

VOL XXXVII NO 4 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, FRIDAY JANUARY 5, 1912 PRICE TWO CENT

INAUGURAL SESSION OF BOARD OF EDUCATION

The Board of Education for 1912 met in inaugural session last night. There were present Messrs. John Crane, R. Fair, V. Eastwood, B. F. Ackerman, Col. Miller, L. M. Hays, H. F. Adams, W. H. Hill and Dr. Burnham.

Mr. John Crane was the Board's unanimous choice for chairman. This makes Mr. Crane's second term as head of the Board.

Col. Miller, L. M. Hayes, H. F. Adams, W. H. Hill and Dr. Burnham were appointed a committee to strike the Standing Committee for the year.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

Finance—Messrs. Hayes, Adams, Dr. Morrison and V. Eastwood. Mr. T. F. Adams chairman.

Property—Messrs. Miller, Adams, Ackerman, Fair. Col. Miller, chairman.

Supervision—Dr. Morrison, Ackerman, Dr. Burnham and Hill. Dr. Morrison, chairman.

Committee on Appointments—The Whole Board. Mr. W. H. Hill, chairman.

ADDITIONAL BOOKS.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Hill, seconded by Dr. Morrison, the Board authorized the use of certain text books in the High School required by the inspector.

MOTION OF THANKS.

Moved by L. M. Hayes, seconded by R. Fair,—That the thanks of the Board be tendered the Toronto Savings and Loan Company for the use of their Board Room the past year in which to hold the Board of Education meetings.—Carried unanimously.

TO BE PHOTOGRAPHED.

Following the precedence of the City Council, the Board will arrange for a group photo of themselves being taken and framed.

COMPLAINTS.

Messrs. Doan and Powell waited upon the Board and complained that their children had been removed from the Central School to the Queen Alexandra School.

Dr. Morrison explained that there were found to be 55 on the roll of the Jr. III. form in the Central School, as the result of the promotion exams whereas the law permitted of but 40 pupils in any one class; hence nine scholars had been transferred to the North Ward School. Even this action leaves a class of 46.

Mr. Powell offered that the transferance of his little girl to the North Ward school would prove a hardship, especially as she is in delicate health. The walk would be too far for her these winter days.

Mr. Doan, three of whose children had been transferred to the Queen Alexandra building, acquiesced in Mr. Powell's remarks, which he supplemented with the explanation that the little ones would have to walk a mile, and consequently take their dinners. He would prefer that they stay home three months were he guaranteed that the new arrangement complained of would be only temporary.

Mr. Hill regretted the hardship that has arisen out of present congested conditions, which would be remedied the coming summer. The nine children transferred are those living nearest the Queen Alexandra School. In the South City, conditions are still worse, children having to walk a much greater distance to the King Edward School, than is experienced by any attending the Queen Alexandra School.

On motion of Messrs. Hill and Miller, this matter was referred to the chairman of the Supervision Committee and the inspector.

The Board promised to do the best they can in regard to these complaints, and felt assured that the inspector will make different arrangements for Mr. Powell's little girl, whose delicate state of health is certificated to by a physician.

GERMANY IS FACING DECREASED BIRTH RATE

Now the Lowest in Sixty Years and is Still Going Downwards

Berlin, Jan. 4.—A declining birth rate, so long a source of anxiety in France, is becoming a cause of concern in Germany also. The estimates just completed by the German Statistical Office and published in the "Imperial Gazette," fully bear out previous statements as to the reality of this menace.

The total number births in the Empire has fallen from 2,076,600 in 1908 to 2,038,357 in 1909 and to 1,992,836 in 1910. For the first time in twenty years the number of births has again jumped below the 2,000,000 mark, while in proportion to total population it is lower than it has been at any time in sixty years.

With a declining birth rate, there is still an annual increase of about 800,000 in the population, but, if the conditions continue as they are, this rate of growth obviously cannot be much longer maintained.

You will find that druggists everywhere speak well of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. They know from long experience in the sale of it that in cases of coughs and colds it can always be depended upon, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

CARS CRASHED AT AN OPEN SWITCH

Toronto, Jan. 4.—A second serious accident, like the one at Church street last evening, due to an open switch, was narrowly averted at the corner of Queen and McCaul streets, when two cars came together with sufficient force to demolish completely both fenders. The passengers in the cars received a shaking up, but no one was injured, though a panic nearly ensued on the westbound car.

The accident occurred at 11 o'clock last night, just when the theatre crowds were returning home. The motorman was apparently inexperienced and gave the passengers a rough passage, particularly at York street, where he stopped and started so suddenly as almost to throw the strap-holders in a heap.

The cars came together with sufficient force to throw the passengers of the up-bound crowd in a heap. Several ladies became greatly excited and it was some time before they calmed down.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS
REAPING A HARVEST OF SORROW

How many young men can look back on their early life and regret their misdeeds. "Sowing their wild oats" in various ways. Excesses, violation of nature's laws, "wine, women and song"—all have their victims. You have reformed but what about the seed you have sown—what about the harvest? Don't trust to luck. If you are at present within the clutches of any secret habit which is sapping your life by degrees; if you are suffering from the results of past indiscretions; if your blood has been tainted from any cause and you dare not marry; if you are married and [illegible] symptoms breaking out and exposing your past; if you are suffering as the result of a misspent life—DRS. WORLD SWEPT BY WAR CRAZE

Many Huge Battleships Now Being Constructed FOR FOREIGN POWERS

Four Dreadnaughts For Foreign Powers at British Dockyards—Smaller Countries Seek Navies Also.

London, Jan. 4.—The new battleship for Chile which was begun at Elswick a few days ago is the fourth foreign battleship now under constructions in British dockyards. Japan, Brazil and Turkey are the other powers which have armorclads building in England, and when the last named power, according to present plans, begins another battleship soon the total will be raised to five.

There seems to have swept over the world a movement for the reconstruction of its war fleets, which is apparently to be traced to an unsettled feeling as regards the preservation of peace. Quite apart from those countries which possess the bigger fleets there is manifest an intention on the part of the minor powers to provide themselves with vessels which it is difficult to understand are made necessary by their own need for protection.

Craze for Big Ships.

But as a matter of fact something like a craze has set in for building huge battleships. As a result those powers which have facilities for building such vessels cheaply and efficiently are benefiting, and Great Britain, as the following account of warships building in her private shipbuilding establishments will show, has had the largest share of this benefit.

Besides the work in their own yards British constructors have been called upon to supervise the building of ships and docks abroad. The program for the reconstruction of the Spanish fleet is being carried out by a syndicate, in which the Vickers firm is principally interested.

This firm also is superintending the building of the three Russian dreadnoughts for the Black Sea, while the four dreadnoughts for the Baltic fleet of the same power are being built by John Brown & Co., but with Russian materials and workmanship. Similarly, a division of destroyers for the Dutch Navy is being built at Flushing under the technical management of Messrs. Yarrow & Co.

Work in Other Yards.

Of the other war ship building powers, Germany, which, if a reduction is made in her program next law, will have facilities unemployed, has at the present time only some small craft in hand, including four destroyers for the Argentine Republic and one destroyer each for China and Denmark. France, which used to have a large share of foreign shipbuilding, has now only four destroyers of Argentina and one or two submarines for Greece and Peru.

Austrian shipyards, however, in addition to executing the new program of the Dual Monarchy, find opportunity to bid for foreign work, and a Chinese destroyer is now completing at Trieste, while the Whitehead Company are constructing submarines for Denmark and Holland. The United States, which will look in the future to a fair share of this foreign shipbuilding, has at present the two Argentine battle ships, a cruiser and gunboat for Cuba and submarines for Chile under construction.

A HUGE SUCCESS

Under the auspices of the St. George's Society, a very successful tea was given to the children from the old country, in the Market Hall last evening. The event had been looked forward to with keen interest, evidenced by the attendance of between 600 and 700 children. A committee of ladies consisting of Mrs. Pretty, Mrs. Jay, Mrs. John, Mrs. Pitchford, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Huxley, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Shannon, deserves great credit for the success of the event. During the evening Mayor Bradburn graced the proceedings with his presence.

We wish to call your attention to the fact that most infectious diseases such as whooping cough, diptheria, and scarlet fever are contracted when the child has a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will quickly cure a cold and greatly lessen the danger of contracting these diseases. This remedy is famous for its cures of colds. It contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given to a child with implicit confidence. Sold by all dealers.

IMPROVE RACE BY MARRIAGE

Federal Expert in Agriculture Presents Plan Based on Scientific Breeding Lines

Would Classify All People—Genetically Efficient Would Be Required to Produce Families Larger Than Average.

Washington, Jan. 4. THE classification of all the peoples of the world in a great international census, giving each person a number in a single world series, to the end that the human race may be improved by scientific marriage, was the plan advocated tonight by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Hays in an address before the American Breeders' Association, one of the organizations making up the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

As a means of improving the heredity of the human family Mr. Hays proposed a classification of all human beings, both as to mental aptitude and genetic efficiency. From such knowledge as this census would give, he said, would develop "a racial religion" requiring the genetically efficient to produce families larger than the average, and those less efficient to produce families smaller than the average.

The world numbers, said Mr. Hays, would serve to join genealogies into one numerical system so that all relationship could be traced. Each person would have a number of percentage that could be averaged so as to give the genetic or family values of each person.

"Modern science and charity work against the law of the survival of the fittest," he declared, "by keeping alive many persons who inherit weaknesses, such as feeble mindedness or insanity. By paying attention to genetic efficiency a race may make itself stronger for the economic contests among the races of the world.

"The proposed plan would somewhat divide people into classes, but the classification would be beneficent because it would be based on racial efficiency. The wholesome consideration of genetic facts will lead to less of divorce, greater temperance, and better morals. Raising the average efficiency of the human race probably would also increase the number of geniuses and leaders."

Senators Burton, Lodge and Smoot discussed the high cost of living. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, urged the appointment of an international commission to study the problem.

The use of dangerous chemicals in hair tonics and cosmetics was denounced by Dr. L. F. Kebler, chief of the drug division of the bureau of chemistry, before the American Chemical Society. He said the standard for drugs should be made uniform, and that manufacturers should not have the authority or the power to establish standards of their own.

William Hard of New York, said in an address before the American Association for Labor Legislation that "unemployment is no longer a joke."

"The funny paper jokes about tramps and hoboes are dying out," he said. "For every man who does not want work there are scores who cannot get work. There are 100,000 more jobs in the industries of New York State in October than there are in January in any year."

GIRL WAS HYSTERICAL ON CHARGE OF MURDER

May Clayton, a Waitress, Committed for Trial on Charge of Smothering Her Infant

Toronto, Jan. 4.—Miss Clayton, the young waitress who was remanded from last week on the charge of murdering her infant child, was again called into court to-day. The charge was laid against her immediately after the inquest on the death of the infant, the verdict of the coroner's jury, that she smothered the child.

To-day in the Police Court the investigations were only formal and after hearing the doctors in the case, the accused was committed for trial.

On being led down stairs she became hysterical and had to be attended to.

FIRE DROVE FAMILIES OUT

Winnipeg, Jan. 4.—With the temperature thirty degrees below zero, dozens of families were driven from their homes last night when the Excelsior Garage was destroyed by fire as a result of a gasoline explosion. The Charles Sharpe factory was also burned. The loss is $105,000, partially covered by insurance. Twenty-five fine automobiles were burned, mostly insured in London Lloyds. The flames burned to within a few yards of Premier Roblin's residence. The Premier took a crowd of those driven from their homes into his house.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE CANADIAN CLUB MEET, EAT, AND ARE INTERESTED

MR. H. P. AMES, OF MONTREAL, SPOKE TO THE CANADIAN CLUB OF PETERBOROUGH LAST EVENING.

On the Resources of Australia and Its Growth and Customs—Large and Interested Audience.

The Canadian Club of Peterborough were well entertained at the Oriental Hotel last night. Many members being present and after the close of the meeting no one considered the time wasted.

After the vanishing act of the well supplied tables, the chairman, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, announced the speaker of the evening, in the person of Mr. H. P. Ames, of Montreal.

Mr. Ames delivered an address very suitable to the occasion, on the "Growth, Customs and Resources of Australia."

Among the many interesting points he mentioned, is that there is practically no poverty in Australia. Another peculiar item, is that each State has its own individual railway. Therefore, when travelling from one State into another, the unfortunate traveller has a good distance to traverse before he can catch another train. This keeps people in their own State and thus the State grows practically independent of each other.

Its greatest resources are, of course gold and wool. The amount of gold that has been found in Australia is enormous. Mr. Ames also stated that Australia is very much behind Canada in manufactured products, but nevertheless it is a wealthy country.

Most people think that Australia is merely the home of the kangaroo and bushranger. The Canadian Club, at least, have a different view than that, thinks Mr. Ames. Australia has likewise woman suffrage. Women vote as well as the men. They find that it practically makes no difference because the married women generally vote the same as their husbands.

And last, but not least, Mr. Ames said that after a trip through Canada and having once seen the Rocky Mountains and the forests of Canada, there is no place like dear old Canada.

At the conclusion the chairman thanked the speaker on behalf of the members present, and Mr. Gillespie led everybody in singing the National Anthem.

A City of Salt

There is a city of salt situated at Wieliczka, a little municipality some six miles from Cracow, in Polish Austria, and the centre of the Galician salt industry. It would take at least three weeks to visit over portion of this marvellous city, which dates back to 1044. Men have worked in its hollows for centuries. Horses have been brought to life and have died there, without seeing the light of day. It is virtually a city hewn in salt. The mines contain a wonderful ball-room, which is 216 ft. below the surface, and two remarkable chapels, on the walls of one of which is carved a view of Bethlehem. The mines contain twenty-five miles of railway lines, and there is a tempting buffet at the railway station.

OPIUM CONFERENCE

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague. — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

Scene of Execution Shifted From the Usual Place.

Reno, Nev. — The scene of a legal hanging was hastily changed from the jail yard to the town opera house here shortly to prevent possible race riots.

Will Gardner, a negro preacher, was to pay the death penalty for killing Jesse Shipley, a white man, last August. A large crowd gathered in the jail yard, and, fearing serious trouble, the authorities quickly moved Gardner to the theatre and he was hanged on the stage here ten minutes.

TOWN NAMES OF THE WEST

The Men Who Found Names for Many Western Canadian Towns Displayed Much Ingenuity and Occasionally Humor.

The matter of place-names in the West is an interesting bit of study, and reveals not only an amazing profundity but a very considerable originality. They are not the kind of names that are known in the East. Very seldom does a western town duplicate the name of an eastern town — which is more than can be said of the East itself, where there are many repetitions. A glance at the newest map of the prairie provinces will show an interesting variety of names that are practically copyright. They are the kind of names that would not fit well in the East, simply because they have grown out of western experiences and conditions. The earliest were Indian and many sweet-sounding Indian names are on the map; then the cue was taken from the appearance of Nature, particularly in the case of rivers, hills, and valleys; and latterly the surnames of men are being commemorated, men who have taken some part in the establishment of the town, or in the case of many of the newest stations, the officials or engineers of the railway which is bringing the town into being.

But even greater in variety, interest, and occasional oddity than the place-names are the names of the people. Here, too, an effort is made to commemorate some phase of western life, not infrequently with strange results. An Indian mother near Edmonton heard of the large part being played in the West by the railways, and straightway named her youngest "C.P.R." Another, desirous of doing honour to the white man's medicine, conferred upon her first-born the surprising distinction of "Mary Ann Thomson's Sarsaparilla."

HUSBAND AS PRIZE

to the Winner.

A lottery has just been organized for its women readers by the Odessa 'Courier,' the prize being a young and handsome member of the staff, who has undertaken to marry the winner, be she young or old, fair or ugly, rich or poor. Not only does the enterprising journal agree to pay all wedding expenses, but also promises the couple a sufficient annuity.

Similar was the offer made some years ago by a German newspaper. The prize, however, by no means came up to the expectations of the winner, who declared that the pursy, baldheaded little man who presented himself for her acceptance bore no resemblance to the portrait of the aristocratic-looking individual which had appeared in the paper.

"Mr. Arnett was born in Virginia, January 13th, 1850, making him twenty-five years old. He was educated in the University of Virginia, and is in business in Kansas City. He has chestnut hair and brown eyes; his height is 5 ft. 8 in., and his weight is 10 st. 10 lb. He does not use narcotics nor intoxicants, has no bad habits, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has a jovial disposition, and is very popular."

Husband With $1000 a Year.

In the early forties the proprietor of the leading library at one of the chief Kentish watering-places announced a grand raffle, the first prize to consist of a young man, who, in addition to good looks, amiable manners, and unexceptionable family connections, was guaranteed to be in possession of property bringing in an annual income of $1000. Considerable excitement prevailed, especially among spinsters—young, middle-aged and old — several of whom came from afar to take part in the event. Woeful, then, was the dismay when, on the morning of the day appointed for the drawing, a couple of constables arrived from London and arrested the [illegible] in charge of [illegible]

THE ROMANTIC HAPSBURG FAMILY

Archduke Henry Ferdinand Abandons His Rank and Title in Order to Marry a Bavarian Girl of the People.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Vienna. — Another romance connected with the imperial house of Hapsburg is contained in the dry official announcement that the Emperor Francis Joseph has placed the Archduke Henry Ferdinand, brother of the Princess Louise of Saxony, and of Archduke Leopold Salvatore "on leave, with the stoppage of all emoluments."

Archduke Henry Ferdinand, who is a painter, with great distate for court life and military duties, has been living for some time in Munich. He has desired for a long time to abandon his rank and title in the same way as Archduke John Orth, Archduke Leopold Salvatore, and, more recently, Archduke Ferdinand Charles in order, as is reported, to marry a Munich girl belonging to family not of noble rank. Finding this to be most difficult, the Archduke has taken the easier course of throwing up his military career.

A Romantic Family

The family of the Hapsburgs has experienced a series of romances. The first among the more recent was that of the Archduke John Salvatore, known as John Orth, who completely disappeared after giving up his rank and title and marrying an actress named Milly Stiebel. He was said to have sailed for Chile on board the Santa Margaretha in July, 1890, and no trace of him has since been found.

Then came Princess Louise of Saxony, who disappeared from Dresden in 1902, leaving her husband, the present King of Saxony. She was forbidden to use her title of archduchess by imperial decree. She was divorced from the King of Saxony in 1903.

Archduke Ferdinand Charles this year ran away from his military duties and married a daughter of a court chancellor, afterwards assuming the name of Burg and living as a private citizen.

Archduke Leopold, who was a major-general in the Austrian army, renounced his career in 1902 in order to marry a Bavarian actress named Adamovich, whom he later divorced. He lives in Switzerland under the name of Wendlow.

Cross-Firing

Many are the stories told of "Bobs." Here is one of the best (says a "Daily News" writer), although I do not vouch for its accuracy. He was watching the firing at Bisley and noticed two or three errors on the part of the markers. So he went to the telephone and rang up the officer in charge. "The marking is very bad," he observed. "It's the best you'll get," retorted the officer. "Do you know who I am?" sternly demanded Lord Roberts. "No, I don't." "I am Lord Roberts." "Well, I am Lord Wolseley," came the reply. Lord Roberts loves a joke, but how he took this one is not recorded.

UNSINKABLE SHIPS

New Invention For Forcing Water Out of a Ship by Compressed Air, Permitting the Holes to be Repaired from Within.

If all that is claimed for the idea proves correct there will be a revolution in the work of ship-saving in the near future. Indeed, it promises to revolutionize naval warfare, for it is claimed for this new invention that ships can be kept afloat even after being rammed. In fact, they can be made practically unsinkable. The invention is the outcome of an idea for forcing water out of a ship by compressed air, thus permitting the holes to be repaired from within. The idea is a very simple one, and was suggested to Commander Marsh, of the battleship North Carolina, lying off New York, by Mr. Witherspoon, the engineer engaged in the construction of the New York railway tubes under the Hudson River.

All the experiments tried proved entirely successful. The sea-cocks were opened on the Carolina and water was permitted to fill one of the watertight compartments. Compressed air at a pressure of twelve pounds to the square inch was then forced into the compartment through a small opening. In ten minutes all the water was driven back into the river. Simultaneously with the twelve-pound pressure into the waterlogged compartment compressed air at seven pounds pressure was driven into all the surrounding compartments and a three-pound pressure into the next series of compartments, this being necessary to prevent the pressure on the original compartment buckling the sides and the deck.

Commander Marsh is most enthusiastic regarding the idea. He points out that the invention now enables them to do repairs to the hull below water-line from the inside, either after collision or during a naval battle. "Ships," he says, "are now for the first time practically unsinkable, for the water-tight compartments alone will not keep a ship afloat indefinitely. There is always a leak somewhere. All that is necessary," he continues, "is to install a system of pipes and gauges and attach them to the compressed air main. Every warship already has such a plant for the purpose of blowing off poisonous and explosive gases, and can be utilized for driving out the water. The whole cost for a battleship is about $400. How is that a low insurance premium against the sinking of a battleship worth $10,000,000?"

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung, from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and now sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

Two Days to Make a Town

The largest single building ever moved bodily was a block of dwelling-houses known as Normandy Apartments in America. The building weighed 8,000 tons, yet it was decided to shift it as it stood, in order to make room for an elevated railway. It was done, however, without any mishaps, though the move took ten weeks' hard labour to accomplish.

In 1890 the inhabitants of Tipperary had a dispute with their ground landlord, and gave notice to quit in a body. At a spot some miles distant they were provided by the Land League with a brand-new Tipperary. Unlike the inhabitants of Pisatis they decided to leave the houses standing, though everything else portable was taken. It was lucky they did so, for New Tipperary proved a hopeless failure, and after a few months the inhabitants had another huge flitting back to their old homes.

Milking by Electricity.

We have had milking machines for some while; now comes the American electric machine which jealously watches the milk from cow to pail, from pail to dairy, from dairy to sterilizer, from sterilizer to separator, from separator to churn, from churn to refrigerator, neatly packed up as germless butter.

You press a button. Four cows are electrically milked simultaneously, and all this happens. And not a germ, not a molecule of contamination. This is an era of hard choices for the man who loves health and beauty equally. The farmyard of the future is not an inspiring speculation, but the most aesthetic person cannot preserve a blind eye to the sediment in his glass of milk.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

London. — London's lord mayor, Sir Thomas Crosby, is the first physician to be thus honored, and, too, he is one of the oldest lord mayors London ever had, having just celebrated his 81st birthday. The lord mayor has nothing to do but wear the robes of his office upon state occasions and hand the municipal key over to distinguished visitors occasionally. Sir Thomas is a spry old man, and it is expected that he will handle the robes and key as deftly as his youthful predecessors did.

Jumping Jack Tars

The rhythmic jumping of three hundred and fifty bluejackets saved H. M. S. Commonwealth from the fate of the Montague when she ran aground in a dangerous place.

The battleship Montague was abandoned as a hopeless wreck off the Cornish coast, but her sister ship, the Commonwealth, was safely got off by the muscular exertion of her crew.

The Commonwealth ran on to an uncharted rock when returning from target practice, and was badly damaged. She was so nicely balanced on her lodgment, however, that it was decided, after reversing the engines and failed to extricate her, to try the experiment of mustering all the available hands on the extreme aft, and setting them to jump in unison. The regular jumping of twenty-five tons of solidly-built seamen had the effect of making the huge vessel rock see-saw fashion until she gradually floated off with the rising tide. In fifteen minutes she was afloat, and saved.

THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year on their wedding day among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givet, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was impeded by the want of a dowry.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptom number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lykott, 867 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that. I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you see it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic troubles.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

WHAT THE GERMAN ELECTION MEANS.

Students of politics will do well to follow the coming German election. The results are bound to exert an influence on overseas commerce and industry, to say nothing of international relations.

The election will be distinctly one of measures, and not of men. There are too many parties in the Reichstag for leadership to count for much. These number no less than five; namely, the Conservatives, the Centre, in which are comprised the Clerical and Catholic elements; the National Liberal, the Radical or Freison and the Social Democrats.

The election now being fought is between the first two in combination, and the last three, more or less in agreement. The three latter parties are independent of one another, but are united in their desire to overthrow the combination of the other two, known as the "Blue-Black Block." So far as the men who lead the various parties are concerned, they do not amount to a very great deal, but the issues are momentous. There is a popular discontent with the alleged reactionary Blue-Black Block, a discontent with the Empire's protectionist system, and also, to some extent, with its foreign policy. This opposition to the Blue-Black Block is due to the financial reform of 1909, for which it is held responsible. This put heavy burdens on industry and commerce, while sparing land and invested capital. There are also complaints that the promise to broaden the Prussian reactionary franchise has not been fulfilled, and murmurings that the Conservatives continue to monopolize all patronage and power. A fierce agitation has been raging on the subject of the high price of food. The government refuses to reduce the import duties ured by nearly all the German municipalities. The outcry against England will play a decided part in the election, for the National-Liberals will use this as a tactical move. The Liberals dread their new association with the "anti-national" Socialists; they are desirous of clearing themselves from the reproach that they are allies of their country's enemies. To effect this they are agitating against England, and backing the navy league demand for quicker shipbuilding. Apart from all this, the election will have important results to other nations. A big victory of the Freisinn and Socialists will mean an era of lower imports, and liberal commercial treaties with other countries. It is well here to remark that Germany has no grievous tax burden, no ward-heelers, as in the United States, for instance; but the administration brings pressure on the numerous official population and the railway employees to vote Conservative. It looks to these to prevent what it considers a national catastrophe.

Proclaimed a New Sultan.

Sir Rennell Rodd, the British ambassador in Rome, has seen an enormous amount of diplomatic service, having served in Berlin, Paris, Athens, Cairo, and Stockholm. Of him Queen Victoria said: "Rennell Rood has a suavity of manner which would get over anyone."

This was on his return from Abyssinia, whither he was sent on a special mission to Menelik, and not only succeeded in arranging affairs satisfactorily, but brought back some gorgeous presents from the Emperor to the Queen, as well as an Ethopian star and various orders for his own adornment.

It fell to his lot in 1890 to proclaim a new sultan of Zanzibar, Mr. Rennell Rodd, as he then was, being British agent.

Read It Differently.

A man was charged with stealing a sheep belonging to Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice.

"I found the poor creature starvin' on the road, my lord, an' was just drivin' it home," pleaded the accused.

"Can you read?" asked his lordship.

"A little, me lord."

"You could not have been ignorant, then, that the sheep belonged to your landlord, Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice, as his brand, 'G. F. M.,' was on the animal."

"True for ye, me lord but sure I thought the letters meant 'Good Fat Mutton!'"

Fortune in Stamps.

A lady living in Sydney for many years has hoarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition; and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

DIPLOMATS AT WORK

BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE IS WORKING OVERTIME.

The Smooth, Easy-Going Gentlemen Who Are Criticized in Times of Peace Have Had Their Hands Full During the Last Few Months and the Lights Burn All Night—Monopolizing the 'Phones.

During the past three or four months, since the Morocco crisis became acute, the clerks in the Foreign Office, who usually are known as armchair Civil Servants, from the easy character of their duties, have been working a good deal harder than most clerks, even in the busiest offices.

Since about the middle of July last the Foreign Office in London has been working day and night, says Answers. The staff has been divided into two divisions for night and day work, but the ordinary Foreign Office staff, large as it is—for it is one of the most heavily-staffed branches of the Civil Service—was not sufficiently large to deal with the tremendous extra pressure of work brought about by the critical diplomatic situation that arose over Morocco, and still exists, in consequence of the outbreak of war between Italy and Turkey.

Clerks had, indeed, to be drafted from the Treasury and Home Office to assist the Foreign Office staff in their work.

Throughout the day and night lengthy cable messages keep pouring into the Foreign Office. Those messages came from all quarters of Europe—from Secret Service agents, from our various diplomatic representatives abroad, and from the great financial magnates, who exercise such a powerful influence on the course of European politics.

In addition to these correspondents, the Foreign Office officials have been for months past in continual communication with the Admiralty, the War Office, and our Naval and Military Intelligence Departments in different parts of the world.

It must be borne in mind that directly a diplomatic situation becomes at all critical preparations have to be made for war.

The telegraphic messages to the Foreign Office are transcribed on long slips of blue paper, known among Foreign Office clerks as "spools." All the messages are, of course, in cipher. They are deciphered and written out in longhand by a special staff of clerks, who, in performing this duty, see all that is going on behind the scenes.

The deciphering staff work in a large room, which is rigidly guarded, and no one—not even a Foreign Office official—can enter it without a permit from the Foreign Secretary or Permanent Secretary.

The telephone has greatly expedited, if it has not simplified, the work of diplomatic negotiations. During the last few months, on several days when the diplomatic situation was specially acute—notably on the memorable day when the King put off his departure from London for Goodwood, and when Europe was on the very verge of war—the four telephone lines between London and Paris were monopolized by the Foreign Office for the greater part of the day.

As a matter of fact, only one line was required by the Foreign Office, another being requisitioned by the French Ambassador in London, but the other two lines were deliberately held up by the authorities, in order to guard against any attempt in London or Paris at "tapping" the lines whilst these critical conversations were in progress.

One of the busiest officials at the Foreign Office, when diplomatic negotiations are in progress, is the Superintendent of the Treaty Department. He is assisted by five staff officers and a registrar.

Whilst diplomatic conversations are in progress, the treaties made between this country and the various Powers concerned in the conversations, as likely to be concerned, have to be looked up, and the Foreign Secretary has to be kept daily informed of how far the points in dispute are affected by the treaties.

In the Treaty Department in the Foreign Office is a copy of every European treaty, and the department may have to make extracts from perhaps a hundred different treaties for the information of the Foreign Secretary when he is carrying on "a conversation" on merely one point in the matter in dispute.

The precis writers at the Foreign Office during the progress of important diplomatic negotiations are worked tremendously hard. Each precis writer might have from twenty to fifty thousand words of cabled and written despatches every morning to deal with, which would have to be cut down to about three or four thousand words. The precis copy of the despatches must embody with absolute accuracy what is officially called the "main intent" of the despatches, and precis copies must be delivered to the Permanent Secretary two hours after the original documents have been handed to the precis writer.

At the end of the day, and sometimes twice a day during the hours of critical diplomatic conversations, the King is communicated with by the Foreign Secretary.

If you were to stand outside the Foreign Office for an hour or so any time between midnight and four or five in the morning during a diplomatic crisis, you would see many remarkable people enter and pass out; you would see some of the Secret Service agents, for example, who know more about the inner working of European politics than even the Foreign Secretary or an Ambassador. It is upon their information—secured so often at the imminent risk of their lives—that the course of our policy in an international dispute may be finally determined.

The night visitors to the Foreign Office sometimes include men and women, who come by stealth to sell, if they can, some secret bit of information.

GOLD FROM SEA-WATER

You Look On While the Engines Make You Rich by Extracting Potash From the Waves.

Many people have some forward with ideas for extracting gold from sea-water. All these ideas have fallen through, and the only extraction of gold has been from the inventors' or investors' pockets. Recently, however, an Austrian chemist brought forward a new idea for extracting money from the waves which holds out a little more hope of success.

It is alleged that in every 2,000 lb. of sea-water there is 1lb. of potash. Now potash is a fairly valuable commercial substance. Its present price is $6.50 a ton, and over $20,000,000 worth is exported to the United States every year. It is reckoned that potash can be extracted from sea-water at a cost of about $2.50 a ton, leaving an ample margin for profit.

The system of extraction is simple. There is a ton of potash in about three-quarters of a million gallons of sea-water. A large tank is constructed, on the bottom of which is placed a common ground furnace slag which has been treated with a weak iron sulphate solution. Sea-water is forced up through this, leaving behind a deposit of the valuable potash. Pumps supply the necessary water at the rate of 600,000 gallons an hour, a ton of potash being deposited every eighty-five minutes. The total cost of the necessary engines to run the pumping machinery is nearly $250,000. Not only will the tanks be used for extracting potash, but for getting the gold out of sea-weather as well. It only requires a strong solution of iron sulphate instead of a weak one; $15 worth of gold can be extracted every five hours, at a cost of $2.50 an ounce. Gold is worth $40 an ounce. The cost of running the machinery works out at about $300 a day. The amount of gold extracted will be worth about $3,500, leaving a clear daily profit of over $3000.

WHAT IS YOUR VOCABULARY?

A retired teacher has a curious hobby. He takes a great interest in tracing the history of everyday common words, and he finds an immense amount of amusement in this strange study. "Recently," he says, "I have been making inquiries into the number of words actually used by young children. Perhaps the result of my investigations may interest your readers. Children from sixteen to nineteen months use from 10 to 202 words. Little two-year-old children use from 115 to 1,227 words. The vocabulary increases rapidly from that time on. It is perfectly safe to assert that the average three-year-old child makes use of 1,000 words. One three-year-old boy I knew had a vocabulary of 1,731 different words."

FROM BEDS OF PAIN

Many of the Songs and Stories We Enjoy Have Been Written on Beds of Sickness by Chronic Invalids.

For more than twenty years the late Clark Russell, writer of some of the finest sea-stories in the English language, never set foot to ground. Crippled by rheumatism and never for a single day free from racking pain he lay on his couch, or was wheeled about in his bathchair, and wrote.

At least, he did not write himself — he was not able to — but he dictated to his daughters, who took down his words. In a way, it is to his long illness that we owe his books.

Many a book which has thrilled thousands of readers has been written on a bed of sickness.

"The Mystery of a Hansom Cab" is a case in point. Fergus Hume was at that time a poor journalist in Melbourne, living in a single room, and making barely enough to pay his rent and for bread-and-butter in his spare time — little enough he had — he began this extraordinary mystery yarn, and was half-way through when illness overtook him in the shape of a raging fever.

Hume's Sleeping Partner

He was in debt, being some weeks overdue with his rent, and in the intervals between attacks of delirium he still tried to struggle on with his work. Presently, he collapsed completely. Then appeared a man whom he knew slightly, an actor, who had read the first part of the story, and who promised to pay his debts and make him an allowance for a time, on condition that he shared the profits of the book; and not only that, that Mr. Hume should go halves with the proceeds of all future work, if he recovered.

[illegible] effect was [illegible] loyally kept his share of the undertaking. The sleeping partner, who had taken so unfair an advantage of Mr. Hume's illness, died, however, by his own hand.

Helen Mathers was a mere girl when she wrote "Coming Through the Rye." A very pretty girl, too, and a very active one.

But one of her best-known books—"Honey"—was written when she was lying on her back, suffering agony as the result of a bad accident.

Tennyson in Trouble.

The great Robert Louis Stevenson is another instance of an author who struggled year after year with increasing illness, illness which drove him at last out of England to search for warmth and sunshine in the islands of the Southern Pacific. All his later books were produced under the strain of ever-growing weakness.

Tennyson himself suffered much from ill-health. In 1843 he lost all his money, and fell into such a condition that his friends despaired of his life. For many months he was in a hydropathic establishment at Cheltenham, and it was chiefly to the Crown pension of $1000 a year that we owe all the magnificent works of his later life.

"Stephen Adams," whose real name is Mr. Michael Maybrick, ex-mayor of Ryde said in a recent speech that he was ill in bed when he wrote his two most famous songs, "Nancy Lee" and "A Warrior Bold."

Another Durbar Fire.

Delhi, India, Dec. 6.—The magnificent pavilion in the Durbar camp, with its massive silver supports and brilliant decorations, in which the King-Emperor was to be received by the Indian princes on his arrival here, was burned down yesterday.

This is the second disastrous fire of unknown origin in the Durbar camp within a week, and the occurrence has caused a sensation.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES IT PAYS

GERMAN ARMY STALE.

An English Critic Calls It Overtrained and Out of Date.

The London Times has been publishing a thoughtful series of expert articles on the German army maneuvers and remarkable conclusions are reached The army is declared not to equal the repute wherein it is commonly held. The new German naval enthusiasm is damaging in its effect upon the army, and the popular navy is now attracting officers more than the army whose development has been starved by sheer lack of funds. The nation, moreover, is declared to be becoming less military and more commercial than formerly. The corps officers are less simple in their life and tastes and less exclusively professional than of old. Commerce is beginning to attract the class that hitherto regarded only the army as a career for a gentleman.

The army appears to have trained itself stale. The ceaseless round of intensive drilling has reduced it to a machine, while individuality, freshness and initiative are crushed out. Secure in its self confidence the army thinks there can be no difficulty in carrying out military operations which the armies of other peoples have found impracticable. The cavalry is said to be equipped with out of date material and to have become slow and ineffective. The methods of firing in vogue appear so inferior that the army can make no pretensions to measure itself against the French army apart from numbers and confidence. Its high state of organization does not present signs of superiority over the best foreign models, and in some ways it does not rise above the level of the second rate.

Bricks That Float.

At the present time there is no particular demand for a brick that will float, but such a thing will be regarded as a curiosity the world around. This special brick is designed to be used as an insulation in the construction of cold storage plants, breweries and refrigeration plants and is meant to take the place of cork, flax, charcoal fiber and sawdust, all of which are imperfect insulating materials, the use of which is attended by foulness and rot, or are otherwise offensive. The brick in waterproofing is so burned that 45 per cent of its volume is confined air, with the result that one of these bricks being cast upon the waters will float along like a block of wood.—Scientific American.

New York City as a Land Owner.

The city of New York owns 943 parcels of land. Nearly all of this land was bought before 1850. In one case a parcel of land has increased in value over 9,500 per cent in sixty years. In many cases there have been increases of 2,000 to 5,000 per cent in the same period. There were ninety-five cases in which land had increased in value 500 per cent and over 300 pieces that have doubled in value since they were bought.—From Silent Partner.

A Unique Event in Touring.

A large dock is being built near Amsterdam for the Dutch East Indies, and it happens that a smaller dock and a ship are being built in England for the same destination. To save three separate towages it is proposed to put the ship in the small dock and to put the two in the large dock, which will be brought to England for the purpose. The unique three decker will be towed to the East Indies.—Shipping Gazette.

Japanese Drama Lengthy.

A short drama in Japan begins at 9 a. m. and lasts until 11 p. m. A drama of good length may require a week for its performance. People who go to the theater to pass away the time between dinner and supper should rejoice at the opportunity of also passing away the time between lunch and dinner. There would be something to be said for Japanese drama if it could be introduced in this country.—Detroit Free Press.

POSTAL REFORM.

A Movement to Abolish the Use of Postage Stamps.

Proposals have been made to postal authorities in Europe that postage stamps be done away with, wholly or in part. No one who knows what the mail traffic of a large commercial concern is will wonder at the dissatisfaction with the present system. The entire time of one clerk frequently is required and in some concerns several persons are occupied in placing the little oblongs of gummed paper on envelopes and packages.

An experiment already has been made in Bavaria of postmarking large consignments at the postoffice, the operation being carried out by machinery and no stamps being used. In this way an enormous expense for printing, cutting and pasting paper stamps has been avoided, and no affixing of stamps has been necessary. But it is suggested that this method is crude and that something yet more saving of time and labor might be devised.

A meter resembling a gas or water meter could be attached to each large commercial house, and the mailing matter could be passed through it. The registry of the amount would be automatic, and the postal authorities could read the meter once a month and collect the amount due them. Different meters could be had for first, second and third class matter.

Certainly some method as this seems far more consistent with the spirit of the age than our present laborious and time honored way of doing. We have, of course, provisions for avoiding the stamp nuisance for some matter, but probably they could be extended and bettered.—Chicago Tribune.

The Right Locality.

There is a tradition in Vancouver that all successful citizens come from Bruce county, Ontario, as so many Bruce Old Boys have "made good" in British Columbia.

One day a Vancouverite was asking a Chinaman about his former home, in the endeavor to find out what province of the Celestial Empire he hailed from. At last, the Oriental countenance brightened somewhat and assumed a knowing expression.

"Oh, yes!" he said. "Me comes far-off. Lived in Bluce!"

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

Notice is hereby given that, owing to a change in the law requiring a report from the City Engineer, which takes considerable time to prepare, before local improvement works can be undertaken, petitions for sewers sidewalks or pavements to be constructed as local improvements must be received before February 1st, 1912, to be acted upon in 1912.

Earache, Toothache!

To Cure the Pain in Ten Seconds and Get Instant Relief, Nothing Equals

NERVILINE

Fifty years ago Nerviline was used from coast to coast and in thousands of houses this trusty liniment served the entire family, cured all their minor ills and kept the doctor's bill small. To-day Nerviline still holds first rank in Canada among pain-relieving remedies—scarcely a home you can find that doesn't use it.

From Port Hope, Ont., Mr. W. T. Greenaway, of the Guide newspaper staff, writes:

TESTIMONIAL NO. 4398

'For twenty years we have used Nerviline in our home and not for the world would we be without it. As a remedy for all pain, earache, toothache, cramps, headache and disordered stomach, I know of no preparation so useful and quick to relieve as Nerviline."

Let every mother give Nerviline a trial; it's good for children, good for old folks—you can rub it on as a liniment or take it internally.

Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse anything but Nerviline. Large size bottles 50c, or sample size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilized nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion [illegible] for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognized when the average member tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, meshes, shingles, sidings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know All — Who Heard That Years Ago — Can Be Taken Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything under the sun worth knowing.

When next you run up against him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this marvel, ask him which city is the father east — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

Birth Stones.

For ages certain gems have been allotted to the months, each with its significance. The list given below is one generally accepted:—

January—Garnet: Constancy and fidelity.

February—Pearl or amethyst: Purity, peace of mind.

March—Jacinth or bloodstone: Courage in affection.

April—Diamond: Unchanging affection.

May—Emerald: Ensures happiness in love and domestic felicity.

June—Agate: Ensures long life, health, and prosperity.

July—Ruby: Exempts from love doubts and anxiety.

August—Moonstone: A charm for conjugal felicity.

September — Sapphire: Ensures cheerfulness.

October—Opal: Helpfulness and happy faith.

November — Topaz: Fidelity in friendship.

December — Turquoise: Success, happiness, and many friends.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he enlisted, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier; "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf."

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a pleasant seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, it's this way. If it's no' sna', it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's sna' if it's neither frost nor sna', it's rain; if it's no' rain, it's wind; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabbath."

Twixt Ball and Bear.

Lincoln stories are common, and the tellers of them are not as accurate in ascertaining their genuineness as they are prolific in producing them. The following yarn may or may not be a real Lincoln." It is, in any event, a good story:

Two farm-hands, Lincoln used to say, were set upon by a huge bull while crossing a rocky field. One managed to gain a tree. The other took refuge in a hole in the tree that proved to have an exit in the rear.

The man who had chosen the hole was no sooner in at one end than he was out at the other. With a bellow, the bull made for him. He turned and again shot through the hole. The bull once more bore down upon him, and once more he was in and out of his hole.

The stranger pursuit kept up some minutes. At first it mystified the farm-hand up in the tree. Then it angered him.

"Hey," he shouted, "you idiot! Why don't you stay in the hole?"

The bull was dashing from one end of the hole to the other at great speed, and the man was bobbing in and out desperately. He heard, however, his comrade's shout, and found time before his next brief disappearance to shout back:

"Idiot yourself! There's a bear in the hole."

PANTING FOR THE IDEALISTIC

Celebrated Suffragist Says Women Were Pants First and Are Going To Wear Them Again. And Why Not!

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — "Because skirts are unhealthy, hideous and immoral. Unhealthy because they collect germs. Hideous because they take the name of nature in vain. Immoral because they leave the feminine figure to the imagination."

That's why they're going to wear pants.

Mrs. Stewart says that in primitive society trousers have ever been worn by women as well as by men, as they are worn today in some parts of the Orient, and she prophesies that there will come a time when they will be worn thus again — when woman will shake off her entrammeling skirts and step forth again with limbs as free from shackles as those of Artemis herself.

Of course the indictment is true. Skirts ARE "unhealthy, hideous and immoral." They DO take the name of nature in vain. They are inexpressibly graceless — ugly in the full sense of the word.

BUT — and here is a grim impasse that the anti-skirt-pro-pants reformers must face:

SO ARE PANTS!

If the ladies must get rid of skirts — as perhaps they should, and as no doubt they will sometime — may they garb themselves in some garment more pleasing to the eyes than this unspeakable brace of cylinders we've gone and got OUR legs tangled in.

THE IDEAL DRESS

May they don something inherently graceful, something suggestive of the lithe, chaste beauty of Diana, something that the modistes of Paris can't control, something everlastingly beautiful that shall be to us a joy forever, as the human form divine that it drapes is a joy forever.

BADGE FOR COMPETITORS AND OFFICIALS AT STOCKHOLM OLYMPIC GAMES.

OLYMPIC PROGRAM BRINGS SURPRISE

Stockholm. — Surprises for athletes are found in the Olympic games program for next spring. The first is a 200-mile bicycle race, the only wheeling event listed. The short distance races expected are conspicuous by their absence. The 200 mile event will be a road race around Lake Malar, open to teams.

The football competition is limited to the Association game and teams affiliated with the International Football federation.

The track and field contests, under the head of athletics, consist of the 100, 200, 400, 800, 1500, 5000 and 10,000 metres flat races, the marathon, a 110 metre hurdle, running and standing high and broad jumps, hop, step and jump, pole vault, throwing javelin (right and left hand) throwing hammer and two all-round events, the pentathlon and decathlon, the former consisting of five events and the latter of 10.

Team competition consists of 400, 1600 and 3000 metre relay races and a tug of war between teams of eight. Combined team and individual competition consists of a cross country race 8000 metres. The bicycle race, 200 miles, is also a combined team and individual affair.

The Time of Long Sermons.

Those who like long sermons should have lived in the seventeenth century. The manner in which the Rev. John Howe, Minister of Great Torrington, in Devonshire, conducted Divine service on a public fast day is thus described by a contemporary: "Mr. Howe said that upon these occasions he began about nine in the morning with a prayer for about a quarter of a hour, in which he begged a blessing upon the work of the day, and afterwards read and expounded a chapter or psalm, in which he spent three-quarters of an hour; then prayed for about an hour, preached for another hour, and prayed for about half an hour. After this he retired and took some little refreshment for about a quarter of an hour (the people singing all the time) and then came into the pulpit and prayed for another hour; and [illegible] another sermon of about [illegible] and so concluded [illegible]

THE COURAGE OF OPINIONS

The ways in which people form their opinions are most remarkable. Every man, when he begins his reasonable life, finds certain general opinions current in the world. He is shaped by these opinions in one way or another, either directly or by reaction. If he is soft and plastic, like the majority of people, he takes the opinions that are about him for his own. If he is self-assertive and defiant, he takes the opposite of these opinions and gives to them his vehement adherence. We know the two kinds well, and as we ordinarily see them, the fault which is at the root of both is intellectual cowardice. One man clings servilely to the old ready-made opinions which he finds, because he is afraid of being called rash and radical; another rejects the traditions of his people from fear of being thought fearful and timid, and a slave.... Both are cowards. Both are equally removed from that brave seeking of the truth, which is not set upon either winning or avoiding any name, which will take no opinion for the sake of conformity and reject no opinion for the sake of originality; which is free, therefore — free to gather its own convictions, a slave neither to any compulsion nor to any antagonism.

—Phillips Brooks.

Latin Prescriptions

The following ludicrously illustrates the necessity of a reform in medical nomenclature.

Dr. Doane was [illegible] confounded, a few years [illegible] remark of one of his patients. The day previous the doctor had prescribed the safe and palatable remedy, syrup of buckthorn, and left his prescription duly written in the usual cabalistic characters—"Syr. Rham. Cath." On inquiring if the patient had taken the medicine, a thundercloud darkened her face, lightning darted from her eye, and she roared out:

"No! I can read your doctor-writing. And I ain't a-going to take Syrup of Ram Cats for anybody."

A Pennyworth of Air.

An enterprising inventor has gone into the business of retailing compressed air for cycles and motor-car tyres on the principle of "drop a penny in the slot." The device is a cast-iron pump in a neat box arrangement, which is nailed to telegraph poles and walls in country districts that are frequented by cyclists and motorists. The handle shown in the centre of the box gives a supply of air when turned.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by Girl Who Marry Is To.

Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by that couple who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden [illegible] Miss Elderton therefore [illegible] such a [illegible] of these [illegible] studied the [illegible] 4,000 pairs of [illegible] to measure the [illegible] resemblance [illegible] both.

[illegible] conclusion [illegible] came to was [illegible] that [illegible] when cousins [illegible] about half that [illegible] brothers and sisters [illegible] by the same [illegible] as shown by [illegible] children of one [illegible] nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the [illegible] within certain [illegible] is founded on the closest [illegible] Miss Elderton, "[illegible] which forbids the marriage [illegible] with nieces and nephews should also restrict the marriage [illegible] cousins.

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues [illegible] If there is any [illegible]-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

Maybe So.

PARLIAMENTARY PERQUISITES

Members of U. S. Congress Usually Travel Cheaply and Conscerently Save Many Cents Per Mile on Allowance.

For each session of the U. S. Congress each member is allowed twenty cents a mile for each mile going and coming between his home and Washington. As railroad fares these times run about two cents a mile and as the Hon. Jasper on his free trip generally spurns the inducement of going fit only for the president and buttercrack rich and rides in the day coach with the great common people it will be seen that on this mileage item alone he cleans up to a considerable extent, especially if he happens to live a long distance from Washington. He gets twenty cents a mile. Every time eight telegraph poles go flittering by that's twenty cents coming in and once about two and a half cents going out. Here, of course, distance counts.

Mileage amounts to a most [illegible] sum in the case of Representative [illegible] Carolina, who [illegible] Georgia, right across the river from Washington, one or two of the Maine and Vermont members, who live quite a short distance away, also [illegible] in this regard, and one effects of consideration among [illegible] fellows.

Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a rube in all his life it was politeness [illegible] and a rare accomplishment [illegible] caused confusion.

All the days of his two [illegible] stay had been spent [illegible] the reason that politeness [illegible] business asset [illegible] is invaluable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner for tea and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Sad and despondent he tramped [illegible]

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an exposition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job [illegible] at it still. He is [illegible]

The "Father of Southwark."

Thousands of poor people in the South of London will regret that, owing to advancing age, Canon Horsley has decided to leave his busy parish of St. Peter's, Walworth, for a quiet living in the South of England. For years he has worked zealously on behalf of the people of the slums, and scarcely a branch of parish or [illegible] in London with which Canon [illegible] has not been connected. To the people of Southwark he has been in every sense a "father of the flock," and it is stated that he once refused a [illegible] that he might stay at home and work in the slums.

[illegible] a man with a [illegible] kind of anecdote, and describing the [illegible] of [illegible] bishops [illegible] he told a story of the [illegible] of Bath and Wells, who had been visiting Scarborough. On the way to the train he [illegible] his [illegible] morning, and stopped a boy. "I say, my lad, how far it is to the station?" "About a mile ahead," said the boy, who had never seen a bishop before. Then, staring at the bishop's knee-breeches and silk stockings, he added: "Hallos, guv'nor, yours are [illegible] somebody swiped your [illegible]"

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs, or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Musician and Scientist.

There is no more brilliant scientist in the world to-day than Sir William Ramsay, who has been warning Britain that, at the present rate of consumption, her coal supply will only last another 175 years. His most wonderful discoveries have been in connection with new gases in the atmosphere, upon which occasion no argon, neon, and xenon have been bestowed, and the experimental work which led to these discoveries ranks as the most refined ever carried out. Of xenon, for example, there is only about one part in 70,000,000 parts of air. Sir William devotes his leisure to music. He plays both the piano and violin and has written the words of not a few songs. The collecting of curios is another of Sir William's hobbies, and at his house at Regent's Park may be seen many queer treasures thousands of years old.

A Destructive Blaze.

The home of Mr. E. J. Ferguson, Rogers street, East City, was destroyed by fire on Monday morning, entailing a loss of over $1,200. Mr. Ferguson was returning from the stable when he noticed the blaze in the upstairs of his house, and had to run to a neighbor's to send in an alarm, the wires to his telephone being burned. The fire had a big start on the firemen.

Another coasting accident occurred at the West End, on Thursday night, when Carl Brockenbridge, a young lad residing in the West End, was badly cut about the head, as a result of a coasting accident. Besides sustaining several nasty cuts about the face and head, he was badly shaken up. He was removed to his home, where his injuries were attended to

Two Sides to It.

"Dorothy," said that young lady's mamma, "it seems to me that you and the gas burned rather low when young Smart was here last evening."

"It was solely for economy, mamma," answered the maiden.

"There is no use trying to beat the gas company, my daughter. I have noticed that the shutting off of the gas is always followed by a corresponding increase of pressure."

"Which that lessens the waist measure, dear; doesn't it?" replied the artless girl. And her timid parent could find no answer.

De Ruyter: "You see, I drop into poetry occasionally."

Editor: "Yes, so I see. You ought to—"

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 50 acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

MASTER OF ETON.

Canon Lyttelton Has a Passion for Beautiful Trees.

Nature study has an ardent and loyal supporter in the headmaster of Eton, Canon the Hon. Edward Lyttelton, who has kept his fifty-sixth birthday. It claimed Dr. Lyttelton at the age of sixteen when he began to learn to draw trees, which from that time onward exercised over him a most potent charm. The excitements of cricket notwithstanding, he has during a match gazed with delight on stately trees "in verdure clad."

Not very long ago Dr. Lyttelton drew in an unreported speech an interesting comparison between music and nature study. "Music," he pointed out, "stimulates the imagination, while nature study stimulates and steadies the imagination." He thinks that boys between the ages of eleven and sixteen, the most impressionable period in their lives, should be persuaded to regard nature study as a pleasure, and certainly not merely as something that may be useful in after-life.

Dr. Lyttelton denies that he is an aristocrat. He regards, at all events, the genus puer with catholic and humane sympathy, realising that the dunce at school may possess mental faculties which sooner or later develop. Dr. Lyttelton tells of a boy who, regarded as an idiot by masters and pupils, spent his holiday days in Paris, bought a Continental Bradshaw, studied it intently, and ultimately knew the times of departure and arrival of every train; he eventually became, indeed, one of the cleverest of railway specialists.

Canon Lyttelton is almost perfectly ambidextrous, and when famous as a cricketer he was known to throw a cricket ball 105 yards with his right hand, and then, changing over, to throw it almost as far with his left.

Naturally this gift often enabled him by a quick change to run out an unsuspecting batsman. It is said that this little dodge of his "came off" triumphantly one day when playing for a clerical eleven, and the victim on retiring from the field was heard to murmur, "Hang it all! when playing parsons you don't expect to be diddled out."

Friendship of Books

To fall in love with a good book is one of the greatest events that can befall us. It is to have a new influence pouring itself into our life, a new teacher to inspire us, a new friend to be by our side always, who, when life grows narrow and weary, will take us into his wider and calmer and higher world.

Whether it be biography, introducing us to some humble life made great by duty done; or history, opening vistas into the movements and destinies of nations that have passed away; or poetry, making music of all the common things around us, and filling the fields and the skies and the work of the city and the cottage with eternal meanings—whether it be these, or religious books or science, no one can become the friend even of one good book without being made wiser and better.

SIR CHAS. TUPPER ILL

London. — Sir William Barlow and the physicians in attendance upon Sir Charles Tupper, at Bexley Heath, this morning issued a bulletin stating that their distinguished patient is maintaining his condition.

Great Moral Question

Mr. Alexander, the evangelist, tells the following story:—

"There were two darkies over in my country named Moses and Ephraim, who went out one night to rob a hen-roost. Moses planted the ladder, climbed up the tree where the chickens were roosting, grabbed them round the neck one by one, and handed them down to Ephraim, who put them in a bag. About a dozen had been bagged when Moses suddenly stopped the proceedings.

"'What's the matter, Brother Moses?' asked Ephraim.

"'I'se jes' been thinkin' whether, now you and me's members ob de church, it's right for us to take all dis yer man's chickens.'

"'Brudder Mose,' said Ephraim, 'dat's a great moral question which you an' I ain't got time to wrestle wid. Pass down anudder yaller-leg!'"

An Evidence of Chinese Awakening.

G. Davidson, who for 25 years has been engaged in educational work in China, gives this typical incident as illustrating the viewpoint of the modern Chinaman as aroused by the revolution. A British teacher in one of the schools of Changte, we are told, was pointing with pride, before his native geography class, to the many red colored possessions of Great Britain, when he was stopped by shouts from the little Chinese pupils of:

"You stole them."

We are further told that in connection with the propaganda of the revolutionary party there has been circulated a poster depicting the swallowing of Egypt by Great Britain.

...SUE OF THE PRINCESS

Admiral Craddock, the Duke and a Passenger Saved the Princess Royal of England from Drowning.

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi of the name of McCaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of 100 who had stood by the vessel since she went aground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of the wreck, however, has grown more precarious, as the watertight partitions in the stern have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

THE BRITISH INSURANCE BILL

Had Its Final Reading in the House of Lords Which Is Now Practically Completed Only Requiring King's Assent.

London. — The House of Lords has passed the National Insurance Bill, providing for compulsory insurance against sickness and unemployment of the working classes, through its third and final reading.

The bill is now practically completed, only requiring to pass through the formality of receiving the King's assent.

Not Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight head, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I don't get you both in.'"

ENORMOUS EATERS

Some Great Gastronomic Feats Performed at Different Times by Gluttons for Wagers, and Then Beast.

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Ike, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

FIFTEEN YEARS PAYING OFF

Loan Shark Extorts $500 On Note of One-Twentieth of That Sum.

Chicago. — Fifteen years ago Mrs. Jean Murphy borrowed $25 from a loan shark, to settle a debt that her boy had incurred secretly, contrary to his father's command. The note has just been cancelled, through the interference of the Chicago Legal Aid society.

In the 15 years during which the loan shark has been nursing along the note, Mrs. Murphy has paid on it more than $500 — 20 times the original loan. She paid interest at the rate of 10 per cent per month, 120 per cent per year. Whenever she got the note nearly paid off the shark would bully her into a renewal. She did this many times — signing the new notes with her mark, for she can neither read nor write.

Finally the loan shark died and his son came to collect. Less circumspect than his father, he came when the son, John Murphy, jr., was at home. The latter heard the collector bullying his mother about a debt that he had thought settled a decade or more ago. He chased the man from the house.

The legal aid society did the rest.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

James Whitcomb Riley, the famous Indiana poet, has written his last poem. The paralytic stroke which he had two years ago has gone to his right hand, making it helpless. Riley says that poetry can never be written except with a pen in hand, not real poetry, he means, and for that reason refused to dictate a poem when asked to. It is learned that the noted bard hasn't long to live though it is hoped by all who know him personally and by reputation that the sweet tongued master of letters will yet give at least one other poem to the world.

Propriety.

They waltzed and waltzed to a wild, sweet strain—
The music throbbed, like a beating heart—
They waltzed and waltzed, and they waltzed again.
It seemed, in fact, that they couldn't part.

He held her close with his hand and arm.
Near to her cheek his own cheek burned.
Against his bosom her soft young form
Closely pressed as they twirled and turned.

Later, when taking her to her coach.
He caught her hand on the stairway dim.
"How dare you?" she asked, with stern reproach.
And "What do you mean, sir?" she asked of him.

—Puck.

How He Escaped.

One of the boys had broken one of the school rules, and no one would own up.

The teacher announced that he would thrash the whole class if some one did not tell him who had committed the offense.

All were silent, and he began with the first boy and thrashed every one in the class until finally he reached the last one. Then he said, "Now, if you will tell me who did this I won't thrash you."

"All right, sir. I did it," was the reply.—Ideas.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper making.

[illegible] timber in Africa. [illegible] of a [illegible] London for twenty-five years, [illegible] in a recent [illegible] of the [illegible] lands of British [illegible]. TRANSCONA PARK

It is easy to find irrefutable evidence that land near the swiftly growing city of Winnipeg and immediately adjoining the town of Transcona, presents the safest and most profitable opportunity for the steady manipulation of the idle dollar. Opportunities in TRANSCONA PARK are practical certainties to the man with clear, deliberate judgment and courage to buy NOW at the earliest moment. The man who allows prejudice to influence his judgment will often find that prejudice an expensive luxury.

If for any reason you have been prejudiced against Real Estate as an investment, it will pay you to investigate the facts about TRANSCONA PARK with an OPEN MIND. Getting in right is the first and great cut consideration in any investment—any man who has been successful in Real Estate will tell you that he got in EARLY, when the property was cheap, and the choicest locations were open, when corner lots on the most desirable street were bought at a price later paid for inside lots on back streets—Get in EARLY and buy to-day.

TRANSCONA MUST EVENTUALLY BE PART OF WINNIPEG

DUN'S, BRADSTREET'S or ANY BANK

will give you any information you may require as to the financial standing of this concern. The present owners of this property guarantee to repurchase the property at the expiration of two years and give you 6 per cent. interest, if the purchaser is not satisfied with his investment. As further guarantee of the reliability of such an investment in Transcona Park, we invite you to fill in the coupon below addressed to the manager of the Eastern Townships Bank, Winnipeg, or address it to any bank in Winnipeg. All our statements will be investigated by the bank before any money is paid. Such an opportunity like this has never been offered to the public before. Fill in the form below and mail to-day or communicate with us direct and ask for plan of subdivision, you will be under no obligation to purchase.

The ever-increasing population will soon overflow and make Transcona part of Winnipeg—Transcona Park is only one mile from the city limits, and will be the first to receive the increase in land values. Transcona Park will have increased in value considerably by next spring, are you going to take advantage of this now?

Lots are being sold in Transcona's business section as high as $200.00 per foot, and cannot be purchased for less than $20.00 a foot.

Transcona Park, which is but a few minutes' walk from the G.T.P. shops, and nearer to Winnipeg than any other, can be purchased from

$5.00 TO $7.00 PER FOOT AGCORDING TO LOCATION

TERMS, $15.00 CASH AND $10.00 PER MONTH, OR 1-5 CASH, BALANCE 6, 12, 18, AND 24 MONTHS.

No encumbrance on the property. Torrens title. If you are not satisfied with your investment in two years' time, the owners will refund your money and pay you six per cent. interest. Transcona Park is not an ordinary subdivision, all contracts are issued by the owners with this guarantee: There is no speculation about Transcona Park, but a guaranteed investment.

LOCATION OF TRANSCONA PARK

Transcona Park is located east of Winnipeg, one mile from the city limits and immediately adjoining the town of Transcona to the west.

The mammoth steel and concrete shops of the Grand Trunk Pacific (the first unit of which will be completed by January next) will cost $5,000,000, and will employ 5,000 men.

A network of railroads radiate in every direction.

Cheap power, available 24 hours a day.

TRANSCONA PARK WILL BE TRANSCONA'S RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT

Everything points to Transcona Park as the residential district for Transcona, away from the noise and bustle, smoke and grind of the mammoth G.T.P. shops, yet conveniently situated, making the shops accessible in a few minutes. The realty market of Transcona is very active, values are increasing daily. Buy to-day at bed rock prices; you will be able to sell in the spring at a good profit. By acting now you can "skim the cream off the milk" in Transcona Park. Transcona Park is the surest and quickest money-maker you can get to-day—BUY NOW. Street cars will run past this property.

To the Manager, EASTERN TOWNSHIPS BANK,

An Idea for Peterborough.

A tin-lined box connected with a rubber tube, has been added to the equipment at police headquarters at Brockville, for the destruction by asphyxiation of vagrant dogs. Chief Burke tried the scheme on a wandering canine a few days ago, and it worked to perfection.

An Exceptional Record.

Latest reports received from Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, shows that during the month of November, 1911, there were 79 vessels reported inward and 59 departures, which is considered an exceptional record for that time of the year.

A Third Bereavement.

The many friends of Mrs. Lemon, High street, will deeply sympathize with her in the death of her nine year old daughter, Ivey Rosetta, who passed away yesterday morning at an early hour. Some time ago a young son died, and in August, 1909 she lost her husband. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Hon. Sam. Hughes Coming.

The Times is requested to state that the members of Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, are requested to attend the regular meeting on Monday evening, Jan. 8th, 1912. The annual installation of officers will take place, together with a large initiation. A number of the head executive will be present, including, Col. the Hon. Sam. Hughes.

A Popular Hotel Man.

Mr. Thos. McDonough, the popular clerk at the Oriental Hotel, who returned from Gravenhurst a few days ago, was made the recipient of a purse of $600.00 in gold, by the travellers and his many friends. This is evidence of the very high esteem in which he was held. The Times joins in wishing Tommy a rapid and complete recovery from his present illness.

A South End Branch.

A branch of the Y.W.C.A. has been established in the South End, at 133 Rubidge street, where it will supply a long felt want. In connection with the branch there will be a noon lunch served, as well as one at six o'clock. The rooms will be kept open day and in the evenings for the benefit of the girls in that neighborhood, especially those employed in the manufacturing establishments.

A Social Evening.

The first social of the season will be held to-morrow evening under the auspices of the Helping Hand Bible Class of the Park street Baptist church. Grandmothers, grandfathers, brothers and other fellows' sisters are all invited. This is none of your high-toned affairs. Come as you are, only be sociable. Music will be rendered and refreshments served. Everything free and everybody welcome.

Mr. Ernest Mahood Honored.

On Wednesday evening the home of Mr. Ernest Mahood was visited by a dozen friends from Coldsprings, who presented him with a leather covered couch, in honor of his recent marriage. The couch was carried in from an adjoining house and placed in the parlor and the boys carried Mr. Mahood in blind-folded and placed him on it. The presentation was made by Mr. Herb Peters. Mr. Mahood although taken by surprise, expressed his appreciation in an able manner.

Died in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Turnbull, 485 Patterson street, have the sympathy of their many friends in the bereavement which has befallen them in the death of their darling little four-year old son, Harold Bass, which took place in Toronto on New Year's Day. The child had been on a visit to his aunt, Mrs. McGill, in Toronto, and in some way contracted diptheria, which carried him off as above. The remains were tenderly laid at rest on Wednesday evening in the Little Lake cemetery. On account of the nature of the disease the remains were brought from Toronto by road. The Times joins in extending its sympathy to the bereaved parents.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials.

Yesterday morning County Magistrate Denison gave judgment in what is known as the Lakefield liquor case, in his own office, in the presence of Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., and Mr. G. N. Gordon, the solicitors for the prosecution and defense. According to the evidence given at the trial a number of the members of the Turtle Lake Hunt Club, with a number of their friends, had decided to take a trip back to their quarters at Turtle Lake. They commissioned Mr. Lawless who was going with them, to procure a quantity of liquor for the party. Mr. Lawless accordingly went down to Peterborough for the liquor, and inspector Stewart was made aware that it was going to the village in a livery rig, and just as the rig with the liquor arrived in front of the town hall, it was seized by the constable. The result was that Mr. Lawless was summoned for selling liquor without a license. The evidence taken showed that Mr. Lawless had no intention of breaking the law, but merely ordered the liquor to accommodate his friends. The Magistrate reserved judgment for a week.

A Centre of Interest.

The blast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contractors is echoing against the rocky walls of Tete Jaune Cache to make way for civilization and the thrill echoes of the locomotive whistle later on.

Going westward from Edmonton along the Grand Trunk Pacific route the traveller sees the trail of the second comer already strongly marked, and Tete Jaune Cache is the objective point at present for the end of steel by the spring of 1912. At present the Grand Trunk Pacific steel is beyond the Great Divide and over the summit of the Yellowhead Pass.

Historically, Tete Jaune is a centre of interest in Western Canada, at this point was the site of one of the Hudson Bay posts one hundred years ago, when the route from the Pine, the Peace and the Fraser Rivers brought the furs and the merchandise through this gateway. At the present time there is only a band of Shuswap Indians camped on the South side of the Fraser, and as soon as the steel reaches this locality and civilization with its kodaks and pocket books will effect the establishment of a permanent order of things.

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

Mrs. Arthur O. Meyers left for her home in Winnipeg yesterday, after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley, Stewart street.

Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., of Havelock, was in the city last night and will go to Lakefield on business to-day, before returning home.

Miss Frances Routley left yesterday for Winnipeg, where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Meyers.

Miss Davidson, Dalhousie street, is in Toronto, the guest of Mrs. Ryerson, nee Miss Leanox, who held a reception on Wednesday.

The Misses Baldwin of Toronto, have returned to the city after having spent a pleasant holiday with their aunt, Miss Lundy.

Mr. Bruce Walton, who spent the holidays with his parents in Smith, returned yesterday to resume his studies at Toronto University.

The many friends of Mr. Wm. Daymen, who has been quite ill, will be pleased to learn that he is recovering.

Rev. Geo. Henderson and Mrs. Henderson are in Toronto attending the wedding of Mrs. Henderson's youngest sister, which took place in Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irwin and Miss Irwin left for Clifton Springs on Wednesday morning, where they expect to spend the greater part of the winter. Miss Irwin has not been very well, and will undergo an operation next week.

Lindsay Warder: Col. the Hon. Sam. Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, was expected in town to-day, but owing to duties of office was unable to make the trip. However, his special car arrived this morning in charge of two attendants. It was attached to the C.P.R. mixed train. This afternoon Mrs. Hughes and family will leave for their home in the capital city.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should not forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day, Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier avenue, Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Company, Toronto.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of Those Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c.

Former Peterboroagh Pastor.

Rev. J. E. Starr, who was at one time pastor of the George street Church, here, has been sworn in by Magistrate Denison as Commissioner and Police Magistrate of the Juvenile Court in Toronto, following which the new appointee conducted his first case. The Children's Court is at present a cramped room in the police headquarters, but very soon suitable accommodation for proceedings will be ready. Ex-Alderman J. J. Graham, who sat for many years in the City Council, has been appointed Chief Probationary Officer, and he will have six probationary officers under him. One law laid down by Magistrate Stafr is that no child shall be confined in a police station before he appears in court.

FAMILY POISONS

Some Astonishing Facts About the Poisons We Are Always Eating In Our Foods. Even Salt Will Kill You.

When the doctor told me he was prescribing prussic acid for the pain in my stomach, I said I would rather keep the pain than take such a poison.

"You need not have the slightest fear," he assured me. "Why, you eat poisons every day. When the Chinese want to commit suicide, one of their favourite plans is to take half a cup of salt."

"Common salt?"

"Yes. In large quantities common salt is a violent irritant. It sets up severe inflammation of the stomach, and kills as surely as arsenic.

"Saltpetre, that colours bacon and corned beef an attractive red, is a powerful poison. One ounce has killed a person in three hours. Many people have been poisoned by this salt.

"You must know that your pudding and the icing of your wedding-cake are incomplete unless flavoured with bitter almonds. I am not sure how many bitter almonds it takes to kill a man, but they contain a good deal of this prussic acid that you object to.

"Oxalic acid, with which foolish people so often commit suicide, is the salt which gives rhubarb and sorrel their pleasant flavour. It is a violently irritant and dreadfully painful poison.

"Need I tell you that caffein, the exhilarating principle of coffee and tea, is a poison?

"In nearly all our condiments we eat poison. The oils of nutmeg, cloves, black pepper, cinnamon, peppermint, carraway, horse radish, thyme, etc., are all poisonous in large doses."

ENOUGH SAID

A noted lawyer had a case in which, among other things, he desired to prove that his client had no money, and to that end he cross-questioned one of the opponent's witnesses as follows:—

"You asked my client for money, did you not?"

"Well—yes sir."

"Answer promptly, sir! Let us have no hesitation. You asked him for money. Now, what was his answer?"

"I don't know as I can tell."

"But surely you remember?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then out with it! What was his answer?"

"I'd rather not tell."

"Ho, ho! You are on that tack, are you? You won't tell?"

"I would rather not, sir."

"But you must; and if you do not answer my question promptly and truthfully I shall call upon the Court to commit you for contempt."

"Well, sir, if I must tell I've got out of school, here you have it. I asked him yesterday if he could lend me a dollar, and he told me he couldn't."

"And you believed him, did you not?"

"Yes, sir, for he said you had robbed him of every cent of his ready money, and if he didn't get out of your hands pretty soon his wife and little ones would soon come to——"

"That will do, sir. You can stand down."

If you have young children, you have perhaps noticed that disorders of the stomach are their most common ailment. To correct this you will find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets excellent. They are easy and pleasant to take, and mild and gentle in effect. For sale by all dealers.

VOL XXXII NO 5 — PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, SATURDAY JANUARY 6, 1912 — PRICE TWO CENTS

TRIPLE ALLIANCE FORMED AGAINST THE DYNAMITERS

State Lawyers Join Forces at Los Angeles for Government and Developments Are Certainly Looked for Now

Indianapolis, Jan. 5.—The collaboration with United States District Attorney Charles W. Miller here of Oscar Lawler, special government prosecutor in Southern California, and District Attorney John D. Fredericks of Los Angeles County, Cal., who prosecuted the McNamara brothers—a triple alliance specially sought by the Department of Justice in unravelling the alleged dynamiting conspiracy of country-wide extent—was expected before nightfall to-day to be an accomplished fact.

Both Mr. Lawler and Mr. Fredericks were to arrive during the day, and begin their consultations with Mr. Miller, the federal grand jury being scheduled to formally resume its probe to-morrow.

Ortie E. McManigal's arrival here within two or three days, is taken to mean that the latter will assist Mr. Miller in assembling the voluminous confessions of McManigal, which are supposed to have laid the foundations for the indictments returned by the federal grand jury in Los Angeles last week against coast labor leaders. But McManigal's confessions it is predicted, will be of greater use here than on the coast because of the numerous easterners which he is thought to implicate.

Developments are looked for here constantly throughout the week. When McManigal arrives he will be under special guard, not that the authorities fear his escape, but the possibility of foul play from those against whom he has been testifying.

SHOULD BE ONE SCHOOL ONLY

Our talented contemporary, The Orange Sentinel, in discussing the Public School question, says that while it may be true that the Roman Catholic Church encouraged learning in the early days, it can hardly be claimed to-day that the Church is the friend of the cause of education for the masses. Wherever possible Rome has her own religious schools where the teaching of the catechism is the most important part of the tuition.

Where Protestantism rules education is made free. In the City of Toronto even school books are free. This plan has been adopted in California, where there is a measure now before the Legislature to provide free books for Public schools.

Archbishop Riordan, of San Francisco, denounces this measure because his church schools cannot exist except through tuition fees and charging for the books. He would have a tax put upon education in the Public schools, therefore, in order that his own religious schools might be put in a position to compete with them.

If Archbishop Riordan, or any other Bishop, wants the children of his faith to be put upon the same level as the children of Protestant parentage all that is required is for him to close up his parochial schools and send his pupils to the Public school. There they would get a good elementary education and be provided with free text books. While the doors of the Public schools in the United States are open to every boy and girl of school age, the leader of any religious denomination takes a great deal upon himself when he denounces the efforts of those who are trying to extend educational opportunities to the children of the masses.

GETS PROPERTY FOR THE CITY

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P. Apparently "Does Things"

The Property on Which the Old Ashburnham Drill Shed Formerly Stood Transferred to the City by the Dominion Government.

Peterborough has a representative at Ottawa who evidently believes in deeds and not in words altogether. Yesterday he received the official document from the Department of Militia and Defence, which gives the city of Peterborough the property on which the Ashburnham drill shed formerly stood. The property is described as "that portion of lot No. 9, south of Elizabeth street, and west of Mark street, (also known as Market block) being south of a line drawn due west across the said Market block from a point on the western boundary of Mark street, one chain and 32 links south of the north-eastern corner of the said market block."

Mr. Burnham was asked by the City Council to take the matter up with the Department with a view of securing the property for the city.

The property will be converted into a park for East City.

A DOUBLE HEADER FOR A POPULAR CITIZEN

Mr. E. G. Patterson Presented With an Address and Silver Service

A very pleasing event took place last night at the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, 463 Hunter street, on the occasion of Mr. Patterson's birthday and also, the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, when a number of Mr. Patterson's male friends invaded their home and presented them with an address and a beautiful silver tea set.

The address was read by Mr. W. H. Denham, who also made the presentation.

Mr. Patterson, who was taken by surprise, responded in fitting terms, thanking the donors for their splendid gift, as well as the kindly sentiments of esteem and good will expressed in the address.

The visitors were then entertained with music speeches and songs, during which dainty refreshments were served.

YOUNG WOMAN DEAD TOOK CARBOLIC ACID

LEFT A NOTE, SAYING THAT SHE WAS TIRED OF LIFE.

Eighteen Year Old Margaret Gray Commits Suicide—Roomed Away From Home.

Toronto, Jan. 5.—After leaving her own home at 85 Trinity street for a boarding house, Margaret Gray, an eighteen year old girl employed in a departmental store, drank the contents of an ounce bottle of carbolic acid before retiring last night, and died a few minutes later while being taken to St. Michael's Hospital. The girl had taken up rooms at 52 Elm street, and the attack upon her own life was discovered owing to the fumes of the acid.

A note which was left addressed to her father, merely stated that she was tired of life, but afforded no clue as to motive. Chief Coroner Johnston is investigating.

WALL FALLS AT THE LONDON ASYLUM

1,100 PATIENTS ARE SHIVERING —NO WARM FOOD IS OBTAINABLE.

Wrecks Kitchen and Breaks Heating Apparatus—Inmates Had a Narrow Escape.

London, Ont., Jan. 5.—With the mercury six below zero and a high wind blowing, the big wall at the asylum building recently burned, toppled over, wrecking the kitchen completely and tearing out a wall of the boiler house. A full staff in the kitchen had a wonderful escape from death, they having just gone into breakfast into another building. Tons of falling brick broke all the steam pipes used in heating the asylum and 1,100 patients are shivering. No warm food is obtainable as a result of all the stoves and ovens being buried beneath tons of the brick.

LIEUTENANT OF GOMPERS HELD IN BOMB PLOT

Bennett Flood, an Organizer Charged With Conspiracy to Ruin Iowa Property.

Muscatine, Ia., Jan. 6.—The arrest of Bennett Flood of Chicago, national organizer for the American Federation of Labor and the representative of President Gompers, on the charge of conspiracy to destroy property with acid bombs, was the principal event to-day in the grand jury's investigation of the button workers' strike. Flood was arrested on four warrants, three of which charge him with malicious destruction of property.

C. C. Wilson, the Socialist member of the city council, and fiscal agent for the local Button Workers' Union which is on strike, was charged in two new indictments with conspiracy and malicious destruction of property. The men were released on $2000 and $3000 bonds respectively, given by union men.

Flood apparently was expecting arrest and brought with him an attorney from Chicago. His arrest took place when the two reached the court house. Flood was immediately ushered into the presence of Judge Goran, who fixed the bond. Wilson, who spent last night in jail, was released at the same time.

The intermediate O.H.A. hockey season opened last night at the Brock street rink before a large crowd. The game was fast and fairly clean throughout, the score hardly indicating the play. Referee H. Sproule, of Toronto, started play at 8.45 and after several end to end rushes, Kelly of the Pets scored the first goal. A few minutes later the home team added another and shortly after Lindsay scored their first and only goal. Peterboro added two more in this half, making the score at half time 4—1.

During the interval a mix-up occurred among the spectators, which was quelled by the appearance of three of Peterborough's finest.

Shortly after play was resumed, Kelly again notched the first goal for the homesters and scores followed each other in quick succession for the home team, Lindsay being unable to penetrate the Pets defence, and were blanked in this half.

The Pets played a fine game all the way and still had something left at the finish. Taking last night's game as a criterion, they should give a good account of themselves in the series and just about hand the group championship.

Park, Coughlin, Kelly and Bearss were the main score getters, but the whole team aided materially. Derocher in goal was a stone wall and it is due to his fine goal keeping that the Lindsay score was not larger.

Referee Sproule gave impartial decisions and pleased both players and spectators, having the game well in hand at all stages.

Following is the line-up:

PANNMA CANAL WON'T HURT BRITISH TRADE

London, Jan. 5.—Although the question was discussed with a number of ship-owners yesterday as to whether British trade would be likely to suffer from the giving of preferential rates to American vessels passing through the Panama Canal when that great waterway is opened, the matter is not at present, at all events, looked upon in a serious light.

H. W. Dillon, who has a large experience in the American trade, and many of whose steamers were employed to coal the U.S. fleet on its voyage around the world, view with humanimity the opening of the canal.

"Considered from every point of view," he says, "I do not know how the opening of the Panama Canal can possibly affect British interests injuriously. On the contrary, it ought to give a great fillip to trade with the Pacific."

Alfred Waldron Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, said, that he could not imagine that anything could prevent English ship-owners from successfully competing with the rest of the world, as they have done in the past, even if Americans received preferences.

MONTREAL GIRL IS DEAD THREE PERSONS ARRESTED

MONTREAL GIRL DIES, ARRESTS MADE.

Coroner's Jury Finds That Doctor Had Performed Criminal Operation—Others Are Implicated.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—The death in the Western Hospital this morning of Emily Thomason, a pretty seventeen year old girl, may lead to a charge of manslaughter against several people, who are alleged to have been connected with an illegal operation which the hospital doctors say was the cause of the young girl's death.

So far three people have been arrested in connection with the case, but it is said that other arrests will likely follow. The coroner's inquest was opened at the morgue this morning.

The arrests were made as a result of an ante-mortem statement made by the girl yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Laurie, who yesterday afternoon pleaded not guilty to the charge of committing an illegal operation, repeated his denial of his guilt before Coroner McMahon this morning.

ARREST FOR THEFT $500,000 JEWELS

ARREST FOR THEFT OF $500,000 JEWELS.

Scotland Yard Think They Have the Man Who Took Queen of Siam's Jewels.

London, Jan. 5.—Jules Dubosseck, a newspaper man, was arraigned in the Bow Street Police Court to-day on the charge of complicity in the theft of jewels, valued at $500,000, which were being shipped to the Queen of Siam. The prisoner was remanded to custody. It is believed that other arrests are imminent.

In the summer of 1909 a London firm placed the gems in a heavy iron box and shipped them on a German steamer. When the box arrived at Bangkok, it was empty. For three years Scotland Yard detectives have worked on the case, but could find no trace or evidence to warrant an arrest until last night when they traced Dubosseck from the Straits Settlement to London, where the arrest was made. The prisoner declares he is innocent.

Five-Thousand Fire In Bowmanville

Bowmanville, Jan. 5.—This town got a fright last night when fire broke out in the rear of the Cawker Block in the storehouse of Archie Tait, grocer and provision dealer and extended to adjoining storehouse of Harry Rice & Co., hardware dealers. F. R. Tilley's shoe store, and Mason Co's block occupied by Anderson Clothing Co., and Lovell's drug store were more or less damaged.

Fire seems to have started in an archway and is supposed to have originated from a cigar stub or match. The fire started up again to-wards morning and the brigade was called out a second time. Damage will be about $5,000.

DYING MAN FOUND BENEATH WINDOW

Jos. McClurkin May Have Leaped to Death, But Absence of Bruises Arouses Suspicion.

Toronto, Jan. 5.—Joseph McClurkin, 38 years of age, recently from Guelph, was found on the pavement directly beneath an open second storey window of the Prince Rupert Hotel, corner of Queen and Parliament streets, early this morning, in such a serious condition that he expired while being taken to the hospital.

REGISTERED LAST NIGHT.

Inquiry by the police showed that McClurkin came to the hotel about nine o'clock last night. He asked for a room and said that he was from Guelph, where he had a soy living. Whether the unfortunate man was despondent and committed suicide by jumping from the window of his room, or whether the act was done in a state of insomnia is not known. He was found by the policeman on the beat, who immediately summoned Dr. Reilly, of 190 Parliament street, but the man was dead before he arrived.

The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held. In the meantime the police will endeavor to locate the dead man's relatives.

LOCOMOTIVE ON JOY RIDE HITS TRAIN

Three Men Take Engine and Cars Out for Frolic and Run Into Boat Express.

Webster, Jan. 6.—Joy riding on a locomotive by three men, one whom claims to be an employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, resulted to-night in the wrecking of an engine, the stalling of the Norwich line boat train running between Worcester and New London, and the shaking up of its passengers and the arrest of John Flannagan. Flannagan is alleged to have been the head of the joy riders and to have had two companions who are now being sought by the police. The passengers on the boat train were given a bad fright, but none was seriously hurt, and later all went on by another train. The accident happened on the Midland division of the New Haven system just outside of Webster.

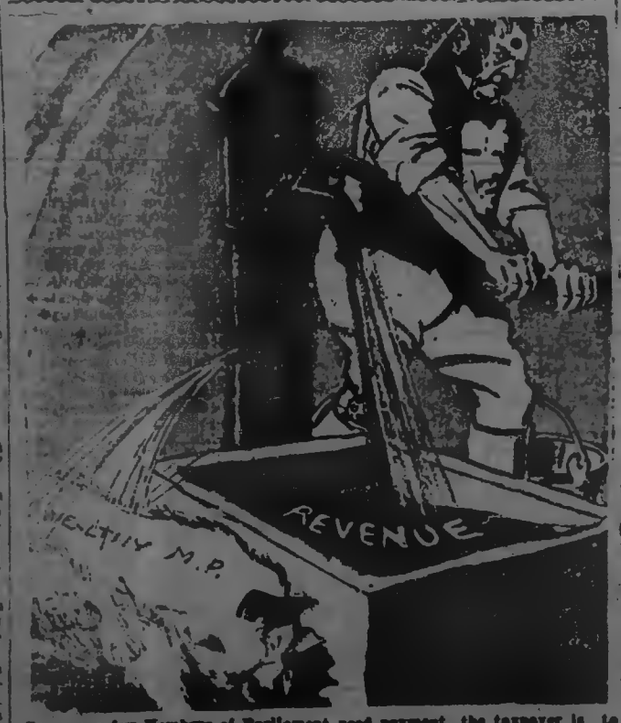
As near as officials of the road have been able to get at the facts to-night, Flannagan was about the South Worcester roundhouse, where he claims to be employed, when two friends appeared. A few moments later an engine with two freight cars ahead steamed out of the yard and started on its joy trip. After running for a number of miles at rapid speed, according to operators along the line, the joy riders got tired and started back. They had reached this town when the boat train appeared, and into this the wandering locomotive backed with considerable force. The engine was derailed and badly damaged.

Flannagan was arrested by the local police.

BOOM TO WEST.

Not Cancelling Pre-Emptions For Non-Payment of Taxes.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 6.—What will prove a great boom to the holders of pre-emptions is the order issued by Hon. Robert Rogers to the various Dominion land offices throughout the West not to cancel pre-emptions for non-payment of interest. The reason for the suspension of the provision allowing cancellation of the pre-emptions if interest is not paid is that the settlers have had great difficulty in marketing their grain and are not in a position to pay the interest.



Because a few Members of Parliament need payment, the taxpayer is to provide £350,000 a year for distribution among the 670 members, most of whom are wealthy men.—London Opinion.

GERMAN EMPIRE IN THROES OF NATIONAL ELECTION

Berlin, Jan. 6.—The reichstag election campaign has been resumed with vigor after an almost complete interruption during the holidays. The elections will be held on Jan. 12. An observer accustomed to the heated ten days' closing of an American campaign can see few evidences of interest and is apt to conclude that only the south Germans, whose elections coincide with those of the Bavarian diet, are really excited over the struggle. The Germans, as a people, however, take politics differently. As a matter of fact interest in the elections was never greater, although it is not so noticeable as in the sensational patriotic campaign of 1907, and according to statements made at several of the parties' headquarters, it is expected that the vote will be fully up to the record polling of that year, when more than 84 per cent. of the qualified voters cast their ballots.

The issues are not so clear cut this year, but they concern national interests of vital importance to a greater degree, involving as they do financial legislation to a large extent, the possibility of further taxation at the coming session and the high cost of living. At Radical headquarters enthusiasm is displayed over the chances of success on these issues. The Radicals say that the latest reports show that the position recently assumed by the Vatican with modern rule and the relation of the clergy to the civil courts is playing a considerable role in the strongholds of the clerical Center.

The other side points to the menace to agriculture contained in the possibility of legislation affecting agrarian protection. The recent war scare seems to be playing a secondary part, the bearing of which is uncertain. Most of the parties have succeeded in associating themselves completely with the popular feeling aroused by patriotism.

The forecasts generally admit a gain for the Socialists, who are expected to overcome the losses they sustained in the great Anti-Socialist landslide in 1907, and corresponding losses by the Conservatives and party of the Center. Only the most rash prophets venture to state definite predictions as to the number of seats which will undergo a change. Those best informed believe that the Socialists will return with at least the 81 seats which they held at the time of the dissolution in 1906, but the prediction that the Socialists will carry 100 seats is frequently heard. It is quite generally predicted that the turnover will be sufficient to dethrone the present Conservative-Centrist majority and force the government to bid for additional allies in the next reichstag.

PRIVATE SCHOOL COLLAPSED MANY OCCUPANTS KILLED

NUMBER OF PUPILS IN ATTENDANCE AT TIME OF COLLAPSE IS NOT KNOWN.

Bodies of Headmaster, Three Teachers, and Three Children Taken Out—Many More Were Killed.

Seville, Spain, Jan. 5.—A considerable number of children, together with their teachers were killed or maimed by the collapse of the building of a private school here to-day.

It is not known how many pupils were in attendance at the time of the catastrophe, but the dead bodies of the head master, three women teachers, and three children have already been extricated from the ruins and it is believed that many more are buried beneath the fallen masonry.

RUSHING THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The blast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contractors is echoing against the rocky walls of Tete Jaune Cache to make way for civilization, and the shrill echoes of the locomotive whistle later on.

Going westward from Edmonton along the Grand Trunk Pacific route the traveller sees the trail of the second comer already strongly marked, and Tete Jaune Cache is the objective point at present for the end of steel by the spring of 1912. At present the Grand Trunk Pacific steel is beyond the Great Divide, and over the summit of the Yellowhead Pass.

Historically, Tete Jaune is a centre of interest in Western Canada, as this point was the site of one of the Hudson Bay posts one hundred years ago, when the route from the Pine, the Peace and the Fraser Rivers brought the furs and merchandise through this gateway. At the present time there is only a band of Shuswap Indians camped on the south side of the Fraser, and as soon as the steel reaches this locality and civilization with its kodaks and pocket books will effect the establishment of a permanent order of things.

Proclaimed a New Sultan.

Sir Rennell Rodd, the British ambassador in Rome, has seen an enormous amount of diplomatic service, having served in Berlin, Paris, Athens, Cairo, and Stockholm. Of him Queen Victoria said: "Rennell Rood has a suavity of manner which would get over anyone."

This was on his return from Abyssinia, whither he was sent on a special mission to Menelik, and not only succeeded in arranging affairs satisfactorily, but brought back some gorgeous presents from the Emperor to the Queen, as well as an Ethiopian star and various orders for his own adornment.

It fell to his lot in 1886 to proclaim a new sultan of Zanzibar, Mr. Rennell Rodd, as he then was, being British agent.

Read It Differently.

A man was charged with stealing a sheep belonging to Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice.

"I found the poor creature starvin' on the road, my lord, an' was just drivin' it home," pleaded the accused.

"Can you read?" asked his lordship.

"A little, me lord."

"You could not have been ignorant, then, that the sheep belonged to your landlord, Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice, as his brand, 'G. F. M.,' was on the animal."

"True for ye, me lord but sure I thought the letters meant 'Good Fat Mutton!'"

Fortune in Stamps.

WHAT IS YOUR VOCABULARY?

A retired teacher has a curious hobby. He takes a great interest in tracing the history of everyday common words, and he finds an immense amount of amusement in this strange study. "Recently," he says, "I have been making inquiries into the number of words actually used by young children. Perhaps the result of my investigations may interest your readers. Children from sixteen to nineteen months use from 40 to 232 words, while two-year-old children use from 115 to 1,227 words. The vocabulary increases rapidly from that time on. It is perfectly safe to assert that the average three-year-old child makes use of 1,000 words. One three-year-old boy I know has a vocabulary of 1,771 different words."

Busy at the Bar.

At a certain junction on a Scottish Railroad two brakesmen were employed one night recently in the operation of wagon-shunting.

Feeling somewhat thirsty, they took advantage of a lull in their work to adjourn to an adjacent public-house for refreshment.

The "boss," appearing a few minutes afterwards, discovered their absence, and, suspecting their place of retreat, lost no time in making his way to the inn aforesaid. Opening the door of the bar-parlour, he caught the delinquents in the act of consuming a couple of pints of beer.

"Hallos," exclaimed he, "is this where you chaps do your shunting?"

"No," replied one of the culprits, without a moment's hesitation; "but it's where we shifts the pints!"

Thursday morning County Magistrate Edmison gave judgment in what is known as the Lakefield liquor case, in his own office, in the presence of Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., and Mr. G. N. Gordon, the solicitors for the prosecution and defense. According to the evidence given at the trial a number of the members of the Turtle Lake Hunt Club, with a number of their friends, had decided to take a trip back to their quarters at Turtle Lake. They commissioned Mr. Lawless who was going with them, to procure a quantity of liquor for the party. Mr. Lawless accordingly sent down to Peterborough for for the liquor, and inspector Stewart was made aware that it was going to the village in a livery rig, and just as the rig with the liquor arrived in front of the town hall, it was seized by the constable. The result was that Mr. Lawless was summoned for selling liquor without a license. The evidence taken showed that Mr. Lawless had no intention of breaking the law, but merely ordered the liquor to accommodate his friends. The Magistrate reserved judgment for a cemetery. On account of the nature of the disease the remains were brought from Toronto by road. The Times joins in extending its sympathy to the bereaved parents.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply large bottle 50c, or sample size 25c.

Former Peterborough Pastor.

Rev. J. E. Starr, who was at one time pastor of the George street Church, here, has been sworn in by Magistrate Denison as Commissioner and Police Magistrate of the Juvenile Court in Toronto, following which the new appointee conducted his first case. The Children's Court is at present a cramped room in the police headquarters, but very soon suitable accommodation for proceedings will be ready. Ex-Alderman J. J. Graham, who sat for many years in the City Council, has been appointed Chief Probationary Officer, and he will have six probationary officers under him. One law laid down by Magistrate Starr is that no child shall be confined in a police station before he appears in court.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT. FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

Applications for shares should be sent to

POLITICAL PUGILISTS

An incident in the life of Lord Beaconsfield affords an apt illustration of the charm which the spirit of chivalry infuses into everyday life, says the author of "How to be Happy Though Civil."

Gladstone was attacking in the House of Commons the Administration of Disraeli, as he was then. He had begun a sentence, "the right honourable gentleman and his satellites," when some interruption threw him out; he came to a stop, and seemed on the point of breaking down. Disraeli leaned across the table and repeated the word "satellites," whereupon his adversary at once recollected himself and resumed his invective.

And Gladstone could be equally urbane. On the same evening after Lord Randolph Churchill had made a fiery attack on him, Lord Randolph and his wife were at the same dinner-party with Gladstone. "The first person," says Lady Randolph Churchill, "I met as I went in was Mr. Gladstone, who at once came up and said: 'I hope Lord Randolph is not too tired after his magnificent efforts.'"

TURN ABOUT

For her he had vowed he would go through the fiery furnace; for her he would willingly brave the fury of demons; for her he would, in short, have done anything. For these reasons, and also because his socks wanted darning badly, he had taken the plunge and married her. He was worth at least $50 a week to his employer, but he only got $5.20 and the first week of their wedded life, full of resolutions, of noble self-sacrifice, he had given her $5, and kept the twenty cents to pay for taxicabs and cigars and theatre suppers.

The next week there was a slump in self-sacrifice. He gave her the twenty cents and kept the golden symbol of shining hope for himself.

"Theophilus," she remarked, icily, "will you kindly inform me how you think I'm going to manage for a week on this?"

"Blessed if I know!" he replied. "I had a pretty rough time myself last week. It's your turn this."

The Risk Limited

There's an old yarn about a fat and a lean duellist. The fat one complained that he offered a much larger mark to his antagonist's bullet, whereupon the lean man proposed chalking his outline on the fat one's body and no shot outside the chalk line would be counted. We were reminded of this story by the following notice which an accident insurance company has placed in the elevators of several office buildings: "This elevator is limited to fourteen persons. All over that number riding on this car do so at their own risk."

A Wonderful Watch

A Geneva watch-making firm has just completed a wonderful watch, the only one of its kind in the world. A pearl, which weighs forty-five grains and has a diameter of about half an inch, contains all the works. It took an employé of the firm fifteen months to hollow out the pearl and fix in the wheels. The watch, which is guaranteed to keep good time and may be worn as a ring or the finger, is for sale for $6,000.

CHEAP CLOTHING

Some of the Cheap Clothing Swindles That Are Taking Place Every Day Throughout the Country.

During the winter months the "cheap clothing" swindler comes to the fore. This is the method of manufacture of the "new and up-to-date" clothing. The "clothes for nothing" firm employs agents all over the country who make a point of buying up all old clothing as cheaply as possible. Nothing is despised. The agent is prepared to take old suits, whether they are threadbare or not; coats that would look shabby on a beggar, trousers patched and mended till hardly any part of the original pair remains, and, in fact, anything that once may have been clothing of some kind are fish for his net.

"Tearing Down" Factories.

At his "factory" the clothes are "torn down" by women. That is to say, they are picked to shreds. A certain amount of discrimination is shown, the sounder parts of the secondhand material being placed aside and carefully sorted. The dilapidated parts of these old clothes are more roughly treated. All colours, all patterns, they are all shredded. When this has been done they are placed in a strong dye for some hours, after which the material is dried and woven into cloth. Once more it is dyed and then turned into ready-made suits by the aid of sweated labour. These suits are sold for from $6 or $7. The dyes used are the cheapest obtainable, and the customer sees the result when his clothes soon begin to acquire a rusty brown or a green tint.

Given Warning

Mrs. Wilson's husband was often obliged to make long journeys on business, and frequently did not reach home till after midnight. His wife had usually slept peacefully at these times, but a number of burglaries in the neighbourhood during one of Mr. Wilson's trips had disturbed her calm. One night Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the stairs, so that his wife should not be awakened, when he heard her voice, high and strained.

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," she called; "but I am going to be on the safe side and shoot. So if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way!"

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should not forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day, Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier avenue, Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company, and told them that for twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Company, Toronto.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was preceded by the wait of a dowry.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Dear Afflicted sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which the medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers. Give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 887 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large numbers of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic trouble.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the ankles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

THE MORNING TIMES

SATURDAY, JANUARY 6, 1912.

MR. BONAR LAW AND PROTECTION.

The central theme in the recent developments in the British Parliament is the accession of Mr. Bonar Law to the seat occupied by Mr. Balfour. It is a curious coincidence that while the centenary of John Bright, the people's tribune, as he was called, was being celebrated, the new Unionist leader was delivering his first speech in that capacity, in which he advocated a return to the policy that Bright and Cobden so vigorously opposed, and succeeded in expunging from the fiscal code of the United Kingdom. According to Mr. Law there is to be more and better employment and higher wages for all under protection. The protection of Mr. Law and the party he leads may be put down to be a tax on corn, and high duties on manufactured imports. The Unionist leader will have much to do to convince the British democracy in which the artisan forms a prominent part, of the logic of the policy he is laying down. Present movements throughout the civilized countries of the world are all against the gospel of Mr. Law and the Tariff Reform party. The principles of John Bright have stood the test of time in Great Britain, and are becoming more and more acknowledged every day. There is now going on a demand in countries all around, with the exception of Australia, for a reduction of the tariffs, which men have come to find out mean hardship to the many and wealth to the few. Protection in Britain has been tried and has been found wanting.

Some of the present generation have no knowledge of the sufferings it created, but the stories handed down by those who have lived in its time, are sufficient arguments for its removal. Men are prone to blame present unsatisfactory conditions without sufficiently weighing the modern causes which have brought them about, and without comparing them with what have been in existence before. The evils caused by congestion of population are unfairly thrown on the shoulders of Free Trade. It would be well for those who are seeking to change a policy to compare the prosperity of England at the present day with what it was fifty years ago.

THE PANAMA CANAL AND WESTERN CANADA.

That a new era with regard to the development of Western Canada is to be brought about through the trade possibilities following on the opening of the Panama Canal, and the effect on transportation rates, is already forecasted. Much illumination has been thrown on the matter in a recent speech made by Dr. E. L. Kinman, of Vancouver, who has devoted much study to the subject. So far as west to east traffic in lumber is concerned he estimates a cut of two-thirds over the through rail rate. This is gathered from the fact that the existing rate from Vancouver to Montreal on fir and cedar is about 70 cents and 80 cents per 100 pounds respectively; the corresponding rates to New York being 75 cents. One thousand feet of British Columbia lumber of 3200 lbs. would mean a rail rate of $27.50 as compared with a $7 rate via the canal to New York. Now assuming, adds Mr. Kinman, that the same produce can be re-shipped by steamers from New York to Montreal at an extra cost of $1.00 the Panama Canal will bring the cost to only $8.00 per thousand feet.

In addition to this there is another very interesting comparison in the shipment of lumber to ports in the United Kingdom, via the Suez Canal, as at present, and via the Panama Canal in the future. Here there is a saving by the latter route both in time and cost. The Orient voyage at present usually occupies from 65 to 90 days. With the completion of the Panama Canal the same steamers will be able to make the run in from 20 to 25 days, the steaming distance being approximately about one-half that via the Suez route. There is good reason to suppose that the Panama Canal toll on lumber will not exceed $1.00 per 1000 feet. The Suez Canal toll is $3.00 per 1000 feet, so a saving of $2.00 will be effected in tolls alone. It is also possible that the rate charged on the new route will be 50 per cent. cheaper than at present. Canadian lumber exporters compete in the British market with the rest of the world, and therefore much advantage will be gained by these reductions. The lumber industry, however, is not the only one to gain, for the new facilities will also extend to grain transportation.

A Third Bereavement.

The many friends of Mrs. Lemon, High street, will deeply sympathize with her in the death of her nine year old daughter, Ivey Rosetta, who passed away yesterday morning at an early hour. Some time ago a young son died, and in August, 1909 she lost her husband. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

THE ROYAL CRADLE.

The Cradle Used for Children of King George Same As Used For Late King Edward and His Bro hers.

The late King Edward was always fond of children. His grandchildren were immense favourites with him. Often, early in the morning, he would walk over to York Cottage, where his arrival was received with shouts of delight, and spend some hours in the prettily-laid-out gardens there, smoking his cigar, and watching the children at play, entering into their enjoyment with obvious delight. Queen Alexandra once remarked that His Majesty was as "great a child as any one," and his delight was unbounded when the news of the birth of the present Prince of Wales was announced to him.

His first action was to telegraph to the late Queen Victoria and request that the old-fashioned bassinette that had been used for himself and his brothers and sisters might be sent for the occupation of the new arrival. This is neither hung, as is the modern style, nor is it on rockers. To it is affixed a silver plate with the inscription: "This bassinette was made for Victoria, Princess Royal (the late Empress Frederick of Germany) in 1840, and was used by all her Majesty's children, and was given by the Queen to the Duchess of York in 1894."

Ready for the Next Royal Baby

It was beautifully furnished for the use of the Prince. The sheets were of the finest Irish linen, embroidered in the corners with the Royal arms surmounted by the crown and trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The pillows were to match. The blankets were of white Yorkshire wool, likewise bearing the badge of the Royal arms, and several eider-down quilts accompanied the gift.

In this dainty cradle each of the children of King George and Queen Mary has slept and their Majesty has passed many happy hours by its side. It has now been carefully stripped of its hangings and packed away until such time as the Prince of Wales can have it passed on to him.

CAVE DWELLERS OF TUNIS

The second city of the Matmatas, the cave dwellers of Tunis, containing about 3,000 inhabitants, is one of the strangest in the world. It is not erected upon the ground, but is burrowed into the side of the country being a high, rocky plateau, barren, unbroken and treeless by the moon.

When one of these people wishes to build a house he chooses his spot, marks out its location, and then digs straight down reaching the desired depth which varies according to the number of rooms he desires. The rooms are usually hollowed out in the sides of the square pit, and the bottom of the pit forms the courtyard, which is the chief feature of a Moorish house. Besides the rooms a passage is usually dug communicating with the outside world, and a door is built at the outer end.

The soil is a soft clay, is easily cut and leads itself well to excavation, the roof of each room requiring no support as long as it is well arched. The cave dwellers inhabit the territory between the town of Gabes on the Mediterranean and the Algerian frontier.

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds" because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an Imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the times of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

SPEED RECORDS

When the engineer climbed down from the car of the Canadian Pacific Railway's fast Overseas Mail train, at Montreal Junction recently, he had just brought his train in from what is the fastest run that has yet been made between Quebec and Montreal. Not only was the previous record beaten, but it was so badly mangled that it is now hardly recognizable as the best previous time. Owing to the various steamship delays the operating officials had been advised to rush the Overseas mail from Quebec and rush it they did with a vengeance. the train putting away an average of nearly forty-five miles an hour for the whole trip of 167.5 miles. Leaving Quebec at 7.35 the train reached Montreal Junction, at 11.30 p.m. making the journey in three hours and fifty-five minutes. The best previous time for this trip was four hours and fifty minutes so that the old record was broken by five minutes. This however is not the whole of the story because shortly after the time for the West bound Overseas mail was made known, word was flashed from Quebec that the East bound train had also broken the best previous record. The time for this train was four hours and seven minutes, which while not as good as the West bound train's time was nevertheless good enough to beat the former time by thirty three minutes. Both trains were made up of five cars.

"What's your husband so angry about?"

"He's been out of work six weeks."

"I should think that would suit him first-rate."

"That's it; he's just got a job."

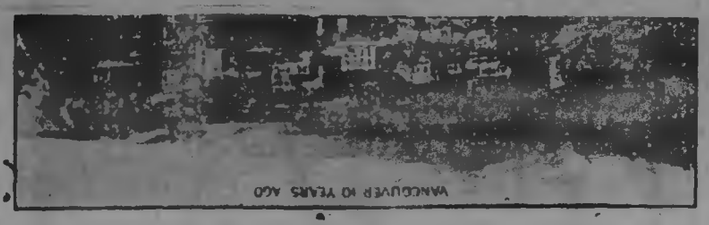
BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security



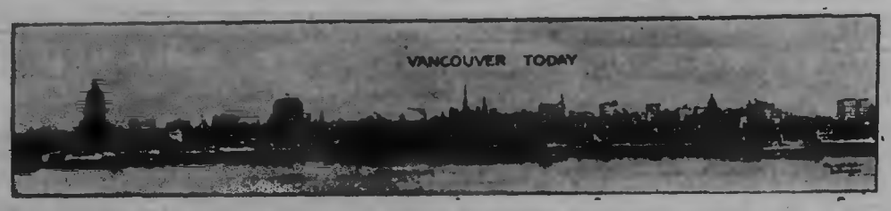
100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.



FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

SOCIETY BLANKS

Sixty People By Art Dealing with Good Money on the Side And Many Make Their Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of almost every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain, it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. "There are certainly no society women who add to their distinguished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"A well-known connoisseur, when recently visiting a Duchess, had the following experience:—

"The lady was delighted to see him; she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt, he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is badly hit by the depression in agriculture. You know all the rich Americans and the value of fine furniture; could you possibly help me to sell that magnificent Louis Seize piece? It was given to a former Duke by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture — it was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have risen in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kuangtung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husband more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself to her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, rates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

AMONG THE CANNIBALS

"Dear, dear!" remarked Mrs. Jackpott Jones, as he dropped the newspaper upon his knees and gazed at his dear wife, sitting on the opposite side of the fireplace, "what an extraordinary case!"

"What is, dear?" asked sweet Mrs. J., as she leaned back in her chair to the sound of cracking whalebone.

"Why—er—a report here of a ship that was wrecked near Tierra del Fuego, where the cannibals are, you know, dear. The Fuegans killed and ate the males, it appears, but absolutely refused to eat more than one of the five females who were amongst the survivors of the wreck."

"Indeed! I should have thought they would have preferred to eat ladies. They are so much more tender than men, aren't they?"

"Well, I don't know. It seems, according to this account, that the two men they ate had nothing on but flannel shirts and linen trousers, which the savages munched up with the meat. The one woman that they ate——"

"Ah!"

"Had on her, in addition to her outside clothes, about a pint of hairpins, a wire corset, a bent steel dress-improver, seven oxidized silver bangles, a burnished waist-belt, with steel chatelaine, scissors, button-hook, corkscrew, etc., brass-tipped heels to her boots, gilt——"

"Good gracious, how they must have suffered!"

"Rather! Listen to this: 'For five days after, the chief of the tribe never moved or spoke, but has since recovered and celebrated his convalescence by burning forty children as a thank-offering. He has since sworn, and made his tribe swear, never to eat another white squaw.'"

Vast Economy.

"You expect to get most bring you a large salary?" said the diffident interviewer.

"Oh, yes," replied the prima donna complacently. "And, besides, think of the enormous sums I save by getting to hear myself sing for nothing."—Washington Star.

BRIGHT AS AN ORATOR

John Bright was the greatest orator England saw during the nineteenth century, an age and a country where oratory reached the heights. To hold such place he must out-toup Gladstone, the great; Disraeli, the brilliant; Palmerston, the witty; Cobden, the wise; Parnell even, with whom he is closely associated. His speeches are still read, and readable today, by those who rejoice in the lovely phrasing which keeps them literature where they were speech.

Augustine Birrel calls his address at the unveiling of the statue to Richard Cobden, "one of the greatest pieces of English speech," and again, the after breakfast speech in welcome to Lloyd Garrison in 1867, "perhaps the most beautiful speech ever made in the English tongue on a public occasion."

His habit was ever to stand at the edge of the platform where the audience could "get at him" and be at them. As he criticised a friend who sheltered behind the reading desk, "no man can move an audience that does not see his boots." He must have been a splendid looking figure, this John Bright, as he thundered like Amos, and lamented the Jeremiah, and loved like Saint John. His was a splendid face, redeeming mankind from a counterfeit presentment of godhood. And it is not so stern or set a face as might have been expected from his prejudices. Was it of him one wonders that Sydney Smith asked of the portrait painter "Couldn't you manage to throw into the portrait a little more antagonism to the Established Church?"

Loud Affidavits

"What is that noise?" asked the presiding judge when a witness's voice was nearly drowned by a rasping uproar outside the court.

"My lord," said the counsel for the defendant, "I think it is the plaintiff filing affidavits."

A GOOD HAND

A young fellow had popped the question, and anxiously awaited the answer that was to decide his fate.

"Do you ever gamble at cards?" the fair one asked.

"No," he answered; "but if I did now would be the time."

"Why?" she inquired.

"Because," he answered, with a deep sigh, "I hold such a beautiful hand."

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages.

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that has been sown brings forth a dangerous harvest—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhosone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and, after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhosone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few moments by the penetrating vapor from the Inhaler. Ferrosone, taken in conjunction with Catarrhosone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhosone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Trouble, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhosone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

Two months' treatment, consisting of a beautiful polished hard rubber Inhaler and large bottle of liquid for recharging, costs but $1; trial size, 25c. Sold by all druggists and The Catarrhosone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE GOLD SHIP

THE GOLD SHIP
The Way Treasure Is Transported From One Country to Another and the Precautions Taken To Protect It.

Of the many romantic happenings which relieve the drabness of modern life, few appeal more strongly to the imagination than the conveyance, to and fro, of the great quantities of gold — whether bullion or specie — which, week in, week out, form an ever-flowing golden stream round the civilised world.

Perhaps the largest quantities of the precious metal are those conveyed weekly from South Africa, the output of the mines, which in bars, not unlike exaggerated cakes of yellow soap in appearance, find their way to the Bank of England and the other great banks. The value of these weekly cargoes frequently runs into millions.

Then, too, every mail steamer which leaves the docks carries its quantum of gold. Gold in bars, gold in sovereigns, gold in the coinage of every nation.

The casual passer-by who wanders through the long corridors of the Bank of England may happen on a little stone-paved courtyard, completely shut in by several sets of iron gates. Here he may see gold "bricks" being thrown into very ordinary-looking vans by sturdy porters, who handle the precious metal as if it were mere clay.

A Big Responsibility.

The van being full, a couple of individuals, also very ordinary-looking, climb in and seat themselves on its gold-paved floor, and off it goes to the docks or the railway-station.

Arrived at the docks, the gold, whether in bars or coin — which latter is packed in bags containing 1,000 sovereigns or their equivalent, which in turn are enclosed in iron-bound boxes, sealed with an official seal at the Bank of England on every joint — goes straight on board the ship it is to voyage in.

The bars, or boxes, are received by one of the ship's officers, and, with the assistance of a couple of quartermasters, are carefully checked and tallied. The officer — usually the second officer — signs a receipt for them, and they are placed in a special hold, to which access is obtained by only one entrance, and that is locked and sealed.

From the moment that he has signed the receipt the officer is personally responsible for the bullion and specie and its safe custody and delivery, and access to the treasure-hold can only be had — legitimately — by means of the key, which remains in his possession.

When Silence is Golden.

As to the exact precautions taken to guard the bullion-hold and its contents, and its precise situation, representatives of the various companies preserve a complete, and very wise, reticence, and even sailors and officers on the actual vessel seldom know where the gold is kept during its transhipment, so well is the secret kept.

Probably not more than three or four people in the ship are in possession of the information. The truth is that, surprising as the statement may sound to the uninitiated, there are in existence very highly organised gangs of international thieves, whose special work is the theft, or attempted theft, of gold while in the charge of the steamer companies.

BENEFICIAL WARS

Some People Argue That Wars and Industrial Calamities Benefit Mankind in the Long Run.

Few calamities in the world's history have been unattended by some advantage to humanity. The late Lord Palmerston is credited with having stated that even a great war had its benefits for the English people inasmuch as it induced them to study geography. There are people who go much further, and seriously argue that the horrors of war are afterwards compensated by reforms and discoveries which mankind at large would never have enjoyed but for the drastic chastisement which war inflicts. Among the arguments of this kind deduced from history is the statement that all the wealth and luxury the world has enjoyed from the industry of brass-working would probably have been lost but for the sacking and burning of the city of Corinth in the year 146 B. C. In Corinth there were immense quantities of gold, silver, and copper, and it is said that the violence of the conflagration was so great that these precious metals were melted and run together, and thus the famous Corithian brass was first manufactured.

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

She had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, delicious, kissable dimple

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will lay there until next pay day.

WIFE SEARCHED

Confessions of a White Man Who After Searching the World Found His Eden and His Eve In Tahiti.

At last the right Utopia has been discovered. The ideal wife, the ideal home, the ideal life, and ideal work are now awaiting any man who cares to follow the example of Mr. John Darling, known among the natives of Tahiti, the principal island of the Society group in the South Seas, as "the wise man on the mountain."

Darling lives on berries, has discarded clothes, and spurns all the institutions of civilisation in his habitation, which he has described as "Eden." The circumstances which led Darling to his "Eden" are somewhat remarkable. As a young man he was a keen student of the Bible, and the more he read and pondered, the more he was led to believe that the modern present-day man did not live naturally.

Darling decided to go out into the world and live the life that according to his ideas, the Scriptures said he should live. He visited many parts of the world in search of an "Eden," and at last decided that Tahiti fulfilled all his demands. The French authorities of the island, however, strongly objected to his eccentric habits. In fact, they led him to jail. The governor tried to persuade him to search for another "Eden" elsewhere, or, if he insisted on staying where he was, to conform to the sartorial rules of civilisation. Mr. Darling was obstinate, however. Tahiti was the one spot on earth for him, and all the governor's men could not make him wear clothing.

Finally the governor had an inspiration, and presented Darling with a piece of land high upon the mountains, with a clear understanding that he would stay there with his ideas and minimum of clothing. Fruits and herbs grew there in plenty. The air was balmy and fine, and the view delightful. There he could play "Adam in Paradise" to his heart's content.

Darling readily accepted the offer, and in a short time on the top of his mountain he built a simple hut of palm leaves and branches.

Ultimately Mr Darling took as his wife a Tahiti maiden, in whom he declares he has found a wife who helps him to lead his happy, ideal life. That this is no passing whim on his part is evident from the fact that a relative recently died and left him a fortune of some $200,000, on condition that he returned once more to the ways of civilisation; but Darling declined the fortune.

"Why," he exclaimed, "what do I want with money? What could money procure me better than I've got — happiness, health, and peace of mind from the knowledge of leading the life that I know man was intended to live!"

THE CELESTIAL

John Chinaman Not Taking Any Risks Even from Britishers Who Have Just Been Married.

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Among the recipients of the usual little card boxes containing a piece of wedding-cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied.

After the honeymoon, one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was the Celestial creditor.

"And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman, laughing, after the usual congratulations.

"Ah, ah," returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, "me no such big fool to eat him, nah. Me put cakee in fire. Burn him up. Ha, ha!"

"Oh, that's too bad," said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why didn't you?"

"Me too cfute, nah," said the Celestial, with the same winning smile. "You owe me money, nah; sendee poison cake; I eat him'd I die; you no payee up. Hoop-la! Ha, ha, ha! I know you Inglessh!"

A CLEVER WINDOW-SMASHER

A well-dressed man was hurrying along the Rue de Passy, in Paris, the other day. The pavement was wet, and the man slipped and fell, knocking against and smashing in his fall the window of a wine-shop.

Frantic excitement! The man groaned, the proprietor of the wine-shop rushed forth to demand amidst wild gesticulation, compensation for his broken window; a crowd gathered round to see he got it.

"But I have no money," wailed the unfortunate man.

"Search him!" screamed the proprietor.

No policeman was to be found at the moment so the crowd took the law into their own hands and went through the man's pockets. They hadn't gone far when they came upon a five-hundred-franc note.

"No money!" gasped the proprietor, in tones of mingled triumph and derision.

"No money!" jeered the crowd, who were lamentably lacking in sympathy with the poor man who had bumped himself on the hard, hard pavement.

"I shall take," said the proprietor of the wine-shop, "a hundred francs to repair my broken window." The crowd cheered, and the proprietor stuffed the four-hundred-francs' worth of change which he thrust into the hands of the man who had caused all the trouble.

The man hurried away, and when he was well out of sight and sound he laughed long and loud, for the five-hundred-franc note was a forgery which he with his own wicked hands, had manufactured!

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE
Some Barristers' Curious Customs and Traditions Belonging to the Old Country.

From the day when he eats his first student's dinner to the day when he pockets his last professional fee, the man of wig and gown in England has to observe customs and to obey traditions such as the members of no other learned profession have any knowledge of and which are not even known in Canada amongst the lawyers.

The Temple, where for the most part the would-be Lord Chancellor has his legal nursery, is an arrant nest of old-world observances, dating it with the far-away time when it was the home of Crusading Knights, who feasted, six and more centuries ago, on the very spot on which the young Templar of our day eats the dinners that go some way towards qualifying him for his wig.

Brothers All!

The very grace that heralds his meal and the grace that concludes it are the same, in the Inner Temple, that the Knights of the Cross listened to when the Plantagenet Kings were wearing their crowns. Like their martial predecessors, the Benchers file into the Middle Temple Hall preceded by the mace, the substitute for the old-time battle-axe. Their entry is heralded by a loud blow of the mace on the floor, as was that of the senior Knights Templar of old by a similar blow with the butt-end of a lance; and the grace is preceded by three blows with a wooden mallet, the ancient knightly form of invoking the Trinity.

Barristers and students mingle and feast together at the same tables, without any regard to seniority — a survival of the ancient Templar practice of the essential principle of brotherhood. If one of them is dissatisfied with his food, he may send a sample of it to the Treasurer for his verdict, just as the most junior Templar in King John's time would submit any food of which he disapproved to the Senior Knight; and the fragments of the modern Grand Day banquet are given to the servants of the Inn just as the surplus food was always given by the Knights of old to the poor.

The Knights Templar were summoned to the hall of feasting by the blowing of a horn; and to-day the Middle Templar is similarly called to the table by blasts of the very horn which summoned his predecessors in Elizabethan days. These, and the arrangement of messes, the ceremonials of toasting, the circulation of the loving-cup and many another custom, all serve to link the Templar of to-day with his martial "forefathers" of long-dead centuries.

Briefs and Fees.

And these are but a few of the many quaint customs and regulations which the man of wig and gown must observe, if he does not wish to get himself into trouble with the authorities. When he is qualified to accept briefs and to play the part of a counsel "learned in the law," he must walk very warily to avoid the countless pitfalls of etiquette that mark his path to the Woolsack.

However an empty purse may tempt him, he must not accept a professional fee that falls short of the irreducible guinea, with a half-crown added for his clerk, whether he has one or not. Nor must he accept less than the fee, however big it is, that is marked on his brief for all to see.

However much he may yearn for clients, he cannot even see one unless through the introduction of a solicitor; and the solicitor must be present at the interview. Between him and the litigant whose cause he is to plead there is a gulf which only a solicitor can bridge. And when the solicitor appears at his chambers, bearing the coveted brief, it must be handed, not to Mr. "Wig," but to his clerk, and it is the clerk, and not the master, who arranges the delicate matter of fees.

No Touting Allowed.

Some professional men may tout for clients; but not a "big" barrister. It will be an evil day for him when he starts brief-hunting, though he may be starving for lack of golden guineas. If he calls at a friendly solicitor's office for a gossip, or accepts an invitation to a dinner or a dance at his house, he is going perilously near the danger-line. If he is a wise man, he will avoid the company of solicitors and pass them by, like the Levite, "on the other side."

On circuit the watchful eyes of Etiquette are always on him. Even for the sake of company, if he be a sociable man, he must not travel there by any class but the first; nor may he reach an Assize town earlier than the day before the list opens.

However much his services are wanted on another circuit than his own he must turn a deaf ear, unless his brief comes to him marked with a special fee of at least fifty guineas, in addition to the fee he would receive on his own circuit. If he is unable to appear in any case for which he is retained, he must provide a substitute; for whose services, however, he may pay what he pleases. The fee he puts into his own pocket.

Even his professional dress is regulated for him to the extent that he must not appear in court in any coat but one of sober black; nor must he show his face in court if he is carrying the blue bag which may be his familiar companion in the street and train. Unless he is entitled to carry a red bag (and this he may not buy — it must be given to him by some friendly senior), he must be content to make his appearance with his briefs and papers under his arm.

A GOOD HAND

A young fellow had popped the question, and anxiously awaited the answer that was to decide his fate.

"Do you ever gamble at cards?" the fair one asked.

"No," he answered; "but if I did now would be the time."

"Why?" she inquired.

"Because," he answered, with a keen sigh, "I hold such a beautiful hand."

GOLD FROM SEA-WATER
You Look On While the Engines Make You Rich by Extracting Potash From the Waves.

Many people have some forward with ideas for extracting gold from sea-water. All these ideas have fallen through, and the only extraction of gold has been from the inventors' or investors' pockets. Recently, however, an Austrian chemist brought forward a new idea for extracting money from the waves which holds out a little more hope of success.

It is alleged that in every 3,000 lb. of sea-water there is 1lb of potash. Now potash is a fairly valuable commercial substance. At present price — $6.50 a ton, and over $20,000,000 worth is exported to the United States every year. It is reckoned that potash can be extracted from sea-water at a cost of about $2.50 a ton, leaving an ample margin for profit.

The system of extraction is simple. There is a ton of potash in about three-quarters of a million gallons of sea-water. A large tank is constructed on the bottom of which is placed a common ground furnace slag which has been treated with a weak iron sulphate solution. Sea-water is forced up through this, leaving behind a deposit of the valuable potash. Pumps supply the necessary water at the rate of 600,000 gallons an hour, a ton of potash being deposited every eighty-five minutes. The total cost of the necessary engines to run the pumping machinery is nearly $250,000. Not only will the tanks be used for extracting potash, but for getting the gold out of sea-weather as well. It only requires a strong solution of iron sulphate instead of a weak one; $15 worth of gold can be extracted every five hours, at a cost of $2.50 an ounce. Gold is worth $40 an ounce. The cost of running the machinery works out at about $300 a day. The amount of gold extracted will be worth about $3,500, leaving a clear daily profit of over $3000.

Duel Up To Date

A contest in the air between rival aviators for a girl's hand was the feature of a one-day aviation meet arranged for at Lima, Ohio. Two of the aviators, Jack Bachelor and Bert Chambers, had been laying siege to the heart of Miss Dorothy Dale, of Tiffin, Ohio. Miss Dale refused to choose between them, and in a recent meet in that city made a trip into the clouds with both. She promised to make her decision, and intimated that she would accept the one that made the highest altitude record during the day.

Maybe So.

"Well, Hildegarde?"

"Sawfish live in the sea, don't they?"

"Yes, my child."

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

King Edward Dreaded Having His Mattress Turned That Day.

A strange story of the late King Edward is told by M. Xavier Paoli, the famous commissary of the Paris detective force, who has guarded so many royalties during their journeyings in Europe, in his book entitled "My Royal Clients." It appears that one of the chief duties of Hawkins, King Edward's second valet, was to make the bed.

"He was better acquainted than anyone with the King's habits and tastes; he knew, for instance, that His Majesty's mattress must never be turned on a Friday. This was a curious superstition of the King's, and it was the only one I ever knew him to cherish, and he made no secret of it." It was curious that he died on a Friday, and that "the doctors, forgetting his expressed wishes amid the grave cares occasioned by the sudden altercation for the worse in his condition, ordered his mattress to be turned, hoping that this would give him a little rest. A few minutes before midnight he drew his last breath."

Very amusing, by the way, are M. Paoli's recollections of another royal visitor to Paris—Sisowath, King of Cambodia, who came attended by a huge suite of sons, daughters, Ministers, favorites, chamberlains, and a troupe of twenty dancing-girls, and who flew into a great rage because his suite was seasick.

"I forbid you to be sick," he shouted to them. "These are my orders. Am I king, or am I not?"

The King's baggage included 200 sacks of coal, which the Cambodians insisted on taking, fearing they should find none in France. The King was extremely polite, and shook hands with everyone, including all the flunkeys who lined the staircase of the Marseilles Prefecture on his arrival. Even to this eccentric sovereign, as to all others, M. Paoli made himself agreeable, and he writes:

"When at length the hour of parting had struck, good King Sisowath, greatly moved, called me to his side. 'Here,' said he; 'present for you.' And he handed me a parcel done up in a pink silk handkerchief. As soon as I was on shore I hastened to open it. To my great confusion is contained a splendid Sampot made of cloth of gold. The King of Cambodia had presented me with his state breeches!"

Outmanoeuvred Them.

There is a good story, which concerns the days when Sir George Newnes was wooing the Newmarket constituency as a Parliamentary candidate. A few hours before one of the meetings, which was being held in a tent, the information reached him that a gang of the enemy were coming to the meeting to upset the platform. The gang with their lady friends, who had been invited to see the fun, duly appeared on the scene, and were politely invited to seats close to the platform; and, as space was limited, the ladies received a pressing invitation to take seats on the platform.

After a few ineffectual protests the blushing maidens accepted the invitation, and thus the gang were compelled to sit listening with unwilling ears to the political gospel of their opponents, while above them in the midst of the enemy's camp their sweethearts sat blushing and giggling.

And when towards the end of the meeting Mr. Newnes rose and told the whole story, told it with many a word of admiration for the young men who, for the sake of the ladies they loved, were now abstaining from deeds of valour, and when in an eloquent peroration he wished all the young Tory couples very happy married lives, the audience nearly sent the tent flying with their shouts of laughter.

Not Room for Both

"I know Amee comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of timidity."

"What's the matter with Amee?" demanded one of the men on the club house porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes quietly resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Amee was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely I became the innocent object of his attentions. I had only a slight start, but I was going pretty well when Amee passed through the brush and took in the situation.

"Hold on there, old chap!' he called [illegible] I can't [illegible]

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a pleasant seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, it's this way. If it's no' sna', it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's sna' if it's neither frost nor sna', it's rain; if it's no' rain, it's wind; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabbath."

"TINFLUENZA"

Tin, Which Is the Most Susceptible of Metals, Easily Catches Cold. It Then Crumbles.

A curious illustration of the susceptibility of metal to heat and cold is provided by the effect which winter has upon tin. As a matter of fact, unless tin is kept above 18 deg. Centigrade it falls a victim to a strange illness which has been described as "tinfluenza." In other words, the metal catches a very severe cold, the symptoms of which are decay, loss of lustre, and crumbling of the surface to grey powder. The bane is not a chemical one, for the grey powder is still tin, and the extraordinary fact is that it can be brought back by careful warming to its originally healthy condition.

The purer the tin the more susceptible it is to cold, and consequently decay, apparently; and, in fact, it may be made proof against the disease by alloying it with other metals. The disease is a cause of considerable annoyance and disappointment to the collectors of coins who possess valuable tin specimens in their cabinets.

Even tin buttons have been known to crumble in this way and organ-pipes made of tin have been found to decay after a severe winter.

The rot is even infectious, for decaying tin, in contact with healthy, nitrous tin, soon spoils it, and reduces it to its own unhealthy state.

MOTOR-CYCLISTS AMAZING FEAT.

A striking illustration of the capacity and durability of the motor-cycle is furnished by the record recently set up by Mr. Harry King, the well-known Yorkshire cycling champion, who has just completed a journey of 10,000 miles on a motor-cycle in ten months. To accomplish his ride he went round the whole of the coast-line of Great Britain, in addition to other mileage; and, carrying no head-light, he had necessarily to ride only between dawn and dusk.

What makes the trip all the more noteworthy is the fact that prior to setting out on his journey, which he anticipated would occupy twelve months, Mr. Long had only a week's tuition in looking after his mount. He had only ten punctures during his ride, but had the unpleasant experience of having to sleep twice in the open and to ride through a ten-days' downpour of rain while in Scotland.

Once, in the North of Scotland, Mr. Long almost had his attempt brought to a sudden end. Riding along a road skirted by a declivity of several hundred feet, he experienced a dry skid, and was thrown right off the saddle. Fortunately he fell on a ledge and was enabled to scramble back, remount his machine, which had simply fallen on the road and was uninjured, and continue his journey.

GREAT CANVASSERS

Napoleon and George Washington and Many More Great Men Were Successful Books Agents In Their Youth.

Books — Well-known firm of London publishers require the services of country gentlemen to act as agents. Liberal commission. Districts apportioned. Hunting and shooting men preferred. Members of good families, younger sons who have been at the 'Varsities or public schools, will find this a first-class opening. Apply, etc.

When the above appeared in the advertisement columns of the English papers recently, no doubt many people who read it would ask themselves what things were coming to.

Country gentlemen taking to book-canvassing!

Certainly it reads revolutionary, even in these days of trading "nobility and gentry."

But greater men than country squires have, before now, been engaged in canvassing books.

Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French, the world's greatest military genius, was once a book-canvasser.

The future conqueror, while yet a lieutenant, and with nothing to live on but his scanty pay, undertook to "push" for Messrs. Boulanger and Co., the Paris publishers, a work called "The History of the (French) Revolution." And apparently he liked the work — with its emoluments — for after a short trial he applied to be given the sole agency for the Department of La Vendée. He had, however, to be content with a restricted district in suburban Paris. With what zeal he "worked" this may be seen to-day at the Louvre, where there is exhibited his canvasser's outfit, together with the long list of subscribers' names which his industry secured.

Almost at the same time, in a different part of the world, another future ruler was partly earning his bread as a book agent. This was none other than George Washington, "Father" of the United States. The particular book that Washington canvassed bore the somewhat lengthy title of "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, American Savage; How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization."

To "get off" such a mouthful as this would surely require more than average ability and persuasiveness, and if, as he recorded, Washington's sales were eminently satisfactory, small wonder that in later life he accomplished so much greater things.

A DIFFICULT TA

Chinese Language Has [illegible] Characters of Separate Meaning. and Accen.

The difficulties of [illegible] of Chinese type, says [illegible] Consul at Shanghai, [illegible] considerable, are not relatively so great as one might imagine, for while Kang Hsi's dictionary the standard and most comprehensive work of [illegible] in the language, contains [illegible] characters it has been found that for all practicable purposes a [illegible] contain about 7,000. Of course with a font of this size the Celestial printer, in the course of setting up a book, frequently find that he lacks one or so unusual characters, a deficiency which he readily meets by making these missing symbols hand upon plank type by skilled engravers, who, thanks to the old wood-block system are to be found in practically every town in China. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and their commentaries, are still produced by the time-honored method of printing from wooden blocks. Among the reasons why the Chinese prefers his books of this nature printed in the old way are his naturally strong conservatism, the peculiar charm and artistic richness of the pages printed from blocks, which the modern books from metal presses do not have, and the fact that the new style volumes lack the peculiar odour imparted in the older method by the lampblack table ink, with which they are printed, an odour which, although extremely disagreeable to occidental nostrils, is inseparably associated in the Chinese mind with good literature.

TROUSERS FROM OLD COATS

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans, servants collect and sell match-boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy up in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any other work, collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting; cock-roaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for thirty or fifty cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.

One has only to watch their story-tellers in the streets to see that the Chinese are natural orators. They are also very clever conjurers. Rich Chinese are very charitable. They distribute free rice and tea in time of exceptional distress; they subscribe to hospitals and to asylums for the blind, for the old, for lepers, and for orphans; they even support associations for supplying free coffins to the poor.

THAT WONDERFUL DOG

One evening at a tavern the topic was about dogs. "Oh!" said Juby, "I had a dog and was taking a near cut across some fields when I missed the animal, and on going back I found him staring at a notice-board bearing the words, 'All dogs found here will be shot.' And come he would not."

"Yes, yes, that's good, but what about Johnson's retriever?" One night his house caught fire, all was confusion; old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled them out sharp.

"Alas! one was left behind, but up jumped the dog, rushed in, and soon reappeared with the child, deposited it on the lawn. All were out now, but in rushed the dog again. What he was after no one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with what do you think?"

"Give it up," came from the listeners.

—"Why, with the fire-proof wrapped up in a damp towel, gentlemen."

A NEWSPAPER BLUNDER

A year or two ago, Big Ben (the well-known Westminster parliament clock) was fitted with new hands. A reporter in the London office of a Manchester paper saw his chance and wrote: "A well-known character, who has lived in Westminster all his life, and is familiarly known to many Londoners as "Ben," underwent a serious operation this morning. As Westminster Hospital was too full to allow of him having a bed, the operation was carried out by two doctors in the open air, and in the presence of a large crowd. Both of Ben's hands were taken off successfully and rapidly. A new pair will be provided for him." The sub-editor in Manchester read through the paragraph, and added the headlines: 'Operation in the Open Air. Big London Crowd Watches Man's Hands Taken Off.' And so it duly appeared in next morning's paper."

Entertaining Up To Date

A new form of entertaining, started by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is being taken up by Newport hostesses. It is a dinner and dance, with the dancing between the courses. As soon as one course is finished the orchestra strikes up, and the guests leave their places and begin to dance. The dance finished, another course is served. Eating and dancing go on in this way until the dinner is finished. By the time coffee is served the dinner-bell has tinged two

A Temperance Field Day.

Rev. Dr. W. S. MacIntosh, of Toronto, one of the Field Secretaries employed by the Dominion Temperance Alliance, has been in Peterborough County for the past few days, making arrangements for a field day to be observed on January 26th. On that day a large majority of the pulpits in the county will be occupied by representatives of the Alliance, and the subject of temperance will be discussed. It is probable that on the Monday following Field Day a conference of temperance workers will be held in this city to determine what further action shall be taken regarding local option or license reduction. This year contests could be brought on in this city and also in Burleigh and Anstruther.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Yesterday was probably the coldest day of the season.

The fire department has changed its wheels for runners on the various wagons.

There was no police court yesterday, the usual drunks not being in evidence. Evidently they have sworn off at the New Year.

A FATAL RUNAWAY

A Child Accidentally Killed Near Hastings.

Particulars of a fatal runaway accident which occurred near Hastings on Wednesday, reached Peterborough yesterday. It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Partridge, with their little daughter, were driving on the road between Warkworth and Hastings, when the team took fright at a piece of paper flying in the wind, and ran away, throwing the little one out. Mr. Partridge held on, however, and, after the horses had run about a mile, he succeeded in stopping them. While getting them quieted down, to go back and look for the child, the team bolted and got away from him. In the meantime, Mr. McGillen, another resident of that neighborhood who happened to be driving along after Mr. Partridge, was horrified to find the little girl lying on the road, dead, she having been almost instantly killed by being thrown from the wagon. Mr. McGillen picked up the body, and drove on until he came up with Mr. Partridge, when he had the painful duty of informing him of the sad news. The incident is the most heart rending one to take place in that locality for some time, and the people of that neighborhood are shocked over the terrible fatality.

THE POULTRY SHOW

Will be Held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Next.

The big three days' poultry show which opens in the Market Hall next Tuesday and closes on Thursday night, promises to be a big success. Additional coops have been secured, the specials number in the neighborhood of seventy-five, in some cases the prize money has been increased, in fact every department of the exhibition shows growth and it is expected that the citizens of Peterborough will give a liberal patronage. The directors, officers and members are working faithfully in the interests of the show and their efforts are deserving of co-operation. They are boosting Peterborough by endeavoring to attach to this city the name of the home of the premier Poultry Association and Poultry Show of the province.

THE NUCLEUS OF A BIG CITY

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the new seaport on the Pacific Coast which has been founded by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for the western terminus of the National Transcontinental Railway through Canada, continues to demonstrate the stability with which the enormous resources in that part of the world have endowed her. The population of about five thousand people who have settled there, thus forming the beginning of this future city, have shown their faith in its unquestioned future by building permanent homes and business establishments in almost every line of trade and commerce. Not alone is this faith confined to the citizens of Prince Rupert, but foreseeing the important factor she must early become in the commerce of the world, the leading banks viz.: the Bank of Montreal, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of British North America, the Royal Bank of Canada, etc. have located branches there. In all of our new Canadian towns and cities in the West and on the Pacific Coast, the buying and selling of real estate constitutes an item of much local importance and value, which, however, in the case of Prince Rupert has extended beyond the confines of the locality itself and even beyond the Province and Dominion to other parts of the world, for which large sums of money have been sent for investment and development. When the first lots in the townsite were placed on the market and sold a little more than two years ago the prices realised exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine by reaching figures in many cases several hundred per cent., and in numerous instances as much as one thousand per cent. above what was estimated to be a fair valuation, and events since that time have given no cause to change the confidence then shown, as reports have just been received of the sale of an additional section of the townsite containing about six hundred lots, for which there was an increasing demand and which realized prices of about two hundred per cent. above what was considered a conservative valuation. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through to the Pacific Coast is rapidly approaching, when trans-Pacific steamships will sail from this new seaport, and in order to be prepared for the increased accommodation and facilities that will be required large additional capital expenditures will be made within the next two years to provide commodious hotel accommodations and also a dry dock and ship repairing plant, the latter of which will be constructed under a subsidy granted by the Dominion Government.

During the past year the principal thoroughfares in the business section of the city have been constructed to grade, and extensive plans are at present receiving the serious consideration of the city council for municipal improvements in the way of heat light, power and water, and from the energy which has already been shown by the citizens there can be no question that her many natural advantages will be availed of in building a city at Prince Rupert that will be a model of utility.

Heaviness at Pit of The Stomach

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangements and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a weighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured. I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs."

The above letter comes from Mrs. P. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still further proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let everyone with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises, gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

NERVILINE RESTORES WEAK STOMACHS

You'll find a hundred uses for Nerviline—it's a trusty household remedy that sells to the extent of a million bottles per year—that's the best proof that it must cure and give unlimited satisfaction. Refuse anything offered in place of Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Ont.

EXCEPTIONAL RECORD

Latest reports received from Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast termination of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, shows that during the month of November, 1911, there were 79 vessels reported inward and 59 departures, which is considered an exceptional record for that time of the year.

GREAT DUCAL ESTATES GO

British Earl to Part With His Historic Home.

London, Jan. 7. THE rumored intention of Earl Manvers to dispose of his Derbyshire property means the ultimate dispersal of one of the greatest ducal estates of the country. His lordship has already disposed of most of his Lincolnshire acres, and a considerable portion of his estates in Nottinghamshire. Romantic associations are all over these broad acres. Lord Manvers got them through his father, grandfather and great-grandfather—from the last duke of Kingston, who was uncle to George Medows, first Earl Manvers. But over this typical bit of sporting country no lord of Thoresby has better maintained its old-time tradition than Lord Manvers. He hunts the country with the Rufford, of which he has been master for a decade. And he always contrives to show good sport. Among his guests at Thoresby have been at least two monarchs of illustrious memory. The late King Edward went there from Rufford abbey five years ago, and poor King Carlos of Portugal once went to Thoresby to experience what a day with the hounds was like. Certainly no better man than Lord Manvers could have been chosen to be his majesty's guide to fox hunting, and the day was voted a huge success.

Mr. Matthews, Chairman

Was Re-Elected by The Board of Water Commissioners.

A meeting of the Water Commissioners Saturday afternoon, Mr. T. F. Matthews, was re-elected chairman. Acting superintendent Fawcett gave a detailed statement of the operations of the year, which showed that in 1911, the total of mains and hydrant connections was 66774 feet. The total services on lines of distribution was 3222. During the past year 750,375,734 gallons of water were pumped or an increase of 56,210 894 gallons over 1910, and an increase of 310,100,174 over the first year of 1905 when the figures were 44,275,500

NO SERVICE AT ST. PAULS

The Heating Pipes Burst With the Frost and People Were Sent Home —Many Took in Other Churches.

During Saturday night the steam heating pipes of St. Paul's church burst with the frost, with the result that they were out of business for the morning service. The people were told at the door in the morning that there would be no service, and many of them went home, while others took in other churches in the neighborhood.

Repairs were hastily made in time for Sunday School, which was held in the church, a steam pipe having burst in the Sunday school room a few minutes before the hour of opening.

The whole heating plant will be thoroughly overhauled and tested today.

WAR WITH GERMANY.

That war with Germany is bound to come in the near future, a vast majority of the people believe. It is thought that there is no way of getting around it, and that the greatest war the world has ever seen is close at hand. Britons, it is believed in every quarter of the globe, are ready to help the Mother Country with their "last man and the last dollar" when the time comes. The navy is ready to strike swift and strong, so that the struggle may not be prolonged.

MORE ROMISH AGGRESSION

A despatch from Ottawa stating that the "motu proprio" decree will not be enforced in Canada is not accepted by local authorities as correct. The effect of the decree is that any Roman Catholic summoning a Roman Catholic clergyman before a civil court will be excommunicated. By local authorities an official pronouncement as to whether the decree is to be enforced in Canada is expected from Rome shortly.

"It is no new decree," stated Dr. Kidd, "as there always was an ecclesiastical court to hear grievances of priests or other members of the clergy."

In explaining the situation, Dr. Kidd made further statement: "There is nothing to prevent a man from bringing a priest of the Catholic Church before a civil court if the circumstances warrant it. If a priest should be in debt and the creditor unable to collect in any other way, the way is open for him to obtain judgment against the priest the same as anyone else, but these conditions prevail so seldom that they are scarcely worth thinking about, and if they are brought before the ecclesiastical court they will be dealt with much more expeditiously than by any civil court There is an ecclesiastical court for every diocese, comprised of the Bishop or Archbishop and some of his subordinates. It is not the members of our church who are worrying about the decree, as they are well acquainted with the workings of the Church in all matters relating thereto."

EGGS TRAVEL TWO YEARS BEARING A MESSAGE

STARTS FROM MINNESOTA AND WINDS UP IN HANDS OF A BROOKLYN MAID.

Just Twenty-Seven Months After Received a letter—Fresh? Why, Certainly.

Troy, Kan., Jan. 6.—Twenty-seven months ago W. B. Montgomery, of this city, a newspaper man was in Lyle, Minn., and stopped off in the general merchandise store of Wilcox and Lang. Three very attractive young women were in the rear of the store packing fresh eggs for shipment. In jollying the young women Mr. Montgomery suggested that all four write their names and addresses on different eggs and see what sort of answers they would receive. They did so. After scribbling his name and address upon an egg, he added the following: "The young lady who receives this egg will please write the undersigned, and if he is not already spoken for at that time, negotiations may begin for tieing the marriage knot. Better write and ascertain."

Just 27 months after his visit to Lyle he received a letter from a young woman in Brooklyn, N.Y., who requested him to furnish her with the actual date the egg was packed. He did so. Her reply to his note on the egg was: "The egg was handed to me by one of the clerks of the firm. Believing that you were jollying when you wrote the note, I am not suggesting matrimony, for I do not believe my mother would permit me to marry at this time. I will be greatly obliged if you will furnish me with the date and place the egg was packed and shipped from."

13 Children born to Pair in Three Years

Twins, Triplets Triplets again in a Year, and Then a Quintet

LAST FIVE STILL LIVING

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 6.—His recent complaint that the railstation waiting room at Boynton, Okla., was without fire on a bitter cold day led to the discovery that J. M. Jackson and his wife are parents of 13 children, born in three years. Their 14th child, their son is now 14 years of age. Twins are now 5 years old. Triplets succeeded the twins in 12 months, and in another year triplets again made their appearance, but one year after the last triplets came five children on the same day.

The last five are still alive, but the health of the whole family declares Jackson, was impaired by the absence of warmth in the Boynton station waiting room. It is hinted the commission will reprimand the railroad.

PUBLIC OPINION

TAINTED ICE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I notice by The Times that the ice harvest is now at hand and the various icemen are about to put in their stock for the summer. Now, Sir, I think something should be done at once to ensure a more wholesome supply of ice. It is almost unthinkable that ice should be taken from the Little Lake for domestic use and where all kinds of pollution exists.

I called attention to this matter last year through The Times, but no action was taken. My idea would be to have the ice cut from the large reservoirs on the river above the city. This would ensure a somewhat better and purer supply.

I hope The Times will take this matter up and see that something is done.

One Who Knows.

The Times is having several tests made of the water taken from the Little Lake, and will publish the result.—Ed. Times.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In view of the fact that the local option campaign for 1913 is about to begin in Peterborough, it behooves, I suppose, those who are in any capacity interested in the well being of the community, to add their quota. This will be my apology for doing so. Let me remark, for brevity's sake, that it may well be taken for granted that people are already convinced of the absurdity of all forms of waste from war to whiskey. Surely it is not necessary at this late date to "explain" further the weaknesses of humanity—the misery, the absolute untellable misery and damnation of it all. But what we do need to think of is the future of the travelling public and of the city commercially. It would be an easy matter, I assume, to take over all the hotels, and to abolish the sale of liquor therein. Instead, therefore, of discussing further what really needs no further discussion, let us set ourselves to the very pressing need of propiding hotel accommodation—that is good hotel accommodation—against the day when the hotel keeper will have slipped out of business and the hotel owner will have turned his property into something else than a cheap boarding and lodging house, for that is what he is face to face with, or will be when local option passes. I am moved to make these remarks by what I have been told at Ottawa by the travelling public, who without exception, say that hotel accommodation in local option localities is a crying shame, and is doing great damage to business—in fact causing the buying public to go to other centres where the ordinary comforts of life still exist for the travelling public.

This then, is the problem we in Peterborough as elsewhere have to grapple with. In Peterborough we have excellent hotel service and by no means too much of it. To preserve this for the benefit of the travelling public when local option comes let us buy it out now at invoice prices and keep the standard of accommodation where it is. In no other way is it or can it be done. Do not let us for the sake of doing good, recklessly plunge the city into disorganization. The question is fairly up to us. Are we prepared to provide a substitute? If not, then the work of the local optionist is not well, but badly done. Let some man come forward with a comprehensive scheme to take over the hotels and I will hold up both my hands for him. In the interests of the public and of the city, we must face this difficulty, and we cannot honestly do so by shirking it and producing confusion and commercial injury.

FRIENDS HUNT STORE GIRLS

Workers' War on White Slave Trade brings to Light New Facts

A CASE OF KIDNAPPING

Cab is Said to Have Been Used to Carry Off Unwary One Saturday Night — Time Authorities Got Busy.

Toronto, Dec. 29, 1911

The redemption work among shop girls of Toronto carried on by an organized band of workers operating under the direction of the Canadian churches is bringing out the real facts as to the extent of the white slave traffic in Toronto and elsewhere. Convincing evidence of the activity of men and women in procuring young and attractive sales girls has been given to the workers by prominent Toronto women who have been in city stores and watched the agents of the traffic landing victims.

It seems comparatively easy for those engaged in the white slave traffic to get into conversation with the sales girls, according to the statement of a thoroughly trustworthy woman, who gave the facts bearing on one particular case which came under her notice at a store counter. As the circumstances are similar to those in other cases reported, it would appear that the methods adopted are about the same in each case.

Cause of the Trouble.

Ambition to dress well and appear as attractive as some of their customers is responsible for many a girl's downfall. Such a girl is usually unwary and easily influenced by any man who suggests her in conversation, first about a purchase he makes, follows it up with an invitation to spend an evening at one of the places of amusement.

Toronto Women Help.

How a man and woman rescued a girl in a store was related by the wife of a high official of a church and a deaconess who were present and overheard a conversation at a store counter and afterwards performed rescue work outside of the hall to which the sales girl was invited. This victim of the traffic had been given candies, which caused her to become unconscious, while being taken to a place of safety by the deaconess who had saved her.

Tracked an Agent.

During the Christmas season there was brought to the attention of the workers the operations of a man who was active in the large stores getting in touch with a possible victim. This is only the preliminary stage in the practice of procuring. One of Toronto's lady doctors heard a conversation with a sales girl and then tracked the man from counter to counter and then to another store. A full description of the man has been obtained from the doctor, who is assisting the authorities to help stamp out the evil.

A Saturday Victim.

The most recent case which has come to light also names a store girl as the victi . It is said the girl was taken away in a cab Saturday night after the shopping hour by an agent of the white slave traffic, who engaged her in conversation and got her to enter the cab on some pretence. The girl, it is claimed, was not at the store counter yesterday, and her absence, coupled with the manner of her departure Saturday night, made the other clerks suspect kidnapping. Staff Inspector George Kennedy and Detective-Sergeant A. G. Mackie stated last night that they had no official knowledge of the disappearance of this particular girl. They had not been asked to investigate the case or find such a girl as spoken of.

WILL REV. RICHESON GET DEATH OR LIFE TERM FOR CONFESSED MURDER

HIS CONFESSION, AND PARTICULARLY THE FORM OF HIS CONFESSION, MAY SAVE HIS LIFE.

May Be Convicted of Murder in the Second Degree Without Having a Trial—The Dramatic Ending of a Very Dramatic Case.

Boston, Jan. 6.—The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, formerly pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, to-day made a written confession to the effect that he poisoned his former sweetheart, Miss Avis Linnell. The statement was given into the hands of his counsel, who made the confession public at 1 p.m.

Boston, Jan. 6.—The confession of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson follows:

Boston, Jan. 3, 1912.

"John. L. Lee, Esq.
"Wm. A. Morse, Esq.
"Philip R. Dunbar, Esq.
"Gentlement:

"Deeply penitent for my sin and earnestly desiring, as far as in my power lies, to make atonement, I hereby confess that I am guilty of the offence of which I stand indicted."

His mind, breaking under the strain of the nightmare that filled his waking time, and made horrible his sleeping hours, Richeson confessed yesterday to his lawyers, handing them a written statement admitting his guilt. Through the long hours of the night his lawyers pleaded with District Attorney Pelletier for leniency for the minister of God who had broken the commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

COUNCIL MEETINGS OPEN WITH PRAYER

How Orillia Councillors Open Their Inaugural Meeting.

—Council meetings open with prau

The following from the Orillia News Letter concerning the festivities in connection with the inaugural meeting of the town council, will be read with interest. In Lindsay scarcely a corporal's guard turns out to the opening session of our town fathers.

"The inauguration ceremonies in connection with the formal investure with the seats of office of those who have been called to serve in this year's council, will be held in the Council Chamber at 8 o'clock on Monday evening, January 8th.

"The religious exercises will be conducted by the clergy, after which His Worship the Mayor will present his inaugural message to the Council.

"For the first time in Orillia's history the ladies as well as the gentlemen are invited to attend this public function and in this regard we are simply keeping pace with other progressive towns and cities in Canada.

"The council chamber and municipal offices will, as usual, be nicely decorated with flags and flowers by Superintendent Whitton of the parks department. A short programme will be given by the citizen's band.

"The citizens in general, with their ladies are cordially invited to be present on this occasion."

"THE SCIENCE OF THE MIND."

At the "Helping Hand Bible class" of Park street Baptist church yesterday, a lengthy paper was read by Mr. R. J. Todd, Christian Science practitioner, on the subject, "The Science of the Mind," based on the great Commandment, Mark 12: 30.

Mr. Todd's address was very interesting and instructive, and was listened to with a great deal of pleasure by the large class of men, as a masterly exposition of the subject. The subject was divided into three parts. The duty of man to his Creator; second, the method of worship; third, the results.

The first argument was that we must first know God aright; this includes the topic, "The Science of the Mind,j' Defined by Webster; science is the comprehension or understanding of truth or facts of the mind. For the definition of mind, Mr. Todd took the Bible and science and health with key to the Scriptures by Mary B. G. Eddy, showing that the real mind is God, while the human or carnal mind which is in need of changing is a counterfeit of the divine mind, a belief in another power besides God, called Adam in the Scriptures, Gen. 2nd chapter. This materialistic belief ruptures the brotherhood of man as seen in the action of Cain, slaying his brother, Abel. The beginning of the war in Heaven. Rev. 12 : 7.

This belief is seen and felt all down the ages in wars, famine, disease and death, and although it tries many methods to save itself, it utterly fails. Thus the need of a Saviour, the true, spiritual knowledge, or the Science of Mind. Mr. Todd then showed that this knowledge began through Abraham, which he defined as faith in the divine life, this was seen in healing and saving power, through Elisha, Daniel and others recorded in the Old Testament.

Later, it was manifest through Mary in the Child Jesus, God manifest in the flesh. Through many mighty works he proved that at-a atonement with the Father, thus becoming a Wayshower. He then threw off the flesh, leaving the works to be carried on by those who believed in him.

Through persecution and unbelief the healing power was lost, but was again rediscovered by Mrs. Eddy, in 1866. The rule and application of the Divine to the human thought she wrote in a book, known as "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." In proof of the redemptive and healing influence of this book, or Science of Mind, Mr. Todd gave some of his own practical experience, showing that truth is the same yesterday and for ever. He further declared that it was the Science of Mind which enabled John to see that eventually the devil would be cast out of Heaven, that death and hell would be cast into the lake of fire. Rev. 20: 14. This Mr. Todd explains as sin disease, sorrow and death, swallowed up in the infinite ocean of divine love; then Heaven, harmony would reign supreme here and now, as in the beginning.

In concluding, he quoted a hymn, written by Charles Parsons, we give the last verse:

Then open wide your heart,
To truth and light and love;
You then shall know your life is hid
With Christ in God above.

"THE BLUE BIRD."

Wonderful Scenic Reproduction Coming to Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto.

The new theatre's famous production of the "Blue Bird," the exquisite fantasy by Maeterlinck, will be presented at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, for two weeks, starting Monday, Jan. 8, with matinees Thursdays and Saturdays.

No recent play has made quite so profound a sensation in America or Europe; with its beautiful philosophy, rare humor and pathos, it has charmed playgoers of all ages and all countries. In New York, where it was produced at the New Theatre, this so-called literary drama, scored the greatest popular success of the season, attaining a run of 208 performances. In England, France, Germany and Austria, it has met with the same huge success, while in Russia fifty-two different company are now playing it throughout the Provinces.

This season a number of innovations from the London, Paris, Berlin and Moscow productions have been added to the original new theatre production, better to interpret the symbolism and poetry of the piece.

Indeed, so careful has the drama been staged, to bring out all the fanciful flights of the poet's imagination and to make vivid his wonderful descriptions, that the New Theatre production of "The Blue Bird" is probably the most marvellous bit of stage-craft that has ever been witnessed. Certainly, no scenes have yet been conceived that can compare in beauty and compelling weirdness with "The Palace of the Night," "The Kingdom of the Past," "The Land of Happiness" and the other lands born of the poet's imagination, where Mytyl and Tyltyl have their adventures.

In "The Blue Bird" Maeterlinck has revealed a new and comforting philosophy of life, expressing it through the light and delicate fancy of the pursuit of two children of the blue bird, the symbol of happiness. They are accompanied on their journey by "Bread," a jolly grotesque individual; "Milk," a beautiful, timid creature; "Water," a flowing, sylph-like girl; "Fire," a raising tempestuous youth; "Sugar," a silly chap with candy hands; the faithful "Dog," the sly, scheming "Cat" and other things and animals embodied in human form by the magic of fairly Berylune.

So intricate are the various scenic effects that nearly a year was spent in the preparation of them. Beauty, fantasy, wisdom, humor, and a delightful tenderness are all blendid into one.

"The Blue Bird" brings tears to the eyes then chases them away with laughter; plunges you in revery and then startles you with some joyous surprise. Children and those who like to take their amusement lighter, derive infinite pleasure from the amusing actions and witty sayings of things and animals turned into human beings. To those who look deeper, however, the author has furnished a bottomless well of mysticism, romance and inspiring symbolism.

Particular attention will be given to out-of-town orders with remittances and a self-addressed stamped envelope will receive prompt attention. All orders should be addressed to Manager Lawrence Solman, Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto.

TO RELEASE HARRY THAW

New York, Jan. 6.—It was learned on authority this afternoon that Clarence J. Shearn will begin proceedings next week for the release from Matteawan Asylum for the Insane, of Harry K. Thaw, the Pittsburg millionaire slayer of Stanford White.

The statement is made that former District Attorney Jerome, who has heretofore fought all attempts to gain the release of Thaw, will not now interfere.

LOCOMOTIVE ON JOY RIDE HITS TRAIN

Three Men Take Engine and Cars Out for Frolic and Run Into Boat Express.

Webster, Jan. 6.—Joy riding on a locomotive by three men, one whom claims to be an employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, resulted to-night in the wrecking of an engine, the stalling of the Norwich line boat train running between Worcester and New London, and the shaking up of its passengers and the arrest of John Flannagan. Flannagan is alleged to have been the head of the joy riders and to have had two companions who are now being sought by the police. The passengers on the boat train were given a bad fright, but none was seriously hurt, and later all went on by another train. The accident happened on the Midland division of the New Haven system just outside of Webster.

As near as officials of the road have been able to get at the facts to-night, Flannagan was about the South Worcester roundhouse, where he claims to be employed, when two friends appeared. A few moments later an engine with two freight cars ahead steamed out of the yard and started on its joy trip. After running for a number of miles at rapid speed, according to operators along the line, the joy riders got tired and started back. They had reached this town when the boat train appeared, and into this the wandering locomotive backed with considerable force. The engine was derailed and badly damaged.

Flannagan was arrested by the local police.

RUSHING THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The blast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contractors is echoing against the rocky walls of Tete Jaune Cache to make way for civilization, and the shrill echoes of the locomotive whistle later on.

Going westward from Edmonton along the Grand Trunk Pacific route the traveller sees the trail of the second comer already strongly marked, and Tete Jaune Cache is the objective point at present for the end of steel by the spring of 1912. At present the Grand Trunk Pacific steel is beyond the Great Divide, and over the summit of the Yellowhead Pass.

Historically, Tete Jaune is a centre of interest in Western Canada, as this point was the site of one of the Hudson Bay posts one hundred years ago, when the route from the Pine, the Peace and the Fraser Rivers brought the furs and merchandise through this gateway. At the present time there is only a band of Shuswap Indians camped on the south side of the Fraser, and as soon as the steel reaches this locality and civilization with its kodaks and pocket books will effect the establishment of a permanent order of things.

Proclaimed a New Sultan.

Sir Rennell Rodd, the British ambassador in Rome, has seen an enormous amount of diplomatic service, having served in Berlin, Paris, Athens, Cairo, and Stockholm. Of him Queen Victoria said: "Rennell Rodd has a suavity of manner which would get over anyone."

This was on his return from Abyssinia, whither he was sent on a special mission to Menelik, and not only succeeded in arranging affairs satisfactorily, but brought back some gorgeous presents from the Emperor to the Queen, as well as an Ethiopian star and various orders for his own adornment.

It fell to his lot in 1890 to proclaim a new sultan of Zanzibar, Mr. Rennell Rodd, as he then was, being British agent.

Read It Differently.

A man was charged with stealing a sheep belonging to Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice.

"I found the poor creature starvin' on the road, my lord, an' was just drivin' it home," pleaded the accused.

"Can you read?" asked his lordship.

"A little, me lord."

"You could not have been ignorant, then, that the sheep belonged to your landlord, Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice, as his brand, 'G. F. M.,' was on the animal."

"True for ye, me lord but sure I thought the letters meant 'Good Fat Mutton!'"

Fortune in Stamps.

A lady living in Sydney for many years has hoarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition, and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

BOOM TO WEST.

Not Cancelling Pre-Emptions For Non-Payment of Taxes.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 6.—What will prove a great boon to the holders of pre-emptions is the order issued by Hon. Robert Rogers to the various Dominion land offices throughout the West not to cancel pre-emptions for non-payment of interest. The reason for the suspension of the provision allowing cancellation of the pre-emptions if interest is not paid is that the settlers have had great difficulty in marketing their grain and are not in a position to pay the interest.

Ice Harvest Begins.

The ice harvest season is now on, and the work of filling the store houses with congealed water will soon begin. Besides the Allin Ice Company there are a number of others who have ice houses to fill, so that the Little Lake will soon present a busy scene, affording employment to a considerable number of men and teams.

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde evidence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackmore, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

USEFUL IGNORANCE

Brayson: "Come out with me for a ride in my motor-car?"

Wise: "How long have you had it?"

"Just got it."

"Had any experience with cars?"

"No."

"Going to run it yourself?"

"I am."

"Can you mend a punctured tyre?"

"No."

"Wouldn't know the first thing to do?"

"Not the first thing."

"Have you studied, read, or been given any advice?"

"No; I tell you I don't know anything about them."

"How far do you want to go?"

"Just as far as the thing will go."

"All right. I'll come with you."

"What! Why, I didn't dream you'd accept my invitation."

"Why not?"

"I didn't think you'd care to go out in a motor-car with a man who doesn't know anything about it."

"Nonsense! You're just the man."

"How's that?"

"Simply because, my friend, if we break down, we'll drop the machine and get home by train. But if you thought you knew anything about it, you'd spend the rest of the day trying to put it right, while I'd have to stay and suffer with you as a matter of common courtesy."

Miss Elder: "You fancy yourself very clever, I dare say; but I could give you a wrinkle or two."

Miss Younger: "No doubt you could—and never miss them."

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT. FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

CHEAP CLOTHING

Some of the Cheap Clothing Swindles That Are Taking Place Every Day Throughout the Country.

During the winter months the "cheap clothing" swindler comes to the fore. This is the method of manufacture of the "new and up-to-date" clothing. The "clothes for nothing" firm employs agents all over the country who make a point of buying up all old clothing as cheaply as possible. Nothing is despised. The agent is prepared to take old suits, whether they are threadbare or not; coats that would look shabby on a beggar, trousers patched and mended till hardly any part of the original pair remains, and, in fact, anything that once may have been clothing of some kind are fish for his net

"Touring Down" Factories.

At his "factory" the clothes are "torn down" by women. That is to say, they are picked to shreds. A certain amount of discrimination is shown, the sounder parts of the secondhand material being placed aside and carefully sorted. The dilapidated parts of these old clothes are more roughly treated. All colours, all patterns, they are all shredded. When this has been done they are placed in a strong dye for some hours, after which the material is dried and woven [illegible] cloth. Once [illegible] dyed and then turned into ready-made suits by the aid of sweated labour. These suits are sold for from $6 or $7. The dyes used are the cheapest obtainable, and the customer sees the result when his clothes soon begin to acquire a rusty brown or a green tint.

Given Warning

Mrs. Wilson's husband was often obliged to make long journeys on business, and frequently did not reach home till after midnight. His wife had usually slept peacefully at these times, but a number of burglaries in the neighbourhood during one of Mr. Wilson's trips had disturbed her calm. One night Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the stairs, so that his wife should not be awakened, when he heard her voice hissing straight.

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," she said, "but I am going to begin shooting and shoot. So if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way!"

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs, who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

POLITICAL POLITENESS

An incident in the life of Lord Beaconsfield affords an apt illustration of the charm which the spirit of chivalry infuses into everyday life, says the author of "How to be Happy Though Civil."

Gladstone was attacking in the House of Commons the Administration of Disraeli, as he was then. He had begun a sentence, "the right honourable gentleman and his satellites," when some interruption threw him out; he came to a stop, and seemed on the point of breaking down. Disraeli leaned across the table and repeated the word "satellites," whereupon his adversary at once recollected himself and resumed his invective.

And Gladstone could be equally urbane. On the same evening after Lord Randolph Churchill had made a fiery attack on him, Lord Randolph and his wife were at the same dinner party with Gladstone. "The first person," says Lady Randolph Churchill, "I met as I went in was Mr. Gladstone, who at once came up and said: 'I hope Lord Randolph is not too tired after his magnificent efforts.'"

TURN ABOUT

For her he had vowed he would go through the fiery furnace; for her he would willingly brave the fury of demons; for her he would, in short, have done anything. For these reasons, and also because his socks wanted darning badly, he had taken the plunge and married her. He was worth at least $50 a week to his employer, but he only [illegible] $5.20 and the first week of their wedded life, full of resolutions, of noble self-sacrifice, he had given her $5, and kept the twenty cents to pay for taxicabs and cigars and theatre suppers.

The next week there was a slump in self-sacrifice. He gave her the twenty cents and kept the golden symbol of shining hope for himself.

"Theophilus," she remarked, icily, "will you kindly inform me how you think I'm going to manage for a week on that?"

"Blessed if I know!" he replied. "I had a pretty rough time myself last week. It's your turn this."

The Risk Limited

There's an old yarn about a fat and a lean duellist. The fat one complained that he offered a much larger mark to his antagonist's bullet, whereupon the lean man proposed chalking a bullseye on the fat man's body and all [illegible] outside it should not be counted. We are reminded of this story by the following notice which an accident insurance company has placed in the elevators of several office buildings: "The elevator is limited to fourteen persons. All over that number riding on this car do so at their own risk."

A FATAL [illegible]

A Child Accidentally Killed Near Hastings.

Particulars of a fatal runaway accident which occurred near Hastings on Wednesday, reached Peterborough yesterday. It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Partridge, with their little daughter, were driving on the road between Warkworth and Hastings, when the team took fright at a piece of paper flying in the wind, and ran away, throwing the little one out. Mr. Partridge held on, however, and, after the horses had run about a mile, he succeeded in stopping them. While getting them quieted down, to go back and look for the child, they again bolted and got away from him. In the meantime, Mr. McGillen, another resident of that neighborhood who happened to be driving along after Mr. Partridge, was horrified to find the little girl lying on the road, dead, she having been almost instantly killed by being thrown from the wagoan. Mr. McGillen picked up the body, and drove on until he came up with Mr. Partridge, when he had the painful duty of informing him of the sad news. The incident is the most heart rending one to take place in that locality for some time, and the people of that neighborhood are shocked over the terrible fatality.

Farewell to Miss Campbell.

On Wednesday evening a number of friends met in the Park street church to say farewell to Miss Lottie Campbell, who is leaving for Toronto, where she will take up a course of study. She will be greatly missed. During the time she has been the president of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society and also a teacher in the Sunday school, and will be greatly missed. During the evening Mr. Moore, superintendent of the Sunday School and Rev. W. C. Riddiford, the pastor of the church, expressed appreciation of Miss Campbell's services and regret at her departure.

A Temperance Field Day.

Rev. Dr. W. S. MacIntosh, of Toronto, one of the Field Secretaries employed by the Dominion Temperance Alliance, has been in Peterborough County for the past few days, making arrangements for a field day to be observed on January 28th. On that day a large majority of the pulpits in the county will be occupied by representatives of the Alliance, and the subject of temperance will be discussed. It is probable that on the Monday following Field Day a conference of temperance workers will be held in this city to determine what further action shall be taken regarding local option or license reduction. This year contests could be brought on in this city and also in Burleigh and Anstruther.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment, to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Hasohmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish-gold" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the eager pairs over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1827, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose [illegible] was rewarded by the visit of a doctor.

THE MORNING TIMES

MONDAY JANUARY 8th, 1912

MORE STRIKES IN NOVEMBER, BUT SITUATION IMPROVING.

According to the Labor Department's strike record, there were thirteen trade disputes in existence during November, being three more than in October and six more than in November, 1910. Forty-one firms and nearly twelve thousand employees were involved and the loss in working days amounted to approximately ode hundred and forty thousand. The termination, however, of the coal miners' strike in Alberta and Eastern British Columbia and the speedy settlement of the longshoremen's strike at Montreal enables it to be said that the situation has improved somewhat since October. The only important strike which began during the month was one of cotton mill operatives at Magog, Que. There were only six strikes unsettled at the close of the month.

WHOLESALE PRICES ARE FIRM.

The Department of Labor index number of wholesale prices for November shows that about the same level was maintained during the past month as in October, though prices are considerably higher than at the same time in 1910. The number is 130.8 for November, compared with 130.5 for the preceeding month, and 122.0 in November, 1910. Over two hundred and fifteen articles, carefully selected to represent the entire field of Canadian production and consumption, are included in these calculations. The numbers represent in each case percentages of the average price level prevailing during the decade 1890-1899, the period selected as the standard of comparison. The detailed figures show that the chief features of the price movement during November was a continuance of the upward trend of grains and dairy products, with a drop in animals and meats. Miscellaneous foods, especially canned goods, flour and sugar, were higher, but textiles were slightly lower owing to a fall in cotton. Under paints and oils, turpentine dropped but linseed oil advanced. Pulp and rubber were lower.

PAY FOR THE PRISONER'S FAMILY.

Prison reform is a matter which is exercising the best minds throughout the world. The question as to providing the families who suffer privation through the incarceration of the breadwinner is one which is at present claiming a good deal of attention. The man who is imprisoned rightly suffers through his own fault, but at the same time his punishment means the punishment of the innocent, who are in no wise responsible for his offence. Irrespective of this, the consequent hardship to the family often gives a man immunity for crimes for which he ought to be punished. This may be classed as domestic crimes, such as wife-beating and drunkenness and disorderly conduct at home. Prosecution is not resorted to, as a rule, because the punishment of the wrongdoer reflects practically on the victims in the matter of their being deprived temporarily of the active agent who is necessary for the providing of the wherewithals of existance. That there should be some system in which a certain amount is allotted a prisoner for labor performed by him, and this used for the maintenance of his family if he has one, is abundantly evident. It is obvious that this matter should not be left to charity, so far as a prisoner's family is concerned, for it would mean a destruction of the moral tone and a lessening of individual responsibility. There are, no doubt, those who would argue that a man with a family should sufficiently weigh his responsibility, and the fact of the far reaching consequences on those dependent on him should act as a powerful deterrent. But, unfortunately for humanity many of its members are not so constituted. It would be well for society if all were. But, while the world is as it is at present remedies should be taken to prevent the course of the law inflicting punishment on those who are in no wise blameworthy for its violation. Of all modern day reforms that are necessary that of removing the unequal consequences of lawbreaking, is one which demands a prominent place.

A Third Bereavement.

The many friends of Mrs. Lemon, High street, will deeply sympathize with her in the death of her nine year old daughter, Ivey Rosetta, who passed away yesterday morning at an early hour. Some time ago a young son died, and in August, 1909 she lost her husband. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares Nerviline is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very [illegible] of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P.E.I. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried NERVILINE CURES QUICKLY. different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co'y, Kingston, Ont.

Graveyard Coughs and Colds

CURED QUICKLY BY CATARRHOZONE.

A cough or cold this season of the year paves the way for pneumonia or consumption. The best remedy is "Catarrhozone." It eases a cough in five minutes, and colds cannot exist but a few hours where it is used. Mrs. H. L. Chenowith, residing at Glendive, Montana, was worried by a "graveyard" cough. In the following letter she tells how Catarrhozone cured her in one week:

"I had a bad cough for several months last fall that settled on my lungs. I was worried very much to think that nothing I used could shake it off, but reading in the Halifax "Presbyterian Witness", of the wonderful cures Catarrhozone was effecting, I decided to try it. The irritability and soreness was taken out of my throat in a few days, and in less than one week it entirely cured my cough.

"It is with great gratitude and pleasure that I recommend Catarrhozone. I am sure it will benefit and cure all who use it."

(Signed) Mrs. H. L. Chenowith.

The reason Catarrhozone always cures is that it goes right to the sore spot, which it heals and makes well quickly. It is antiseptic and destroys disease germs in every part of the system. For Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, nothing compares with Catarrhozone. It is very pleasant and simple to use, contains no injurious drugs, and is warranted perfectly safe to use. Catarrhozone Inhaler is suitable to use in a street car, theatre, church, any place, at any time. Complete outfit costs but $1, and is guaranteed to cure or your money back. Trial size 25c, sold by druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Best Helpmeet.

All men, as well as women, like to be understood. Sympathy is their greatest help, and no woman who is self-centred, who is vain and thinks only of herself will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, have a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful happiness a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband. If she understands him, is interested in him and his life-work, whether it be planting vegetables, composing music, or building towers, she will encourage him to reach his highest aim. Being beautiful will not make up for selfish indifference.

Fun and Fresh Ideas.

To remain young one must have company and enjoy it. Not a big dinner party one day, an afternoon reception the next, a late card party the following, and so on. This, for the hostess, is hard work that will quickly bring the appearance of age in its train, and, indeed, no work is more arduous. To attend to the wants of guests, to anticipate their desires, to have the whole responsibility of the success of a party is an utterly differtn thing to the bright company necessary to the well-being of the woman who leads too monotonous a life.

The limiting influence of four walls is what so many women who are housewives and mothers have to fight against, and they need company as a recreation.

FOLLOWING IN DAD'S FOOTSTEPS

Mass — "Frank W. Rollins of Bakersville, Mass., is the youngest boy preacher in the country if not in the world. Though only 16 years old he possesses a preacher's license. This he makes good use of by supplying his father's pulpit and preaching in different towns throughout the state. The boy is not out of school, having taken a post graduate classical course in the Torrington high school. He is preparing for a Wesleyan university and will follow with a course at the Theological seminary.

He is known in his vicinity as the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" and is perfectly at home in conducting prayer meetings. When he supplies his father's pulpit his sermons are of the sort to make the congregation sit up and take notice.

Francis is just like other boys. His nature is sunny and bright and his fondness for sports is very keen, but in spite of boyishness there is underneath a strain of earnestness forecasting his career. The people of his father's congregation accept his ministrations and sermons with as much seriousness as they do those of the parent. Throughout the state the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" is known and people flock to hear him whenever he comes.

QUEER AD TO LAND BRAINS

Coffee King Arbuckle Put Queer Ad in American Papers to Get Men With Brains to do Big Things.

New York. — The following ad is appearing here: — $1,000,000 and over when he retired; came on salary $700 a year; $3000 salary when he came; retired with several million; $3 per week when he came; has large amount now to his credit.

I can make others rich if I can find the right kind of men. I want several men who have already shown ability, to relieve me in a very large measure so that I can give more attention to my Deep Sea hotel and my Colony for Cripples and Old People, and to start another Colony out west.

Ten thousand dollars salary for my first assistant per year; $5000 salary for my second assistant per year; $2500 salary for my third assistant per year.

Men from wholesale grocery house or mail order houses preferred. Answer only by letter marked "personal," which will be kept strictly confidential. JOHN ARBUCKLE, Arbuckle Bros., New York.

That "want ad" appeared in New York and Chicago papers. John Arbuckle is the millionaire coffee and sugar magnate. He has just come back from Europe, and explained his queer "ad." "It is like this," he said, "I want to get men with brains and ability to do big things. The best way, I have learned, to get such men is to let them know that you want them and tell them what there is in it for them, and the only way to do that is to advertise for them."

ATROCITIES IN TRIPOLI

Report Again Published — War Costs Italy Much.

Rome. — After the capture of Tajura, the Italians found the bodies of former comrades with the limbs severed and others who had been crucified. The corpses of members of the Bersaglieri and other regiments were found in a well, where they had been buried alive and the top walled in.

An additional appropriation of $35,000 was made, to carry on the war until the end of 1911. Thus the war in three months has cost Italy $30,000,000.

Romans in Britain

The Roman galley found during the excavations in connection with the new County Hall for London was moved from Westminster Bridge to the new London museum at Kensington Place the other day. When the oaken beams were hoisted from the Thames mud a quantity of decayed bones was discovered. These included the rib of a man and other human remains, and also the jaw of a dog. Their condition was such that it was found necessary to enclose them in wire netting to prevent them falling to pieces.

THE PANAMA CANAL AND WESTERN CANADA.

That a new era with regard to the development of Western Canada is to be brought about through the trade possibilities following on the opening of the Panama Canal, and the effect on transportation rates, is already forecasted. Much illumination has been thrown on the matter in a recent speech made by Dr. E. L. Kinman, of Vancouver, who has devoted much study to the subject. So far as west to east traffic in lumber is concerned he estimates a cut of two-thirds over the through rail rate. This is gathered from the fact that the existing rate from Vancouver to Montreal on fir and cedar is about 70 cents and 80 cents per 100 pounds respectively; the corresponding rates to New York being 75 cents. One thousand feet of British Columbia lumber of 3200 lbs. would mean a rail rate of $27.50 as compared with a $7 rate via the canal to New York. Now assuming, adds Mr. Kinman, that the same produce can be reshipped by steamers from New York to Montreal at an extra cost of $1.00 the Panama Canal will bring the cost to only $8.00 per thousand feet.

In addition to this there is another very interesting comparison in the shipment of lumber to ports in the United Kingdom, via the Suez Canal, as at present, and via the Panama Canal in the future. Here there is a saving by the latter route both in time and cost. The Orient voyage at present usually occupies from 85 to 90 days. With the completion of the Panama Canal the same steamers will be able to make the run in from 20 to 25 days, the steaming distance being approximately about one-half that via the Suez route. There is good reason to suppose that the Panama Canal toll on lumber will not exceed $1.00 per 1000 feet. The Suez Canal toll is $3.00 per 1000 feet, so a saving of $2.00 will be effected in tolls alone. It is also possible that the rate charged on the new route will be 50 per cent. cheaper than at present. Canadian lumber exporters compete in the British market with the rest of the world, and therefore much advantage will be gained by these reductions. The lumber industry, however, is not the only one to gain, for the new facilities will also extend to grain transportation.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

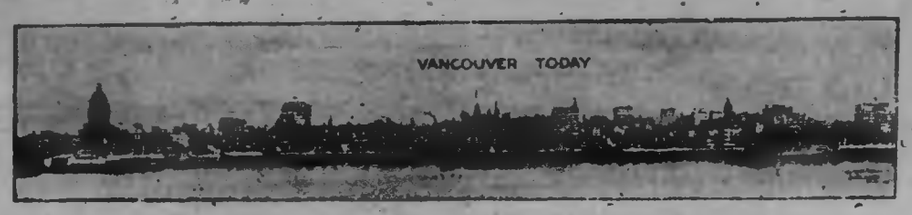
100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.



FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages.

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that has been sown brings forth a dangerous harvest—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhozone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and, after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhozone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few moments by the penetrating vapor from the Inhaler. Furthermore, taken in conjunction with Catarrhozone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhozone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Troubles, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhozone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

Two months' treatment, consisting of a beautiful polished hard rubber Inhaler and large bottle of liquid for recharging, costs but $1; trial size, 25c. Sold by all druggists and The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WOOD PULP AND PAPER TRADE MEET

Home Market Club Against Its Free Importation Into American Markets Especially from Canada.

(Special Cable Service.)

BOSTON. — Just before adjournment of its meeting here, the Home Market Club went on record as against the free importation of wood pulp and print paper from Canada, and the possibility of the extension of this policy to other pulp and paper exporting countries. The resolution, which was adopted unanimously, was as follows:

"Whereas, wood pulp and print paper have been placed on the free list so far as Canada is concerned, notwithstanding that the expected concessions on the part of Canada have been denied us, and whereas demands are now being made under the favored nation clause by all paper exporting countries for the same tariff privileges which have been extended to Canada:

"Be it resolved, that we protest against this unjust treatment of American paper manufacturers and respectfuly petition Congress to repeal this legislation."

Secretary Marvin, after the adoption of the resolution, pointed out that in 1906 and 1907 the paper producing countries of Europe, held by Norway, Germany, the Netherlands, Austria and Great Britain, had a surplus for export amounting to $337,127,000, or nearly twice as large as the entire paper and wood pulp production of the United States.

Madame Michaelis seems to think that the dangerous age is along about 40.

An "Ear Telephone."

Differing from the various kinds of instruments which are used to aid persons of defective hearing, a new long distance hearing apparatus has recently been invented to assist the hearing of normal persons in much the same way that a telescope does the eye; that is, it enables one to distinguish sounds through a greater distance, besides amplifying those which would ordinarily be detected by the unaided ears. For this reason it has been facetiously called the "ear telescope."

DRUNKARDS PATRON

When Christians Decided to Merge Bacchus Into St. Martin the Reputation of Former Was Handed On To Him.

What has come to be known as St. Martin Summer consists of a few lovely days about the second week of November. We hear a great deal about St. Luke's Summer; but St. Martin's Summer and his name-day, November 11th, suffer neglect — possibly because the saint was French and not English.

Perhaps, too, the knowledge that he is the patron saint of drunkards has not added to his reputation. That office came to him by accident. The reason how this doubtful honour was thrust upon him after his death was rather curious. The Vinalia, or Feast of Bacchus, was always celebrated on November 11th. Later, when the Christians decided to merge Bacchus into St. Martin, the reputation of the former was unfortunately handed on to the saint, although quite unmerited by him.

Before his conversion he was a military tribune, stationed at Amiens. When one day, so the story goes, in midwinter, at the city gate of Amiens a miserable beggar appealed to him for help, the soldier drew his sword and, dividing his cloak, gave half of it to the wretched beggar. At night, so it is said, Christ in person appeared to the astonished soldier, clad in the very cloak he had divided with the beggar a few hours before.

Another legend is that the saint, having been annoyed by the behaviour of one of the geese in his poultry-yard, ordered it to be slain and served up for dinner. He died immediately after partaking of it, and the anniversary has ever since been observed in France by the eating of goose on that day, November 11th. And even now, when the sunny days of St. Martin's Summer come round, there are but few French people who do not give a passing thought to that kindly saint who divided his cloak so that a poor beggar might be pro-

A DIFFICULT LANGUAGE

Chinese Language Has 40,000 Characters of Separate Meaning and Accent.

The difficulties of making up a font of Chinese type, says the American Consul at Shanghai, although considerable, are not relatively so great as one might imagine, for while Kang Hsi's dictionary the standard, the most comprehensive work of its kind in the language, contains some 44,000 characters it has been found that for all practicable purposes a font need contain about 7,000. Of course, with a font of this size the Chinese printer, in the course of setting up a book will frequently find that he lacks a dozen or so unusual characters, a difficulty which he readily meets by having these missing symbols hand cut on blank type by skilled engravers, who, thanks to the old wood-block system are to be found in practically every town in China. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and their commentaries, are still produced by the time-honored method of printing from wooden blocks. Among the reasons why the Chinese prefers his books of this nature printed in the old way are his naturally strong conservatism, the peculiar charm and artistic softness of the pages printed from blocks, which the modern books from metal presses do not have, and the fact that the new style volumes lack, that peculiar odour imparted in the older method by the lampblack table ink, with which they are printed, an odour which, although extremely disagreeable to occidental nostrils, is inseparably associated in the Chinese mind with good literature.

TROUSERS FROM OLD COATS

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match-boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy up in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any other work, collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting; cock-roaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for thirty or fifty cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.

One has only to watch their story-tellers in the streets to see that the Chinese are natural orators. They are also very clever conjurers. Rich Chinese are very charitable. They distribute free rice and tea in time of exceptional distress; they subscribe to hospitals and to asylums for the blind, for the old, for lepers, and for orphans they even support associations for supplying free coffins to the poor.

THAT WONDERFUL DOG

One evening at a tavern the topic was about dogs. "Oh!" said Juby, "I had a dog and was taking a near cut across some fields when I missed the animal, and on going back I found him staring at a notice-board bearing the words, 'All dogs found here will be shot.' And come he would not."

"Yes, yes, that's good, but what about Johnson's retriever? One night his house caught fire, all was confusion; old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled them out sharp.

"Alas! one was left behind, but up jumped the dog, rushed in, and soon reappeared with the child, depositing it on the lawn. All were out now, but in rushed the dog again. What he was after no one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with what do you think?"

"Give it up," came from the listeners.

"Why, with the fire-policy wrapped up in a damp towel, gentlemen."

A NEWSPAPER BLUNDER

A year or two ago, Big Ben (the well-known Westminster parliament clock) was fitted with new hands. A reporter in the London office of a Manchester paper saw his chance and wrote: "A well-known character, who has lived in Westminster all his life, and is familiarly known to many Londoners as "Ben," underwent a serious operation this morning. As Westminster Hospital was too full to allow of him having a bed, the operation was carried out by two doctors in the open air, and in the presence of a large crowd. Both of Ben's hands were taken off — successfully and rapidly. A new pair will be provided for him." The sub-editor in Manchester read through the paragraph, and added the headlines: 'Operation in the Open Air. Big London Crowd Watches Man's Hands Taken Off.' And so it duly appeared in next morning's paper."

Entertaining Up To Date

A new form of entertaining, started by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is being taken up by Newport hostesses. It is a dinner and dance, with the dancing between the courses. As soon as one course is finished the orchestra strikes up, and the guests leave their places and begin to dance. The dance finished, another course is served. Eating and dancing go on in this way until the dinner is finished. By the time coffee is served the dinner-ball has lasted two hours.

Duel Up To Date

A contest in the air between rival aviators for a girl's hand was the feature of a one-day aviation meet arranged for at Lima, Ohio. Two of the aviators, Jack Bachelor and Bert Chambers, had been laying siege to the heart of Miss Dorothy Dale, of Tiffin, Ohio. Miss Dale refused to choose between them, and in a recent flight in that city made a trip into the clouds with both. She promised to make her decision, and intimated that she would accept the one that made the highest altitude record during the day.

THE ROYAL CRADLE

The Cradle Used for Children of King George Same As Used For Late King Edward and his Brothers.

The late King Edward was always fond of children. His grandchildren were frequent favourites with him. Often, early in the morning, he would walk over to York Cottage, where his arrival was received with shouts of delight, and spend some hours in the prettily-laid-out gardens there, smoking his cigar and watching the children at play, entering into their enjoyment with obvious delight. Queen Alexandra once remarked that His Majesty was as "great a child as any-body," and his delight was unbounded when the news of the birth of the present Prince of Wales was announced to him.

His first action was to telegraph to the late Queen Victoria and request that the old-fashioned bassinette that had been used for himself and his brothers and sisters might be sent for the occupation of the new arrival. This is neither hung, as is the modern style, nor is it on rockers. To it is affixed a silver plate with the inscription: "This bassinette was made for Victoria, Princess Royal (the late Empress Frederick of Germany) in 1840, and was used by all her Majesty's children, and was given by the Queen to the Duchess of York in 1894."

Ready for the Next Royal Baby

It was beautifully furnished for the use of the Prince. The sheets were of the finest Irish lawn, embroidered in the corners with the Royal arms surmounted by the crown and trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The pillows were to match. The blankets were of white Yorkshire wool, likewise bearing the badge of the Royal arms, and several eider-down quilts accompanied the gift.

In this dainty cradle each of the children of King George and Queen Mary has slept, and Her Majesty has passed many happy hours by its side. It has now been carefully stripped of its hangings and packed away until such time as the Prince of Wales can have it passed on to him.

AMONG THE CANNIBALS

"Dear, dear!" remarked Mr. Jackpot Jones, as he dropped the newspaper upon his knees and gazed at his dear wife, sitting on the opposite side of the fireplace, "what an extraordinary case!"

"What is, dear?" asked sweet Mrs. J., as she leaned back in her chair to the sound of cracking whalebone.

"Why—er—a report here of a ship that was wrecked near Tierra del Fuego, where the cannibals are, you know, dear. The Fuegans killed and ate the males, it appears, but absolutely refused to eat more than one of the five females who were amongst the survivors of the wreck."

"Indeed! I should have thought they would have preferred to eat ladies. They are so much more tender than men, aren't they?"

"Well, I don't know. It seems, according to this account, that the two men they ate had nothing on but flannel shirts and linen trousers, which the savages munched up with the men. The one woman that they ate——"

"Ah!"

"Had on her, in addition to her stuff clothes, about a pint of hairpins, a wire corset, a bent steel dress-improver, seven oxidised silver bangles, a burnished waist-belt, with steel chatelaine, scissors, button-hook, corkscrew, etc., brass-tipped heels to her boots, gilt——"

"Good gracious, how they must have suffered!"

"Rather! Listen to this: 'For five days after, the chief of the tribe never moved or spoke, but has since recovered and celebrated his convalescence by burning forty children as a thank-offering. He has since sworn, and made his tribe swear, never to eat another white squaw.'"

BRIGHT AS AN ORATOR

John Bright was the greatest orator England saw during the nineteenth century, an age and a country where oratory reached the heights. To hold such place he must out-tour Gladstone, the great; Disraeli, the brilliant; Palmerston, the witty; Cobden, the wise; Parnell even, with whom he is closely associated. His speeches are still read, and readable today, by those who rejoice in the lovely phrasing which keeps them literature where they were speech.

Augustine Birrel calls his address at the unveiling of the statue to Richard Cobden, "one of the greatest pieces of English speech," and again, the after breakfast speech in welcome to Lloyd Garrison in 1867, "perhaps the most beautiful speech ever made in the English tongue on a public occasion."

His habit was ever to stand at the edge of the platform where the audience could "get at him" and he at them. As he criticized a friend who sheltered behind the reading desk, "no man can move an audience that does not see his boots." He must have been a splendid looking figure, this John Bright, as he thundered like Amos, and lamented the Jeremiah, and loved like Saint John. His was a splendid face, redeming mankind from a counterfeit presentment of godhood. And it is not so stern or set a face as might have been expected from his prejudices. Was it of him one wonders that Sydney Smith asked of the portrait painter, "Couldn't you manage to throw into the portrait a little more antagonism to the Established Church?"

Loud Affidavits

"What is that noise?" asked the presiding judge when a witness's voice was nearly drowned by a rasping uproar outside the court.

"My lord," said the counsel for the defendant, "I think it is the plaintiff filing affidavits."

THE CHINAMAN

Napoleon said that when China was moved the face of Europe would be changed. Yet, as the Chinese are naturally peaceful, we think that the Yellow Peril is a commercial one. The peril is that China will manufacture things cheaper than Europeans can and dismiss us from the trade of the Far East. How can we, with our high standard of comfort, strikes, and unrest generally, compete with the Chinese, combining, as they do, the active industry of the most civilized people with the passive patience of the North American Indian? Far more than we do the Chinese believe in the power of character and intellect. With this, rather than with armies and navies, they will conquer.

A Chinese is nearly always a person of resources. A young man was accused of knocking out his father's teeth, and was in danger of being put to death. A friend visited him and whispered in his ear, "It's a bad case."

Suddenly seizing the ear between his teeth, he gave it a severe bite.

"What do you mean?" asked the young man, raising his fist.

"I mean," was the answer, "that you are saved; you have only to show the marks of my teeth and say that they were made by your father, whose teeth, being shaky, dropped out."

Business Before Sentiment.

Two small things impress foreigners with the skill of the Chinese. One is the way they carve ivory balls, one within the other, to the number of seven or eight; and the other the inscription of minute characters inside agate or eryeta snuff-bottles.

A Chinaman always appears to be looking round the corners of his eyes at you, and to have a meaning that you cannot get at. He gives you the impression that somebody, when he was born, sat on his nose, and that he has been lamenting the calamity ever since. And yet, though he never lays aside this expression of resigned wretchedness, the average Chinese is, not at all more miserable than the average Britisher.

Speaking of Britishers, we may say that they and Chinamen have much in common. Both have a great capacity for making and enjoying money. Both have business aptitude and integrity, do their work well, and appreciate a good dinner. Equally with Englishmen, Celestials have common sense and respect for law, and do not allow sentiment to interfere with business. The Chinese are the British of the Far East, and the Japanese are the French.

Feed of Spelt.

The Chinese are not less conservative than the English. They dread any change that may cause trouble or disorder, and this is why they have put up so long with their wretched government. "Better be a dog in peace," they say, "than a man in anarchy." The "dog in peace" has now risen to war; let us hope that the splendid empire of China will not remain in anarchy.

Like the British, also, the Chinese are fond of sport, though their idea of sport is peculiar. They train quails, thrushes, and even fish to fight, and they bet on these, and on almost every other event.

The Chinese contrivances for the management and capture of beast, bird, and fish are as ingenious as they are simple. If, for instance, a donkey disturbs by braying in the night, a big stone is tied to his tail, and this humiliates him into silence.

When a Chinaman wishes to catch wild ducks he mixes an intoxicating spirit made of rice with corn and leaves the mixture for the birds. They become intoxicated, and are taken in their cups, so to speak. Another way is to put a gourd on his head and swim gently among the ducks. They are not frightened, because they only see the gourd and are accustomed to that, and the artful John pulls one duck after another by the legs into a bag attached to him. Everyone knows that John Chinaman trains cormorants to catch fish, not for themselves, but for him.

After cold water, there is nothing the Chinese so much fear as ridicule and disgrace, or the "loss of face." A magistrate who was to be beheaded asked that, as a special favour, he might wear his robes of office in order to save his face!

The Chinese are great at organising. The trade guilds which are established in every town are quite as powerful as our trade unions. Even beggars and thieves have guilds. Every morning the king of the beggars sends a detachment of his sack-cloth-clad or nearly unclad subjects to collect poor-rates in the districts assigned to them. Owners of property pay so much a year to "the honourable guild of thieves" in order not to be robbed.

SHAM BATTLE SHAMS

The military manoeuvres were in a muddle. The "Purples" were supposed to be invading the territory of the "Greens," but why they were or what they were they didn't exactly know.

A large detachment of the 'Purples' began to cross the river by a wooden bridge to attack a small detachment of 'Greens.'

"Hi!" roared the 'Greens.' "Hi! You mustn't cross here! Can't you see the notice? This bridge is supposed to be destroyed."

"H'm! Is it?" responded the captain of the 'Purples,' grimly. "Well, then, we're supposed to be swimming across."

Costly Panama Hats

Even in modern times there have been men's hats which cost far more than anything worn by the ladies. That, for instance, presented to General Grant when he was in Mexico cost $150, and justly claims to be the finest sombrero ever made. The admirers of Mr. Steward, a member of President Lincoln's Cabinet, too, paid $125 for the Panama with which they presented him. 40

THE NUCLEUS OF A BIG CITY.

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the new seaport on the Pacific Coast which has been founded by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for the western terminus of the National Transcontinental Railway through Canada, continues to demonstrate the stability with which the enormous resources in that part of the world have endowed her. The population of about five thousand people who have settled there, thus forming the beginning of this future city, have shown their faith in its unquestioned future by building permanent homes and business establishments in almost every line of trade and commerce. Not alone is this faith confined to the citizens of Prince Rupert, but foreseeing the important factor she must early become in the commerce of the world, the leading banks viz.: the Bank of Montreal, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of British North America, the Royal Bank of Canada, etc. have located branches there. In all of our new Canadian towns and cities in the West and on the Pacific Coast, the buying and selling of real estate constitutes an item of much local importance and value, which, however, in the case of Prince Rupert has extended beyond the confines of the locality itself and even beyond the Province and Dominion to other parts of the world, for which large sums of money have been sent for investment and development. When the first lots in the townsite were placed on the market and sold a little more than two years ago the prices realized exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine by reaching figures in many cases several hundred per cent., and in numerous instances as much as one thousand per cent. above what was estimated to be a fair valuation, and events since that time have given no cause to change the confidence then shown, as reports have just been received of the sale of an additional section of the townsite containing about six hundred lots, for which there was an increasing demand and which realized prices of about two hundred per cent. above what was considered a conservative valuation. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through to the Pacific Coast is rapidly approaching, when trans-Pacific steamships will sail from this new seaport, and in order to be prepared for the increased accommodation and facilities that will be required large additional capital expenditures will be made within the next two years to provide commodious hotel accommodations and also a dry dock and ship repairing plant, the latter of which will be constructed under a subsidy granted by the Dominion Government.

During the past year the principal thoroughfares in the business section of the city have been constructed to grade, and extensive plans are at present receiving the serious consideration of the city council for municipal improvements in the way of heat light, power and water, and from the energy which has already been shown by the citizens there can be no question that her many natural advantages will be availed of in building a city at Prince Rupert that will be a model of utility.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Not Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed. "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak; and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds," because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an Imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the times of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

A WOMAN BUILDS HER OWN HOME

Eight Years Ago Mrs. Klingebiel Started Out to Build a House on $10 Per Week's Wages — Which is Now Worth $5000.

(By special cable)

Des Moines.—Eight years ago Mrs. Nettie Klingebiel of Des Moines started out with a lot of courage and one bill.

She owns her own home today and a tract of land valued at $5,000.

Mrs. Klingebiel is a widow and eight years ago was working in an office at $10 per week.

One day when the future looked unusually dull she made a resolve. She took five dollars from her week's salary to a real estate man, bought a fifty-foot lot, and made weekly payments of $5 until the lot was paid for. She bought $40 worth of lumber in the same way.

To avoid paying rent, she then had a little shed built and lived in it until the lot was paid for. Then she borrowed $200 and put up a two-room cottage. Soon after there was a boom in another suburban section. She traded her property for a better lot and borrowed $400 to build a four-room cottage.

After office hours Mrs. Klingebiel slapped paint on her house, or cemented the cellar floor and the sun's early rays found her setting out trees and vines.

While she was paying for her home SHE NEVER EARNED OVER $10 A WEEK.

Again there come a boom in another suburban district. Mrs. Klingebiel looked at her neat little home, and plunged again. This trade brought her a beautiful property valued at $5,000. She built another cosy little home and vows she will never leave it.

London. — The Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd George, has addressed a message to the National Union of Woman's Suffrage Societies, in which he says:

"The Premier's pronouncement on the attitude which the Government is adopting towards the question seems to me to make the carrying of a woman's suffrage amendment, on broad democratic lines, to next year's franchise bill a certainty. I am willing to do all in my power to help those laboring to reach a successful issue in the coming sessions next year, which provides a supreme opportunity and nothing but unwise handling of that can compass failure."

SOCIETY BLUFFS

Society People By Art Dealing Good Money on the Side And Many Make Them Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of almost every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain, it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures, and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. There are certainly many, many who add to their diminished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"The lady was delighted to see him; she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt; he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is badly hit by the depression in agriculture. You know all the rich Americans and the value of fine furniture; could you possibly help me to sell that magnificent Louis Seize piece? It was given to a former Duke by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture — it was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have risen in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kuangtung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husband more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself in her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, eates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE.

Some Barristers' Curious Customs and Traditions Belonging to the Old Country.

From the day when he receives his first student's dinner to the day when he pockets his last professional fee, the man of wig and gown in England has to observe customs and to obey traditions such as the members of no other learned profession have any knowledge of and which are not even known in Canada amongst the lawyers.

The Temple, where for the most part the would-be Lord Chancellor has his legal nursery, is an erfect nest of old-world observances, linking it with the far-away time when it was the home of Crusading Knights, who feasted, six and more centuries ago, on the very spot on which the young Templar of our day eats the dinners that go some way towards qualifying him for his wig.

Brothers All!

The very grace that heralds his meal and the grace that concludes it are the same, in the Inner Temple, that the Knights of the Cross listened to when the Plantagenet Kings were wearing their crowns. Like their martial predecessors, the Benchers file into the Middle Temple Hall preceded by the mace, the substitute for the old-time battle-axe. Their entry is heralded by a loud blow of the mace on the floor, as was that of the entire Knights Templar of old by a similar blow with the butt-end of a lance, and the grace is preceded by three blows with a wooden mallet, the ancient knightly form of invoking the Trinity.

Barristers and students mingle and feast together at the same tables, without any regard to seniority — a survival of the ancient Templar practice of the essential principle of brotherhood. If one of them is dissatisfied with his food, he may send a complaint of it to the Treasurer for his verdict, just as the most junior Templar in King John's time would submit any food of which he disapproved to the Senior Knight; and the [illegible] of the modern Grand Day banquet are given to the servants of the Inn just as the surplus food was always given by the Knights of old to the poor.

The Knights Templar were summoned to the hall of feasting by the blowing of a horn; and to-day the Middle Templar is similarly called to the table by blasts of the very horn which summoned his predecessors in Elizabethan days. These, and the arrangement of messes, the ceremonials of bowing, the circulation of the loving-cup and many another custom, all serve to link the Templar of to-day with his martial "forefathers" of long-dead centuries.

Briefs and Fees.

And those are but a few of the many quaint customs and regulations which the man of wig and gown must observe, if he does not wish to get himself into trouble with the authorities. When he is qualified to accept briefs and to play the part of a counsel "learned in the law," he must walk very warily to avoid the countless pitfalls of etiquette that mark his path to the Woolsack.

However an empty purse may tempt him, he must not accept a professional fee that falls short of the irreducible guinea, with a half-crown added for his clerk, whether he has one or not. Nor must he accept less than the fee, however big it is, that is marked on his brief for all to see.

However much he may yearn for clients, he cannot even see one unless through the introduction of a solicitor; and the solicitor must be present at the interview. Between him and the litigant whose cause he is to plead there is a gulf which only a solicitor can bridge. And when the solicitor appears at his chambers, wearing the coveted brief, it must be handed, not to Mr. "Wig," but to his clerk, and it is the clerk, and not the master, who arranges the delicate matter of fees.

No Touting Allowed.

Some professional men may tout for clients; but not so the barrister. It will be an evil day for him when he starts brief-hunting, though he may be starving for lack of golden guineas. If he calls at a friendly solicitor's office for a gossip, or accepts an invitation to a dinner or a dance at his house, he is going perilously near the danger-line. If he is a wise man he will avoid the company of solicitors and pass them by, like the Levite, "on the other side."

On circuit the watchful eyes of Etiquette are always on him. Even for the sake of company, if he be a sociable man, he must not travel there by any class but the first; nor may he reach an Assize town earlier than the day before the last opens.

However much his services are wanted on another circuit than his own he must turn a deaf ear, unless his brief comes to him marked with a special fee of at least fifty guineas, in addition to the fee he would receive on his own circuit. If he is unable to appear in any case for which he is retained, he must provide a substitute; for whose services, however, he may pay what he pleases. The fee he puts into his own pocket.

Even his professional dress is regulated for him to the extent that he must not appear in court in any coat but one of sober black; nor must he show his face in court if he is carrying the blue bag which may be his familiar companion in the street or train. Unless he is entitled to carry a red bag (and clubs he may not buy—it must be given to him by some friendly member), he must be content to make his appearance with [illegible]

A Fire Alarm.

Owing to the bursting of asteam pipe in St. Paul's church, about 2.30 yesterday afternoon in one of the cells of the Sunday school room, instantly filling the place with steam, an alarm was sent in and the Fire Department were quickly on the spot. It was found that there was little damage done.

Labour's New Quarters.

The Trades and Labor Council has leased the old T. A. S. quarters on George street to be used by them for all their meetings. The council sublets these rooms once a month to the various trades unions represented in the city where they may hold their meetings. The rooms have undergone an overhauling, the walls have been repainted and everything put in to good condition. The Barbers' Union meets the first Monday of each month. It has been suggested that a ball be given some time during the winter for benevolent purposes.

Free Lights For Verandah.

Here is a paragraph from an election address issued by one of the candidates for the Collingwood Town Council: "I think when takers of light pay for a certain number of lights it could be arranged to give each one light in front of the metre for their verandah. This would add wonderfully to the appearance of residential streets. This plan, I believe, is working well in Orillia, and Collingwood should not let Orillia, or any other place in Canada, get ahead of her."

The Case Appealed.

The case of the bartender who was fined $25 by Magistrate Dumble on Dec. 26th for selling liquor to a boy of nineteen, has been appealed by Mr. G. N. Gordon, solicitor for the defence, and the appeal will be heard before Judge Huycke on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock. Mr. Gordon gave notice at the time of the trial in police court that he intended to appeal against His Worship's decision.

Innovation at Christmas Fair.

The Port Perry Star, says that at the Christmas Fair in that town "in addition to the very fine display of poultry and dairy produce there was a most practical exhibit made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, with Mr. Hare, of Whitby, in charge. The exhibit included models of poultry houses, nest boxes, fattening crates and various poultry rations, together with a display of choice apples and the pests that infest and destroy them."

A Sudden Death.

A terribly sudden death occurred at the home of Mr. Edward Herbert, Maud street, when his brother-in-law Mr. Edward Burstow passed away. He retired in his usual good health, and passed away a couple of hours later of heart disease. The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock to-day to the Little Lake cemetery.

Cavalry Class at the Armouries.

Sergt. Instructor Fletcher, of the staff of the Royal school of Cavalry, Toronto, has been detailed to conduct a class of instruction at Peterborough, headquarters of the 3rd Dragoons, to be held three nights a week commencing this evening at 7 p.m., covering four or five weeks. Major Medd, the officer commanding "B" squadron, states those attending will be enabled to complete their qualifications by a two weeks' attendance at the Cavalry school at Toronto. If they pass the required examinations instead of having to attend for six weeks under ordinary circumstances. All concerned should avail themselves of the privilege.

Council Meeting this Morning.

The City Council of 1912 will meet for the first time this morning at 11 o'clock, according to law, after which adjournment will be made until the evening, at which committees and chairmen will be appointed and the preliminary work transacted. At the conclusion of business the council will be the guests of His Worship Mayor Bradburn at dinner.

Last Pier Almost Ready.

Mr. Edward Wade, the Government superintendent of construction work on the Trent Canal, is making splendid progress with the new wharf. The last pier is nearly ready for being submerged and placed in position. When this is done the concrete work will begin and will be continued until the job is completed.

The Charge Withdrawn.

John Knott, the Chemong Indian, who was charged with assaulting Mrs. Abraham Taylor of the Chemong Reserve, appeared before Magistrate Edmison Saturday morning. Mrs. Taylor and the witnesses were present, but the case was not proceeded with, as Mrs. Taylor requested to have the charge withdrawn, upon the accused paying the costs and expenses. Knott did this, and the matter was accordingly settled. The total costs would be in the neighborhood of $20.

Bright Young Life Ended.

There passed away in Ennismore on Saturday, Miss Pheobe Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lowes, aged 22 years. The deceased was born in Emmismore and was a life-long resident of that township. In addition to her sorrowing parents, the deceased is survived by one sister. Of a bright and beautiful disposition, she will be greatly missed by her many friends, with whom she was a great favorite. Interment took place in the Omemee cemetery yesterday.

Bro. P. J. Wright—R.S.
Bro. R. V. Cook—Fin. Sec'y.
Bro. G. Childs—Treas.
Bro. J. V. A. Coon—Chap.
The installing officer was Bro. W. G. Freeburn, D.D.G.M., assisted by Past Grands Duncan, Gillespie, Watt, Campbell, Cairns and Savigny of Peterborough and Past Grands Denike and McMaster of Havelock.
The installation was a public one, with all the countryside there.
An oyster supper was served and music and speeches made the event a very enjoyable one.

Claims Her Dower.

Mary J. Costello, 183 George street, Toronto, has issued a writ against the executors of the estate of her husband, for a declaration that she is entitled to dower in certain farm lands in Peterborough County, and for damages for the detention of the same.

Nearly $300 Raised.

The Peterborough Health Association has received $298.50 by the sale of stamps and calenders, and are accordingly grateful to the citizens for the support given them, especially the children, who did so much to promote the sale. The stamps brought $180 and the calendars yielded $118.50, making a total of $298.50 In the sale of stamps the school children worked very earnestly, especially those of the South Central, who excelled all others. This school sold nearly seven thousand, one pupil, who is deserving of honorable mention, selling two hundred and seventy-five.

Lakefield Citizen Dead.

On Saturday morning there passed away at the family residence, one of Lakefield's oldest and most esteemed citizens in the person of Mr. Samuel Sherin, aged 81 years. The deceased had lived in Lakefield for over 57 yearsyears, and was known and respected by every member of the community. He had been in poor health, for the past couple of years. Mr. Sherin is survived by his widow and four children, Miss Alice, of Toronto. Miss Ninan at home and Messrs. Wesley of Lakefield, and Samuel B., of Baltimore, Md. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Methodist church, at Lakefield, and thence to the Lakefield cemetery.

A Cold Ride.

...The engineer and fireman of the Belleville train were surprised on Saturday morning, on reaching Holloway, a station on the line, when a youth fell from the top of the tender into the cab, in a frostbitten condition. It was ascertained that the lad had taken an excursion to Kingston and as his ticket had expired, he strove to insure returning to his home by climbing on the tender.

Lectured at Normal.

Rev. Dr. Marsh gave a much-appreciated illustrated lecture on Astronomy at the Normal School, to the pupils and teachers, on Friday afternoon, at 4.15. At the close of the lecture, he extended a hearty invitation to those present to visit Springville, and take a view of the solar sostem through his telescope.

Lady Curlers at Work.

The enthusiasm with which the lady curlers of the city are entering into the spirit of the roarin' game, indicates that Peterborough will soon have some fine lady curlers. Saturday two rinks, composed exclusively of ladies, played a friendly match. The first schedule game of the season will be played this evening.

THE POULTRY SHOW

Will be Held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Next.

The big three days' poultry show which opens in the Market Hall next Tuesday and closes on Thursday night, promises to be a big success. Additional coops have been secured, the specials number in the neighborhood of seventy-five, in some cases the prize money has been increased, in fact every department of the exhibition shows growth and it is expected that the citizens of Peterborough will give a liberal patronage. The directors, officers and members are working faithfully in the interests of the show and their efforts are deserving of co-operation. They are boosting Peterborough by endeavoring to attach to this city the name of the home of the premier Poultry Association and Poultry Show of the province.

THE OPTICAL INSTITUTE wishes to thank its many patrons for the increased business of the past year, which has made our improvements and enlargement necessary.
We invite any or all of our patrons to call and see that they are obtaining every possible help from the Glasses they are using.

VOL XXVII NO 7 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, TUESDAY JANUARY 9, 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE NEW CITY COUNCIL

Mayor Bradburn Delivers Spirited Inaugural Address

The new City Council met yesterday, Mayor Bradburn presiding, and all the members present.

The Mayor's Address.

After Clerk Armstrong had announced the results of the municipal elections, and stated that the Aldermen had taken the necessary declarations, Mayor Bradburn delivered his inaugural address. He said it was his first duty to welcome the old members of the Council who had returned to the Board and to congratulate Alderman Gordon upon his election. He felt that it a spirit of harmony was developed in the Council a policy of progress could be worked out that would benefit the city.

Among the questions which he would like to see the Council take up was that of the appointment of a permanent assessor. If there was a man appointed permanently to act twelve months in the year he would be able to look after the work and get better results. Under the present system new men have necessarily to be appointed from time to time, and they spend considerable time in getting acquainted with the work and with the assessment law. Better equalization of assessment would be secured with a permanent assessor and the Council should be prepared to act in the matter at the February meeting.

The question of permanent work on the business streets, on George street from Brock to Charlotte streets, or perhaps from Central Park to the C.P.R. station, and on Charlotte street, from George street to the Grand Trunk tracks, should be taken up. It was time the Council did something in regard to putting the main business thoroughfares in proper order. Such work would not only be a benefit to those using the streets, but would also prove a good advertisement for the city. Before anything could be done, however, some method of getting the poles off the streets would have to be adopted and the Board of Works might take the matter in hand. It might cost some money, but the expenditure would be a wise one. The Board might go into the whole matter with the engineering department and have estimates prepared and arrange to have the gas and sewer connections and other underground work done so that it would be possible to commence street paving in the early summer.

Another question for the Council was that of better bridge accommodation for the people of East City. He had an interview with a number of gentlemen and felt that the Council could secure financial assistance in erecting a new bridge at Hunter street strong enough to carry the street car system to the East Ward. With this done the present Hunter street bridge could be moved down to Sherbrooke or Dalhousie streets.

The Manufacturers' Committee should make a special effort to secure new industries for Peterborough this year. A small amount should be placed in the estimates to cover the expense involved in this, so that the Council in hearing of a new industry likely to locate in Canada could send a representative at once to interview the heads of the concern and if possible induce them to come to Peterborough.

The question of cheaper power for light and other purposes would have to be taken up, probably through the Hydro-Electric Commission. The people had voted strongly in favor of power owned by the municipality, and he believed that it would result in better lighting on the streets, cheaper light in the houses and cheap er power for manufacturing purposes. He would like to see a change made in regard to the payment of taxes by which the present discount could be done away with. This discount had simply been added to the taxes and if it were cut off the tax rate could be reduced half a mill. In addition it might be advisable to consider the question of having the taxes pain in three instalments annually, say on June 15th, August 15th and November 15th.

There were certain works taken up by Mayor Morrow and last year's Council which were not completed and which would come before them later. He hoped that the Council would work harmoniously and in the best interests of the city. If they did so, 1912 would be a banner year for Peterborough.

JUDGE'S EECISION THAT T. A. S. LYCEUM BE EXEMPT FROM TAXES MAY BE APPEALED BY COUNCIL

REFERRED TO THE CITY SOLICITOR AND LEGAL COMMITTEE TO REPORT.

Ald. Duncan Moved That Judge Huycke State His Case for Reference to the Appeal Court. But Ald. Gordon's Motion to Refer the Matter to Solicitor and Legal Committee Carried.

At last night's meeting of the City Fathers, Ald. Duncan moved that in view of Judge Huycke's recent decision that the T.A.S. Lyceum be exempted from taxes, the City Solicitor be instructed to obtain from his honor a stated case for presentation to the Court of Appeal.

Ald. Duncan offered that he would not have taken exception to his honor's ruling had it merely covered those portions of the building used solely for religious purposes. But Judge Huycke's decision that the whole institution be exempted would have a tendency to affect other societies, who might reasonably be expected to take advantage of the precedence thus established.

Ald. Buller made himself quite clear that he would support any movement in the direction of compelling churches and all religious and revenue producing institutions, such as the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. and T.A.S., to pay taxes on their properties.

Ald. Gordon's motion that the matter be referred to the City Solicitor and the legal committee to report, was carried on Ald. Duncan's consent to withdraw his resolution.

CITY FATHERS FOR 1912 IN FIRST REGULAR SESSION

PETERBOROUGH CURLERS WERE REFUSED A GRANT OF $100.

This Amount Was Asked for to Defray the Hotel Bill of the Visiting Scotch Curlers, Who Will be in Peterborough on January 21st and 22nd—Council Refused to Establish a Precedence in the Way of Grants — Peterborough Poultry Association Given Grant of $75.

The City Council of 1912 met in its first regular session last night.

There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Morgan, Anderson, Graham, W. J. Johnston, Brown, Duffus, Gordon, Gillespie, Duncan and Buller.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. W. H. Denham, Superintendent Quaker Oats Co. drew Council's attention to the fact that for some time past a cesspool had overflowed onto the company's property, and consequently conditions are very much of a nuisance. He asked that this matter be attended to at once. This was referred to the Board of Health.

Willis Chipman, consulting engineer of Toronto, wrote that as the South City Sewerage system and pumping station constructed under his supervision, is practically completed, he would like the city authorities to inspect the work before his man in charge leaves on January 13th. Referred to the Board of Works.

Mr. P. Campbell wrote that the Bank of Toronto would continue carrying the city's account at the same rate of interest as last year—Referred to Finance Committee.

A writ from Holmes and Holmes was received, at the instance of W. A. Bailey, who is claiming $500 damages for alleged assault and illegal arrest last summer—Referred to Finance Committee.

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS

On motion of Ald. Gillespie, the City Engineer will be instructed that the rate to be charged against property for sidewalk and sewer construction this year will be based on 4½ per cent. for debentures and sinking fund.

SCHOOL BOARD GRANT.

On motion of Ald. Graham, the Treasurer will be authorized to pay the school board $1500, the January apportionment of their demand.

MILK BY-LAW.

As the milk by-law is now in force, it was referred to the Property Committee accompanied with the suggestion that copies be printed for distribution amongst the milk vendors.

GRANT REFUSED.

A deputation from the Peterborough Curling Club waited upon the Council with a view to securing financial support in entertaining the Scotch Curlers who are to visit Peterborough January 21st and 22nd.

W. McIlroy offered that the visiting curlers are an important body of men whom Halifax, St. John and Quebec entertained royally. And Montreal's civic body is preparing to follow suit, whilst Toronto and Winnipeg cities have contributed $1000 and $4000 for a like purpose. The Peterborough Club have arranged to shoulder the expense of entertaining the visitors in every respect except their hotel bill, which will amount to $100, which he hoped the Council would see its way clear to grant. Incidentally the speaker remarked that each visiting curler will be given a souvenir in the shape of a silver pin on which will be in evidence a canoe and paddle, with the words Peterborough across its face.

Mr. Thos. Brightman warmly endorsed the preceding speakers opinion.

Mr. H. Waddell pointed out that three years ago when he visited Scotland with a Canadian team, the Canadians were handsomely entertained both municipally and privately. The coming visitors are only going to stay at a few cities in Canada, and he thought Peterborough was signally honored in being chosen as one of the few. From his own personal experience and knowledge, he could say that the visitors will be found to be representative gentlemen of big mercantile and manufacturing interests, with plenty of capital behind them. Their entertainment might incidentally prove a means of advertising Peterborough in the old land as a progressive and desirable city in which to locate branches of British industry.

Ald. Morgan said that he would like awfully well to accede to the deputation's request, but he did not think it advisable for a new Council to start its year by establishing such a precedence of giving away the public's money. The Scotch visitors are wealthy men and should pay their own "shot."

Ald. Buller agreed that Ald. Morgan, but offered that the Aldermen personally subscribe toward the visitors' entertainment.

Ald. Duffus spoke in a similar manner and offered to subscribe $10.

Ald. Johnston also thought it would be a mistake for the new Council to start off by making this grant. So many similar appeals would follow, and there are so many places in which every dollar is needed.

Ald. Duncan also opposed the request and offered that in 1906, the curlers got $200 from the city, where as the painters' convention shortly afterwards, which brought four or five hundred visitors to town, was turned down, as was subsequently the Oddfellows and Foresters conventions. Then all the Hardware convention received from the corporation last year was the lighting of the Armouries.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That no action be taken.

Ald. Gordon moved in amendment, that a grant of $50 be made—

The motion was carried and the grant consequently refused.

$75 FOR POULTRY MEN.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That the request of the Peterborough Poultry Association for their annual grant of $75 be allowed, and that provision be made in the estimates for payment to the association in December next of another $75 in aid of their 1913 exhibition.—Carried.

DEFERRED WORK.

Mr. J. Hickey addressed Council, and asked that the light promised for Elm street three months ago be installed at the earliest convenience. Council promised to take this matter up when practicable.

Ald. Brown asked that certain sidewalk work and other needed improvements in the West Ward promised months ago be done at as early a date as possible. He was not now on the Board of Works, hence, his request in Council.

The Mayor—"You want to attend the Board's meetings then."

Ald. Buller, chairman of the Board of Works, assured the complainant that the wants of the West Ward would be well looked after.

LIBRARY BOARD.

Mr. H. B. H. Kenner, the Council's retiring appointee, was re-appointed to serve on the Public Library Board the next three years. Three members are named by the Council, one retiring each year.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

"A tempest in a tea pot," arose over the naming of representatives on the Board of Health.

Ald. Buller nominated Jas. Murty, which carried.

Ald. Duncan's nomination, ex-Ald. Kernaghan carried, which brought Ald. Johnston to his feet with the reply that Ald. Duncan could not "plaster" him. He then went on to accuse Ald. Duncan of having broken faith with him in nominating Ex-Ald. Kernaghan (who enjoyed Ald. Johnston's highest esteem and respect) after having promised him to support Wm. Langford's name for the office.

Ald. Duncan—I never promised you any such thing."

Ald. Johnston—"You did! I went to you at the Peterborough Hardware store, and you promised at my request to endorse Wm. Langford Jr's nomination."

Ald. Duncan—"I said it would be all right so far as I knew, but I did not know what was ahead of us. It's not too late, however, for you to nominate Mr. Langford now."

Ald. Gordon at this juncture threw out on troubled waters by moving that Wm. Langford Jr's name be substituted for that of Ex-Ald. Kernaghan. Ald. Johnston seconded the resolution which was lost, however, on a vote of 4 to 6.

The Council's representatives on the Board of Health are accordingly Jas. Murty and ex-Ald. Kernaghan.

CHARITY.

Sheriff Hall and Ald. Anderson were appointed to distribute the charity funds under the will of the late Elmira Grover Foley.

A RIGHT MOVE.

Ald. Graham drew the Board of Works attention to the steps from Sheridan street down to Hunter street, which are covered with snow and should be cleaned. Several narrow escapes from accident occurred there on Sunday.

Ald. Buller promised immediate attention to the matter.

FIENDISH MURDERS.

Aged Couple Tortured to Death in New York East Side.

New York, Jan. 8.—A case of double murder found in an East Side house yesterday is one of the most shocking in detail of any since the Guldensuppe dismemberment and the "Jack the Ripper" series of crimes. Isaac Futterman, 80 years old, and his wife, Rachel, 72 years old, were found dead in their rooms at No. 101 Norfolk street, their bodies terribly mutilated.

The police believe that the aged couple were practically tortured to death, and in the absence of any well-established motive for such a crime, the police think the Futtermans were victims of some religious maniac.

The nature of the mutilation led the police to believe that it had been begun while the Futtermans were alive, and that death had actually been caused by blows over the head which fractured both skulls.

POULTRY SHOW TO-DAY

Formal Opening of the Show in the Market Hall This Morning.

The Peterborough Poultry Association's annual exhibition will open today in the Market Hall, when birds of all classes and varieties to the number of 1500 will be placed on exhibition for three days. As an advertising medium for the city the Association is doing a grand work. This is evidenced by the fact that birds from all parts of Canada and some from the United States will be entered in the competition for the 75 specials and the large number of other prizes.

The show will be open both day and evening for the three days—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Jos. Bennett of Toronto, will be on hand again as judge for the poultry show. Mr. Bennett besides doing his own work at the big Guelph show, finished the work of two American judges who fell down on the heavy proposition before them.

School children will be admitted on Wednesday afternoon after school for five cents. They must, however, appear in a body to secure this low rate.

Mrs. Dawson will lecture to-morrow afternoon and evening probably in the Market Hall.

There will be many exhibits of dressed poultry and eggs which will be of a very interesting character.

Twelve pheasants will also be shown. These are the property of Chief Howard. Some tame animals, including a fox and a coon, are also billed as exhibits. The fox is owned by Mr. Steve Murphy, of Otonabee.

AN EXPLANATION.

"I wonder why this bust has no face?"
"I expect it has been started out of countenance."—London Opinion.

ALD. ANDERSON RESENTS BEING CALLED A "TOOL" BY ALD. HARRY MORGAN

WARM WORDS ARISE AS THE RESULT OF NAMING THE FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE.

Civic "Great Guns" Fire Insinuating Broadsides That Threaten Trouble in One Public Department This Year if the Least Opportunity is Given. Chairman Ald. Johnston of the Fire, Water and Light Committee Explains His Intentions.

It appears that the striking of the several City Council committees yesterday was not accomplished with a degree of friction. This was in evidence at last night's regular session of the worthy aldermen, when Ald. Anderson took strong exception to being characterized as a "tool" by his aldermanic compatriot in the East Ward—Ald. Morgan, last year's chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, which office has now fallen to Ald. W. J. Johnston.

And the trouble seems to have its origin in the past committee's relationship with the administration of the fire department, coupled with a determination in some quarters to get through Council a recommendation from the Fire Water and Light Committee similar to the one turned down last year.

When Ald. Johnston last sat on the Council Board, he held the chairmanship of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and recorded his opposition to the Fire Chief, for reasons then given, but no aggressive action accrued therefrom. Last year the Committee with Ald. Morgan as chairman, submitted a recommendation that the Fire Chief's resignation be requested, but Council refused to endorse that recommendation. Yesterday in the race for chairmanships, both Ald. Anderson and Ald. Duncan The Times is advised, had an eye on that of Finance; and Ald. Morgan proffered his support to Ald. Anderson provided the latter would promise his endorsation of a certain recommendation to Council regarding the administration of the fire department that might again be submitted to this year's Council for action. But Ald. Anderson would promise nothing of the sort, and replied that he would commit himself to no future action, but would be governed by his own convictions—existing conditions, [illegible] and others alike.

Our readers, who have followed the Council's proceedings the past year or two, will be able to read between the lines, and form a conclusion as to the little tornado again brewing in the committee that has charge of our Fire, Water and Light department.

The foregoing prelude was necessary to make intelligible the following discussion of the City Aldermen last night.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the name of Ald. Anderson be added to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Morgan (in evident surprise)—"Might I ask Ald. Johnston the reason of this?"

Ald. Johnston—"Well, there is no particular reason, excepting that I would like a strong committee and I think Ald. Anderson a good man."

Ald. Duncan—"I object to that! Ald. Anderson's name would mave a committee of six and throw a majority in a certain direction."

Ald. Morgan—"I have nothing against Ald. Anderson, and if our friend is willing to be made a "tool" of by others, I'm satisfied."

Ald. Anderson—"I protest against such treatment. Ald. Morgan's remarks are an insult. He's sore because I would not be a tool in his hands to-day. I am not a tool for him or anyone else."

Ald. Anderson's protest was endorsed by such acclamations as "that's right," "don't stand for it," and so forth.

Ald. Johnston here took the floor, and said he wished to make himself quite clear on certain matters. "When I was here before," he said, "certain transactions may have a tendency to put me now in a false light. I have been elected by the people to look after the interests not only of the Ward I have the honor to represent but the welfare of the community in general. I have not been elected to display a spirit of vindictiveness, and I am not going to do so. I did not seek the chairmanship of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, but since I have been appointed to it, a free hand must be accorded me. I'm going to do what is fair, just and honorable. If Chief Howard has in the past been guilty of indiscretion, I hope he has had his lesson and that it has made a better man of him. As long as he does what is right he'll not find in me a vindictive spirit. And I'm going to see that he does do what's right. This year I hope that my committee will work in perfect harmony."

The resolution was then carried, and Ald Anderson's name added to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

TRAPPED BY FIRE CHINAMAN FRANTIC

Hang Hung Beat Madly On Grating of Sidewalk and Was Rescued by Policeman

PLATE GLASS SHATTERED

Toronto, Jan. 8.—The cold snap of the last few days was responsible for another down-town fire shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, when the boiler of the heating plant at the Chinese restaurant, owned by Henry Hung, at 149 King street west, exploded, owing to the pipes being frozen, causing $130 damage to the building and contents. Some strenuous scenes followed the explosion, which shattered the plate glass of the street window, most of the employes being Celestials, who became panic-stricken when the smoke poured up to the main floor. Two men were down in the cellar at the time, one of them Hang Hung, having kindled the fire in the jack heater, which brought about the catastrophe. Hand had his foot badly cut by flying glass while his companion, thinking that his escape by the stairs was cut off owing to the smoke which enveloped the cellar, made a dash for the grating on the sidewalk immediately in front of the building. Here after beating frantically on the bars for some time, he attracted the attention of the policeman on the beat, who lifted the grating and hoisted the badly frightened Celestial from his position.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to thank the electors of the Township of Smith, and especially those of my home ward, for their very liberal support, which placed me at the head of the poll by a handsome majority, at the recent municipal elections.

During the last four years I have served the Township to the best of my ability, and shall continue to do the same during my term of office.

Wishing you all a very happy and prosperous New Year, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
Wm. Davis.

CHURCH BURNED.

Methodist Edifice at Tillsonburg a Prey to Flames.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 8.—The Methodist Church at Tillsonburg was destroyed by fire this morning, with all the contents, except the records and the communion service. Defective flues are supposed to have been the cause. The church was a very old brick one. A valuable pipe organ was burned. The extent of the loss is unknown, but it is partially covered by insurance.

The loss is in the vicinity of thirty thousand dollars partially covered by insurance.

Labour's New Quarters.

The Trades and Labor Council has leased the old T. A. S. quarters on George street to be used by them for all their meetings. The council sublets these rooms once a month to the various trades unions represented in the city where they may hold their meetings. The rooms have undergone an overhauling, the walls have been repainted and everything put in to good condition. The Barbers' Union meets the first Monday of each month. It has been suggested that a ball be given some time during the winter for benevolent purposes.

Free Lights For Verandah.

Here is a paragraph from an election address issued by one of the candidates for the Collingwood Town Council: "I think when takers of light pay for a certain number of lights it could be arranged to give each one light in front of the metre for their verandah. This would add wonderfully to the appearance of residential streets. This plan, I believe, is working well in Orillia, and Collingwood should not let Orillia, or any other place in Canada, get ahead of her."

The Case Appealed.

The case of the bartender who was fined $25 by Magistrate Dumble on Dec. 20th for selling liquor to a boy of nineteen, has been appealed by Mr. G. N. Gordon, solicitor for the defence, and the appeal will be heard before Judge Huycke on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock. Mr. Gordon gave notice at the time of the trial in police court that he intended to appeal against His Worship's decision.

Innovation at Christmas Fair.

The Port Perry Star, says that at the Christmas Fair in that town "in addition to the very fine display of poultry and dairy produce there was a most practical exhibit made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, with Mr. Hare, of Whitby, in charge. The exhibit included models of poultry houses, nest boxes, fattening crates and various poultry rations, together with a display of choice apples and the pests that infest and destroy them."

Cavalry Class at the Armouries.

Sergt. Instructor Fletcher, of the staff of the Royal school of Cavalry, Toronto, has been detailed to conduct a class of instruction at Peterborough, headquarters of the 3rd Dragoons, to be held three nights a week commencing this evening at 7 p.m., covering four or five weeks. Major Medd, the officer commanding "B" squadron, states those attending will be enabled to complete their qualification by a two weeks' attendance at the Cavalry school at Toronto! If they pass the required examinations instead of having to attend for six weeks under ordinary circumstances. All concerned should avail themselves of the privilege.

Claims Her Dower.

Mary J. Costello, 183 George street, Toronto, has issued a writ against the executors of the estate of her husband, for a declaration that she is entitled to dower in certain farm lands in Peterborough County, and for damages for the detention of the same.

JEKYLL AND HYDE.

Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused. Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

USEFUL IGNORANCE

Brayson: "Come out with me for a ride in my motor-car?"

Wise: "How long have you had it?"

"Just got it."

"Had any experience with cars?"

"No."

"Going to run it yourself?"

"I am."

"Can you mend a punctured tyre?"

"No."

"Wouldn't know the first thing to do?"

"Not the first thing."

"Have you studied, read, or been given any advice?"

"No; I tell you I don't know anything about them."

"How far do you want to go?"

"Just as far as the thing will go."

"All right. I'll come with you."

"What! Why, I didn't dream you'd accept my invitation."

"Why not?"

"I didn't think you'd care to go out in a motor-car with a man who doesn't know anything about it."

"Nonsense! You're just the man."

"How's that?"

"Simply because, my friend, if we break down, we'll drop the machine and get home by train. But if you thought you knew anything about it, you'd spend the rest of the day trying to put it right, while I'd have to stay and suffer with you as a matter of common courtesy."

Miss Elder: "You fancy yourself very clever, I dare say; but I could give you a wrinkle or two."

Miss Younger: "No doubt you could—and never miss them."

Proclaimed a New Sultan.

Sir Rennell Rodd, the British ambassador in Rome, has seen an enormous amount of diplomatic service, having served in Berlin, Paris, Athens, Cairo, and Stockholm. Of him Queen Victoria said: "Rennell Rood has a suavity of manner which would get over anyone."

This was on his return from Abyssinia, whither he was sent on a special mission to Menelik, and not only succeeded in arranging affairs satisfactorily, but brought back some gorgeous presents from the Emperor to the Queen, as well as an Ethopian star and various orders for his own adornment.

It fell to his lot in 1889 to proclaim a new sultan of Zanzibar, Mr. Rennell Rodd, as he then was, being British agent.

Read It Differently.

A man was charged with stealing a sheep belonging to Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice.

"I found the poor creature starvin' on the road, my lord, an' was just drivin' it home," pleaded the accused.

"Can you read?" asked his lordship.

"A little, me lord."

"You could not have been ignorant, then, that the sheep belonged to your landlord, Sir Garnett Fitz-Maurice, as his brand, 'G. F. M.,' was on the animal."

"True for ye, me lord but sure I thought the letters meant 'Good Fat Mutton!'"

Fortune in Stamps.

A lady living in Sydney for many years has hoarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition, and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

A Cold Ride.

The engineer and fireman of the Belleville train were surprised on Saturday morning, on reaching Holloway, a station on the line, when a youth fell from the top of the tender into the cab, in a frostbitten condition. It was ascertained that the lad had taken an excursion to Kingston and as his ticket had expired, he strove to insure returning to his home by climbing on the tender.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Mexico Oil

The Marican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

POLITICAL POLITENESS

An incident in the life of Lord Beaconsfield affords an apt illustration of the charm which the spirit of chivalry infuses into everyday life, says the author of "How to be Happy Though Civil."

Gladstone was attacking in the House of Commons the Administration of Disraeli, as he was then. He had begun a sentence, "the right honourable gentleman and his satellites," when some interruption threw him out; he came to a stop, and seemed on the point of breaking down. Disraeli leaned across the table and repeated the word "satellites," whereupon his adversary at once recollected himself and resumed his invective.

And Gladstone could be equally urbane. On the same evening after Lord Randolph Churchill had made a fiery attack on him, Lord Randolph and his wife were at the same dinner-party with Gladstone. "The first person," says Lady Randolph Churchill, "I met as I went in was Mr. Gladstone, who at once came up and said: 'I hope Lord Randolph is not too tired after his magnificent efforts.'"

TURN ABOUT

For her he had vowed he would go through the fiery furnace; for her he would willingly brave the fury of lemons; for her he would, in short, have done anything. For these reasons, and also because his socks wanted darning badly, he had taken the plunge and married her. He was worth at least $50 a week to his employer, but he only got $5.20 and the first week of their wedded life, full of resolutions, of noble self-sacrifice, he had given her $5, and kept the twenty cents to pay for taxicabs and cigars and theatre suppers.

The next week there was a slump in self-sacrifice. He gave her the twenty cents and kept the golden symbol of shining hope for himself.

"Theophilus," she remarked, icily, "will you kindly inform me how you think I'm going to manage for a week on this?"

"Blessed if I know!" he replied. "I had a pretty rough time myself last week. It's your turn this."

The Risk Limited

There's an old yarn about a fat and a lean duellist. The fat one complained that he offered a much larger mark to his antagonist's bullet, whereupon the lean man proposed chalking the outline on the fat man's body and no shot outside the chalk line would be counted. We were reminded of this story by the following notice which an accident insurance company has placed in the elevators of several office buildings: "This elevator is limited to fourteen persons. All over that number riding on this car do so at their own risk."

A Wonderful Watch

A Geneva watchmaker has just completed a timepiece which the only one of its kind in the world. A pearl, which weighs 120 grains and has a diameter of half an inch, contains the works. It took an employee of the firm seven months to hollow out the pearl and fit in the wheels. The watch, which is guaranteed to keep good time and may be worn as a ring on the finger, is for sale for $6,000.

CHEAP CLOTHING

Some of the Cheap Clothing Swindles That Are Taking Place Every Day Throughout the Country.

During the winter months the "cheap clothing" swindler comes to the fore. This is the method of manufacture of the "new and up-to-date" clothing. The "clothes for nothing" firm employs agents all over the country who make a point of buying up all old clothing as cheaply as possible. Nothing is despised. The agent is prepared to take old suits, whether they are threadbare or not; coats that would look shabby on a beggar, trousers patched and mended till hardly any part of the original pair remains, and, in fact, anything that once may have been clothing of some kind are fish for his net.

"Tearing Down" Factories.

At his "factory" the clothes are "torn down" by women. That is to say, they are picked to shreds. A certain amount of discrimination is shown, the sounder parts of the secondhand material being placed aside and carefully sorted. The dilapidated parts of these old clothes are more roughly treated. All colours, all patterns, they are all shredded. When this has been done they are placed in a strong dye for some hours, after which the material is dried and woven [illegible] cloth. Once more it is dyed and then turned into ready-made suits by the aid of sweated labour. These suits are sold for from $6 or $7. The dyes used are the cheapest obtainable, and the customer sees the result when his clothes soon begin to acquire a rusty brown or a green tint.

Given Warning

Mrs Wilson's husband was often obliged to make long journeys on business, and frequently did not reach home till after midnight. His wife had usually slept peacefully at these times, but a number of burglaries in the neighbourhood during one of Mr. Wilson's trips had disturbed her calm. One night Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the stairs, so that his wife should not be awakened, when he heard her voice, high and strained.

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," she cried, "but I'm going to fire on the safe side and shoot. So if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way!"

NEW WIRES

Mr James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung, from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices and stations opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

On Saturday morning there passed away at the family residence, one of Lakefield's oldest and most esteemed citizens in the person of Mr. Samuel Sherin, aged 81 years. The deceased had lived in Lakefield for over 57 yearsyears, and was known and respected by every member of the community. He had been in poor health for the past couple of years. Mr. Sherin is survived by his widow and four children, Miss Alice, of Toronto, Miss Ninan at home and Messrs. Wesley of Lakefield, and Samuel B., of Baltimore, Md. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Methodist church, at Lakefield, and thence to the Lakefield cemetery.

AMONG THE CANNIBALS

"Dear, dear!" remarked Mr. Jackpott Jones, as he dropped the newspaper upon his knees and gazed at his dear wife, sitting on the opposite side of the fireplace, "what an extraordinary case!"

"What is, dear?" asked sweet Mrs. J., as she leaned back in her chair to the sound of cracking whalebone.

"Why—er—a report here of a ship that was wrecked near Tierra del Fuego, where the cannibals are, you know, dear. The Fuegans killed and ate the males, it appears, but absolutely refused to eat more than one of the five females who were amongst the survivors of the wreck."

"In—deed: I should have thought they would have preferred to eat ladies. They are so much more tender than men, aren't they?"

"Well, I don't know. It seems, according to this account, that the two men they ate had nothing on but flannel shirts and linen trousers, which the savages munched up with the men. The one woman that they ate ——"

"Ah!"

"Had on her, in addition to her stuff clothes, about a pint of hairpins, a wire corset, a bent steel dress-improver, seven oxidized silver bangles, a burnished waist-belt, with steel chatelaine, scissors, button-hook, corkscrew, etc., brass-tipped heels to her boots, gilt——"

"Good gracious, how they must have suffered!"

"Rather! Listen to this: For five days after the chief of the tribe never moved or spoke, but has since recovered and celebrated his convalescence by burning forty children as a thank-offering. He has since sworn, and made his tribe swear, never to eat another white squaw."

ILLUSTRATION OF PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

The United States Government Is Running Department Stores, Hotels and a Steamship Line in Panama.

The United States government, as everybody knows, is engaged in building as a public enterprise, a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. What the world does not generally understand is that as part of this operation the government is also running lines of railway, a department store, hotels and a steamship line. At this government department store it is possible to buy almost everything, including ladies' patent leather shoes, briar pipes, teething rings for babies, sugared almonds, etc. No less than fifteen hotels are operated, besides 18 mess halls. During one month these places served nearly 1,000,000 meals all told.

This has led a writer to suggest the possibility of the United States government developing Alaska by means of railways operated by the government itself.

Does not what has been accomplished suggest something more—the possibility of solving the trust problem by means of public ownership? It seems futile to talk of going back to the old days of small industries and free competition. The economy in large operations is something the public will not readily consent to surrender. Neither does it seem altogether easy to solve the problem by public control of corporations. The only easy way out would seem to be going the whole length and providing for public operation, something which does not, in view of what is being accomplished in Panama, appear so very difficult after all.

From Generation to Generation.

Grandfather Billings smiled covertly when Billings junior wondered where Billings third, aged seven, got his "trickiness." "If I didn't keep my eyes open," said Billings junior, hotly, "Billy would outwit me every time."

"This morning," he continued, "I promised him a whipping to-night. When the event came off just now, he never flinched or yelled. 'Pluck pure and simple!' said I to myself, mighty proud, for I wasn't sparing him in the least. But that wasn't it at all," he concluded, in disgust. "The young rascal had on three pairs of trousers."

"As I remember it," observed Grandfather Billings, reflectively, "you used to insert a small geography when a 'good sound one' was due you."

How Wrinkles Are Caused—And Removed

(From The Family Physician)

It is well known that the human skin is constantly undergoing a tearing down and building up process. With advancing years or waning vitality this tissue-change lags; the lifeless, soiled surface skin stays on so long that its owner gets a poor complexion.

Common sense tells us this dead skin cannot be enlivened or beautified by any cosmetic, lotion or powder. The natural thing to do is to remove the offensive skin—remove the bad complexion. It has been found that ordinary mercolized wax completely absorbs the devitalized skin, in minute particles, so gently, gradually, as to cause no inconvenience. Mercolized wax, which any druggist can supply, is put on at night like cold cream, only not rubbed in, and washed off in the morning. If you would have a brilliantly beautiful complexion, just use this simple treatment.

Boots and Shoes.

Shoes are one of the expenses of a toilet that may be reduced by care alone. A worn-out shoe cannot be renovated; no amount of skill will make it pass as new. The only possible way to save in shoe leather is to care properly for the shoes while wearing them. When they are taken off they should be wiped at once, and if wet filled with paper and put in a dry place (nor near the first) for some hours. We do not advise putting shoes into a bag, for the sake of neatness. If boot-trees are not convenient the boots or shoes should be stood where the air can get to them, as this will tend to harden the soles.

Bottled Gooseberries

Cold Water Method.—Put in glass jars well washed gooseberries, or cut up rhubarb, fill the glass jars as full of water as they can hold, fastening on the lids under water. Gooseberries, rhubarb, huckleberries can be canned under water, not taking the jars out until rubber and cap are in place and fastened down tightly. They will be in perfect state until time gooseberries will come again — in other words will keep a year.

If properly cooked boiled round steak will be rare, tender and juicy. Serve the beef with cream horseradish sauce, boiled turnips or cabbage and potatoes.

An old country woman and her daughter went into a shop in town to buy a bonnet. When she had purchased the bonnet the milliner, turning to the woman, said:—"What about a sailor for your daughter?" meaning, of course, a hat. Young Boy of Sixteen Possesses a Preacher's License and Supplies His Father's Pulpit, Eloquently.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Mass. — "Frank W. Rollins of Bakersville, Mass., is the youngest boy preacher in the country, if not in the world. Though only 16 years old he possesses a preacher's license. This he makes good use of by supplying his father's pulpit and preaching in different towns throughout the state. The boy is not out of school, having taken a post graduate classical course in the Torrington high school. He is preparing for a Wesleyan university and will follow with a course at the Theological seminary.

He is known in his vicinity as the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" and is perfectly at home in conducting prayer meetings. When he supplies his father's pulpit his sermons are of the sort to make the congregation sit up and take notice.

Francis is just like other boys. His nature is sunny and bright and his fondness for sports is very keen, but in spite of boyishness there is underneath a strain of earnestness forecasting his career. The people of his father's congregation accept his ministrations and sermons with as much seriousness as they do those of the parent. Throughout the state the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" is known and people flock to hear him whenever he comes.

QUEER AD TO LAND BRAINS

Coffee King Arbuckle Put Queer Ad in American Papers to Get Men With Brains to do Big Things.

New York. — The following ad is appearing here: — $1,000,000 and over when he retired; came on salary $700 a year; $3000 salary when he cannot retired with several million; $3 per week when he came; has large amount now to his credit.

I can make others rich if I can find the right kind of men. I want several men who have already shown ability, to relieve me in a very large measure so that I can give more attention to my Deep Sea hotel and my Colony for Cripples and Old People, and to start another Colony out west.

Ten thousand dollars salary for my first assistant per year; $5000 salary for my second assistant per year; $2500 salary for my third assistant per year.

Men from wholesale grocery house or mail order houses preferred. Answer only by letter marked "personal," which will be kept strictly confidential. JOHN ARBUCKLE, Arbuckle Bros., New York.

That "want ad" appeared in New York and Chicago papers. John Arbuckle is the millionaire coffee and sugar magnate. He has just come back from Europe, and explained his queer "ad." "It is like this," he said. "I want to get men with brains and ability to do big things. The best way, I have learned, to get such men is to let them know that you want them and tell them what there is in it for them, and the only way to do that is to advertise for them."

ATROCITIES IN TRIPOLI

Report Again Published — War Costs Italy Much.

Rome. — After the capture of Tajura, the Italians found the bodies of former comrades with the limbs severed and others who had been crucified. The corpses of members of the Bersaglieri and other regiments were found in a well, where they had been buried alive and the top walled in.

An additional appropriation of $25,000 was made, to carry on the war until the end of 1911. Thus the war in three months has cost Italy $90,000,000.

An "Ear Telephone."

Differing from the various kinds of instruments which are used to aid persons of defective hearing, a new long distance hearing apparatus has recently been invented to assist the hearing of normal persons in much the same way that a telescope does the eye; that is, it enables one to distinguish sounds through a greater distance, besides amplifying those which would ordinarily be detected by the unaided ears. For this reason it has been facetiously called the "ear telescope."

Cavalry Class at the Armouries.

Sergt. Instructor Fletcher, of the staff of the Royal school of Cavalry, Toronto, has been detailed to conduct a class of instruction at Peterborough, headquarters of the 3rd Dragoons, to be held three nights a week commencing this evening at 7 p.m., covering four or five weeks. Major Medd, the officer commanding "B" squadron, states those attending will be enabled to complete their qualification by a two weeks' attendance at the Cavalry school at Toronto. If they pass the required examinations instead of having to attend for six weeks under ordinary circumstances. All concerned should avail themselves of the privilege.

WAR WITH GERMANY.

That war with Germany is bound to come in the near future, a vast majority of the people believe. It is thought that there is no way of getting around it, and that the greatest war the world has ever seen is close at hand. Britons, it is believed in every quarter of the globe, are ready to help the Mother Country with their "last man and the last dollar" when the time comes. The navy is ready to strike swift and strong, so that the struggle may not be prolonged.

Free Lights For Verandah.

Here is a paragraph from an election address issued by one of the candidates for the Collingwood Town Council: "I think when takers of light pay for a certain number of lights it could be arranged to give each one light in front of the metre for their verandah. This would add wonderfully to the appearance of residential streets. This plan, I believe, is working well in Orillia, and Collingwood should not let Orillia, or any other place in Canada, get ahead of her."

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in Germany, has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under forty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "reddish" hair. The founder of this matrimonial institution died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman, who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a mop of golden red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money some time ago and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are helped a sum of money towards the expense of setting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of a marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of £3,000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving servants of the city whose wedding was intended by the maid of a lower

WOOD PULP AND PAPER TRADE MEET

Home Market Club Against Its Free Importation Into American Markets Especially from Canada.

(Special Cable Service.)

BOSTON. — Just before adjournment of its meeting here, the Home Market Club went on record as against the free importation of wood pulp and print paper from Canada, and the possibility of the extension of this policy to other pulp and paper exporting countries. The resolution, which was adopted unanimously, was as follows:

"Whereas, wood pulp and print paper have been placed on the free list so far as Canada is concerned, notwithstanding that the expected concessions on the part of Canada have been denied us, and whereas demands are now being made under the favored nation clause by all paper exporting countries for the same tariff privileges which have been extended to Canada:

"Be it resolved, that we protest against this unjust treatment of American paper manufacturers and respectfully petition Congress to repeal this legislation."

Secretary Marvin, after the adoption of the resolution, pointed out that in 1906 and 1907 the paper producing countries of Europe, held by Norway, Germany, the Netherlands, Austria and Great Britain, had a surplus for export amounting to $337,127,000, or nearly twice as large as the entire paper and wood pulp production of the United States.

CATARRH

Remember the best Catarrh medicine that money can buy is Catarrhozone; it cures quickly and permanently when all others fail.

The remedy doesn't exist that will cure Catarrh as quickly as Catarrhozone. It relieves the most stubborn cases in a short time, and drives the disease so thoroughly from the system that it never returns.

Druggists boldly recommend Catarrhozone in preference to other remedies, because they know it is the best, and every progressive doctor prescribes it for the same good reason.

Catarrhozone is a rational, common-sense treatment that finds favor with everybody. It cures by the inhalation of medicated air, which comes into contact with the mucous surface of all the breathing organs. It gets at the source of the trouble, kills the germs and drives every vestige of catarrh right out of the system.

It doesn't matter how deep-seated or chronic your case may be, Catarrh ozone can cure it. Even though a thousand other remedies have failed, don't give up hope till you have used Catarrhozone. It has cured other cases probably worse than yours, and will cure yours if it gets a chance.

Mr. Dutcher Law, a prominent citizen of Italy Cross, N. S., says: "I experimented with hundreds of catarrh remedies and found the majority to be worthless, dismal failures. Catarrhozone was the first to give lasting relief; it cured me and I am with pleasure testifying to its merits as a cure for Catarrh of the nose and throat.

(Signed) DUTCHER LAW.

You are sure to derive the most pleasant results from Catarrhozone. It has been tested many times and never found wanting. Every druggist in Canada sells it. Complete two months' treatment, guaranteed to cure costs $1, or a trial size 25c. By mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

How Nature Makes New Complexions

(From American Home.)

"Why did no one think of this before" writes a clear-thinking reader. "Wrinkles are caused by the skin becoming loose. Obviously the remedy is to tighten the skin. Equally it is obvious that the only thing which will tighten the skin is a powerful astringent.

"Now, it is well known that the only powerful astringent which is absolutely harmless and beneficial as well, is pure powdered saxolite, obtainable from any druggist. Dissolve one ounce in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in it daily and—behold! The result is almost magical. The skin becomes firm and smooth, the face feels snug, comfortable and solid, instead of loose and flabby. Simple, isn't it? As I asked—why did no one think of it before?

"One should be careful, however, to use no other astringents than pure saxolite, as the former do no good and are really injurious more often than not."

Woman's Influence.

Some men strive to gain success,
To win firm footholds on the height
Because within them selfishness
Is ever urging, day and night.

Some men press on as best they may
With pick or spade or sword or pen
Because their wish is day by day
To benefit their fellow men.

One in ten thousand, glad to claim
The world's approval, nobly striven.
But most men who win wealth or fame
Do so to satisfy their wives.

Labour's New Quarters.

The Trades and Labor Council has leased the old T. A. S. quarters on George street to be used by them for all their meetings. The council sublets these rooms once a month to the various trades unions represented in the city where they may hold their meetings. The rooms have undergone an overhauling, the walls have been repainted and everything put in to good condition. The Barbers' Union meets the first Monday of each month. It has been suggested that a ball be given some time during the winter for benevolent purposes.

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

She had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, delicious, kissable dimple

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will stay there until next pay day. 41

CLEVER INVALIDS

Tom Hood — One of the Greatest Humorous Writers Wrote Most of His Best Verses While in Torture.

By the death of W. Clark Russell we lose one of the finest writers of sea-stories that this century ever possessed. His romances dwelt with such vitality that it is hard to realize that for many year their author had been virtually a cripple. Yet such was the case, and his latest works were dictated to his son while he himself was stretched on a couch of pain.

What wondrous results can be effected by strength of will the life of Herbert Spencer pre-eminently shows. Of delicate constitution, he set himself to accomplish a task the magnitude whereof would have appalled the most robust, and wrestling manfully with the demon of Ill-health, which sometimes for months together totally incapacitated him from work, never wavered in his stern resolve until, in 1896, he brought his stupendous "System of Synthetic Philosophy" to a triumphant conclusion.

His fellow-worker in the field of evolution, Charles Darwin, for over forty years knew not the joy of a day without pain. Dyspepsia, allied maybe to gout, held him in thraldom, so that his life was one long and continuous struggle against illness. Yet he bore his unenviable lot with cheery patience, and, though his poor health at times compelled him to cease from his arduous studies and researches, the work that he left accomplished is proof sufficient that no physical ills could subdue the indomitable energy of his mind.

In pain and torture, too, lay Tom Hood when he penned some of his most humorous verses. Even in boyhood his health was delicate, and with increasing years his weakness became more alarmingly apparent. Yet he gallantly struggled on until, in the winter of 1844, he finally broke down and took to his bed. Even there his fertile brain refused to rest, and not till death took him in the following spring did the world cease to enjoy the dying poet's witty words.

Over Keats, the while he was composing those poetic gems that have given him place among the immortals, was posed the hand of death. A victim to consumption and consequent haemorrhage from the lungs, he resolved, "as a soldier marches against a battery," to try the effect of a winter in Italy. Thither he went, and lingered on in Rome, where, on February 23rd, 1821, his brief life of twenty-six years came to a peaceful end.

NATURES WARDROBE

Dame Nature Allows Her Children a Complete Change of Clothes At Least Once a Year

Dame Nature allows her children a complete change of clothes at least once a year. In some instances she is more liberal. This change of raiment does not always meet with man's approval, and, because of the petty annoyances it may cause, the fact that the whole matter is not without points of interest is generally overlooked.

During the autumn the canary has a most irritating way of casting its feathers, and causing what the housemaid calls a "litter" all over the room for their tiny yellow feathers get blown about, and they are extremely difficult to pick up. The sweeping brush is no good at all for the purpose; every feather must be taken up separately, and readily, considering that they are from one little bird, their number is extraordinary. "Drat that canary!" remarks the lady of the broom and duster.

The poultry yard is dreadful. Feathers lie everywhere, giving the whole place a desolate, unclothed-for look, which is quite in keeping with the miserable appearance of its inmates.

But it is not only the feathered family which causes trouble by leaving their discarded clothes tossing about. Never drive behind a white horse in the spring unless you have a mind above being disturbed by horse hairs. In the pre-taxi days the point was worth remembering, for a white horse between the shafts of the hansom at certain times could make the "fare's" black coat unsightly. A horse sheds his coat — but not his tail or mane — in the spring, and grows a short, glossy, summer coat, which is the delight of the groom. As the winter approaches the animal's appearance undergoes a change. His coat grows long, and is extremely dense, so that if he is out in the fields he can stand severe weather.

It is worth while examining the coat of the house cat in the summer and then in the winter. The animal's appearance may have undergone no change, yet the increase of hair is there all the same. The long-haired cat cannot make her toilet so unobtrusively, and the owner must be very blind who does not know when puss is "moulting" and when she is "in coat."

Romans in Britain

The Roman galley found during the excavations in connection with the new County Hall for London was moved from Westminster Bridge to the new London museum at Kensington Place the other day. When the oaken beams were hoisted from the Thames mud a quantity of decayed bones was discovered. These included the rib of a man and other human remains, and also the jaw of a dog. Their condition was such that it was found necessary to enclose them in wire netting to prevent them falling to pieces.

WIFE SEARCHING

At last the right Utopia has been discovered. The ideal wife, the ideal home, the ideal life, and ideal work are now awaiting any man who cares to follow the example of Mr. John Darling, known among the natives of Tahiti, the principal island of the Society group in the South Seas, as "the wise man on the mountain."

Darling lives on berries, has discarded clothes, and spurns all the institutions of civilisation in his habitation, which he has described as "Eden." The circumstances which led Darling to his "Eden" are somewhat remarkable. As a young man he was a keen student of the Bible, and the more he read and pondered, the more he was led to believe that the modern present-day man did not live naturally.

Darling decided to go out into the world and live the life that according to his ideas, the Scriptures said he should live. He visited many parts of the world in search of an "Eden," and at last decided that Tahiti fulfilled all his demands. The French authorities of the island, however, strongly objected to his eccentric habits. In fact, they led him to jail. The governor tried to persuade him to search for another "Eden" elsewhere, or, if he insisted on staying where he was, to conform to the sartorial rules of civilisation. Mr. Darling was obstinate, however. Tahiti was the one spot on earth for him, and all the governor's men could not make him wear clothing.

Finally the governor had an inspiration, and presented Darling with a piece of land high upon the mountains, with a clear understanding that he would stay there with his ideas and minimum of clothing. Fruits and herbs grew there in plenty. The air was balmy and fine, and the view delightful. There he could play "Adam in Paradise" to his heart's content.

Darling readily accepted the offer, and in a short time on the top of his mountain he built a simple hut of palm leaves and branches.

Ultimately Mr Darling took as his wife a Tahiti maiden, in whom he declares he has found a wife who helps him to lead his happy, ideal life. That this is no passing whim on his part is evident from the fact that a relative recently died and left him a fortune of some $300,000, on condition that he returned once more to the ways of civilisation; but Darling declined the fortune.

"Why," he exclaimed, "what do I want with money? What could money procure me better than I've got — happiness, health, and peace of mind from the knowledge of leading the life that I know man was intended to live?"

THE CELESTIAL

John Chinaman Not Taking Any Risks Even from Britishers Who Have Just Been Married.

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Among the recipients of the usual little card boxes containing a piece of wedding-cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied.

After the honeymoon, one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was the Celestial creditor.

"And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman, laughing, after the usual congratulations.

"Ah, ah," returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, "me no such big fool to eat him, sah. Me put cakes in fire. Burn him up. He, he!"

"Oh," that's too bad," said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why didn't you?"

"Me too clute, sah," said the Celestial, with the same winning smile. "You owe me money, sah; sendee poison cake; I eat him? I die; you no payee up. Houp-la! He, he, he! I know you Inglessh!"

A CLEVER WINDOW-SMASHER

A well-dressed man was hurrying along the Rue de Passy, in Paris, the other day. The pavement was wet, and the man slipped and fell, knocking against and smashing in his fall the window of a wine-shop.

Frantic excitement! The man groaned, the proprietor of the wine-shop rushed forth to demand amidst wild gesticulation, compensation for his broken window; a crowd gathered round to see he got it.

"But I have no money," wailed the unfortunate man.

"Search him!" screamed the proprietor.

No policemen was to be found at the moment so the crowd took the law into their own hands and went through the man's pockets. They hadn't gone far when they came upon a five-hundred-franc note.

"No money!" gasped the proprietor, in tones of mingled triumph and derision.

"No money!" jeered the crowd, who were lamentably lacking in sympathy with the poor man who had bumped himself on the hard, hard pavement.

"I shall take," said the proprietor of the wine-shop, "a hundred francs to repair my broken window." The crowd cheered, and the proprietor stuffed the four-hundred-francs' worth of change which he thrust into the hands of the man who had caused all the trouble.

The man hurried away, and when he was well out of sight and sound he laughed long and loud, for the five-hundred-franc note was a forgery which he with his own wicked hands, had manufactured!

THE CHINAMAN

Napoleon said that when China was moved the face of Europe would be changed. Yet, as the Chinese are naturally peaceful, we think that the Yellow Peril is a commercial one. The peril is that China will manufacture things cheaper than Europeans can and dismiss us from the trade of the Far East. How can we, with our high standard of comfort, strikes, and unrest generally, compete with the Chinese, combining, as they do, the active industry of the most civilised people with the passive patience of the North American Indian? Far more than we do the Chinese believe in the power of character and intellect. With this, rather than with armies and navies, they will conquer.

A Chinese is nearly always a person of resource. A young man was accused of knocking out his father's teeth, and was in danger of being put to death. A friend visited him and whispered in his ear, "It's a bad case."

Suddenly seizing the ear between his teeth, he gave it a severe bite.

"What do you mean?" asked the young man, raising his fist.

"I mean," was the answer, "that you are saved; you have only to show the marks of my teeth and say that they were made by your father, whose teeth, being shaky, dropped out."

Business Before Sentiment.

Two small things impress foreigners with the skill of the Chinese. One is the way they carve ivory balls, one within the other, to the number of seven or eight; and the other the inscription of minute characters inside agate or crysta snuff-bottles.

A Chinaman always appears to be looking round the corners of his eyes at you, and to have a meaning that you cannot get at. He gives you the impression that somebody, when he was born, sat on his nose, and that he has been lamenting the calamity ever since. And yet, though he never lays aside this expression of resigned wretchedness, the average Chinese is not at all more miserable than the average Britisher.

Speaking of Britishers, we may say that they and Chinamen have much in common. Both have a great capacity for making and enjoying money. Both have business aptitude and integrity, do their work well, and appreciate a good dinner. Equally with Englishmen, Celestials have common sense and respect for law, and do not allow sentiment to interfere with business. The Chinese are the British of the Far East, and the Japanese are the French.

Fond of Sport.

The Chinese are not less conservative than the English. They dread any change that may cause trouble or disorder, and this is why they have put up so long with their wretched government. "Better be a dog in peace," they say, "than a man, in anarchy." The "dog in peace" has now risen to war; let us hope that the splendid empire of China will not remain in anarchy.

Like the British, also, the Chinese are fond of sport, though their idea of sport is peculiar. They train quails, thrushes, and even fish to fight, and they bet on these, and on almost every other event.

The Chinese contrivances for the management and capture of beast, bird, and fish are as ingenious as they are simple. If, for instance, a donkey disturbs by braying in the night, a big stone is tied to his tail, and this humiliates him into silence.

When a Chinaman wishes to catch wild ducks he mixes an intoxicating spirit made of rice with corn and leaves the mixture for the birds. They become intoxicated, and are taken in their cups, so to speak. Another way is to put a gourd on his head and swim gently among the ducks. They are not frightened, because they only see the gourd and are accustomed to that, and the artful John pulls one duck after another by the legs into a bag attached to him. Everyone knows that John Chinaman trains cormorants to catch fish, not for themselves, but for him.

After cold water, there is nothing the Chinese so much fear as ridicule and disgrace, or the "loss of face." A magistrate who was to be beheaded asked that, as a special favour, he might wear his robes of office in order to save his face!

The Chinese are great at organizing. The trade guilds which are established in every town are quite as powerful as our trade unions. Even beggars and [illegible] have guilds. Every morning the king of the beggars sends a detachment of his sack-cloth-clad or nearly uncled subjects to collect poor-rates in the districts assigned to them. Owners of property pay so much a year to "the honourable guild of thieves" in order not to be robbed.

SHAM BATTLE SHAMS

The military manoeuvres were in a muddle. The "Purples" were supposed to be invading the territory of the "Greens," but why they were or what they were they didn't exactly know.

A large detachment of the 'Purples' began to cross the river by a wooden bridge to attack a small detachment of 'Greens.'

"Hi!" roared the 'Greens.' "Hi! You mustn't cross here! Can't you see the notice? This bridge is supposed to be destroyed."

"H'm! Is it?" responded the captain of the 'Purples,' grimly. "Well, then, we're supposed to be swimming across."

Costly Panama Hats

Even in modern times there have been men's hats which cost far more than anything worn by the ladies. That, for instance, presented to General Grant when he was in Mexico cost $1500, and lastly claims to be the finest sombrero ever made. The admirers of Mr. Steward, a member of President Lincoln's Cabinet, too, paid $10,[illegible] for the Panama with which they presented him.

GREAT CANVASSERS

Napoleon, and George Washington and Many More Great Men Were Successful Books Agents In Their Youth.

Books — Well-known firm of London publishers require the services of country gentlemen to act as agents. Liberal commission. Districts appropriated. Hunting and shooting men preferred. Members of good families, younger sons who have been at the Varsities or public schools, will find this a first-class opening. Apply, etc.

When the above appeared in the advertisement columns of the English papers recently, no doubt many people who read it would ask themselves what things were coming to.

Country gentlemen taking to book-canvassing!

Certainly, it reads revolutionary, even in these days of trading "nobility and gentry."

But greater men than country squires have, before now, been engaged in canvassing books.

Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French, the world's greatest military genius, was once a book-canvasser.

The future conqueror, while yet a lieutenant, and with nothing to live on but his scanty pay, undertook to "push" for Messrs. Boulanger and Co., the Paris publishers, a work called "The History of the (French) Revolution." And apparently he liked the work — with its emoluments — for after a short trial he applied to be given the sole agency for the Department of La Vendée. He had, however, to be content with a restricted district in suburban Paris. With what zeal he "worked" this may be seen to-day at the Louvre, where there is exhibited his canvasser's outfit, together with the long list of subscribers' names which his industry secured.

Almost at the same time, in a different part of the world, another future ruler was partly earning his bread as a book agent. This was none other than George Washington, "Father" of the United States. The particular book that Washington canvassed bore the somewhat lengthy title of "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, American Settings, How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization."

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

RECORDS

When the passengers stepped down from the car of the Canadian Pacific Railway's fast Overseas Mail train at Montreal Junction recently, he had not brought his train in from what is the fastest run that has yet been made between Quebec and Montreal. Not only was the previous record beaten, but it was so badly mangled that it is now hardly recognizable as the best previous time. Owing to the various unavoidable delays the operating officials had been advised to rush the Overseas mail from Quebec and rush it they did with a vengeance, the train putting away an average of nearly forty-five miles an hour for the whole trip of 167.5 miles. Leaving Quebec at 7.35 the train reached Montreal Junction, at 11.30 p.m. making the journey in three hours and fifty-five minutes. The best previous time for the trip was four

"THE BLUE BIRD."

Wonderful Scenic Reproduction Coming to Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto.

The new theatre's famous production of the "Blue Bird," the exquisite fantasy by Maeterlinck, will be presented at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, for two weeks.

No recent play has made quite so profound a sensation in America or Europe; with its beautiful philosophy, rare humor and pathos, it has charmed playgoers of all ages and all countries. In New York, where it was produced at the New Theatre, this so-called literary drama, scored the greatest popular success of the season, attaining a run of 268 performances. In England, France, Germany and Austria, it has met with the same huge success, while in Russia fifty-two different company are now playing it throughout the Provinces.

This season a number of innovations from the London, Paris, Berlin and Moscow productions have been added to the original new theatre production, better to interpret the symbolism and poetry of the piece.

Indeed, so careful has the drama been staged, to bring out all the fanciful flights of the poet's imagination and to make vipid his wonderful descriptions, that the New Theatre production of "The Blue Bird" is probably the most marvellous bit of stage-craft that has ever been witnessed. Certainly, no scenes have yet been conceived that can compare in beauty and compelling weirdness with "The Palace of the Night," "The Kingdom of the Past," "The Land of Happiness" and the other lands born of the poet's imagination, where Mytyl and Tyltyl have their adventures.

"The Blue Bird" Maeterlinck has revealed a new and comforting philosophy of life, expressing it through the light and delicate fancy of the pursuit of two children of the blue bird, the symbol of happiness. They are accompanied on their journey by "Bread," a jolly grotesque individual; "Milk," a beautiful, timid creature; "Water," a flowing, sylph-like girl; "Fire," a hissing tempestuous youth; "Sugar," a silly chap with candy hands; the faithful "Dog," the sly, scheming "Cat" and other things and animals embodied in human form by the magic of fairly Berylume.

So intricate are the various scenic effects that nearly a year was spent in the preparation of them. Beauty, fantasy, wisdom, humor, and a delightful tenderness are all blendid into one.

"The Blue Bird" brings tears to the eyes then chases them away with laughter; plunges you in revery and then startles you with some joyous surprise. Children and those who like to take their amusement lighter, derive infinite pleasure from the amusing actions and witty sayings of things and animals turned into human beings. To those who look deeper, however, the author has furnished a bottomless well of mysticism, romance and inspiring symbolism.

Particular attention will be given to out-of-town orders with remittances and a self-addressed stamped envelope will receive prompt attention. All orders should be addressed to Manager Lawrence Solman, Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto.

The Best Helpmeet.

All men, as well as women, like to be understood. Sympathy is their greatest help, and no woman who is self-centred, who is vain and thinks only of herself will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, have a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful happiness a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband. If she understands him, is interested in him and his lifework, whether it be planting vegetables, composing music, or building towers, she will encourage him to reach his highest aim. Being beautiful will not make up for selfish indifference.

Fun and Fresh Ideas.

To remain young one must have company and enjoy it. Not a big dinner party one day, an afternoon reception the next, a late card party the following, and so on. This, for the hostess, is hard work that will quickly bring the appearance of age in its train, and, indeed, no work is more arduous. To attend to the wants of guests, to anticipate their desires, to have the whole responsibility of the success of a party is an utterly different thing to the bright company necessary to the well-being of the woman who leads too monotonous a life.

The limiting influence of four walls is what so many women who are housewives and mothers have to fight against, and they need company as a recreation.

FRIDAY SUPERSTITION.

King Edward Dreaded Having His Mattress Turned That Day.

A strange story of the late King Edward is told by M. Xavier Paoli, the famous commissary of the Paris detective force, who has guarded so many royalties during their journeyings in Europe, in his book entitled "My Royal Clients." It appears that one of the chief duties of Hawkins, King Edward's second valet, was to make the bed.

"He was better acquainted than anyone with the King's habits and tastes; he knew, for instance, that His Majesty's mattress must never be turned on a Friday. This was a curious superstition of the King's, and it was the only one I ever knew him to cherish, and he made no secret of it." It was curious that he died on a Friday, and that "the doctors, forgetting his expressed wishes amid the grave cares occasioned by the sudden altercation for the worse in his condition, ordered his mattress to be turned, hoping that this would give him a little rest. A few minutes before midnight he drew his last breath."

Very amusing, by the way, are M. Paoli's recollections of another royal visitor to Paris—Sisowath, King of Cambodia, who came attended by a huge suite of sons, daughters, Ministers, favorites, chamberlains, and a troupe of twenty dancing-girls, and who flew into a great rage because his suite was seasick.

"I forbid you to be sick," he shouted to them. "These are my orders. Am I king, or am I not?"

The King's baggage included 200 sacks of coal, which the Cambodians insisted on landing, fearing they should find none in France. The King was extremely polite, and shook hands with everyone, including all the flunkeys who lined the staircase of the Marseilles Prefecture on his arrival. Even to this eccentric sovereign, as to all others, M. Paoli made himself agreeable, and he writes:

"When at length the hour of parting had struck, good King Sisowath, greatly moved, called me to his side. 'Here,' said he; 'present for you.' And he handed me a parcel done up in a pink silk handkerchief. As soon as I was on shore I hastened to open it. To my great confusion is contained a splendid Sampot made of cloth of gold. The King of Cambodia had presented me with his state breeches!"

Outmanoeuvred Them.

There is a good story, which concerns the days when Sir George Newnes was wooing the Newmarket constituency as a Parliamentary candidate. A few hours before one of the meetings, which was being held in a tent, the information reached him that a gang of the enemy were coming to the meeting to upset the platform. The gang with their lady friends, who had been invited to see the fun, duly appeared on the scene, and were politely invited to seats close to the platform; and, as space was limited, the ladies received a pressing invitation to take seats on the platform.

After a few ineffectual protests the blushing maidens accepted the invitation, and thus the gang were compelled to sit listening with unwilling ears to the political gospel of their opponents, while above them in the midst of the enemy's camp their sweethearts sat blushing and giggling.

And when towards the end of the meeting Mr. Newnes rose and told the whole story, told it with many a word of admiration for the young men who, for the sake of the ladies they loved, were now abstaining from deeds of valour, and when in an eloquent peroration he wished all the young Tory couples very happy married lives, the audience nearly sent the tent flying with their shouts of laughter.

CAVE-DWELLERS OF TUNIS

The capital city of the Matmatas, the cave-dwellers of Tunis, containing about 3,000 inhabitants, is one of the strangest in the world. It is not erected upon the ground, but is burrowed in the earth, the country being a high, rocky plateau, barren, sunbaked, and swept by the simoom.

When one of these people wishes to build a dwelling, he chooses his spot, traces a circle to show its location, and then digs until he reaches the desired depth, which varies according to the number of storeys he desires. The rooms are caves hollowed out in the sides of the circular covered pit, and the bottom of the pit forms the courtyard, which is a usual feature of a Moorish house. Besides the rooms, a passage is also dug, communicating with the outside world, and a door is built at the outer end.

The soil is a malleable clay, is easily cut, and lends itself well to excavation, the roof of each room requiring no support as long as it is well arched. The cave-dwellers inhabit the territory between the town of Gabes, on the Tunis coast, and the sand-hills of the Sahara.

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds," because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an Imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the times of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

"INFLUENZA"

Tin, Which is the Most Susceptible of Metals, Easily Catches Cold. If Then Crumbles.

A curious illustration of the susceptibility of metals to heat and cold is provided by the effect which winter has upon tin. As a matter of fact, unless tin is kept above 13 deg. Centigrade it falls a victim to a strange illness which has been described as "influenza." In other words, the metal catches a very severe cold, the symptoms of which are decay, loss of lustre, and crumbling of the surface to grey powder. The change is not a chemical one, for the grey powder is still tin, and the extraordinary fact is that it can be brought back by careful warming to its originally healthy condition.

The purer the tin the more susceptible it is to cold, and consequently decay, apparently; and, in fact, it may be made proof against the disease by alloying it with other metals. The disease is a cause of considerable annoyance and disappointment to the collectors of coins who possess valuable tin specimens in their cabinets.

Even tin buttons have been known to crumble in this way and organ-pipes made of tin have been found to decay after a severe winter.

The rot is even infectious, for decaying tin, in contact with healthy, lustrous tin, soon spoils it, and reduces it to its own unhealthy state.

MOTOR-CYCLISTS AMAZING FEAT.

A striking illustration of the capacity and durability of the motor-cycle is furnished by the record recently set up by Mr. Harry Long, the well-known Yorkshire cycling champion, who has just completed a journey of 40,000 miles on a motor-cycle in ten months. To accomplish his ride he went round the whole of the coast-line of Great Britain, in addition to other mileage; and, carrying no headlight, he had necessarily to ride only between dawn and dusk.

What makes the trip all the more noteworthy is the fact that prior to setting out on his journey, which he accomplished without accident during nine months, Mr. Long had only a week's tuition in looking after his mount. He had only ten punctures during his ride, but had the unpleasant experience of having to sleep twice in the open and to ride through a ten-days' downpour of rain while in Scotland.

Once, in the North of Scotland, Mr. Long almost had his attempt brought to a sudden end. Riding along a road skirted by a declivity of several hundred feet, he experienced a dry skid, and was thrown right off the saddle. Fortunately he fell on a ledge and was enabled to scramble back, remount his machine, which had simply fallen on the road and was uninjured, and continue his journey.

Not Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

WHAT IS YOUR VOCABULARY?

A retired teacher has a curious hobby. He takes a great interest in tracing the history of everyday common words, and he finds an immense amount of amusement in this strange study. "Recently," he says, "I have been making inquiries into the number of words actually used by young children. Perhaps the result of my investigations may interest your readers. Children from sixteen to nineteen months use from 40 to 232 words, while two-year-old children use from 115 to 1,227 words. The vocabulary increases rapidly from that time on. It is perfectly safe to assert that the average three-year-old child makes use of 1,000 words. One three-year-old boy I know has a vocabulary of 1,771 different words."

Busy at the Bar.

At a certain junction on a Scottish Railroad two brakesmen were employed one night recently in the operation of wagon-shunting.

Feeling somewhat thirsty, they took advantage of a lull in their work to adjourn to an adjacent public-house for refreshment.

The "boss," appearing a few minutes afterwards, discovered their absence, and, suspecting their place of retreat, lost no time in making his way to the inn aforesaid. Opening the door of the bar-parlour, he caught the delinquents in the act of consuming a couple of pints of beer.

"Hallow," exclaimed he, "is this where you chaps do your shunting?"

"No," replied one of the culprits, without a moment's hesitation, "but it's where we shift the pints!"

First Expert Chess Player: "Won't you sit down and play a game with me?"

Second Expert Chess Player: "I can't. I have an engagement in six weeks' time."

Perhaps the Only Way.

A reader of The Times has cruelly suggested that the fire trouble at St. Paul's church on Sunday was the only way to get the fire brigade to attend church in a body.

Death of Little Son.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wand, of East City, will deeply sympathize with them in the death of their little five weeks' old son, who passed away on Sunday. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

Local Option Next Year.

The Times is informed that the temperance party has practically decided to bring on a vote on Local Option next January in this city. The campaign will probably begin in the spring, and will continue throughout the summer and fall.

Big Night With the Woodmen.

Forest Camp, of the Woodmen of the World had a field night yesterday evening, when the annual installation of officers took place. A number of prominent members of the order were present and took part in the proceedings, at the conclusion of which refreshments were served.

Statutory Council Meetings.

Yesterday the City, Town and Township Councils of Ontario held their organization meeting at their various centres. The Smith Council met in the Court House, Peterborough, and transacted routine business. Mr. J. H. Garbutt, reeve, in the chair.

The Twelfth Anniversary.

Yesterday the society known as the St. Peter's T.A.S. celebrated their twelfth anniversary of its inauguration by the entertainment and play entitled, "The Squire's Daughter." There was a good programme of vocal and instrumental music. The affair took place in the evening and was largely attended.

Wanted at Peterborough.

Mail and Empire: Charged with theft of funds from the Union Life Company, with whom he was formerly employed at Peterborough, Fred. C. Carter was arrested on Saturday night by Detective Cronin at 12 Sword street. The warrant was issued by the Chief of Police of Peterborough, and Carter will be taken to that city to-day.

For Prince Albert.

The many patrons of the Bank of Ottawa here will regret the departure of Mr. Harry Quinlan, ledger keeper, who leaves to-day for Prince Albert. Yesterday he was presented with a pipe by the staff, as a token of their good will. Mr. Quinlan has been very popular in Peterborough, and many friends will wish him every success in his new home.

Is Operation To-day.

The new modern typesetting machine, which we purchased a few weeks ago, is now in operation, although it will not be in full swing until we get another operator, which we hope will be in a few days. The paper will then be greatly improved, the quantity of reading matter being largely increased. We are also putting on a new city editor, who comes to us highly recommended.

A New Electric Line.

Fenelon Falls Gazette: An electric railway line between Lindsay and Minden is among the near probabilities. The line it is understood is to be built and equipped by English capitalists, who are taking preliminary steps towards its construction. The exact location of the road is not known, but it is likely to pass through Fenelon Falls and possibly Coboconk.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

The Times is requested to state that for the convenience of all the city, who wish to have some part in the week of prayer, a division has been made of the city into two districts. One of these includes all the congregations west of Rubidge street and the other all east of Rubidge street. The places of meeting for those east of Rubidge street are as follows:

Monday (last) night—Mark street.
Tuesday—Bethany Tabernacle.
Wednesday—St. Paul's.
Thursday—Murray street.
Friday—George street.

Is Highly Spoken Of.

Guelph Mercury: Mr. V. McElderry, son of Mr. J. E. McElderry, Managing Director of the Guelph and Ontario Investment and Savings Society, Guelph, has been admitted as partner in the old established firm of Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, of Peterborough. This firm has one of the largest practices in Canada. Whilst regretting the loss to this city of an esteemed citizen, the Mercury offers congratulations to Mr. McElderry upon his entry into this old established firm of lawyers. It congratulates the new firm too, upon securing Mr. McElderry's services, and wishes the new firm all success. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College, Worcester and Laval University, of Montreal, also of Toronto University.

TIED DOWN

20 Years' Slavery—How She Got Freedom.

A dyspepsia veteran who writes from one of England's charming rural homes to tell how she won victory in her 20 year's fight, naturally exults in her triumph over the tea and coffee habit:

"I feel it a duty to tell you," she says, "how much good Postum has done me. I am grateful, but also desire to let others who may be suffering as I did, know of the delightful method by which I was relieved.

"I had suffered for 20 years from dyspepsia, and the giddiness that usually accompanies that painful ailment, and which frequently prostrated me. I never drank much coffee, and cocoa and even milk did not agree with my impaired digestion, so I used tea, exclusively, till about a year ago, when I found in a package of Grape-Nuts, the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"After a careful reading of the booklet I was curious to try Postum and sent for a package. I enjoyed it from the first, and at once gave up tea in its favor.

"I began to feel better very soon. My giddiness left me after the first few days' use of Postum, and my stomach became stronger so rapidly that it was not long till I was able (as I still am) to take milk and many other articles of food of which I was formerly compelled to deny myself. I have proved the truth of your statement that Postum 'makes good, red blood.'

"I have become very enthusiastic over the merits of my new table beverage, and during the past few months, have conducted a Postum propaganda among my neighbors which has brought benefit to many, and I shall continue to tell my friends of the "better way' in which I rejoice." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

There will be a regular meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the George street Methodist church this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock when a full attendance is requested.

Mr. John Young, Ennismore has purchased the old American House, Hunter street. Mr. Young will occupy the north half as an implement agency, and the south half will be converted into a garage.

Mrs. Lemon and family wish to thank all friends for flowers and sympathy and nurses of Nicholls' Hospital for kindness shown towards her little girl, who recently passed away.

Mr. Ed. Flaherty had the runner of his carting sleigh caught in the car tracks at the corner of George and Charlotte streets yesterday, and was thrown from the sleigh. Dr. Amys repaired the injuries, which are not serious.

OBITUARY

The Late Samuel Sherin.

On Saturday, January 6th, there passed away one of the oldest residents of the village of Lakefield, in the person of Samuel Sherin. He was born in the Township of Emily about five miles from Omemee on the fourth day of November, 1830. At the age of 24 years he moved to the present site of the village of Lakefield where he and his brother the late John C. Sherin, opened the first store in 1855, in which store he was employed for about twelve years, when his health failed him and he was compelled to give up business for about three years. He was appointed Clerk of the Division Court by the late Judge Boucher, and held that office for about twenty-four years, during which time he engaged in the conveyancing and insurance business. On the incorporation of the village of Lakefield in 1875, he was appointed Treasurer of the Village and held that office, with the exception of two or three years, until his death.

In 1863 he was married to Sarah A. Rosborough of the Township of Smith, who still survives him. He is also survived by four children, namely: Wesley, Division Court and Town Clerk of Lakefield; Samuel B., of "The News", Baltimore, Md.; Miss Alice, on the teaching staff of Toronto, and Miss Nina, residing at home.

Mr. Sherin was a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist Church, and was one of the original trustees of the Church in Lakefield. He also took a great interest in the Sunday School work and was Treasurer of that institution for over 46 years, from the date of its organization until his death.

The funeral took place yesterday from the family residence to Lakefield cemetery, where interment took place

SWITZERLAND FEARS INVASION BY ITALY

Fortifications at St. Gothard Pass Dominates Canton Desired By Italy—Austria Preparing for War

Berlin, Jan. 8.—"After Tripoli, what next?" is the question which, according to dispatches from Swiss correspondents of the German papers, is agitating the Swiss press and public.

Italy's seizure of Tripoli, combined with the well known aspiration of the Italian speaking portions of Switzerland with the Roman kingdom, is causing say these dispatches, much discussion of the possibility that the little mountain republic may be a future object of the aggression of its southern neighbor.

Since the outbreak of the Tripolitan war various Swiss papers have pointed out the significance for Switzerland of this unexpected launching of hostilities and the seizure of a coveted province and have concluded from it the necessity of neglecting no steps to maintain at the highest possible efficiency the defences and the fighting power of the country.

Canton of Ticino.

The part of Switzerland on which it is feared that Italy's eye may be turned is the canton of Ticino, on the Italian side of the Alps, known to thousands of tourists who have travelled over the St. Gothard railroad, or visited the Italian lakes. Its area is 1,098 square miles, and like the southern part of the canton of Valais and the Engadine region of Eastern Switzerland, is marked upon the maps and colored postcards of the Italian Irredentists (agitators for a united Italian empire) as one of the regions ultimately to be joined to Italy. What has focussed attention particularly on the Ticino is the vexation manifested in certain Italian quarters at the strong Swiss fortifications of the St. Gothard Pass, which dominate the canton.

A series of articles on the importance of these fortifications by an Italian general has recently appeared in the "Corriere della Sera," of Milan, but Italian criticism of the Swiss mistrust have rather increased than diminished the zeal with which the fortifications are being pressed.

In a recent article Dr. J. Schollenberger, professor of political science at the University of Zurich, maintains that Switzerland can expect little support from France and none from Italy of the neutrality and integrity of Swiss territory. A possible combination in the minds of the Swiss pessimists is an Italian occupation of the Ticino, for which France would be compensated by the grant of Geneva, a town thoroughly French in language and sympathies.

Austria Anxious.

Not only Switzerland, but also Austria-Hungary, Italy's ally, is thinking of the possibilities of Italian aggression. Since General Conrad has been at the head of the Austrian general staff the fortification of the mountain valleys of the Tyrol along the Italian frontier has been carried on with unceasing energy, until now every connecting pass and valley between the two countries is dominated by powerful fortifications.

Now attention has been turned to the Stilfser Joch, a well known Alpine pass, situated at the junction of the frontiers of Austria, Italy and Switzerland. Over this a fine carriage road leads from Italy into Austria. The pass has hitherto been considered amply defended by the fact that the route passes for a distance of about eight miles across a narrow point of neutral Swiss territory, but since the construction by Italy of a fortified camp at the foot of Monte Umbrail and of a fort on Monte Opa, both near the Italian end of the pass, and the extension of the Italian railroad to Bormio, a strong agitation that started for defensive measures on the Austrian side.

Italy's activity on this corner of her frontier is shown by the fact that mountain climbers are no longer allowed to ascend Monte or Piz Umbrail, one of the well known Alpine ascents.

SWITCH TAFT AND ROOSEVELT

Said to Be Latest Feature in the Republican Nomination Situation

CANVASS OF DELEGATES

Many Republicans Believe the Democrats Will Win If Either Is the Candidate — Anything But Easy Sailing in the Ranks of the Grand Old Party at Present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The very latest features in the Republican presidential nomination situation was the departure of Perry S. Heath, on a tour of the Pacific coast, the Rocky mountains, the northwestern states and other states west of the Missouri river, with a view to corralling uninstructed delegations to the national convention in June next. Mr. Heath said before leaving town, that his tour was not in the interest of President Taft or Col. Roosevelt, but that he represented Republicans who were inclined to believe neither could or should be re-elected, and that the nomination should go to a candidate who could unite the discordant elements in the national party. Mr. Heath recounted the turmoil between the Taft and anti-Taft men, the disturbances between the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt men, and the friction created by Lafollette and his followers, and so on down the list. Mr. Heath added that his tour was not in the interest of any single Republican presidential possibility, but it represented a hope that the delegations from the states he is to visit will find it agreeable to leave themselves open to discussion and counsel when they arrive in the convention city.

The attitude of the president's supporters has not altered one jot. They believe that if the president cannot win in the approaching national struggle, no Republican can.

The New York Republican delegation in congress was impressed today by the statement of Chairman William Barnes, jun., of the New York Republican state organization, wherein Mr. Barnes declared that if Col. Roosevelt was after the nomination the proper course for Roosevelt to pursue would be for Roosevelt to announce the fact. The New Yorkers believe that Mr. Barnes was right in this statement.

The New Yorkers are to go into the national convention with a platform which may not please the progressives. Members of the New York states delegations here believe that New York should set an example of old Republican doctrine on which the party has won most of its campaigns, that they should frown upon the radical tendencies of the day.

Recurring to the Roosevelt situation, there were Roosevelt men tonight who said that the colonel could no more prevent a movement in his favor than Bryan could prevent the movement in his direction in 1900 and 1908, and these Roosevelt men went on to say that even in Lafollette's own state of Wisconsin Roosevelt was infinitely more popular than Lafollette himself.

HOCKEY

The hockey match last night at the Brock street rink, between the Peterborough Juniors and the Lindsay Juniors, resulted in a win for the former by the score of 10—5.

There was a fair-sized crowd on hand to see the youngsters play their first O.H.A. game of the season. The Lindsay team were late in arriving on account of the storm and it was 9.45 before play commenced. Lindsay brought a large number of supporters with them.

The visitors scored first and a few minutes later Coughlin notched Peterborough's first tally. The Pets scored two more in this half making the score at half-time 3—1 in favor of the home seven.

The second half was more interesting, both teams mixing it from the bell. The home septette scored five in a row at intervals of a few minutes, Coughlin several times going the length of the ice, which eventually ended in a tally. Lindsay at this stage took a hand in the scoring and notched four goals. The Pets scored two more and the game ended 10—5 in their favor.

ROPE BREAKS MAN HANGS

Shocking Scene at a Public Execution

Was The Same Cord That Hung Mary Rogers Six Years Ago—May End Death Penalty.

Windsor, Vt., Jan. 9.—Elroy Kent was hanged at the state prison here to-day for the murder of Miss Delia B. Congdon, a deaf mute, at her home in East Wallingford 3½ years ago. Although death was practically instantaneous, it was accompanied by a gruesome accident, the rope breaking as it was snapped taut by the weight of the condemned man when the drop fell. In the opinion of Dr. S. E. McKerven, the prison physician who witnessed the execution, Kent suffered no "conscious thought" after the first tightening of the noose. In an official statement the doctor said that the man's neck was only partly broken by the fall.

The trap was released at 1.18 p.m. and the rope broke at the ring in the top of the gallows. As Kent's body fell to the floor the deputy sheriffs and doctors rushed to the condemned murderer's side. While some of the witnesses were lifting the body, others took the unnoosed end of the rope and fastened it over the balustrade in the rear of the gallows. At 1.25 p.m. Dr. McKerven made an examination and found that there was a slight pulse. Seventeen minutes later the body was taken down.

The following statement was issued by Dr. McKerven after the execution had been completed:

"Owing to an unavoidable accident which no one was responsible for, the condemned man's neck was only partially broken by the fall. But he suffered no conscious thought and died from the shock."

ORDER FLEET FOR HALIBUT FISHING.

Mr. Geo. H. Collins, managing director of the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Co., Prince Rupert, is at present in England, where he will call for tenders for building sixteen fishing vessels to be used in the waters of the Pacific adjacent to the plant next April.

The company will commence business and the vessels must be built and delivered by that time. The company is capitalized at $1,500,000 and the plant will cost when completed close on $500,000 and will be the largest of its kind in the world.

The buildings of the company at Prince Rupert are of reinforced concrete built at one end of the harbor, and will be fitted up with the most modern machinery.

The storage capacity will be fourteen million pounds of fish with a freezing capacity of 110 tons per day.

In an interview Mr. Collins said:—With the completion of the G.T.P., fish from the Pacific Coast will be put on the market three days quicker than now. This he explains by the fact that the greatest proportion of the fish is caught near Prince Rupert and thence has to be taken to Vancouver and Seattle for shipment.

The establishment will give employment to 500 men, none of whom will be Japanese. White men and Indians only will be employed.

The remaining directors of the company are:—Andrew Kelly, President of the Western Canada Flour Mills, Winnipeg; James Carruthers of Montreal, grain exporter, and Grier Starrett, former manager of the New England Fish Company.

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by all dealers.

BLASPHEMOUS DAMNATION OF GOD

The sensational statement of Father Comeau, of Winnipeg, published in The Times a few days ago, has been effectively replied to by Rev. Dr. Duval, moderator of the Presbyterian church of Canada. After saying that it is impossible to pass over in silence this deliverance, Dr. Duval discusses the hypothetical case advanced in a Catholic who married a Protestant without permission and wished to make another marriage.

"We find here," says the Presbyterian divine, "first, not simply a despising of a Protestant marriage, which we could pass up with dignity, but secondly, there is a despising of the law of the state which authorizes marriage. Thirdly, it implies that the Protestant wife has no rights of conscience which the Roman Catholic need respect. Fourthly, the Roman church outrages the natural law and the natural rights of men. The common law which gives the protection of a "common law wife" is better than such church laws. The lower animal instinct teaches a better law when it influences the noble male beast to stand by the mother in support of her young, but further, this priest says that this truant husband after leaving his Protestant wife may take up, what seems to common judgment an adulterous relation to another woman and by and by, go to the priest and get a secret marriage, which shall be good in "the eyes of God and the church." To people of natural moral instincts this is a blasphemous defamation of God, a putting of an arbitrary authority of the papal system in the place of the spirit of God to the cursing of humanity."

Dr. Duval closes with an appeal "to our more intelligent Roman Catholic fellow citizens," against submitting to a teaching that in itself is morally degrading and may open the way for conscienceless creatures to degrade Protestant women and then leave them to their fate.

A GARBAGE BY-LAW.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope the new Council will see the necessity that exists for a garbage by-law, and will give us one. It is a sin and a shame that we had not one long ago.

James Harris.

NOT A POPULAR REQUEST.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am pleased to see by the proceedings of the City Council on Monday night, that the application of the curlers for a grant of $100, with which to entertain the Scotch curlers on their visit here, has been turned down. The request never should have been made. I am satisfied that the main body of curlers had no hand in it.

A Curler.

OUR CITY COUNCIL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have read in your paper the report of the new Council for 1912, and I want to express my appreciation of the stand taken by Ald. Johnston. Owing to his past action toward the Fire Brigade, I for one was not in favor of his return to the Council Board. Therefore, I wish to express my commendation of the spirit he manifested in the meeting. It is more manly as well as Christian to repent of our wrongs, and forgive the wrongs of others, than to continue a vindictive spirit. I am speaking by way of encouragement to Ald. Johnston and others to continue the course of right doing, for nothing else will stand the test, of even public sentiment. It is also gratifying to note that Ald. Anderson who would not be made a tool of last year, is still determined on following his own sense of justice and right. Altogether it looks as though we have a Council now that is going to do business for the public. If I was qualified to make a suggestion to this wise body, it would be to see to it that we have in the near future something in the form of a garbage system.

This, I think, we are entitled to as taxpayers; yearly our taxes are going up and still no accommodation such as they have in other cities.

They might couple with the garbage, the cleaning of chimneys, which would be a great convenience, and I believe a preventive of fires. A few months ago I took the risk of getting to the top of my chimney to ascertain why our stove had so little draft. I found part way down the chimney it was almost blocked with dirt that had been there for years. Whether this would be injurious to the public health, or not, I am not prepared to say, not being a searcher after microbes and disease germs. I didn't see any. However, I believe a garbage system will add much to the sanitation of the city. I believe some of the time and money spent in water and milk tests might be saved by removing the garbage box from the kitchen door, within a few feet or yards of the milk jug. This box has been there for days waiting for the swill gatherer, who comes just as it suits himself. Here is this odor within a few feet of where the milk man is transferring milk to the home, then the poor milk man, or the innocent cow is blamed for the so-called microbes, or bad milk.

I do not wish to dictate to our Council, but hope that a hint to the wise will be sufficient.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space.

Sincerely Yours,
R. J. Todd.

A CITY IN THE MAKING

Port Mann, B. C., Rapidly Becoming An Important Business Centre.

Smoking factory chimneys, huge warehouses, wharves crowded with shipping, fine homes by the hundred, where a little while ago was forest full of unmolested game—this is a change they have grown used to in the West.

Vancouver, a lusty young giant, with close on 150,000 people, was the home of a couple of sawmills and a few fishing boats a bare quarter of a century ago. The coming of the C.P.R. made Vancouver an important point, and this importance has increased until it is regarded as the chief city of the West, with a future second to none in the Dominion. Land that was bought 25 years ago for a few dollars could not be had to-day for a million in cold cash, and the end is not even in sight. The same thing is about to occur again, this time at Port Mann.

When the Canadian Northern Railway set out to build a transcontinental line, they figured on Vancouver as their Western terminus. But they hadn't reckoned on the coast when they made this decision. They came to Vancouver and looked over the city and district for a terminal site. They wanted a great big block with lots of room for freight sheds, car shops, miles of track and lots of waterfrontage. But they were too late to get it in Vancouver at anything like the price they would pay, so they had to look elsewhere.

Failing Vancouver, Mackenzie and Mann determined to establish a city of their own that would suit their purposes exactly, and be a model in every respect. Months were spent in searching for such a spot and their choice finally fell on what is now known as Port Mann. They bought 2000 acres with a frontage of 2½ miles to the deep waters of the Fraser. A finer site could hardly be imagined. At this point there is safe anchorage, and deep water for the biggest boats on the Pacific. Along the waterfront the land is level, and it rises gently, till at the back it is a couple of hundred feet above the water. The whole block has been cleared, and is now being laid out and sub-divided according to the plans of Mr. Tod, an eminent Montreal landscape architect. Parks, a big lake, wide boulevards, tree-lined streets—all these are provided for.

Port Mann is to be a model city in every way, and nothing can prevent its rapid growth. The Canadian Northern are to build their car shops and engine works there, and they will have the greatest freight distributing yards in the West. They are offering inducements to manufacturers to locate in Port Mann, and already a huge steel mill and many other factories are assured. Port Mann must have 40,000 people in five years.

Millions of bushels of the Prairie wheat will go through Port Mann on its way to England, via Panama. Great wharves, docks and grain elevators are to be built to take care of this traffic. The Dominion Government is to spend a million dollars next year to improve the navigation of the Fraser, so as to provide for the largest ships afloat.

Between the railway holdings and the only electric tram line in Port Mann is a particularly fine residential block known as No. 1 addition to Port Mann. It has been sub-divided carefully, 66 ft. streets and 20 ft. lanes provided for, and the lots are now being offered at low prices and on easy terms by the Colonial Investment Co. of Vancouver.

We believe that any man with a few dollars a month to spare cannot do better than invest in these lots. His money will work for him night and day seven days a week, and should double itself every year. A man never becomes wealthy by working alone, there is nothing like good real estate in a town that MUST grow to make him independent quickly, easily and safely. We commend this to our readers.

ROBBER MAKES A CONFESSION

Aided in Robbery of the New Westminster Bank—Guilty of Two Murders.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—Despite denials on the part of the detectives, it was learned to-day that a woman, said to bear the name of Grace Reynolds, from Portland, Ore., was connected with the arrest here of Charles Hoffmann, alias Dean, alias Howard, alleged member of the gang which dynamited the vaults of the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B.C., Sept. 15, 1911. It was stated that this woman was used to trace the man credited with having been one of the three who took $375,000 in cash and securities from the bank.

Miss Reynolds is said to have posed as Hoffmann's wife, using the name of Mrs. Chas. Dean among the society people whose acquaintance she made while living in a fashionable part of Los Angeles.

Dean, the detectives say, was arrested here last Friday and is held awaiting extradition.

TRAPPED ON THE ROOF THREE MEN LEAPED TO THEIR DEATH

KNELT ON THE CORNICE WITH HANDS CLASPED IN SILENT PRAYER BEFORE THE END

President Giblin Rescued—1,600,000 Record Cards Destroyed, But There Is a Duplicate Set in Another Building.

New York, Jan. 9. The great marble building of the Equitable Life Assurance Society at 120 Broadway the home of the Mercantile Trust Company, the Equitable Trust Company, the banking house of Kountze Bros., the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, and the Harriman lines was destroyed early to-day by fire. Three men lost their lives by leaping from the roof and the property loss is estimated at about $10,000,000. Millions of dollars in cash and securities are locked in the vaults of the Assurance Society and the Banking and Trust Companies, but are not believed to be affected by the flames.

PRESIDENT GIBLIN RESCUED.

William Giblin, president of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, was imprisoned with three other employees in the vaults and was rescued after the firemen sawed through several two inch steel bars. One man is believed to have lost his life in the vaults.

Firemen say that the man rescued was not Deputy Chief Walsh, and that his body is still in the ruins.

BUSINESS DOWN TOWN IS SUSPENDED.

The fire was in the heart of the financial district and the flames were fought mainly from the tops of towering skyscrapers. Business was brought almost to a complete standstill about banking and brokerage houses whose employees could not reach the scene of their daily activities. Financial firms stopped business to care for the firemen.

The fire when discovered at six o'clock this morning had already gained a tremendous headway. It had started on one of the upper stories of the great granite building which occupies a full block on the old Trinity Church, and is one of the well known monuments of the down town district.

JUMPED TO DEATH.

Three men jumped from the roof of the Equitable Building into Cedar street, the police reported, and were killed. They were watchmen employed in the upper part of the building, it is supposed that their escape was cut off.

The fire started in the Cafe Savarin an eating house in the basement of the building while the restaurant employees were smothering the flames in their kitchen the blaze crept up the elevator shafts without their knowledge and in a few minutes later broke out in unrepressed fury on the upper floors.

RICHESON, BROOKLINE MURDERER SENTENCED TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

DATE SET FOR THE EXECUTION —PETITION WILL NOW BE MADE TO THE STATE GOVERNOR.

Pastor Retracts His Former Plea and Makes Formal Admission of Guilt.

Boston, Jan. 9.—A plea of guilty of murder in the first degree was made by Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson in the Superior Court to-day and he was sentenced by Judge Sanderson to death by electrocution sometime during the week of May 19, 1912.

Richeson had pleaded not guilty when arraigned after his indictment on the charge of poisoning Avis Linnell, of Hyannis, Mass., his former fiancee, but following a written confession, made public Saturday last, he to-day retracted his plea and made a formal plea of guilty.

It is understood that a petition may be made to Governor Foss and the Executive Council of the State to commute the death sentence to imprisonment for life.

BANK ROBBER WITH CANADIAN RECORD

JOHN McNAMARA SAID TO HAVE STOLEN $375,000 FROM NEW WESTMINSTER BANK.

Has a 25-Year Record—Caught on the Street, and Said He Was Glad There Was Nothing More Serious.

New York, Jan. 9.—John McNamara of San Francisco, known to detectives of half a dozen cities as "Australian Mark," was arrested here last night by Central Office detectives on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $375,000 from the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B.C., which was dynamited on Sept. 15. Eleven hundred dollars was found in his wallet, and detectives are searching the city to-night for $240,000 of the bank's funds, which he is believed to have brought to New York with him.

Boots and Shoes.

Shoes are one of the expenses of a toilet that may be reduced by care alone. A worn-out shoe cannot be renovated; no amount of skill will make it pass as new. The only possible way to save in shoe leather is to care properly for the shoes while wearing them. When they are taken off they should be wiped at once, and if wet filled with paper and put in a dry place (nor near the first) for some hours. We do not advise putting shoes into a bag, for the sake of neatness. If boot-trees are not convenient the boots or shoes should be stood where the air can get to them, as this will tend to harden the soles.

If properly cooked boiled round steak will be rare, tender and juicy. Plunge the meat into sufficient boiling water to cover, boil rapidly for fifteen minutes, then push the kettle over a slow fire where it will simmer at one hundred and eighty degrees Fahrenheit for fifteen minutes minutes to each pound of beef. Serve the beef with cream horseradish sauce, boiled turnips or cabbage and potatoes.

An old country woman and her daughter went into a shop in town to buy a bonnet. When she had purchased the bonnet the milliner, turning to the woman, said:—"What about a sailor for your daughter?" meaning, of course, a hat. The woman turning to the girl, indignantly retorted—"What about a soger for yourself?"

An "Ear Telephone."

Differing from the various kinds of instruments which are used to aid persons of defective hearing, a new long distance hearing apparatus has recently been invented to assist the hearing of normal persons in much the same way that a telescope does the eye; that is, it enables one to distinguish sounds through a great distance, besides amplifying tones which would ordinarily be detected by the unaided ears. For this reason it has been facetiously called the "ear telescope."

BOILED SNAKE-ONE.

Reptiles Though Repugnant to European Tastes are Considered in Many Climes as Dainty Dishes.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "cut" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled-Snake—One."

A particularly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs, in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk, and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat markets of Senaar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcases hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in Siam, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

The Public Are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. THE GOLDEN ROSE MINING COMPANY

LIMITED OF ORILLIA

Capitalization $500,000; Divided into 500,000 Shares; Par Value $1.00

Have decided to mine a large quantity of the Very Rich Ore shown up by recent developing work, and also intend to erect a mill to crush from 20 to 25 tons a day. This will enable the Company to pay dividends next summer. In order to provide funds for this purpose the Company now offer the balance of the 50,000 shares offered to the public in the Prospectus dated 26th day of September, 1910, filed with the Provincial Secretary, Sept. 27th, 1910. These shares are now selling at $1.25 per share until Nov. 25th. They will then advance to $1.50 per share. They will continue to advance in price as developing work proceeds. Assays got from this property run from $22.00 in gold per ton to $86,-240.40 (eighty-six thousand two hundred and forty dollars and forty cents). Part of the machinery is now at the mine—the balance will be taken in on the snow roads this winter.

The Golden Rose Mine is forty miles from Markstay Station by winter roads, and in summer it is reached by boat from Temagami Station on T. & N. O. Ry.

MILL RUN

Four and a quarter tons of ore was sent to Kingston. It averaged $50.00 in gold to the ton.

71.7 PER CENT. FREE MILLING

Four assays obtained from Hendley & Parker, Sudbury, gave, respectively, gold values of $2,419.01 $1,020.68, $787.63, $102.72. Two just recently assayed $607.20 and $393.60.

This stock is closely held, and will not be listed with any broker till the mill is installed and the first dividends paid. A small block will then be listed to make it liquid. As an investment this is second to none.

QUAINT CHARITIES

A Bachelor Who Left an Endowment to the Man Who Would Lead the Ugliest Woman to the Altar.

A well-known bachelor who died the other day at Frankfort, Germany, left an endowment for an annual prize of $125 to the man who leads the ugliest woman to the altar. If the bride is lame as well as unprepossessing the groom will receive an additional sum of $25.

This reminds us that the town of Haschmann, in [illegible], has a system of rewarding lovers who marry girls who have little or no personal attractions. A well-known financier left a sum of money to the town authorities to provide dowries for the plainest woman under thirty married in Haschmann every year, a cripple, and four women under forty who had been jilted several times.

Some years ago a merchant of Kentucky, U.S.A., instructed his executors to invest a certain sum of money and divide the interest every year — on their wedding days — among five American girls who were possessed of heads of "real red" hair. The founder of this marriage portion died a bachelor, and those who knew him declared that when quite a young man he was very badly treated by a handsome young woman who was exceptionally proud of the fact that she was the owner of a head of glossy red hair.

Givette, a town in the Ardennes, was left some money a long time ago, and to-day it encourages matrimony by awarding money prizes to mothers who send the largest number of children to the schools.

Every spring several young servant girls of Cardiff, Wales, who wish to get married, are handed a sum of money towards the expense of getting a home together. The maidens are nominated by the Cardiff Council and the mayor pays over the dowries. This marriage fund owes its existence to the generosity of the Marquess of Bute, he having placed in the hands of the mayor of Cardiff, in the year 1897, the sum of $5000, the yearly income from which was to be distributed each spring to deserving cases of the girls whose wedding was arranged by the committee.

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

She had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, dimpling, kissable dimple.

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will stay there until next pay day. 41

WOOD PULP AND PAPER TRADE MEET

Home Market Club Against Its Free Importation Into American Markets Especially from Canada.

(Special Cable Service.)

BOSTON. — Just before adjournment of its meeting here, the Home Market Club went on record as against the free importation of wood pulp and print paper from Canada, and the possibility of the extension of this policy to other pulp and paper exporting countries. The resolution, which was adopted unanimously, was as follows:

"Whereas, wood pulp and print paper have been placed on the free list so far as Canada is concerned, notwithstanding that the expected concessions on the part of Canada have been denied us, and whereas demands are now being made under the favored nation clause by all paper exporting countries for the same tariff privileges which have been extended to Canada:

"Be it resolved, that we protest against this unjust treatment of American paper manufacturers and respectfully petition Congress to repeal this legislation."

Secretary Marvin, after the adoption of the resolution, pointed out that in 1906 and 1907 the paper producing countries of Europe, held by Norway, Germany, the Netherlands, Austria and Great Britain, had a surplus for export amounting to $337,127,000, or nearly twice as large as the entire paper and wood pulp production of the United States.

Duel Up To Date

A contest in the air between rival aviators for a girl's hand was the feature of a one-day aviation meet arranged for at Lima, Ohio. Two of the aviators, Jack Bachelor and Bert Chambers, had been laying siege to the heart of Miss Dorothy Dale, of Tiffin, Ohio. Miss Dale refused to choose between them, and in a recent meet in that city made a trip into the clouds with both. She promised to make her decision, and intimated that she would accept the one that made the highest altitude record during the day.

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver. Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

It fell to his lot in 1893 to proclaim a new sultan of Zanzibar, Mr. Rennell Rodd, as he then was, being British agent.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can know them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me some as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 837 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that. I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism. It will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic troubles.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weak nerves, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.

18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

THE MORNING TIMES

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1912.

ULSTER'S DEFIANCE.

The political air in Great Britain is thick and troubled. This new year of 1912 will see the advance of radicalism contemned. With the insurance bill passed nothing seems too hard for the triumphant coalition of Liberals, Labor members, and Irishmen. They are now pushing forward to the disestablishment of the church of England and Wales. Before long they will try to put through the home rule measure for which the Irish contingent have so patiently waited.

But before home rule becomes a fact there promises to be the biggest struggle that has ever been witnessed in Great Britain since the days of King William of Orange. Even now, months before the bill is introduced into the house of commons, the men of the North of Ireland stoutly declare that before they will submit to self-government for Ireland they will defend themselves as their fathers did of old in Derry. They promise to set up a provisional government of their own and defy the British government to do its worst. The determination of character always shown in the past by Ulstermen forbids the English public from receiving this threat as a piece of political bluff. Nowhere in the world are religious lines more tightly drawn than in Ireland, and armed rebellion on the part of the men of the north would be followed by one of the bloodiest chapters in English history.

But what can the British government do? Can it revoke its long given promise? Can it so far forget its dignity as to receive the dictation of the Ulster insurgents? If the Protestants of the north of Ireland proceed to extreme lengths and fortify the town of Derry, patch up the old walls and take down the weapons of old, there will come to pass one of the strangest reversions of history in our annals.

The British government will surely exhaust all methods of settlement before they bring about even the possibility of such a dire event. But it is very hard to see how a solution of this dark problem is at all possible.

How Wrinkles Are Caused—And Removed

(From The Family Physician)

It is well known that the human skin is constantly undergoing a tearing down and building up process. With advancing years or waning vitality this tissue-change lags; the lifeless, soiled surface skin stays on so long that its owner gets a poor complexion."

Common sense tells us this dead skin cannot be enlivened or beautified by any cosmetic, lotion or powder. The natural thing to do is to remove the offensive skin—remove the bad complexion. It has been found that ordinary mercolized wax completely absorbs the devitalized skin, in minute particles, so gently, gradually, as to cause no inconvenience. Mercolized wax, which any druggist can supply, is put on at night like cold cream, only not rubbed in, and washed off in the morning. If you would have a brilliantly beautiful complexion, just use this simple treatment.

SHOOTING PAINS IN SIDE, ARMS, BACK

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful, but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you wonderful things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds," because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an Imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the times of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

RECIPROCITY IN ORE

A Budding Mark Twain

A boy in Oklahoma City submitted the following essay on the ship of the desert:—

"A caanimal is a sheep of the desert. It is called a bacteria, because it has bumps on its back. The caanimal is very patient, and will lie down and die without a groan, but when it is angry it gets its back up, which is called taking the hump. The shepherds of the caanimals is called Arabs. When they live in towns they are called street Arabs. When the caanimal goes on a journey it drinks as much as it can to last for many days. Such animals are called aquiducks. Those that cannot carry enough are called inebriates."

The boy is eight years old. His teacher says he is an ignoramus. His father says he is a young Mark Twain.

Franklin's Manners

Franklin collected thirteen principles to cover the small amenities of daily life. Each week he picked out one and practised it diligently, thus creating a habit. It took three months to cover them all. Each year he practised each one four full weeks. He kept this up for many years. The uncouth Franklin of early manhood who found fault with his wife for giving him a silver spoon and a china bowl for his bread and milk instead of a pewter spoon and earthenware crock, developed into the statesman and man of the world who won the respect of Englishmen, the admiration of Frenchmen, and the gratitude of Americans.

ILLUSTRATION OF PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

The United States Government is Running Department Stores, Hotels and a Steamship Line in Panama.

The United States government, as everybody knows, is engaged in [illegible] canal across the Isthmus of Panama. What the world does not generally understand is that as part of this operation the government is also running lines of railway, a departmental store, hotels and a steamship line. At this government departmental store it is possible to buy almost everything, including ladies' patent leather shoes, briar pipes, teething rings for babies, sugared almonds etc. No less than fifteen hotels are operated, besides 18 mess halls. During one month these places served nearly 1,000,000 meals all told.

This has led a writer to suggest the possibility of the United States government developing Alaska by means of railways operated by the government itself.

Does not what has been accomplished suggest something more—the possibility of solving the trust problem by means of public ownership? It seems futile to talk of going back to the old days of small industries and free competition. The economy in large operations is something the public will not readily consent to surrender. Neither does it seem altogether easy to solve the problem by public control of corporations. The only easy way out would seem to be going the whole length and providing for public operation, something which does not, in view of what is being accomplished in Panama, appear so very difficult after all.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion, disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

Two Days to Make a Town

The largest single building ever moved bodily was a block of dwelling-houses known as Normandy Apartments in America. The building weighed 5,000 tons, yet it was decided to shift it as it stood, in order to make room for an elevated railway. It was done, however, without any mishaps, though the move took ten weeks' hard labour to accomplish.

In 1850 the inhabitants of Tipperary had a dispute with their ground landlord, and gave notice to quit in a body. At a spot some miles distant they were provided by the Land League with a brand-new Tipperary. Unlike the inhabitants of Platte they decided to leave the houses standing, though everything else portable was taken. It was lucky they did so, for New Tipperary proved a hopeless failure, and after a few months the inhabitants had another huge flitting back to their old homes.

Milking by Electricity.

We have had milking machines for some while; now comes the American electric machine which jealously watches the milk from cow to pail, from pail to dairy, from dairy to sterilizer, from sterilizer to separator, from separator to churn, from churn to refrigerator, neatly packed up as germless butter.

You press a button. Four cows are electrically milked simultaneously, and all this happens. And not a germ, not a molecule of contamination. This is an era of hard choices for the man who loves health and beauty equally. The farmyard of the future is not an inspiring speculation, but the most aesthetic person cannot preserve a blind eye to the sediment in his glass of milk.

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

TIED DOWN

20 Years' Slavery—How She Got Freedom.

A dyspepsia veteran who writes from one of England's charming rural homes to tell how she won victory in her 20 years fight, naturally exults in her triumph over the tea and coffee habit:

"I feel it a duty to tell you," she says, "how much good Postum has done me. I am grateful, but also desire to let others who may be suffering as I did, know of the delightful method by which I was relieved.

"I had suffered for 20 years from dyspepsia, and the giddiness that usually accompanies that painful ailment, and which frequently prostrated me. I never drank much coffee, and cocoa and even milk did not agree with my impaired digestion, so I used tea, exclusively, till about a year ago, when I found in a package of Grape-Nuts, the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"After a careful reading of the booklet I was curious to try Postum and sent for a package. I enjoyed it from the first, and at once gave up tea in its favor.

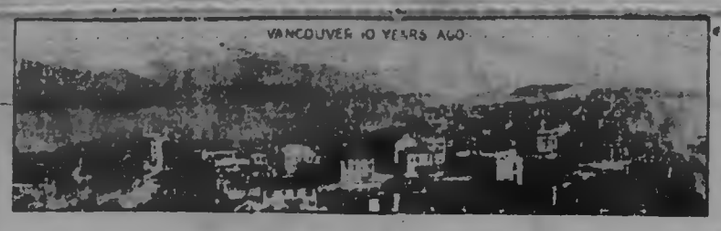
"I began to feel better very soon. My giddiness left me after the first few days' use of Postum, and my stomach became stronger so rapidly that it was not long till I was able (as I still am) to take milk and many other articles of food of which I was formerly compelled to deny myself. I have proved the truth of your statement that Postum 'makes good, red blood.'

"I have become very enthusiastic over the merits of my new table beverage, and during the past few months, have conducted a Postum propaganda among my neighbors which has brought benefit to many, and I shall continue to tell my friends of the "better way' in which I rejoice." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security



100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares. Mail your subscription To-day.

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R has given the people excellent telegraph services.

Romans in Britain

The Roman galley found during the excavations in connection with the new County Hall for London was moved from Westminster Bridge to the new London museum at Kensington Place the other day. When the oaken beams were hoisted from the Thames mud a quantity of decayed bones was discovered. These included the rib of a man and other human remains, and also the jaw of a dog. Their condition was such that it was found necessary to enclose them in wire netting to prevent them falling to pieces.

Highest on Earth

The Loa Bridge in the Chins Andes is the highest bridge in the world. This wonderful construction is four hundred feet high, eight hundred feet long, and stands ten thousand feet above sea-level. It crosses a great ravine some three hundred miles from Antofagasta, on the railway running from that port into Bolivia. This line is also of interest from the fact that it is the highest railway in the world, climbing at one point up to over sixteen thousand six hundred feet above sea-level.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram [illegible] quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than passion-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that!"

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied [illegible] said against him.

CAVE-DWELLERS OF TUNIS

The capital city of the Matmatas, the cave-dwellers of Tunis containing about 3,000 inhabitants, one of the strangest in the world. It is not erected upon the ground but is burrowed in the earth, the country being a high, rocky plateau, barren, sunbaked, and sweet by the simoom.

When one of the [illegible] to build a dwelling, he chooses his site, traces a circle to show the [illegible] and then digs until he reaches the desired depth, which varies according to the number of storeys he desires. The rooms are cave-like, and open on the sides of the circular courtyard, and the bottom of the pit forms the courtyard, which is a main feature of a Moorish house. Besides the rooms, a passage is made for communicating with the outer world, and a door is built at the outer end.

The soil is a malleable clay, is easily cut, and lends itself well to excavation, the roof of each room requiring no support as soon as it is well arched. The cave-dwellers inhabit the territory between the town of Tebes, on the Tunis road, and the sand-hills of the Sahara.

USEFUL ENDEAVOR

Brayson: "Come out with me for a ride in my motor-car?"

Wise: "How long have you had it?"

"Just got it."

"Had any experience with cars?"

"No."

"Going to run it yourself?"

"I am."

"Can you mend a punctured tyre?"

"No."

"Wouldn't know the first thing to do?"

"Not the first thing."

"Have you studied, read, or been given any advice?"

"No; I tell you I don't know anything about them."

"How far do you want to go?"

"Just as far as the thing will go."

"All right. I'll come with you."

"What! Why, I didn't dream you'd accept my invitation."

"Why not?"

"I didn't think you'd care to go out in a motor-car with a man who doesn't know anything about it."

"Nonsense! You're just the man."

"How's that?"

"Simply because, my friend, if we break down, we'll drop the machine and get home by train. But if you thought you knew anything about it, you'd spend the rest of the day trying to put it right, while I'd have to stay and suffer with you as a matter of common courtesy."

Miss Elder: "You fancy yourself very clever, I dare say; but I could give you a wrinkle or two."

Miss Younger: "No doubt you could—and never miss them."

From Generation to Generation.

Grandfather Billings smiled covertly when Billings junior wondered where Billings third, aged seven, got his "trickiness." "If I didn't keep my eyes open," said Billings junior, hotly, "Billy would outwit me every time."

"This morning," he continued, "I promised him a whipping to-night. When the event came off just now he never flinched or yelled. 'Pluck pure and simple!' said I to myself, mighty proud, for I wasn't sparing him in the least. But that wasn't it at all," he concluded, in disgust. "The young rascal had on three pairs of trousers."

"As I remember it," observed Grandfather Billings, reflectively, "we used to insert a small geography when a 'good sound one' was on [illegible]."

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

Woman's Influence.

Some men strive to gain success,
To win firm footholds on the height,
Because within them selfishness
Is ever urging, day and night—

Some men press on as best they may
With pick or spade or sword or pen
Because their wish is day by day
To benefit their fellow men.

One in ten thousand, glad to claim
The world's approval, nobly strives,
But most men, who win wealth or fame
Do so to satisfy their wives.

How Nature Makes New Complexions

(From American Home.)

"Why did no one think of this before" writes a clear-thinking reader. "Wrinkles are caused by the skin becoming loose. Obviously the remedy is to tighten the skin. Equally it is obvious that the only thing which will tighten the skin is a powerful astringent.

"Now, it is well known that the only powerful astringent which is absolutely harmless and beneficial as well, is pure powdered saxolite, obtainable from any druggist. Dissolve one ounce in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in it daily and—behold! The result is almost magical. The skin becomes firm and smooth, the face feels snug, comfortable and solid, instead of loose and flabby. Simple, isn't it? As I asked—why did no one think of it before?

"One should be careful, however, to use no other astringents than pure saxolite, as the former do no good and are really injurious more often than not."

Local Option Next Year.

The Times is informed that the temperance party has practically decided to bring on a vote on Local Option next January in this city. The campaign will probably begin in the spring, and will continue throughout the summer and fall.

Creeps like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked.

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh, and prevents the disease spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes, and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a commonsense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone. The complete outfit costs only $1.00. Trial size, 25c. Sold by Druggists, and The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

SOCIETY DEALERS

Society People By Art Dealing Are Good Money on the Side And Many Make Their Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of without every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures, and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. "There are certainly in society, many who add to their diminished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"The lady was delighted to see him; she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt; he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is badly hit by the depression in agriculture. You know all the rich Americans and the value of fine furniture; could you possibly help me to sell that magnificent Louis Seize piece? It was given to a former Duke by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture — it was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have risen in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kuangtung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husband more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself in her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, rates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

Permanent War-Paint.

The new football rule making it compulsory for a goalkeeper to wear a distinguishing jersey led to an amusing incident at a junior match in the Midlands recently.

When the visiting team came on the field their goalkeeper, a youth of gigantic proportions, was seen to be wearing a jersey of the same flaring colours as the rest of the side.

"You must put another jersey," ordered the referee, and the player trotted back to the pavilion.

Back he came in five minutes, still wearing the offending garment. "There ain't another jersey in the place half big enough," he explained.

"Then you'll have to play without one," snapped the autocrat of the whistle, whose temper was not sweetened by waiting about in a cold drizzle.

When the young giant once more reappeared on the field with his team's colours still in evidence, the patience of the officials quite gave way.

"If you don't change that jersey I'll order you off the field," he bellowed.

"I ain't got no jersey on, mister," came the reply. "I've been wearing the blessed thing for the last month of the week, and it's [illegible]
